PRES. TAFT HAS A LOOK AT CANADA

Gazes at a Distance and Talks of Reciprocal Trade.

Eastport, Me., July 21.—President Taft and his party, which includes Mrs. Taft, the assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Beekman Winthrop and Mrs. Winthrop, landed here from the United States steamship Mayflower Tuesday afternoon. The trip from Beverly until the Mayflower dropped anchor just inside the big white buoy which marks the boundary between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, had been without incident.

In a short speech made from the front of the Peavey Library, the President endorsed in the strongest terms the policy of reciprocal relations between the United States and Canada. Looking across the little bay which separates the fertile lands of Eastern Maine from those of the same character in New Brunswick, the President seemed impressed with the closeness and natural unity of the two countries.

"You are close to the Canadian border," he said to the people of Eastport, "close enough to know its residents as neighbors. That is a grand country, just learning how great it is and how great its resources. Speaking for the administration, we are convinced that the closest relations will be good for both countries.

"If in the next year we can come to an agreement which will make our trade relations closer, we shall be fortunate. We have reached a time in our development when neither should be jealous of the other. The more prosperous the one the more prosperous will be the other. The trade of one as it grows is the trade of the other.

"All the controversies between the United States and Great Britain are now either settled or in course of settlement by arbitration. This is the first time in the history of the country that this could be said."

Child's Foot Mangled.

Chatham, July 21.—The six-year-old daughter of James Lozon, farmer, is in the hospital here with her right foot badly mangled. The accident occurred while a mower was in operation.

TO BE ERECTED IN MEMORY OF KING EDWARD VII.

PROPOSED PLAN OF INDIAN MUSEUM.

At a recent meeting of the East India Association in London Mr. C. E. Drummond Black read a paper on "An India Museum as a Memorial of His Late Majesty King Edward VII.," in which he said that no one would deny that some such institution was necessary in London as typifying India. A unique site had already been acquired on the Surrey bank of the Thames close to the uprising London County Council Hall. The government would be expected to help by contributing at least the site and an annual subsidy. At present India sends her geological and mineralogical products to Jermyn street, her vegetable products to Kew and her antiquities to the British Museum.

If the proposal is carried into effect the length of the building will be 370 feet, the breadth 210 feet and the height 130 feet, and it will cover an area of 157,251 superficial feet, exclusive of corridors or staircases. In a recent discussion on the subject Mr. Chisholm, formerly government architect at Madras, who is the author of the design for the museum, pointed out that Berlin had a very fine Indian manufacturers' hall, and it was surely time for England to have one. Excluding the site, which is declared to be one of the finest in the world, he estimated the cost at between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS AT THE HAGUE

National Counsel Are Still Pleading Before Tribunal.

The Hague, July 21.—Continuing his argument on behalf of Newfoundland, before the tribunal, S. S. Ewart endeavored to show that even if the United States had been accorded fishing servitude by the treaty of 1818, the exercise of such servitude was susceptible to modifications by Britain by regulations or laws which were not incompatible with the treaty. There was no clause in the treaty obliging Britain to submit such regulation to the United States for assent, attempts to frame regulations in common had failed.

The servitude theory put forward by the United States is to be dealt with by Attorney-General Robson.

The tribunal expressed a desire that the contending parties should communicate within one week detailed copies of the laws and regulations to which they object, together with a statement of their objections, which, it was stated, would be transmitted to the other side, in order that the latter might reply to them in the course of the following week.

S. J. Elder, for the United States, then opened his speech, arguing that the cause of the arbitration proceedings was the attitude of Premier Bond in introducing during his tenure of office as Premier fiscal legislation, the object whereof was to force the United States to ratify the disadvantageous treaty. Previous to 1905 Newfoundland had not objected to American fishermen, who exercised their rights in accordance with the treaty of 1818 to such legislation, but in 1905, when the Hay-Bond treaty was submitted to the United States Senate, Premier Bond introduced a new bill concerning foreign craft, which tended to deprive American fishermen of rights hitherto enjoyed by them.

Serious Fire In Kootenay.

Nelson, B.C., July 21.—From the fire districts reports are that the Slocan fires are raging fiercely. It is reported, but not confirmed, that Three Forks is completely wiped out and that Sandon is doomed.

A furious fire is also reported to have wiped Jaffray and Baynes off the map.

BOTH SIDES BLUFFING; WHICH WILL BE CALLED?

No Effort is Being Made to Run Freights and Many Passengers Trains Are Cancelled—First Violence Occurs in Sherbrooke, Que., and Niagara Falls, Where Strike-Breakers Are Mobbed.

Montreal, July 21.—There is no doubt that a great deal of bluffing is being indulged in both by the strike leaders and the railway officials. For instance, Vice-President Murdock declares most emphatically that the trainmen will not arbitrate, even if Sir Wilfrid Laurier came back from the West and asked them to give their case to an independent party, while Vice-President Fitzhugh of the G.T.R. states that by Saturday the backbone of the strike will be broken.

It is, of course, very difficult for anyone here to size up the situation, as naturally nothing is given out by the representative leaders that will endanger their cause. One thing is sure, however, after yesterday's developments the men who were turned out of the shops are blaming the strikers for what has befallen them, consequently sympathy is rather on the side of the company. At Bonaventure Station last night there was no appearance of a strike, and trains are arriving and departing with very near their accustomed regularity. This, however, is when one is not behind the scenes. The suburbans began to move at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, the train for Vaudreuil being the first to get out of the Bonaventure Station, and the officials say that they will all be on the move by to-night. In fact, they claim that it is all right to-day, but this is a claim that cannot be justified, as men who formerly traveled to Lachine and other points by the G.T.R. are now using the electrics.

The feature of the day was the trainmen's decision that, now that the gauntlet had been thrown down, they would not arbitrate. Mr. Murdock was sure that this idea of arbitration was a trick on the part of the company to make friends for, if it went out that Mr. Murdock had declined to treat with people from the Department of Labor, for instance, a good many people might blame them for not doing so, hence his desire to avoid any false position that the company might want to force upon them.

"Everything is going splendidly, in view of the fact that a strike was necessary," he said late yesterday. "We have information that not three freight trains were moved on the Grand Trunk system yesterday. We know, of course, that an attempt would be made to move the passenger trains by officials, or would-be officials, but I am receiving constant messages from all over the lines to show how little success they are having even with that."

Mr. Murdoch reiterated that President Hays had not been willing to give the 51 per cent. increase awarded by the conciliation board, but that it worked out less than 13 per cent., and in many instances less than 10 per cent.

"We will win this fight by fair and square means or else lose it," he rejoined. "There will be no violence that we can prevent, and I have heard of none. Unfortunately we cannot be responsible for every individual, but we will allow no violence anywhere."

Mr. Murdoch said that no I.C.R. man would be allowed to touch freight in the G.T.R. yards.

"Will your organization do anything to help the men who were locked out of the shops?" Mr. Murdoch was asked.

"That is not part of our duty," he said. "The company locked these men out just to make trouble for us. It is not our fault, any more than it is our fault that Booth's mill in Ottawa are closed.

It was very evident yesterday that the invitation of the company to the effect that all men who would show up yesterday would be taken back at their ald status, had failed, for none of the strikers have put in an appearance, at least on this part of the system.

Riot at Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 21.—O. W. Smith, night agent of the G.T.R. here, was slugged by a mob at the N.Y.C. depot, on the American side last Tuesday evening, mistaking him for a non-union conductor. He received a bad cut over the right eye and another on the top of the head, knocked him down and rendered him unconscious.

A mob of about a hundred, principally young men, awaited the Muskoka express, which pulled in at 11.30, and began jeering and hooting those in charge of the train, and Grand Trunk officials, including Supt. C. S. Cunningham. Stones and eggs were freely used, several of the stones narrowly escaping striking Cunningham's head. The police were called, and two men sent to the depot, who escorted the official through the hooting crowd to the bridge, where he superintended the handling of the Chicago express to this side.

After the departure of the train the crowd attempted to mob Cunningham again, throwing eggs and stones.

A Conductor Mobbed.

Sherbrooke, Que., July 21.—There was considerable trouble here at the G.T.R. station Tuesday evening when the Montreal-Island Pond train arrived an hour late. There was a large crowd at the station, and when the acting conductor went to get his orders he was hooted and mobbed.

Tie on the Track.

Clinton, July 21.—An attempt was made Tuesday evening to wreck the G.T.R. northbound London train at Brucefield, near Clinton. A railroad tie was placed across the track, but was discovered and removed just before the train came along.

A Leading Suffragist.

New York, July 21.—Mrs. Ethel Snowden, the well-known English suffragist, has come to stimulate the interest of the women of the middle west in the suffragist movement. She arrived yesterday on the steamer Carmania, and in a few days will go west to talk on British politics and the right of women to vote. Mrs. Snowden's husband is a member of Parliament.

DID MUTE SET FIRES?

Remarkable Story Comes Gimli, Manitoba.

Winnipeg, July 21.—The provincial police have evolved a remarkable theory which they hope to prove in court in the case of a deaf mute boy, aged thirteen, recently arrested and committed for trial on a charge of incendiarism at Gimli, Man., as the result of an investigation into six mysterious fires which destroyed the houses of settlers there.

Until a little over a year ago, the boy was a young savage, unable to communicate with anyone except by natural gestures, as no one in the settlement understood or could teach him the language of mutes. The result was a backward development of mentality, and when the boy at the age of twelve was taken to the deaf and dumb institute at Winnipeg, he was like a child of six in understanding. He ran away from the institute four times, thinking he had been deserted forever by his family but when sent home for a week and then brought back, he was thoroughly satisfied, and apparently feared nothing but that he might be taken home again. Shortly after being sent home for the summer holidays, some weeks ago, incendiary fires terrorized the settlement at Gimli, and the boy was finally arrested. The police theory is that he deliberately fired the houses in the hope of getting into trouble and being sent back to the institute at Winnipeg.

Cambridge Man Suicides.

New York, July 21.—Arthur Hall of London, a Cambridge man and member of the Eccentric Club of London, was found in a lonely part of Colonial Park yesterday with a bullet in his mouth.

Sneezed to Death.

New York, July 21.—Joseph Benerschied sneezed himself to death in a restaurant yesterday. After shaking pepper into his soup, he was seized by a fit of sneezing and ruptured a blood vessel.

MUSKOKA EXPRESS DITCHED

Toronto, July 21.—The engine of the new Muskoka Express on the Grand Trunk, due here early this morning, was ditched just north of the Dundas street bridge, opposite the chicle factory at 1.23 this morning.

The engineer and fireman are badly scalded, perhaps fatally.

The accident was caused by a spreaded rail. Both rails are curled up like a bow, over the locomotive, which is over on its side.

Two coaches were also ditched, but none of the passengers injured. A special street car brought the passengers down town.

Joseph Smith, aged 42, of Stratford was killed by a fall from an elevator.

GOTHAM GAY NO LONGER.

New York, July 19.—There now remains in a city of nearly 4,000,000 just six places where a wayfarer abroad after 1 o'clock in the morning may walk through the front door and order a drink within the law. Mayor Gaynor's scrutiny of the all-night license list resulted in a second cut yesterday by which the 13 remaining from the original 40 odd, when the Mayor took the subject first under advisement, were still further abudged. Those penalized include many names blazoned bright across the "white way," and known from coast to coast.

ENVELOPED IN FLAMES

New York, July 21.—Hundreds of spectators, among whom were many women, were horror-stricken while attending a performance in a Belleville, N.J., park, when Henrietta Halkviet, member of a fire diving troup, failed to escape scathless as usual when diving with oil-saturated and burning clothing into a tank of water in the park. Oil that clung to the surface of the water as she dove into the tank become ignited, and the flames enveloped her as she rose to the surface.

The young woman struggled to get out of the tank, but collapsed from pain, and had to be rescued by her fellow-performers. Her hair was ignited and her neck and face badly burned, before her still flaming clothing could be torn from her. At the hospital to which she was taken, it was said that her condition was serious.

TRADE IS BOOMING

Ottawa, July 21.—Canadian trade figures for June show an increase of $11,000,000 over the same month last year. The total trade for the month was $66,611,824. For the first quarter of the present fiscal year there is an increase of $35,000,000.

The monthly bank statement, issued yesterday, shows the following: Deposits payable on demand, $263,417,539; savings bank deposits, $534,432,054; call and short loans in Canada, $61,598,956; call and short loans elsewhere, $130,173,902; current loans in Canada, $649,145,920; total assets, $1,230,825,305; total liabilities, $1,040,324,464.

Drowned Near Shore.

North Bay, July 21.—George Hanley, aged 45, chef at the Lady Evelyn Hotel, Temagami, was drowned Tuesday night while canoeing, the body being found in six feet of water near shore, where one step would have saved the man's life. Hanley belongs to Toronto and is married, but his wife has not been located as yet. The body was brought to North Bay.

GRIT MEETS GRIT AND EVERYTHING IS LOVELY

Saskatchewan's Chief Welcomes Premier at Yorkton—Sir Wilfrid Says in Reply to Grain Growers Demand That the Tariff is Not a Fixed Thing, But Will be Changed as Occasion Demands.

Yorkton, Sask., July 21.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's stay in Yorkton has brought a pleasing diversion in the routine of political meetings, and has given the Prime Minister an opportunity to see what a grain belt in full process of ripening looks like. The town was gaily decorated for the occasion, an arch made of oat sheaves containing some 600 bushels formed an entrance to the railway yard, and prizes were awarded for the best decorated stores in the town. The Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association submitted a resolution in regard to terminal elevators, the Hudson Bay Railway and th etariff, and other deputations will be arranged at different places for the same purpose.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier passed from southern Manitoba Tuesday to the hilly region contiguous to the northwestern branch of the C.P.R., he told the people of Birtle that if any other section was to impress him more than that which he had seen up until that time, it would have to be extraordinary fine. That requirement has undoubtedly been filled by Yorkton. With the prospect of an abundant harvest from the district for a distance of twenty-five miles on either side, there is a feeling of optimism and pride in every citizen in the community.

Speaking for Saskatchewan, Hon. Walter Scott, Premier, extended to Sir Wilfrid a hearty welcome to the new province. The Saskatchewan welcomed Canada's Prime Minister because, through his statesmanship, Saskatchewan had received its grant of provincial autonomy and financial assistance. Sixteen years ago the railway mileage of Saskatchewan was 950, to-day it is 3,500, but the growth of the province was not so much indicated by the increase of railway mileage as by the increase of population, both of towns and cities. Last year 6,000 bushels of grain were harvested for every mile of railway.

"Sir," he said, "in this province the memory of Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be held especially dear. While the other provinces have the benefits of his administration, there is no province which has experienced these benefits in so large a degrees as the Province of Saskatchewan."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had received a deputation from the Saskatchewan grain growers, took advantage of the occasion to reply to them.

Taking up the question of fiscal legislation and the demand that agricultural implements should be admitted free of duty, Sir Wilfrid said that the tariff was not like the laws of the Medes and Persians; it was not permanent and would have to be revised from time to time.

Sir Wilfrid pointed out the impracticability of reciprocity with the United States under present conditions. He was a free trader for his own part, and would view with favor any offer from Washington for a trade treaty.

Hon. G. .P Graham told the farmers that they were wrong when they said that in granting subsidies they had neglected the agricultural industry.

"Every dollar given to the railways is given for the purpose of getting a better price for the goods of the men who till the soil," he said.

WIARTON HAS DOUBLE DROWNING

Wiarton, July 21.—A double drowning accident occurred at Colpoy's Bay, three miles north of here, Tuesday evening, when Joseph Heller, aged 56, and Edward Cunningham, aged 17, lost their lives when a gasoline launch in which they were riding struck a sunken log. There were four others in the boat at the time, and but one of the party could swim. They were rescued by an Indian with a rowboat.

Rainy River Is in Peril of Fire.

Rainy River, July 21.—Fire is within half a mile of the town, which is in the greatest peril.

Rainy River is a growing manufacturing town at the foot of the Lake of the Woods, on the Rainy River, and a divisional point on the C.N.R. It has a population of 2,500, four churches, twenty-five stores, four hotels, two sawmills, a tie factory, a newspaper and a branch of the Bank of Commerce.

ORGANIZED LABOR WINS GREAT VICTORY

Cincinnati, O., July 21.—Labor leaders are jubilant to-day over the Bucks Stove & Range Co. victory, declared to be the greatest triumph in the history of organized toilers. Even manufacturers employing non-union help look glum and admit that the submission of the big St. Louis stove concern, after a sturdy fight of six years, is a body blow to their interests.

The victory for the labor union side is unequivocal. The Bucks Stove & Range Co. flatly agrees to abandon its open-shop policy and hereafter employ none but union men. This action is the more remarkable because instead of the American Federation of Labor winning its union fight by stages beginning with its weakest enemies, it has won over the corporation that for years was the hope and the admiration of open-shop manufacturers.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION

MADAME, IN THESE STUFFY DAYS, WHEN THE KITCHEN IS HOT AND THE FIRE ISN'T BIG ENOUGH TO BURN THE REFUSE, WE ASK: HOW DOES YOUR GARBAGE SMELL?

"GOOD BOY JIMMIE"

On Tuesday evening a number of children were flying a kite on Water street at the rear of the Methodist church. It caught in a tree top and the little chaps below didn't know what to do. But presently one lad commenced to climb. Up, up he went until he reached the kite and down it fluttered. "Good boy Jimmie." That's what the playmates said. And he was a good boy. He had nerve. We will never be able to lift ourselves by our boot tops. But we can cultivate our confidence and rise. Harvey J. O'Higgins a few years ago was a reporter on the Toronto Star. There were other reporters on the sheet with as much ability as O'Higgins, but they lacked the nerve. He went to New York. They remained. He was in a great army of writers unrecognized. But his nerve never left him, and today Harvey O'Higgins is well known among the reading public to the south of us.

It is the same kind of nerve that sends a lad up a tall tree out on a limb to loosen the tail of a kite, that makes a man brave to accomplish in later life.

Call it conceit, if you wish, but it's that which makes one man rise in life while the other fellow stays on the level.

Bert Collier drove a street car in Guelph a few years ago. Now he is turf expert on the Chicago American drawing a large salary. From listening to the ding ding of a conductor's bell to be the champion handicapper of America, is indeed a change of position. Collier did it on his nerve. Nerve is necessary with ability to back it up for complete success in this jostling, rustling, bustling world of ours. And ability without nerve is often lost sight of.

In these eight words is the history of more than half the striking successes of the day.

—MUCH NERVE WITH A FAIR AMOUNT OF ABILITY.—

CANADIANS AS STRIKERS

We Canadians, when we indulge in a strike, shoot more hot air than anything else. In the United States it's hot air and bullets. In Canada there are thousands of men out on a strike, the end of which no seer can yet determine. Outside of a few hot heads rampant, there has been no serious danger. A few ripe eggs were thrown at Niagara Falls, but no one has yet indulged in that Yankee pastime, pulling a gun and killing a few. Two or three men have been thumped, but no one is yet shot. In Canada the law is fairly well observed in strike times. Over the line the striker seems to go off at half cock. In this country we wait, and both sides "bide a wee and dinna wearie." It is in great strikes like this that governments are supposed to be able to act. Is there no Bishop Potter in Canada? Of course Sir Wilfrid Laurier is away in the land of the naked Doukhobor and golden grain with his trained band and decorating committee. But cannot something be done? Chas. M. Hays' salary is going on, but the wages of the thousands in the shops who went to work isn't, and neither are the miles of Grand Trunk cars that manufacturers and private citizens are waiting for all over the land.

Wanted—Some big man to arbitrate.

THE CHILDLESS ONES

What home more lonely than the one that has never known the prattle of a child? What orderly array of furniture, what carefully placed papers, there are no hats or boots lying here, there, everywhere, and all is quiet. He goes out and she sits lonely in the home, a childless woman. Age comes, they two are without glad anticipation of Christmas re-union, of Thanksgiving dinner, with all the family—they two are the family—the childless ones. Is there anything more sad? The home is equipped, but they sit in life's later years without the prattle of a child in their ears, without the tiny arms about the neck, without the pure, sweet love that a child alone can offer. They are indeed poor, they are truly to be pitied.

THE WOULD BE STATESMAN

These are unpleasant days for the Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State in the Laurier Government, and would-be Younger Statesman of the Liberal party. Mr. Murphy has had a singularly undistinguished career so far in the Ministry, having done absolutely nothing in the House of Commons during the two years in which has occupied a seat in it. A while ago he was approached by sundry merchants and told that graft was going on in the Printing Bureau, which is under his care. He has sought to make that his opportunity.

In the first place, months after he became Secretary of State, the Conservatives moved that a commission be appointed to look into the spending departments. The Government had this motion voted down in the House of Commons. Mr. Murphy voted, with the other Liberals, against the demand. He has not yet explained whether this vote took place after his suspicions were aroused, or before. His language, in unguarded moments, would lead us to suppose it was after.

Next, after being forced into it, he went about the investigation in a leisurely and very peculiar way. The Secretary of State has three departments and three Deputy Ministers: the Department of External Affairs, with a Deputy Minister; the Department of State, with another Deputy, and the Printing Bureau, with a King's Printer, who is a Deputy Head. The King's Printer, Mr. Parmelee, was appointed a very short time ago and was for years a Liberal M.P. Mr. Murphy pushed Mr. Parmelee to one side, and employed Mr. Mulvey, the Deputy Minister for the State Department, to investigate Mr. Parmelee's Department. It is one of the most remarkable pieces of sidetracking ever seen in Ottawa. Either Mr. Parmelee was careless, lax, and inefficient, or he has been badly treated.

Then Mr. Murphy, after spending a great deal of time at it, found that there had been stealing. He then was seized with the idea that he had done something remarkably fine; that to investigate his Department when warned, was not merely his duty, but something for which he would receive loud applause; that he was a hero, something quite out of the ordinary in statesman. Apparently he thought that the average Minister in the Laurier Government would have hushed it up. So he made the announcement in a pompous declaration which he composed himself, and which was worded, not in the cool and precise terms in which Government statements are usually couched, but in a flambouyant manner, like that of a rather sensational newspaper.

Apparently the Liberal newspapers shared Mr. Murphy's opinion of the Laurier Cabinet. They seemed really surprised that a Cabinet Minister, on being told that stealing was going on, would take steps to stop it. The Globe, in glad surprise, cried "Bravo, Mr. Murphy." All the Liberal papers cheered loudly. Splendid! At last a Minister in the Laurier Cabinet has stopped a thief when his attention was called to his thievings.

HALF-EDUCATED

A man got it on the jaw and fell to the resined floor.

He was an educated pug, but not educated quite enough, and was counted out.

Well, life's a scrap anyway, and someone is always being defeated.

A man started in the grocery business on a corner, and at first has a fairly good trade, for he had plenty of friends.

But he was a poor buyer, and lost on the credit system. He became slack in waiting on his customers, and his store lost its clean, bright appearance.

Another man saw the opening, and started an opposition store on a corner in the next block.

He was keen, alert, and knew all the ropes of the business and was always on the job.

Biff! The other fellow was down and out.

He was educated, but not enough, and went down to defeat in the commercial arena.

The fellow in the ring didn't come to quick enough, neither did the grocery man.

They both lost the battle, but they both have another chance.

They will know more next time.

The half-educated are everywhere.

The province's colleges and universities will soon be crowded again, and students will absorb thoughts like a sponge absorbs water.

They come forth to conquer, to find that their real schooling is all before.

They scan the ads in the daily press.

Wanted—Bricklayers.

They cannot lay bricks, but they can read Virgil in the native tongue.

Wanted—Carpenters.

They couldn't put in a stairway or hang a door for a dollar an hour, but they are strong on history.

Wanted—Molders.

They cannot mold, but they understand the course of stars.

Wanted—Barbers.

They do not understand that art.

Half-educated, it is biff, and down and out from the start.

Wanted—Stenographer and typewriter; must be rapid, experienced and accurate.

Twenty, thirty, forty and even fifty apply—a human drove. Half-educated, slovenly in their work, poor in transcribing their notes, and worse in punctuation, they fail, and blame the world.

Biff! Bang!

They cannot fill the bill.

Wanted—A manager to control agents and organize a district for a new concern.

How pitiable the array of incompetents.

Biff! The old world has many a stiff jolt for the loser, the cheers and hurrahs for the winners.

Wanted—Men and women educated in what they intend to do, who know the job from A to Z, who understand the ins and outs, and all the difficult wrinkles, who are missed when they take a holiday, and create a vacancy that is hard to fill.

Biff! The half-educated, half-fitted in the professions, in the trades are everywhere. They are walking the streets, scanning the papers, getting their friends to boost them, speak for them, and help them to stand.

But the eternal out of the world's great arm is always swinging, and the half-educated, half-fitted, are always falling out.

THE POINT OF VIEW

YOU LOVED ME.

Helen Roslyn, in August Smart Set.

You loved me.
The knowledge went through me like wine;
The passion that filled me was wholly divine,
When you whispered those words, with my head on your breast
Not even my faith could have brought me such rest.
All sorrow fell from me and vanished in bliss,
When you pressed on my lips that first exquisite kiss.

You loved me.
Not only your voice told me so;
'Twas your soul that spoke to me in passion's first glow,
You crushed me up to you, unheeding your power;
Your kisses fell on me like rain on a flower.
No human achievement, no worship of men,
Can bring me such happiness ever again.

You loved me.
What odds if your fancy roams free?
I know that your life love is no one but me.
It was I who first quickened your soul in your breast.
Though others may follow, you gave me your best,
No woman on earth, be she holy or bad,
Can ever take from me what once I have had.
The love you created—it lives in us still,
And when you return, and your follies confessed,
I'll forget in your arms that you ever transgressed.

A WORD FOR THE HORSE.

Toronto Star.

When the automobile came, there were those who said that the horse must go; but the horse stayed. It still stays. On occasion it drags its rival into town for repairs.

On the whole mankind behaves itself better to its automobiles than it does to its horses. A sick automobile is generally sent to the repair shop. The chauffeur knows that it is easier to cure it in the first place than later. Its tanks are kept filled. Automobiles will not run without gasoline. But the horse, because he will struggle on when he is sick and when he is thirsty, is subject to much abuse. And the flies, which are not among the things which give motor cars nervous troubles, make life a misery for man's best friend.

This is the "runaway season," and a goodly percentage of the runaways are caused by flies. Thirst and overwork are responsible for others. To protect the dumb creatures from insects, to see that they are properly fed and watered, and to exact only a hot day's work on a hot day is in the interests of the public as well as of the horse. As man's servant, it is entitled to the same care and attention as that other servant, the automobile. As man's friend, a creature endowed with the spark of life and suffering, it is entitled to more.

"None of the fishing smacks carry 'life-buoys,'" said a witness at a board of trade inquiry held at King's Lynn, Eng. "They are too much bother."

GO SLOW ON BROOM CORN.

High Price of Crop Tempting Many Farmers Into Untried Field.

The extremely high price of broom corn has aroused a widespread interest in the crop, says O. D. Center of the University of Illinois. Broom corn belongs to the same family as sorghum, Kaffir corn, milo maize and Jerusalem corn, all of which are classed botanically as Andropogon sorghum. It differs from the other members of this group in having the seed heads with much longer, straighter, stronger straws or branches. These form the brush, which is the valuable portion of the plant.

Broom corn growing now is and will always remain a small industry because the demand for the brush is not only limited, but small. This crop, then, is not a profitable one to include in a system of general farming. According to the best authorities, the world's consumption of brush is less than 50,000 tons, and as this brush is used but for one purpose there can be no sudden increase in the amount required. The total world's supply could be produced on 130,000 acres, and the territory and men equipped for and engaged in broom corn growing already could easily double the present production if the demand warranted.

Broom corn is marketed wholly in the bale. Throughout central Illinois there are numerous jobbers and commission men who do nothing but handle this crop. Because of dishonest practices in baling, large dealers and factory operators are cautious about buying except from established and reputable jobbers.

A BROOM CORN DRYING HOUSE.

Because broom corn is selling for as high as $200 per ton many novices who are attracted by the high prices will plant extensively this season. Without a working knowledge of the requirements of the crop and without the special equipment necessary for its successful handling the result of this extensive planting will be an enormous overproduction of brush, much of which will be of very inferior quality.

It is seldom the man who undertakes a new line of business because of abnormally high prices who makes the money. It is the man who thoroughly learns a business and then sticks to it through high prices and low who comes out with the dollar. This being true, we must say that this is not a favorable time to embark in the business of broom corn production.

Plowing Twice For Crop.

Sod land is very good for almost all crops if the season is seasonably wet and other conditions are favorable. One of the worst troubles with corn in sod land is that the cutworms living in the sod destroy much of the young corn. By plowing sod land for corn in late fall or early winter many of the cutworms will be destroyed; also when the land is plowed at this time the sod will have more time to settle and decay, and the corn next season will stand dry weather better. If the sod must be plowed again next spring no harm, but much good, will be done. Plowing any land twice for a crop or disking well after plowing is labor well spent.

Beautify the Home Grounds.

Properly planting the right kind of trees, shrubs and plants on the home grounds means much more than mere beauty—it has a decidedly practical side. It is cheaper to beautify the home grounds than to allow them to go bare and uninviting. Decorating the home grounds transforms a house into a home. It makes the house a part of a beautiful picture and surrounds it with such evidence of loving care that it immediately impresses the beholder with the feeling that people live in the house—that they do not merely exist there.—Journal of Agriculture.

BREVITIES.

Scandal is a very effective soiling crop.

Ten to one there is a surplus of lawyers, doctors and clerks in your county and a shortage of farm help.

The suggestion was made at a local English farmers' meeting that all moles should be killed at public expense. Next!

A Pennsylvania woman burned her husband's wooden leg as the only way to prevent him from going to a saloon. The judge upheld her.

Well, sir, if people cannot get beef, pork or mutton at fair prices they will eat more eggs and chickens. Mrs. Hen is coming to the front.

The figures show that 182,000 persons attended the various farmers' institute meetings in New York last winter. Of course many of these attended several sessions.

In England the trade in wornout or "sore" city horses has become so bad that parliament is asked for a law authorizing inspectors to kill all such animals that are found "doctored" or badly lame or diseased.—Rural New Yorker.

A. J. Drexel, Jr., carried a passenger in his Bleriot from Bournemouth to Beaulieu, England.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Hogs Lower on American Exchanges—Cattle Generally Firmer.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 20.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings of live stock were 806 cattle, 700 sheep and lambs, 750 hogs, and 500 calves. There was no change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being steady at the decline noted on Monday. The offerings were fair, but the quality generally was only medium. The gathering of buyers was large and as they all wanted a few to see them over until next week, the demand was good and active trade was done, which resulted in the market being cleaned up of all stock with the exception of about 200 northwest ranchers, which were held at higher prices than butchers were disposed to pay. A few choice steers sold at 6¾c, good at 6¼c to 6½c; fairly good at 5¾c to 6c; fair at 5¼c to 5½c; and common at 4½c to 5c per lb. There were some choice cows, which sold at 5c to 5¼c, and the lower grades at from 3½c to 4¾c, while the bulls brought 3¾c per lb.

There was quite an active trade in small meats, owing to the increased offerings and the good demand for the same, and prices in consequence were well maintained. Yearlings sheep sold at 3½c to 3¾c per lb.; spring lambs at $3.50 to $5.25, and calves at $3.50 to $10 each. The market for hogs was stronger, and prices were 10c per 100 lbs. higher. The demand was good, and sales of mixed lots were made at $9.50 per hundred weighed off cars, and selected lots brought $10.15 to $10.25.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 20.—Cattle—Receipts 400. Butchers' grade active and firm; heavy, slow.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 400 head; active; sheep steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $5.50 to $7.10; yearlings, $5.50 to $6; wethers, $4.75 to $5.25; ewes, $3.75 to $4.25; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.75.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Beeves—Receipts 1862; market generally higher. Ordinary to choice steers, $6.20 to $8; bulls, $4 to $5; dressed beef, full steady, at 9c to 12½c for native sides; 8½c to 10c for Texan beef; exports, 1800 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts 2519; veals, firm to 25c higher; buttermilks steady; veals, $8 to $11; culls and throwouts, $6 to $7.50; grassers and buttermilks, $5; dressed calves, steady to strong; city dressed veals, 14½c to 16½c; city dressed buttermilks, 11½c to 13½c; country dressed calves, 10c to 14½c.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 8339. Sheep steady; best lambs steady; others slow to a shade lower; sheep, $3 to $4.50; lambs, $5.25 to $7; general sales, $6 to $6.75; culls, $4.50 to $5.

Hogs—Receipts 3347; lower at $9.25 to $9.50.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Cattle—Receipts 22,000; ten to fifteen cents lower; beeves, $5.10 to $8.40; Texas steers, $4.10 to $6.40; western steers, $5 to $6.90; stockers and feeders, $3.60 to $5.60; cows and heifers, $2.65 to $6.60; calves, $6.75 to $9.

Aeroplane Struck by Lightning.

Barcelona, July 21.—While making a cross-country flight yesterday Aviator Ehrmann's aeroplane was struck by lightning and fell blazing to the ground.

The aviator had a miraculous escape from injury. He was sailing along at a moderate height when he got in the path of a skybolt. Instantly the aeroplane was enveloped in flames, its canvas wings shrivelled up and, clinging to the skeleton of his craft, Ehrmann came down with a thud.

Took Poison For Medicine.

Seaforth, July 21.—Wm. Aberhart, farmer, of Egmondville, met death yesterday in a tragic way.

He had come to town, and calling at his son's drug store here intending to take some medicine, as per usual, drank, in mistake, a quantity of carbolic acid. A doctor was called, but nothing could be done.

Fired Buildings to "Get Even."

Chicago, July 21.—Because a "big fireman" chased him away from a fire engine house, Leroy Holzmer, 12 years old, yesterday admitted he set fire to seven buildings. The first caused several thousand dollars' damage. Holzmer said he set the buildings on fire in order to "get even" with the fireman.

"La Plaque" Ornament For Wear With Simple Costumes.

With the simple costumes for street wear Parisian women are wearing a new piece of jewelry which they call "la plaque." It is a round medallion about the size of a silver dollar and is of platinum or silver, but never of gold. Pearls, brilliants or colored stones are incrusted on the surface, and delightful color combinations are secured by enamels.

This little ornament is worn around the neck suspended on a fine chain or a narrow velvet ribbon with jeweled slides. The simplicity of the costume is relieved by the jeweled disk, and if you are fortunate in the possession of the many little dress accessories there will be a plaque for every costume.

TWO FRENCH DESIGNS.

If the American woman grasps the main idea of the simple lines of dress there can be a safe venture in the addition of a piece of jewelry. Indeed, the little French ornament is extremely successful in producing with the severe dress a distinctive and delightful whole.

Peter Kurts, a rancher, shot himself at Port Arthur.

The Business Faculty.

It is discouraging, says a writer on domestic subjects, but it is not very surprising, to note how little business faculty the average housekeeper displays. This is not always because she does not possess it, but because she has not learned the value of businesslike methods in the home and so has never developed them. It is lack of development, not lack of capacity. This all belongs to the past—to the time when the men paid all the bills, feeling that their women should not be bothered.

The whole family process is changing. Whether women earn the money outside of the home or whether they are the spenders of their husbands' earnings, the whole trend of the day is to give to them the handling of the household funds. Think of the changes in this regard during the past forty years! Our colleges, through this increasing need, have the important domestic science department, where business methods in the home are taught as thoroughly as ever men were taught. This is a great step in the line of woman's progress.

All this means that a woman should have a stipulated income to work with in her home as surely as though she earned it outside. Of course the young married woman, even though she has studied well, has much to learn, especially if she has never been a wage earner. And this is why she should keep her home on a basis of an allowance. Let her begin her training while her cares are few and learn to manage in as masterly a manner as possible for two.

One is sure to become careless if all she needs to do is to order supplies while the man of the house pays the bills. It is kind of the man to relieve his wife of all that responsibility—very kind, in a way—but it is not the best way. It should be—it really is—woman's province to run the house, and if she is to develop her powers and make a good wife and mother, a practical housekeeper and homemaker, this is the way to do it. All girls should learn business methods; then if they marry they are ready to share the cares and responsibilities of the money part of the partnership.

Expert Advice About Soupmaking.

Careme, a celebrated French cook, says of soup: "The good housewife puts her meat into an earthen stock pot and pours on cold water in the proportion of two quarts of water to three pounds of beef. She sets it on the back of the stove. As the pot becomes gradually hot and as the water heats it dilates the muscular fibers of the flesh by dissolving the gelatinous matter which covers them and allows the albumen to detach itself easily and rise to the surface in light foam or scum, while the osmazone, which is the savory juice of the meat dissolving little by little, adds flavor to the broth. By this simple process of slow boiling or simmering the housewife obtains a savory and nourishing broth and a boiled meat, which latter is tender and of good flavor."

As to the reverse way of boiling Careme says: "If you place the soup pot on too hot a fire it boils too soon. The albumen coagulates and hardens. The water, not having the necessary time to penetrate the meat, hinders the savory juice from disengaging itself, and the sad result is you have only a hard piece of boiled meat and a broth without flavor or goodness. A little fresh water poured into the pot at intervals helps the scum to rise more abundantly."

WOULD ARREST SUPERINTENDENT

Port Hope Constable Lacked His Own Credentials However and Couldn't Act

One of the striking train crews which arrived at the Palmer House from the east Tuesday morning brought the news of an interesting little drama enacted at Port Hope during the night, with Superintendent Coleman, of Belleville, in the leading role.

The eastern official of the company left Toronto shortly before midnight as acting conductor on the Montreal flyer, from which the regular crew had retired. When the train pulled into Port Hope, a constable, who had been told that Mr. Coleman lacked qualifications, approached the superintendent, and asked him if he were in charge of the train.

"I am," said the improvised conductor.

"Show me your credentials," demanded the officer.

"I haven't any," admitted Mr. Coleman.

"Then I'll have to arrest you," said the conscientious constable. And he proceeded to suit the acion to the word.

"Hold on," said the District Superintendent, "let me see your badge of authority."

Unfortunately, the policeman did not have his insignia of office with him, and before he could return with the required authority, the train, with its conductor, was once more on its way to Montreal.—Star.

On Friday July 22nd Steamer Stony Lake will leave the Wolfe St. Wharf for Stony Lake Points at 12.45 p.m.

The Gordian Knot

CONDON-DELANEY

Through inadvertancy in last evening's edition, some of the facts concerning a wedding were wrongly stated. The account should have been as follows:

A marriage was celebrated at St. Joseph's church, Douro, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, the uniting parties being Mr. Richard Condon, of Edmonton, and Miss Katharine Delaney, daughter of Mr. Denis Delaney.

Miss Margaret Sullivan made a very charming bridesmaid, while Mr. William Condon fulfilled the duties of groomsman.

Rev. Father Maguire officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Condon will reside in the west.

The Peterborough Light and Power Co. have moved their office to the Lundy Block, opposite the Opera House.

SUCCESSFUL LAWN SOCIAL

An immense crowd was present at the lawn social given at Omemee last night by the Methodist church of that place.

Music was provided by the 57th Regimental Band.

FROM OVER THE SEA

This morning Robert D. Dickson, of Glasgow, and now of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Miss Annie Moyes, of Glasgow. Rev. H. J. Keith performed the ceremony. The bride and groom were attended by Miss C. Chiles and Mr. S. Sands. They will tour the lakes on their honeymoon, and later reside at 516 Bolivar street.

REFUSED AN OFFER OF A HOUSE AND POSITION

Englishman Balked at a Good Proposition—About Four Hundred Immigrants Have Come to Peterborough This Season

The number of immigrants which have come to the city this season reaches about four hundred, so the Review was informed by Mr. G. H. Howson, immigration agent, this morning. The majority of this number were placed with farmers around Peterborough, and those who remained in the city found no difficulty in securing work, owing to the big demand for laborers.

The class of immigrants, too, has been much better than that of other years. This fact has been freely commented on locally and by the farmers.

But it is not all sunshine by any means around the immigration office. While some of the newcomers give practically no trouble at all, there are others who have had the notion that they know all about the conditions existing here, and this class is a hard one to deal with.

Only last Friday a man with his wife and two children arrived here, having been sent out by the Salvation Army agent. Mr. Howson soon had a place for him and his family with a farmer in Cavan, about thirteen miles from the city. He was to have a small brick house and the farmer would have supplied him with certain products free of charge, and others at a reasonable price. There was also a plot of ground for his use. Fifteen dollars a month for a start was promised, with an agreement to the effect that if he made good he would receive more money. He could have gone to his new home on Saturday morning, but preferred to remain here, and this after he had been told by Mr. Howson just what his expenses would be for board over Sunday. He promised to go to the farmer on Monday, but on coming to his office in the morning the agent found a slip of paper under the door, and it stated that the man had decided not to go to the country. The farmer came in during the day, but despite all efforts made by Mr. Howson, who went to see the Englishman, he refused to go.

He may be working by this time in the city, but in a few months when building operations shut down for the season, he will probably wish that he had taken the first proposition.

The Peterborough Light and Power Co. have moved their office to the Lundy Block, opposite the Opera House.

WASN'T ANY ASSAULT

CONDUCTOR NOT MOLESTED BY STRIKERS

TRAINS RAN LATE ON THE G. T. R. TO-DAY

Trainmen Don't Want Arbitration

"Nothing new about the strike," is the inflexible text around the Grand Trunk station this morning. And it's not so much a question of reticence as it is one of circumstances—for there are no further developments to date.

A STERN BATTLE.

A trainmen, when questioned by the Review to-day said that it would be a fight to the finish, in his opinion.

"I see," he said, "that Hon. Mackenzie King, the Minister of Labor, has suggested arbitration on the conditions that the arbitration committee pay all expenses. In view of the circumstances the offer might seem a timely one, but I believe that the men on strike won't consent to anything as far as they are concerned, but the granting by the company of the standard scale.

This is what they went out after and it seems to me that they will insist on getting it before they will return to work. President Hays offered considerable concessions, but as the terms didn't call for the granting of the standard pay list the men refused to consider them. When they looked at things in that light I don't think that arbitration would accomplish anything, that is, unless the company agrees to meet the men's original demands."

BELLEVILLE LINE.

One of the most important passenger traffics in this section of the province is that which is carried on the Belleville division of the G.T.R. If Conductor Adams had gone out it would have put a big kink in the service on this division.

All the passenger trains were running about an hour or so late to-day.

SEEMS A FALSE REPORT.

This morning the Lindsay Warder received a wire from the Review to rush the story of an assault on Conductor Adams.

This was the first intimation of such occurrence that this paper had received and on investigation there appeared to be no foundation for the rumor. Conductor Adams was in the city to-day as usual and while he was not seen by the Review, local trainmen said there didn't appear to be anything wrong with him and he showed no signs of violence. And they had not heard anything of the alleged attack.

The conductor is not very popular with the strikers as he stayed on his train when the strike occurred and did not go with the others. He saluted some sectionmen at the station to-day, but there was no response to his salutation. He wanted to know why the unfriendliness existed, but again no answer was forthcoming.

One of the men on strike in discussing the rumored assault on the conductor, said that he need fear no violence from the strikers. The latter thought he should have gone out in sympathy with the rest, but will not molest him.

A WELCOME CALLER.

The G.T.R. car reached the city today and the men received their wages for last month. They had been paid up till the first of June.

C. P. R. NOT INVOLVED.

For some reason or other there seems to be an impression among some people that the C.P.R. is affected by the strike. This is not the case, however, and the service on that line is just the same as usual.

ARBITRATION IS SUGGESTED

Council of Board of Trade Endorses it and Sends Out General Notification—First Frieght, Meat Train, Passes Through Port Hope.

THE PROPOSED ARBITRATION.

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Ont., July 21.—Dominion Minister of Labor King to-day took action looking to a settlement of the G.T. conductors' and trainmens' strike. In a communication to Chas. M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk, S. N. Perry, vice-president of the conductors' brotherhood, and James, under vice-president of the trainsmen's brotherhood, he suggests reference of the dispute to a mutually acceptable "Board of Arbitration," both sides to agree to accept the proposal, the men to return to work in the meantime, and the Dominion Government to bear all the expenses of the arbitration.

The Council of the Board of Trade has sent the following telegram to all the Boards of Trade in Canada:—"Our board strongly endorse that action of the Minister of Labor in proposing arbitration for immediate settlement of the strike. Similar action on your part will greatly influence public opinion."

FIRST FREIGHT AT PORT HOPE.

Special to the Review.

Port Hope, Ont., July 21.—Strike situation is unchanged here. Everything is quiet so far. Train service on the Midland division has has not been interrupted, while on the main line trains are running pretty well on time. The first freight, a meat special, passed through here this morning, bound for Montreal.

PRESS OPINION ON THE STRIKE

A HARMFUL AND COSTLY STRUGGLE.

Montreal Gazette.

The facts are few and simple. When the demand for increased pay was made on behalf of the men now on strike, the management of the road felt that what was asked was beyond reason, the circumstances of their property being considered. The machinery of the Conciliation Act was set in motion by mutual agreement. After long consideration of all the questions involved the board of conciliation by a majority of its members made an award. The Grand Trunks' representative thought its terms so onerous that he declined to sign it. The management of the company, though, like its representative on the conciliation board, it felt that the terms were not justifiable, in order that trouble should be avoided, agreed to accept the award. The leaders of the unions concerned would not agree to what their representative on the board of conciliation had accepted as fair. They had made demands and they would enforce them. They even refused to act on the latter proposal of the company that the matter in issue should be submitted to an arbitration of railway experts whose decision would be final. They took a grave responsibility upon themselves that they may yet have cause to regret. Before the end some of the strikers will lose their situations. All are likely to lose their rights to rank on the company's pension fund. All will lose an amount of pay that they will not be able to recover in a long time. The public, as shown, will lose by the disturbance of its business. These are the facts. They carry their own lesson. They suggest also that any proposal to end a harmful and costly struggle should have the support of all men of good will.

HARD ON OLD BOYS.

Belleville, Daily Ontario.

The effects of this movement cannot fail to have a highly injurious effect on the trade of the country; and Belleville, being a divisional point, will experience that trouble in an acute form. A peculiarly unfortunate consequence will be in connection with our Old Boys' Reunion, unless an agreement be reached within a day or two, which we sincerely hope, in the interest of all concerned, may be the case.

STRIKES AND STRIKERS.

Toronto News.

Strikes are just one manifestation of a general unrest. As a symptom of that unrest they are in the same category with socialism, communism and collectivism. Everywhere wage-earners are in a state of anxiety and flux. The cause is not so much present suffering or privation as it is uncertainty regarding the future.

As the London Spectator has indicated, men and women are willing to endure present hardship if only the future is provided for. They want the assurance that in their last years they and those dependent upon them may be secured against poverty. People on a daily wage, naturally, dread the day when, either through sick-

CHALLENGE FROM THE WEST ENDERS

Who Want to Play a Picked Team From three Clubs—Game is on for Saturday at Riverside

City League patrons and the many others who should be, will have an opportunity of seeing the pick of the players of the four clubs in a contest at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, and it happens just like this.

The West Ends feel elated over their win of last Saturday from the T.A.S. and are out for further city honors, seeing that they can't go to Lindsay. Manager Oldham and his brand new aggregation have issued a challenge to play a picked team from the P.A. C., T.A.S. and Strathconas, and the club room boys will be accommodated.

Will the game be worth a shilling? Well, rather. But the popular fee of fifteen cents will prevail.

No change will be made on the challengers' line-up, and the picked team will be announced to-morrow. Either Quinlan or Dusty and McFadden will be the battery.

Y.M.C.A. TENNIS

The sixth round of the Y. M. C. A. tennis tournament is as follows;

Consolation, Class A.
H. Meyers vs. F. Denison.
W. L. C. Richardson vs. H. B. Collier,
Consolation Class B.
Turner vs. Harper.
Darling vs. Lambert.
Glover vs. Hill

SPORTING COMMENT

Los Angeles, Cal., which has been one of the leading fight centres of the country, must refuse further exhibitions. The city council instructed the city attorney to prepare an ordinance to prevent boxing exhibitions and sparring contests. The council will deal with the matter at another meeting, and the passage of the ordinance is certain.

New Yorkers are to see the reproduction by moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight. When Mayor Gaynor passed the question on to the board of aldermen, with a recommendation that it adopt an ordinance prohibiting the pictures, it was stated that a majority of the members of the board would vote for such a measure. The Liberal members, however, played trumps in questioning the legality of such a proceeding. So the matter was referred to a committee to report at the next meeting.

By agreement there will not be a quorum at another meeting of the aldermen until the latter part of September, and in the meantime the pictures will be put on here.

Tommie Dark is not the only umpire to have trouble. The Toronto News says:

Umpire Phyle has had lots of trouble with the "grouches" in the City Amateur League, but he won't in future, if he can help it. The directors have instructed him to fire the offenders instanter, no matter whether the team has insufficient players or not.

VIRTUOUS KANSAS

Hutchinson, Kas., July 21.—Because of an article by Theodore Roosevelt in the Outlook, the last issue of the magazine has been barred from sale in Hutchinson. The magazine comes under the ban of the recent ordinance, which prohibited the exhibition of prize fight pictures and the sale of newspapers or magazines printing such pictures or printing stories of prize fighting. Of course, it was never intended that the ordinance should place the Outlook in the same class as the Police Gazette, but under a strict interpretation of the ordinance any magazine which prints matter relating to prize fighting, can be barred. The last issue of the Outlook contained a comment of Mr. Roosevelt on the Jeffries-Johnson fight, so it came under the provision of the ordinance.

There is little prospect of the olive industry of this country being overdone, for there are but three localities in this country where the five will thrive.

AND THIS IN 1910

Special to the Review.

London, Eng., July 21.—Formal announcement that King George would be crowned in June, 1911, was made to-day with ceremony of mediaeval splendor. A long procession of trumpeters, heralds, pursuivants, kings-at-arms, life guardsmen and heraldic dignitaries paraded through the streets from St. James' Palace to the Royal Exchange, where the heralds read the royal decree.

St. James, Charing Cross, Chancery Lane, the Royal Exchange and all the other streets through which the herald passed, were lined with troops in full dress uniform to hold back the enormous throngs that gathered for the ceremony.

ness or decling years, they will not be able to earn even the necessities of life for themselves and their households.

With the present high cost of living it is often impossible for them to lay aside a part of their present earnings for later needs. To ask men who are doing the most necessary part of the world's work to be content with things as they are is making too large a demand upon human nature.

PETERBOROUGH ALSO LUCKY.
Toronto Star.

Toronto is fortunate in being served by three railways. The effects of the strike of Grand Trunk trainmen will be felt in all their severity in towns and cities which are served by that road alone. Factories may have their supply of raw material temporarily shut off, and may find it impossible to ship their products. Commerce and transportation are now so closely related that a tie-up on one of the great railway systems becomes a very serious thing for the sections through which it passes, and especially for its exclusive territory.

STRIKE NEVER JUSTIFIED.
Hamilton Times.

Strikes and lockouts are not to the liking of the Times. We have never known any which were justified by the circumstances, or which could not have been averted by the exercise of reasonableness, and a desire to do justice by the parties thereto. When these labor troubles develop, either one or both, of the parties to them ask more than is right, and assume to trust to something else than the reason-compelling application of the Golden Rule to the question in dispute. Sometimes precipitateness leads to a conflict where calmer consideration would have avoided it. Sometimes one of the parties, conceiving the idea that might is right, attempts to enforce its view without giving much weight to the other fellow's. Nearly always, on looking back upon one of these struggles, radical errors in grasping the situation, or in managing the negotiations, are easily seen to account for unnecessary conflict.

A NEW MOVE.
Hamilton Spectator.

It has been said of the average capitalist that his creed is, The public be d——d. Developments in connection with the Grand Trunk strike situation force one to the conclusion that not only the capitalist, but the workers, too, fashion their action by this same creed.

Determined to have what they wanted and to have it just when they wanted it, the railway employees quit work, hoping by means of strike methods to so cripple the company as to force it to capitulate and accept their terms. After forty-eight hours of strike the company, using other employees to take the places of striking conductors and brakemen, is able to keep passenger trains moving pretty regularly, and promises within a week to have freight trains on their regular runs again. And here the strikers step in with a protest to the railway commission.

By the law the railway company is required to employ only competent train hands. The strikers say that the men now employed are incompetent, and they would have the railway commission force the company to discharge them all. The law is a good law, but it was never framed for the purpose of enabling striking employees, who have seen fit to ignore the good offices of the government in the settlement of their dispute, to drive their employers into submission. The purpose of that law was the protection of the public, and the railway commission will be well advised if it keeps clearly before it the interests of the public in dealing with the complaint now made by the strikers.

AN UNGALLANT TOAST.
From Success.

At the dedication of a new fire engine in a little town on the Massachussetts coast, the following toast was proposed: "May she be like the dear old maids of our village, always ready, but never called for."

ARBITRATION COMPULSORY
Ottawa Journal.

What a sensible way it is to settle a railway difficulty, by letting 4,000 strikers fight it out with a railway company, while ten thousand other men are rendered idle in various lines who have no concern in the row, and the whole public comfort and business are disarranged. For public service corporations, arbitration between employer and employed should be compulsory.

MAN NEEDED.
Ottawa Free Press.

The strike having been inaugurated, the disputants are further away from each other than ever before. Neither cares to make a move in the direction of peace.

Some influential and unprejudiced man is needed at this stage, therefore, to fling himself into the breach, to consult with both parties, and to make the suggestion of compromise that neither can make directly.

When some years ago the shipping of the Port of London was tied up by the great strike of dockers, the dispute was ended by the intervention of the late Cardinal Manning. Later, John Burns was effective in ending another great industrial dispute, and we all remember how President Roosevelt put an end to the great coal strike in Pennsylvania a few years since by interference at the right time.

Mr. King has a similar opportunity at his hand now. He can but fail, and he may succeed in bringing the disputants together.

The hour is one which demands action, and the public will insist that no means shall be left untried to end the crisis.

PREPOSTEROUS.
Montreal Witness.

It may be said that the strike officials have so far refused to give any information to the press, and when asked how they expected the public to understand their point of view, they have replied: "It is a private affair between us and the company—the public has nothing to do with the matter." It is difficult to believe that men who have brought on a serious industrial war can argue in such a preposterous fashion. Surely when the commerce of the country is disorganized, the food supplies of the cities cut short while they waste in the country, the dwellers in the neighborhood unable to reach their work, the public has some interest.

THE MEN ON STRIKE

The number affected by the strike is announced officially as follows:—

Grand Trunk—Conductors, 800; brakemen and baggagemen, 1,600; yardmen, 700. Total, 3,100.

Central Vermont — Conductors, 90; brakemen and baggagemen, 180; yardmen, 80. Total, 350.

Wabash—Conductors, 70; brakemen and baggagemen, 140; yardmen, 40. Total, 250.

Total on strike, 4,000.

Number out of work by shops being closed, 4,500. Total out of work, 8,500.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

A revolution has broken out in Honduras.

The Masonic Grand Lodge opened at Belleville.

Guy Cecile was drowned in a canoe accident at Pembroke yesterday.

Harry Sealey of Hamilton, aged seven, was drowned while bathing.

Thousands of coal miners are idle in England as a result of the strike on the Northeastern Railway.

The British Minister to Brazil will be asked to arbitrate a boundary dispute between Peru and Colombia.

Fire Chief Graham reports that the Parliament buildings at Ottawa are very inadequately protected from fire.

Miss Unwin and two other ladies who started out from Banff on a mountain-climbing expedition, are missing.

Sweeping prison reforms to be adopted in Britain were outlined by Mr. Winston Churchill in the House of Commons last night.

It is stated that the Lords may seek to gain prestige in Britain by rejecting the accession declaration bill if they find the agitation against it growing.

New Yorkers Can See Fight Pictures.

New York, July 21.—New Yorkers are to see the reproduction by moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Charged With Murder.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., July 21.—Ulford Cunningham of Alberton was arrested at that place at a late hour on Tuesday night charged with the wilful murder of Wm. J. Skerry on the night of June 28. Cunningham and Skerry had been together on the night of June 27, both had been drinking; they had planned to go to a social in the country and went into a field to get a horse. The field was marshy and they could not succeed in catching the horse. According to Cunningham's story they both gave up the idea of going to the party and each left for home. That was the last seen of Skerry alive.

Railway President Murdered.

Chicago, July 21.—Ira G. Rawn, president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway (the Monon route), was shot through the heart and instantly killed at 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning by a burglar, who entered his summer home in Winnetaka, a suburb 15 miles north of Chicago.

Gave Girl's Age Too Young.

Belleville, July 21.—Ernest Little, a young fellow of this city, is under arrest charged with unlawfully marrying a girl named Ethel Powey, who is only 16 years of age, without her parents' consent. Little got a marriage license, alleging that the girl was over 18.

At Welland the jury enquiring into the death of Wm. H. Wilson, shot by a revolver, in the hands of a policeman, returned a verdict of accidental death.

Puppets of Downing Street.

London, July 21.—The Cape Times says Downing street has laid it down that the Secretary of State, London, has authority to instruct a governor in the colonies to break the law of the land, while he is all the time acting as administrator of the law. With such a preposterous doctrine prevailing, The Times asserts that the position of the King's representative becomes farcical, and the occupant of the position mischievous, a puppet worked at the will of Downing street, either to screen or sanctify the violation of the law, or invasion of the rights of the people.

Found Dead In Bed.

Woodstock, July 21.—Dan McCulloch, a life-long resident of this city, was found dead in bed yesterday morning by the contractor for whom he was working. He did not show up at work and his employer went to find him. He was known by nearly everyone in the city, being an enthusiastic hunter and trapper.

Fiendish Youth Gets Eight Years.

St. John, N.B., July 21.—Charles McLaughlin, the 16-year-old youth arrested some time ago for coaxing little boys to lonely places, making them strip and beating and torturing them in fiendish manner, was yesterday sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary.

Public attention is still divided between the price of hair cuts and the G.T.R. strike.

This morning a barber wished the Review to correct the argument advanced in a local paper to the effect that the bald headed man would suffer out of proportion when he was called upon to pay the increased price for a fringe trim.

"It's not our fault that these men are bald headed. If they would use a certain hair tonic we have they would have strong, healthy heads of hair. I would like you to note that in the paper."

But the hair conversation suddenly switched when it was suggested that the advertising man call and find find out the name of the wonderful restorer.

FIREWORKS GALORE

Wonderful Programme for the Canadian National This Year

Never was such a programme of fireworks given as that prepared for the Canadian National Exhibition this year. There will be fireworks day and night. Japanese fireworks and exploding submarine mines in the afternoon and at night. "Naval Review at Spithead," "Battle Between a Dreadnought and an Airship," winding up with a long line of sixty pieces, which exhaust the possibilities of pyrotechnics. It is certainly a wonderful programme.

DRUMMERS WILL ASSIST IN A BAND MARCH

What should prove a very popular novelty will be introduced into the band concert's program in Victoria Park to-morrow night, when a sextette of drummers from the regimental bugle band will lend their patter to Sousa's stirring march, "Semper Fidelis."

The program in full is as follows:

March—Selected.

Overture—Uncle Tom.

Euphonium Solo—Selected. (Bandsman Cronk.)

Hymn, with chimes—"Abide With Me."

Spanish Serenade—"La Paloma."

March, with augmented drums—"Semper Fidelis."

Duet—"Misere" from "Trovatore." (Sergt. Hughes and Bandsman Cronk)

Negro Oddity—"Mumblin' Mose'."

Medley Popular Songs—"Remick's Hits No. 7."

Special to the Review.

Cavanville, July 20.—Mr. Melville Staples occupied the pulpit of Cavanville Methodist church on Sunday last. Mr. Melville Staples is a son of Mr. Harry Staples, of Cavan, and is a young man of high intellectual ability, who will be heard from in the future. Mr. Staples is a student of Knox College, Toronto, and is studying for the Presbyterian ministry.

Considerable rain has fallen in this vicinity this last few days, and it has been the means of greatly improving the crop outlook, which was very poor previous to the rain.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Mr. Chris. Sisson has been making extensive repairs to his house, having had the roof of it raised about 3 feet, thereby increasing the accommodation in the second story. He has also had a metal roof put on. West Fry, of Millbrook, was the contractor.

The fall wheat cutting has commenced, Mr. Jim Kennedy having cut the first in this neighborhood, which was on July 14.

SUDDENLY ILL.

Mrs. Kearns, of Bethany, while doing some shopping in town, took suddenly ill and had to be removed to a nearby house. She is under Dr. Dr. Brereton's care Mrs. Kearns is not expected to recover.

Harold and Vernon Hunter are out from Port Hope High School to spend their vacation at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hunter.

Mr. Frank Fallis, of the Bank of Toronto, Berlin, is spending his vacation at his home, Mr. D. Fallis', Cavan.

Mr. Fred Staples, Ida, has sold out to Mr. Will Armstrong, of Port Perry.

A KINDLY ACT.

A cement wall has been placed around the church sheds about three feet high, which will greatly improve its stability and add to the comfort of the horses which have to spend the winter evenings in them.

Miss Jessie Falls is home from Toronto for the summer vacation.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Miss Taggart is to be congratulated on the success of her entrance class, five in number. They all succeeded in making the required standard. The names are as follows: Ethel Hinton, Kathleen Staples, Elsie Staples, and Willie Whitfield.

WEDDING.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shields, of Mt. Pleasant, was the scene of a very charming wedding on Wednesday, July 6th, when Miss Carrie Sutcliffe and Richard C. Graham, of Mt. Pleasant, were joined in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Clarry, of Cavanville. The bride is a daughter of Robert Sutcliffe, of Dakota.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few intimate friends of the bride and groom.

The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. William Shields, and was becomingly attired in cream stripe fontaine over silk and trimmed with chiffon and Duchess ribbon. She carried a beautiful bridal bouquet of orange blossoms.

After the ceremony a very dainty luncheon was served, the tables being decorated with ferns and pink and white roses. The wedding cake was used as a centre piece for the table.

The groom is a popular young man and a successful merchant of Mount Pleasant, while the bride is a niece of Mr. Will Shields at whose residence the marriage was solemnized.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham left on the Omemee train in the evening of the same day on a wedding trip to Toronto and other points of interest in the west, and will be away about two weeks.

On their return they will reside at Mount Pleasant.

DEATH.

Alexander Anderson, at the advanced age of 88 years, passed away to his reward on Saturday, July 9th, at Cavanville.

The deceased had been a resident of Monaghan all his life and was a highly respected and widely known resident of that township.

His wife predeceased him eight years ago.

In politics he was a Conservative and in religion a staunch Presbyterian. He was born in Perth, Scotland, and leaves to mourn his loss six sons and three daughters. The funeral took place on Monday from his home to the Presbyterian cemetery at Centreville.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of Fraserville, officiated.

MILLBROOK MATTERS

Special to the Review.

Millbrook, July 20.—Miss Berry, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Roy McLaren, of Souris.

About 65 loyal Orangemen attended the church parade on Sunday last. Services were conducted in the Methodist church, a stirring address being given by the Rev. Mr. Rogers.

Friends and acquaintances of Miss Stella Hetherington will be pleased to learn that she has recovered from her recent illness.

Rev. S. P. Kelly, late rector of one of the large churches in Philadelphia, preached in St. Thomas' church on Sunday last to a large congregation. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly leave for Toronto this week and in August set sail for England, intending to spend a year on the continent.

Mr. Harry Duncan is visiting his old home here for the summer holidays, with Mrs. Duncan, who has been here for some time.

Mr. Lees is to be congratulated upon the excellent results of his entrance class, ten out of eleven having passed. Miss Mary Turner, daughter of Dr. Turner, passed with honors.

The Presbyterian Sunday School and Ladies' Aid of Millbrook, will hold their annual excursion on July 21st to Cobourg, one of Ontario's summer resorts. A bowling match has been arranged between Millbrook and Cobourg. As the 21st is Civic Holiday in Millbrook, it should prove a banner day for those having charge of the excursion.

Mr. Wm. Leith shipped another car load of horses to Toronto on Saturday.

CURIOSITIES.

W. E. Gillott had his curiosities, in the shape of a trained racoon and a six-legged calf with two heads, on exhibition. They drew a large crowd of people.

CENSUS OF AGRICULTURE

The next census of Agriculture will be taken under date of 1st June, 1911.

The area, product and value of field crops harvested in 1910 will be enumerated for fall wheat, spring wheat, barley, oats, rye corn or husking, buckwheat, beans, peas, flax, mixed grains, hay and clover, alfalfa or lucerne, corn for forage, other forage crops, turnips, mangolds, sugar beets, other field roots, tobacco and hops; and grass seed, red clover seed and alsike clover seed will be enumerated for product and value.

Grain and other field crops for the harvest of 1911 will be taken by areas only, as none of these crops will be ripe at the taking of the census. The products of these crops will be gathered later in the year from the reports of correspondents.

Animals and animal products, also under the head of agriculture, will include the number of horses three years old and over, horses under three years, milch cows, other horned or neat cattle, sheep, swine, turkeys, geese, ducks, hens and chickens and hives of bees held or owned by each person at the date of the census on 1st of June, 1911.

The number of horses, milch cows, other horned or neat cattle, sheep, swine and poultry sold in 1910, will be recorded, as well as the wool, milk, home-made butter, home-made cheese, eggs and honey products of the year, and the quantities of milk or cream sent to the factory or sold.

Pure-bred animals registered, or eligible for registration, which are owned at the time of taking the census will be enumerated for horses, cattle, sheep and swine, but their number will also be counted with all other animals.

ACOMIA

Many Men Have it and Most of Them Worry About

ACOMIA—it's a magic word—what does it mean? Simply absence of hair.

A baldheaded man has ACOMIA—absence of hair.

A million more men will have ACOMIA a year from now if they do not get rid of disgusting dandruff.

Dandruff is caused by a germ. This germ is a persistent sort of germ. He works while you sleep and when you awake. He breakfasts, dines and sups on the vitality stored in the hair roots, and the longer you tolerate his presence the surer you are of displaying a shiney headpiece later on.

Kill the dandruff germ; that's the only way to keep from growing bald. Any capable doctor will tell you so.

How can you be sure that you are killing the dandruff germs? Simply by using daily for two weeks Parisian Sage, the most pleasant tonic for the hair the world has ever known.

Parisian Sage is the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing in the world. It is not sticky or greasy. It will make women's hair soft, silky and luxuriant in a few days. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. Fifty cents a large bottle at druggists everywhere, and at Wm. Madill's, who guarantees it. Mail orders filled, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

Rev. F. A. H. Chadwick, of Windsor, has been called to Vancouver.

NEXT CENSUS OF CANADA

Will Include Population, Mortality, Agriculture, Manufacturies, Minerals, Fisheries and Dairy Products

The next census of Canada will be taken under date of June 1st, 1911, and will embrace the subjects of population, mortality, agriculture, manufactures, minerals, fisheries and dairy products. The population will be recorded under the heads of residence and personal description; citizenship, nationality and religion; profession, occupation and trade or means of living; wage-earning and insurance education and language spoken, and infirmities.

Every person living on June 1st will be entered on the schedule of population by name, as member of a family, institution or household; together with place of habitation, sex, relationship to head of the family or household, and whether single or married, widow, divorced or legally separated. The month of birth, year of birth and age at last birthday, will also be recorded.

Entries will be made for each person to show the country or place of birth, year of immigration to Canada if born elsewhere, year of naturalization if formerly an alien, and also racial or tribal origin, nationality and religion. Every person of alien birth who has become a naturalized citizen is a Canadian by nationality; and every British subject with residence in Canada, as well as every native of Canada, who has acquired citizenship by birth or naturalization, is also a Canadian by nationality. But there is no Canadian by racial or tribal origin, unless the Indians are so counted.

Every person having an occupation or trade will be entered for it, but if employed in the census year at some other occupation for part or whole time he will be recorded also. If the person is working on own account, the entry will be so made. An entry is also required to be made showing where the person is employed, as on farm, in woollen mill, at foundry shop, in drug store, etc.

Wage-earners are entered to show the number of weeks employed in 1910 at chief occupation or trade; at other than chief occupation if any; the hours of working time per week at chief occupation, or at other occupation, if any; the total earnings in 1910 at chief occupation; the total earnings at other than chief occupation; and the rate per hour when employed by the hour.

Entries are required to be made for each person showing the amount of insurance held at the date of census upon life, as well as against accident or sickness, together with the cost of insurance in the census year.

Under the heading of education and language records will be taken for every person of five years of age and over showing the number of months at school in 1910, and if the person can read and write, and the language commonly spoken by each person. The cost of education in 1910 for persons over 16 years of age at College, Convent or University is also called for.

The last question on the schedule of population relates to infirmities. It calls for a record of each person having an infirmity. If blind, deaf and dumb, crazy or lunatic, idiotic or silly, a record thereof will be made in the proper column, and the age at which the infirmity appeared is required to be specified.

About 100 persons were injured slightly in a railway collision near Dublin, Ireland.

It is expected that from thirty to fifty men will be employed.

DEATH

The Supreme Tragedy, Visits Same Home Twice in 24 Hours!

A sad sight will be witnessed to-morrow morning at the home of Mr. Thos. Brydon Fleming, 191 Antrim street, when a double funeral will move on its way to St. Peter's cemetery. On Wednesday morning at six o'clock the ten months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fleming died from infantile trouble. This morning death again came at the same hour and Mary Gertrude Fleming, five years old, was taken away by pneumonia. This is a terrile affliction and Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will receive the silent sympathy of the entire community in the supreme tragedy that has entered their home.

STUNNED BY COLLISION

Mr. Harry Portsmouth, who is employed in the brass department of the Canadian General Electric Company, was the victim of a rather peculiar accident yesterday noon while on his way home to dinner.

He was riding his wheel rapidly and accidentally collided with another cyclist, whose name could not be learned.

Mr. Portsmouth was stunned for some time. He managed to reach Mr. Millard's bicycle shop, where, after resting for a while, he was sufficiently recovered from the shock to proceed home.

He was unable to recall exactly how the collision occurred.

No ill effects of the accident were felt by the young man to-day.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses. If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

STATE OF LABOR MARKET IN PETERBORO AND DISTRICT

Mr. J. Arthur Sharp, correspondent, Labor Gazette.

The labor market was very active throughout June. There was continued activity in the building trades. All branches of industry have become more active, and the outlook is for a very busy season. The Healey Falls Syndicate, which has acquired certain rights of various interests in the power privileges at that place, have purchased the interests of the Peterborough Light and Power Company in connection with the lighting by electricity and gas. They have also acquired the Auburn dam and power privilege, and will begin a new concrete dam and power house. The same company has purchased the Peterborough Street Railway and will build several miles of new railway in the city this year. The city has decided to pave two streets. A by-law to sanction the expenditure of $30,000 for sewers was passed. The laborers employed by the Construction Company on the Quaker Oats Company's new elevator, went on strike for 25 cents more per day. They were receiving $1.75. About sixty of them are out. A number of finishers also left work on account of the strike. A new joint stock company, capitalized at $25,000 has been organized, known as the Ontario Marble Table Advertising Company, with factory and offices at Peterborough.

LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

Agriculture—Farmers are very busy. Crops are promising.

Lumbering—All the local mills were running to their full capacity.

Manufacturing—All factories were running full time. The moulders who were out on strike for a minimum rate of $2.75 per day have returned to work, having been granted the increase.

Railway construction—Surveyors and trackmen are very busy. A large gang is working on the roadbed between Midland and Belleville strengthening bridges and cutting down grades. They will also lay heavier rails.

PARTICULAR TRADES.

All branches of the building trades were actively employed and activity also prevailed in the metal trades. Electrical workers and linemen were very busy. Woodworkers were well employed, also upholsterers and polishers. The printing trades were fairly active. Journeymen tailors were fairly well employed. Bakers and confectioners, butchers and meat cutters were very busy. Leather workers and saddlers were active. Railway and street railway employees, expressmen and teamsters had a good month. There was a good demand for unskilled labor.

PICKED UP UNCONSCIOUS WAS HE ASSAULTED AND THROWN FROM TRAIN?

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Ont., July 21.—Fred Watson, a young man of this place, while returning from Peterborough, on Wednesday evening, in some unknown manner, fell off the train near Indian River and was seriously injured. He was picked up by a freight train that followed afterwards in an unconscious condition, and brought to his home here, but as yet has been unable to give any explanation of the accident. It is thought, however, that a sudden lurch of the train threw him off.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I was glad to see that our new Chief of Police has made a good start by enforcing the by-law against loafing on the streets. There are others that demand his attention more, for instance, the burning of rubbish in our back yards, from which there is great danger of the fire spreading, as well as their offensiveness and injury to health.

Yours sincerely,

PROTECTION.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I saw by the press a few days ago that the Board of Health called a meeting, and only two attended. When they themselves acknowledge their uselessness by their supineness while our sanitary conditions are at their worst, why does not our council cry halt to paying the health officer when there is nothing doing, and our taxes are already unbearable.

Respectfully,

TAXPAYER.

July 21st, 1910.

A Voice From the Crowd

Peterborough, July 21, 1910.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—In spite of insistent appeals in your paper, the City Council, it appears, is not, from all indications, very much concerned over a matter of supreme importance in civic legislation—the disposal of garbage.

I read a short time ago an article in the Review in which every alderman interviewed on the subject expressed the opinion that there should be some means employed of having the garbage removed. But it seems a strange and inexcusable inconsistency, does it not, that in view of these opinions nothing has been done in that direction?

The people elect the aldermen to represent them. The aldermen express themselves as noted in the above paragraph, and yet don't take any action. What is their excuse? Why the delay?

There is no sense in taking the defeat of the old garbage by-law as a precedent. It's not what the people wanted then, it's what they want now and even if the residents of the outlying districts, who voted against the by-law, it is held, don't want to be taxed for garbage removal when they can dispose of it themselves, what has that to do with the people living in the more thickly populated part of the city, and who are clamoring for garbage disposal? The by-law could be framed so that those in the outlying districts, who didn't have the garbage removed, wouldn't be taxed.

I would like to see immediate action taken by the Council and in this regard voice the opinion of hundreds of others.

Yours for a clean and healthy city.

COMMON SENSE.

REMINDER TO TAX PAYERS

Taxpayers are reminded that if all their tax bills are not received, or those who have bought property, will call at the tax office they can get their bills arranged before the rush.

THREE STRIKE-BREAKERS BEATEN AT BELLEVILLE

John McMann and M. Donovan, Who Were Running a Grand Trunk Train Are Lying in Doctor's Hotel in a Critical Condition as a Result of Attack by Strike Sympathizers.

Belleville, July 22.—As the result of a riot here last night on the arrival of the local from Toronto, due here at 9.10, two men are lying in a critical condition in Docter's Hotel, just opposite the Grand Trunk Station. They are John McMann, who was acting as conductor of the train, and M. Donovan, who was acting as brakeman.

Both men left the train on its arrival, and were crossing from the station to the street when a mob of about a hundred, who had been in hiding, set upon them and beat them terribly. In the struggle a couple of shots were fired. The mob disappeared as suddenly as it had come forward, and the injured men were carried into the hotel.

Shortly after stones were thrown through the hotel windows. The police were notified and the entire night staff was soon on the scene, but no trace could be found of the guilty parties, though it is expected that arrests will be made soon.

Dr. Gibson, who attended to the injured men, said the men had good chances of recovery, though McMann especially had been very badly beaten.

McMann is an aged man, who has been for some years superintendent of the bridge department here. Donovan is foreman of No. 6 division, with headquarters at this point.

There was great excitement over the affair, and hundreds of visitors gathered at the station.

During the afternoon Fred Oram, a married man, working in the ash pit in the yards, was called upon to assist in loading a couple of coal cars intended for Brockville. While at work he was attacked by a mob, badly beaten and thrown over a high board fence to the road. There is no suggestion that any of the striking trainmen were concerned in these outrages; sympathizers alone are blamed. Several hack drivers refused to go to the station last night for fear of violence.

Both Claim Victory.

Montreal, July 22.—There is little or no change in the strike situation. Both sides claim to be winning, but their claims show a wide divergence of opinion. The company succeeded in running all their through trains yesterday, while a couple of big freight trains were also started from the Point St. Charles yards. A message received at the head office of the company announced that the beef train, which left here for Portland Wednesday night, arrived safely at its destination at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and that there was no further danger of a meat famine in that city.

An official announcement was made by the company yesterday afternoon that if the situation continues as favorable as at present the shops will be reopened all over the Grand Trunk System on Monday morning.

Trains Running at Brantford.

Brantford, July 22.—The Grand Trunk yesterday succeeded in getting the trains running on the Brantford and Tillsonburg and Buffalo and Goderich branch lines, crews having arrived yesterday morning. The mail service to these places, which was cancelled for two days, will be resumed to-day.

Several large industrial concerns situated exclusively on Grand Trunk sidings are hauling coal and raw material at big expense from the T., H. & B. Railway.

The crowds gathering at the local depot in the evening have become so great that last night ten special constables arrived from London and Toronto as a safeguard.

Brockville Is Peaceful.

Brockville, July 22.—As the result of a strike development, the Brockville Town Council held a special meeting yesterday afternoon, when Mayor Patterson read a communication from Supt. Whittenberger of Montreal calling attention to the reports of disturbances at the Brockville depot in connection with the operation of passenger trains, and asking that proper steps be taken to maintain order.

The councillors were at a loss to know how the erroneous report as to any lawlessness had reached that official, as excellent order has been maintained since the strike became operative.

G.T.R. Demands Protection.

Niagara Fals, Ont., July 22.—There is practically no change in the strike situation here, passenger trains moving, but freight tied up completely. Trouble is feared when an attempt is made to move freight, but Mayor Dores says he will call out the militia if any more trouble occurs.

Mayor Dores has received what he terms an "impertinent telegram from solicitors of the Grand Trunk, threatening to bring legal action against the mayor if the best of police protection is not given the Grand Trunk. In reply, he said the city police had the situation well under control.

Conductor Assaulted.

Windsor, July 22.—Robert McMurray, a Windsor train conductor on the G.T.R., between Detroit and Chicago, was assaulted by union strikers or sympathizers in the latter city on Wednesday night while sticking to his run. He is now in a hospital in that city in a serious condition.

No Shortage of Pulpwood.

Washington, July 22.—Denial that there was a shortage of pulpwood in Quebec, such as to justify an increase in the price of paper, was made yesterday by U. S. Consul Willrich, at Quebec, in an official report to the Department of State.

New York, July 21.—Mystery deeper than ever surrounds the case of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, in whose house in London was found the body of a woman believed to be his wife. The identification of the body is still incomplete, but circumstantial evidence as to the perpetration of a crime is given by a woman who kept a shop in the rear of the Croppen residence, saying that she heard screams and pleas for mercy coming from the cellar some months ago. All clews as to the whereabouts of Dr. Crippen and the young woman typist with whom he is said to have disappeared have proved false, according to the superintendent of Scotland yard. Police have searched incoming steamships for the missing couple, but in vain. The detectives, in their search of the steamships, were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Mills, the latter a stepsister of the murdered woman, and Mme. Frederick Ginnett, an English vaudeville performer, who, as president of a London theatrical organization, known as the Music Hall Artists' Guild, had been closely associated with Belle Elmore, its secretary.

KISS WALTZ IS OFF

Strasbourg, July 16.—"I learn," says the police administrator of Strasbourg, in a decree he has just issued "that in the course of balls organized in the communes of my district a dance called the 'Kiss Waltz' is danced. During this dance women and girls allow themselves to be kissed publicly. This constitutes an offence against good German manners that I cannot tolerate. In the name of morality, I formally prohibit the 'Kiss Waltz.' The police organizations will see that this order is strictly complied with."

NURSES, CHEER UP

Atlanta, Ga., July 21.—Because of the attention she paid him during a serious illness, Mrs. S. J. Hollins, a trained nurse, is the recipient of a gift of $50,000 from Dr. Herbert W. Wyming, a physician of Los Angeles, Cal. In addition to the $50,000 Mrs. Hollins received a letter from Dr. Wyming and asked her to marry her son, Harry. To-day Mrs. Hollins blushingly admitted that she loves young Wyming and will marry him.

U.S. FIREMEN HELPED THE CANADIANS

Beaudette, Minn., Fire Fighters Crosses the Line to Fight Forest Fires.

Beaudette, Minn., July 22.—The forest fire which has been raging in this vicinity for the last few days has regained force. A large fire started near Rainy River yesterday and threatened to destroy the town. The Beaudette fire department has gone to the assistance, as have also the fire engines from Fort Francis.

Several settler's houses have been destroyed during the last few days, and there is also a large fire burning near Spooner, just across the river from Beaudette, which threatened to wipe out that village. The air is heavy with smoke and the ashes are falling in the town.

Sandon In Danger.

Winnipeg, July 22.—Latest report from Sandon states the town is in danger, and a train crowded with refuges is ready to leave. Three Forks, which was reported, is still in existence, although surrounded by fire. The total destruction of White Water and the destruction of McGuigan is authoritatively confirmed. Another fire is reported in the neighborhood of Rossland.

Hemmed In by Flames.

Merrill, Wis., July 22.—Several hundred persons of Bloomville and Heinemann are hemmed in by forest fires at the former town, with seemingly no means of escape. Loss on buildings is nearly $200,000.

Another Town Burning.

Spokane, Wash., July 22.—The town of Marble, on the Columbia River, about 10 miles south of the Canadian boundary, is reported to be burning. In China Creek basin the citizens have been fighting flames almost continuously since Sunday afternoon.

RAN AWAY WITH BOXER

Buffalo, N.Y., July 22.—"Billy" Papke, middleweight boxer, was married Wednesday by Rev. E. T. Curtis of Niagara Square Congregational Church, to Miss Edna E. Pulver of Hamilton, Ont. Miss Pulver's family is wealthy and opposed her engagement and marriage to the boxer. They made arrangements two weeks ago for Miss Pulver and her sister, with her father and mother, to sail Wednesday for Europe, but when Papke drove up to her door in his racing auto, she jumped in and a few hours later they were across the border. Papke will sail with his bride for Australia.

Escaped With His Life.

St. Thomas, July 22.—A serious fire occurred at Highgate, a village on the Michigan Central Railroad, about 20 miles west of St. Thomas, at an early hour yesterday morning. The fire started in the cellar of George R. Dodson's general store. Dodson barely escaped with his life.

LINDSAY BANK MEN ARRESTED CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

W. R. Travers, General Manager of the Famers' Bank, and Hartley Dewart, K.C., Are Investigating an Alleged Case of Conspiracy to Harm Lindsay Branch of Farmers'.

Lindsay, July 22.—W. R. Travers, general manager of the Farmers' Bank, was in the city yesterday, accompanied by Hartley Dewart, K.C., laying the facts with reference to an alleged case of conspiracy before Crown Attorney Devlin and Police Magistrate Jackson.

As a result of the interview, the crown attorney instructed proceedings to be taken before Police Magistrate Jackson against A. B. McGill, former manager of the Farmers' Bank here; J. J. Fleury, who was a clerk in the same bank, and J. L. Coulter, until recently manager of the branch of the same bank in Nestleton. Mr. McGill is now the manager of the Home Bank in Lindsay, and the other two are clerks in the same institution.

The statements that have been laid before the crown attorney make an interesting story. It appears that in the month of June last all these gentlemen occupied their respective positions with the Farmers' Bank, but Mr. McGill resigned on the 29th, and the same day a branch of the Home Bank was opened in Lindsay, next door to the Farmers' Bank, manned by the former employes of the latter institution.

Immediately a large number of checks, aggregating thousands of dollars, were presented to the Farmers' Bank for payment, and as fast as the money was withdrawn it was deposited next door with the Home Bank.

This sudden change in the financial leanings of the former depositors in the Farmers' Bank was felt to be due to something more than an hypnotic influence on the part of the erstwhile manager. Mr. Travers caused investigations to be made by the Canadian Detective Bureau, which disclosed allegations upon which he has been advised by counsel to lay the information and take the proceedings.

The result of the investigation is said to show that the depositors who withdrew their deposits to the extent of $60,000, and almost caused a run upon the bank, were in every instance influenced to do so by misrepresentations and misstatements. The result is that the gentlemen who are accused of having made these statements find themselves faced with a charge of conspiracy to defraud and injure and injuriously affect the financial position of the Farmers' Bank. Mr. McGill was arrested yesterday and gave bail in the sum of $2,000 for his appearance on the 28th inst., when Fleury and Coulter will also have to appear to answer to the same charge before the police magistrate in Lindsay. Bail was fixed for the latter at $500 each.

The whole affair has caused quite a sensation in Lindsay, while the fact that the Farmers' Bank is still doing business at the old stand has certainly put a different face upon the whole matter.

Mr. Travers feels the whole matter very keenly and there is no doubt that the crown authorities will sift the atter to the bottom.

C.P.R. AND ITS EMPLOYEES

Montreal, July 22.—The C.P.R. and the delegates reached a definite agreement yesterday afternoon, several of the committee left for their homes, and it is officially announced that all the difficulties between the men and the company have been got over.

There can be no doubt now that the Grand Trunk strike was precipitated as soon as it became evident that the C.P.R. were inclined to give the men about all they asked. Vice-President McNicoll confirms in fact the men's statement that the C.P.R. have given their conductors and trainmen the standard rates east of Chicago. It is understood that the men's appeal to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy had a great effect, and that there were several matters conceded by the president, which the vice-president had haggled over considerably.

Be this as it may, the trouble is over, and peace will prevail on the C.P.R. lines from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

PLAYED FOR A DEAD PUP

Kingston, July 22.—The death of "Toy," a twelve-year-old fox terrier, at the summer home of Chas. Lewis of Watertown, N.Y., at Bartlett's Point, among the Thousand Islands, was the occasion of a remarkable funeral. A band of twelve pieces from Clayton played dirges and an orator related the canine's history and another recited as much of the burial service as he knew. A handsome slab of wood marks the resting place and later a marble stone will replace it. Owing to convulsions, the pet dog was finally chloroformed. The funeral was the first ever given at the Thousand Islands, where $100 bulldogs and $500 cats are no uncommon thing in the homes of the millionaire colony. The band played "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," as the mourners quietly dispersed.

CHATHAM INQUEST ADJOURNS

Chatham, July 22.—The inquest into the shooting of Jake Enos ended last night without anything out of the ordinary developing, and was adjourned for a week, pending the recovery of Guy Needham, the man who was slashed with a razor.

Hardware clerks told of a man answering Jackson's description buying a box of revolver cartridges during the afternoon before the murder. Circumstantial evidence seems to point to Jackson as the slayer of Enos, and that the shots were fired to revenge the slashing of Needham. All the men concerned in the killing were drinking heavily during the evening, and the opening of the quarrel was the result of Enos winning big stakes from the others at a game of dice the evening before.

Vaudeville Stunt In Court.

London, July 22.—Vaudeville in Middlesex Court House will be an unique innovation on Aug. 16. Ryan and Ryan, a vaudeville pair, who failed to please Manager Logan of Bennett's Theatre, and were discharged, are suing him. Logan claims that the act was not suitable for his house, and to decide the question it has been decided to have the act presented before the Division Court.

ROOSEVELT AND IRELAND

London, July 22.—T. P. O'Connor, president of the United Irish League of Great Britain, referring in the course of his regular contribution to a Sunday paper, to the rumor that the Irish question will form a part of any settlement reached in the inter-party conference over the question of the Lords' power of veto, says:

"I know that Mr. Roosevelt brought to the attention of leading men here the vast necessity for a settlement of the relations between England and Ireland, from an American viewpoint, and Mr. Roosevelt is convinced that until the Irish question is settled there will always be an element of soreness among the large masses of Americans, which must stand in the way of better relations between the two countries.

GUARDIANS EXONERATED

Barrie, July 22.—Coroner Evans returned to Barrie last night after holding an inquest at New Lowell on Loretto Smith, a mulatto of six years, that had been living between the homes of Mrs. Mercy Mills and her son-in-law, Fred Rawn. On July 12 she was given some rough usage by Stanley Rawn, aged six years. The lad pulled her around by her legs, but the examination doctor did not think that the fatal wound could have been given in this way. It looked rather like a stone bruise or a wound from a heavy stick.

The verdict was that the child died from septic poisoning, and the jury believed that there had been no ill-treatment on the part of her guardians.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

BRITISH GOVERNMENT URGED TO HURRY UP PREFERENCE

Leader of Opposition Says That the Colonial Dominions Are Waiting for England to Make a Move in the Work of Unifying the Empire.

London, July 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Commons, Rt. Hon. Arthur Balfour took the last opportunity before the next Imperial Conference to raise the question of the Imperial preference. He remarked the consistency wherewith every colonial statesman, since Canada made the first appeal for a fiscal arrangement in 1843, had pressed on the Mother Country the one policy, and declared that the views of these great colonial statesmen were not merely commercial. They had in view the idea of Empire, with mutual good offices in the matter of tariffs as one of its bonds. The leader of the Opposition in emphasizing the fact that the colonies had developed into great nations, warned the Government that they had also fully realized the value of tariff negotiations. He urged that the result of Canada's treaties with France, Germany and the United States had been the diminution of preferential advantages to Britain. The Government and those who supported them appeared to think that they could remain outside this network of treaties, which more and more meant arranging channels where into international trade was to go to Canada, had left as an impossibility the policy of isolation, and it was quite certain that the great dominions, which had entered upon this course of independent fiscal negotiation, could not, in the force of circumstances, stop where they were. The process just beginning must go on.

Concluding, he made a strong appeal that the policy of preference should become the policy of all British statesmen instead of the policy of only one party.

Premier Asquith, who replied immediately, said he had heard with great satisfaction that the question which had slumbered so long would be raised again. It had been suggested that the Government was insensible and unresponsive to the wishes expressed at the Colonial Conference of 1907. That conference had passed twenty resolutions and in regard to seventeen the Government had taken action.

Donald Macmaster said that there was a firm determination in Canada to build up, with the co-operation of Britain, a great and powerful nation. The true policy was to lend all encouragement possible to a settlement with Canada, by giving her a reasonable preference.

Col. Seeley said that if Britain's refusal to adopt a policy of preference led, as Mr. Balfour claimed, towards disseverance, rather than unification, surely the signs of disseverance should begin to appear, but he declared that the exact opposite was the case.

ONTARIO LIKELY TO WIN CASE

Toronto, July 22.—That the judgments in the appeals against Ontario made to the Privy Council, one by the Dominion Government in respect to the Indian treaty, and the other by the Province of Quebec in the common school fund case, will be in favor of this province is evident from the fact that counsel representing Ontario were not called upon to present their arguments. Two cables were received to this effect by Attorney-General Foy yesterday.

In the first case the Supreme Court held that where a dispute between the Dominion and the province comes before the Exchequer Court, it should be decided on a rule or principle of law, and not merely on what the judge of the court considers fair and just between the parties. Its judgment, which is evidently upheld by the Privy Council, held that the Province of Ontario was not liable for the claim of the Dominion, that the treaty was not made for the benefit of Ontario, but in pursuance of the general policy of the Dominion in dealing with Indians and with a view to maintaining peace, order and good government in the territory effected, and that no rule or principle in law made the province responsible for expenses incurred in carrying out an agreement with the Indians to which it was not a party and for which it gave no mandate.

THE STRIKE

What of the teachings of the Nazarene? Is the golden rule forgotten? Where is the church? There is a spire rising from nearly every other block. Are they merely places of social greetings on Sunday, where a few minutes is spent in listening to bracing thoughts, sweet singing and bright music, or are they to move men into a mind to follow the One in whose honor and for whose glory they are built?

The church.

The papers are repeatedly recording its meetings, its offering for the heathen, its growth in the west, its enlarging its sphere, and its general excellence among men.

But where does it figure in this strike? Where does its practical working in this work-a-day world come in in this particular and very vital matter?

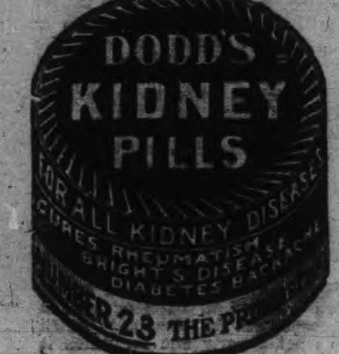
Has the church turned into a social function, or is it able to grapple with live events such as this. Probably three-fifths of the striking railway men are church adherents and the heads of the Company no doubt have their silk hats under some pew at least once every Sabbath.

The Golden Rule still holds good, is still virile, but what's the matter with the church that proclaims it?

A LETTER ANSWERED

An anonymous correspondent complains of the blasphemy on the streets of Peterborough. But Peterborough is no worse than Ottawa. Perhaps its oaths are not so "culchawed" as the oaths of the gentlemen who fatten at the treasuries. Nor are they worse than sedate Kingston. People swear the world over. Peter let a few slip out on a memorable occasion some hundreds of years ago, and his memory is ever kept green.

Profanity is cheap. It shows a lack of knowledge of words of the good old English language. A good plain "Damn it" sometimes lets off a little steam when one is working at high pressure and things go wrong, but the oaths of blasphemy which one hears on the street bespeak a very dull intellect. There are those whose minds are stunted, whose brains are full of rottenness and who are never more at home than when they are telling a smutty story. They take no delight in a good book and the thought that lifts is turned into a jest. To them the cloud that flecks the sky is but a circumstance. The leaves that soon the Master Hand will paint this Fall will not reveal the Divine to them, the stars those lesser lights by night, the sun, the orchard laden with fruit—it just happened, that's all. The man or woman who is trying to do right is the subject of a joke. But let them alone, and time will prove them wrong. They never hear the voices that speak from the silences. Their eyes are dull, are shut, those eyes of the soul, and not until the doctor comes and says: "Telegraph his people," will they probably be awakened. Then the curse dies away on the tongue, things take a new value, and the parson appears in a new role. The honor sought will appear as nothing, the fortune weak. Then the scoffer sends for those he reviled to help him square matters with God Almighty. However, many good people would have us believe that there is no pleasure outside of the church.



They have never gone the rounds. But the happiest are not those who travel most, who give the biggest dances, live in the biggest houses, have the finest auto or the most money. It is they whose wants are few, and who know best the hour alone. They are not always the most distinguished whose names are most prominent in the press. There is the great unseen audience.

TO LIVE A THOUSAND YEARS

Dr. Fairview believes that he will live for 400 or 500 years. His rule is eat no meat and dress in white. The doctor, who lives in New York, is 78 years old and looks like a youth from college. He argues that man is subject to a rule of science as accurate as mathematics. Now perhaps so, perhaps not. Joseph Mantell, of Peterborough, as these lines are being read in this Friday, July 22, 1910, is on his way to London, Ontario, where he will visit friends. In 1810 Mr. Mantell was quite as much the centre of attraction as he is today. In 1810, yes in 1810 for Mr. Mantell is 101 years of age.

He is a fortunate man. No microbe bothered his youth, nor appendicitis. Those were the days when people had inflammation of the bowels rather than a trouble with the veriform appendix. No automobile to dodge, no street cars to wait for, no telephones to dingle. Life was placid! Life was more real. That is a tremendous age 101 years. Dr. Fairview believes in dressing in white always, white, not grey nor black, just white. There is the note of recreation in white. We always associate it with lawn tennis and summer parties, and why the black? Why the mourning? Death is as natural as life. Some of us who haven't had a particularly happy time of it on earth don't want to live a thousand years.

When our time is come a Hand reaches down and touches us, and away we go, and they bury our remains. When our time is come, but not before. We are not fatalists, we are doing our best to succeed, but when the Hand writes it, it is so written, and also our obituary.

FOOL QUESTIONS

Here are three fool questions given in arithmetic in connection with the recent Collegiate entrance examinations:—

3. (a) From 5-6+4-5 of a pound take ¾—2-3+1-20

(b) If 2-3 of 4-5 of a yard cost $1 1-3, what will 6-7 of ¾ of 7-9 of a yard cost?

(c) Simplify $\frac{.88 \times .098 - 16 \times .0002}{.000012}$

Now, who, in their sane senses in every day life, wants to know how to do that? Mr. Grocer, will that help you in calculating? not on your life, and you who sell sausage on computing scales what do you want to know about from 5—6x4—5 of a pound take 1-4—2-3x1-120? Will it help your assistants if they know how to do it? And you, Mr. Shopkeeper, who sells ladies' ribbons or underwear, how does (b) as above, catch you? Do you think you'll ever run across such a problem outside of a bug factory or a daffy house? And you, financier, promoter, fakir, bunco artists, or parson, lawyer or doctor, will your thoughts be refreshed by doing a few stunts in class (c); simplify .88x.098, etc?

How much nicer it would be to teach the young idea to paint a fence, plant a flower, destroy a weed or build a wall, darn a stocking, make a bed, or bake a loaf of bread.

THE ROD

The Ottawa Free Press does not believe in the rod. The Brockville Times thinks that corporal punishment is the proper thing to bring sense to the child. There certainly is a lot of the grace of God in a good stout gad. But what is the sense in the mother whipping the child for being saucy if she in turn tells her husband to shut up. How can the father beat the boy because he does not go to Sunday school, when the head of the family, th's corrector of lax morals, has not been to church in years. There are families where the children are young gentlemen and young ladies. Why? Just because their father and mother are courteous in the home, no matter whether there is company or not.

There are families where the youthful members are rowdies. Why? The heads of the house are always wrangling. Beating isn't the best way to train the child. The living example to-day and the next day has the rod faded to a frazzle.

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION

A terrible affliction has befallen one family in the city. Two children in it died within 24 hours. No one who has not known death in the home can ever sympathize with a father and mother in such an hour. The whole world seems dark. There is no laughter, there is no sunshine, there is no joy. It is then that the unknown world seems very near, it is then that the ties bind us to that beyond more closely than ever. Beyond what? We look to the tokens that are left, the photographs, the lock of hair, the toys, the letter, we look to the sky to the stars, those silent sentinels of the night. Our loved ones are gone, we know not where. But out from the somewhere comes the voices speaking to our souls. They are not dead, but where they are we cannot tell. Their abode is veiled in mystery.

IS IT A JOKE?

Peterborough is also anxiously awaiting the inauguration of a garbage collection system and the papers are daily prodding up the members of the council on the question. The following is from the Review: "Stinks, still stink, the flies still breed and the question of garbage as a daily nuisance is still unsettled."—Galt Reformer.

Is the Board of Health a Board of Health, or is it a joke and just like the Board of Health in other small towns and villages. Is it afraid of itself or the people. It has full authority to act and declare the present system of garbage disposal unsanitary. Again we ask is the Board of Health a Board of Health or is it a joke?

REGRETTABLE

It is regrettable that there is such fiction between between members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee and the Chief of the Fire Brigade. Chief Howard asked for holidays. At his own expense he offered to attend a fire chief's conference, which will be held across the line. This was refused. The excuse was that the firemen were too new to allow the chief to have absence. This lie was passed at the meeting. This is unfortunate. No man likes to be called a liar. If Chief Howard is worth having as chief of the fire department of Peterborough he should be allowed his holidays and treated as a chief should be treated. If he is not filling the bill get some one else. No good can come of wrangling. It is a sign of a small nature to be continually scrapping. Why not be like the Irishman, fight and make up again. The Indian has been known to bury the hatchet,—why not the white man?

In West Africa when a native wants a drink and hasn't the price he pawns one of his children in the nearest saloon. Sounds like a joke, doesn't it? But it isn't; it's a fact, as was disclosed in the British House of Commons the other day. And yet we are told that the world is progressing!

JUSTICE TO THE CLUB.

New York Times.

During his ministerial career, Dr. Russell, the successor of Talmage, has had many posers given to him, but perhaps the quaintest came from a member of a New York East Side audience, to whom he was lecturing on temperance. He was just remarking that he would answer any questions regarding the baleful results of the use of intoxicants, when a man observed:

"You have studied intoxication for many years?"

"For thirty-eight years," said Dr. Russell.

"Well," said the other, "I want to ask, in justice to the drinking classed, if you ever in all that time saw a drunken man holding up a lamp-post as he is usually pictured in the comic papers?"

WHY BE FAMOUS?

Utica Globe.

Senator Beveridge, apropos of fame said at a Washington luncheon:

"What is fame, after all? Kipling when he lived in Brattleborough, took a trip to Montpelier, and the first evening he came down to the hotel dining room, he overheard this dialogue between two waiters:

"First Waiter—"Do you know who that is, George?"

Second Waiter—"No. Who is it?"

First Waiter—"That's the celebrated Kipperin."

Second Waiter—"What's he done?"

First Waiter—"Hanged if I know. Fish line, ain't it?"

The other day a prominent local employer of labor started down King street in search of some men to work at his factory. He met three English immigrants, who were loafing around the street, and offered them jobs at $1.75 a day. All he received was a sneer, accompanied by the remark that they would not work for such "small" wages. No doubt the city will be called upon to keep these same three young men next winter.

A letter received by Mr. A. W. Fraser from Major Hutcheson, commandant of the Bisley team, states that at the time of writing the Canadians had not seen the sun for over four weeks. A good deal of the shooting has been done amid cold pouring rain. And yet some people criticize the Canadian climate.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.

The Financial Man Totally Forgot His Little Snare.

Mr. Harry Scott, at one time financial editor on The Toronto Globe staff, and now Canadian Commissioner in New York, has many friends in Toronto. On one occasion, while he was on The Globe staff, occasion arose for editorial comment on the financial situation in the United States. In the nature of things, one should expect that Mr. Scott would have been assigned the job. But Mr. S. T. Wood received the instructions to write the articles instead.

Mr. Scott, being only human, felt some chagrin at this event, which became an impatience when Mr. Wood, in his leisurely fashion, strolled down to the financial editor's den every afternoon to seek enlightenment on his task and get the latest news from American centres. He habitually, and to the other's distaste, spread his huge limbs upon half the surface of the financial desk, genially disposed to launch into side issues. After several repetitions of the visit, Mr. Scott determined upon reprisals in self-defence, and the sight of the mucilage pot suggested their mischievous nature. One day, at the approach of the fatal hour, therefore, he seized his brush and with swift, remorseless strokes smeared that portion of his desk upon which the editorial interloper was wont to side-seat himself.

Mr. Wood arrived, and the plot deepened.

He walked in, was attracted momentarily to the window, and, all unconscious of what he was expected to do—ranged himself along the—radiator!

Fortune had so far befriended him.

His guilty host, however, refused to be frustrated in his design. Scott began manoeuvres to dislodge him and lead him into the snare. He entered with heat into the controversy, for Mr. Wood has the faculty of putting one's opinions into pillory. But there was too much heat. The interest heightened. Mr. Scott, engaged, wholly forgot, in the moment, the desk, and, presently seeking a base whence he might rear a fresh argument sat down on the spot so carefully prepared for the undoing of another.

"Something (ah! tell me what) there is
To cause that scathing tone.
I fear a thought has gone amiss,
Returning quite alone."

The New Conservative Whip.

The event predicted for weeks back has come to pass, and when the House of Commons assembles next autumn "Taylor of Leeds" will no longer be Whip of the Opposition and his duties will be performed by George H. Perley, M.P. for Argenteuil.

Mr. Perley is one of the best known citizens of Ottawa. The son of W. G. Perley, the head of the lumber firm of Perley & Pattee, who was himself member for Ottawa from 1887 to 1891, Mr. G. H. Perley was born at Lebanon, New Hampshire, in 1857, but came to Canada at an early age. He was educated at the Ottawa Grammar School, at St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., and at Harvard University, where he took his degree of B.A. in 1878.

He has long been active in the life of the city of Ottawa. He was vice-president of the Canada Atlantic Railway; a director of the Bank of Ottawa; has been president of the Rideau Club; is an enthusiastic golfer and has been president of the Ottawa Golf Club; and was chairman of the relief committee which administered the funds for the relief of the sufferers by the great fire in Ottawa and Hull in 1900. His first essay at political honors was in 1900 when he contested Russell County against Mr. W. C. Edwards, but was defeated. His next attempt was at Argenteuil at a bye-election in 1902 upon the death of the late Dr. Christie, but there again he was defeated by 191 majority, but he had better luck in 1904 when he won out by 176 and was re-elected at the last general election. Mr. Perley has taken a prominent part in the affairs of the Church of England in the diocese of Ottawa.

Indian Relics.

The Ontario Education Department has obtained a curious and interesting collection of Indian relics. The collection was bought from Mrs. Rutherford, whose husband was in the British Civil Service in India, and spent many years in gathering the curios.

The collection is a large one. Chief among the relics is a river crocodile which had a known record of killing six Indian women, before Mr. Rutherford shot it. There are two mounted wild black boar heads and one glimpse of them makes the timid person glad that he is many miles from India.

The collection also contains the mounted heads of six black buck, four jackals, and a wolf; a fish-eating crocodile, and the skull and horns of two Indian bison. Some of the minor relics are: a fusee, which is like a heavy shot gun, and is used for shooting elephants; a hill-gun; a spear 10 feet long, made of solid bamboo, and used for boar sticking; Indian gods, anointing bottles, pistols, sabres, breast plates, daggers, Indian tyles taken from a temple, a holy bull which they worship, and five silver coins, some round, some square.

Mrs. Rutherford also sent an original copy of The London Times of Thursday, June 22, 1815. The copy contains the first official report by Wellington himself, of the battle of Waterloo. The report is dated June 19, the fighting having continued from the 15th to the 18th.

Buys Regina Land.

Mark Hambourg, the distinguished pianist, during his recent visit to Regina, purchased four lots of land or two double corner sites. These lots, writes The Standard of Empire correspondent at Regina, are pleasantly situated in the Lake View annex, which adjoins the new Parliament building site. Mr. Hambourg said that this was the first property he had purchased in Canada, and he considered his investment a good one. He was thoroughly impressed by the wonderful growth of Regina since he last passed through the town some years ago.

A. J. Drexel, Jr., carried a passenger in his Bleriot from Bournemouth to Beaulieu, England.

THE PEAT INDUSTRY.

Dominion's New Venture Has a Promising Future.

There is considerable interest in Alfred, Ont., and in the surrounding country in the Dominion Government peat plant, which has just been started there, and which is the first venture of the kind made by the Federal authorities in this country.

Several previous efforts to manufacture a commercial peat fuel in Canada had failed, so Dr. Eugene Haanel and other officials of the Dominion Mines Branch recently decided to establish an experimental peat plant.

The Government acquired a peat bog of 300 acres located at Alfred, near Caledonia Springs, Ontario, fifty miles from the Capital. A storage shed that will hold 300 tons of air-dried peat was built; also a blacksmith shop and an office. After machinery was installed, men were set at work digging out the peat belt, and making it into small squares, or, as they are called, peat briquettes.

The process of manufacture is comparatively simple. The peat is shovelled into a carrier, which carries it upwards until it falls into what is known as a hopper. If it is not, when taken from the ground, moist enough, water is automatically sprayed on it, and then it passes from the hopper out into the conveyors, which dump it at a spot where a device for cutting it up into blocks passes over it.

This device passes over it in one direction, making fourteen straight cuts. Then it is cut at right angles to this. This leaves what looks like several hundred pieces of black clay, shaped a little larger than bricks. Nature does most of the rest. These wet blocks—for all the world like blocks of black moistened clay—are left there until they dry by the aid of sun and wind. After several days boys turn them over, getting paid at the rate of 8 cents a thousand blocks for doing so. Then the other side dries. This takes about three weeks.

It costs about 80 cents a ton to make the peat, 8 cents per thousand bricks for drying, 15 cents a ton for stacking, and probably 20 cents per ton to take it from the peat plant to the C.P.R. railway station. He thinks it can be laid down there at about $2 a ton; or selling at a profit of say 25 cents a ton, at $2.25. The plant started running on May 16th, and already between 200 and 300 tons of peat are out in the open drying. Many curious people have visited it.

Recently, after dwelling on the scarcity of coal and wood in certain parts of Canada, and the importance of fully investigating the peat deposits, Dr. Haanel made the following remarks: "Considering the fact that we imported during the year 1908 coal to the value of $2,850,000, constituting an enormous and increasing drain on the wealth of the country, every effort should be made to retain a portion of this money at home, not only to give employment to our own people, but to lessen our dependence upon outside sources." Dr. Haanel also indicated that the known peat bogs of Canada covered around 36,000 acres; that such an area would produce twenty-eight billion tons of air-dried peat, which would be equal in value to fourteen billion tons of coal.

O'Brien's Aesthetic Tastes.

Those who remember the ill-starred tour of Canada made by William O'Brien, M.P., nearly a quarter of a century ago when he sought to arouse indignation against the then Governor-General, the Marquis of Lansdowne, for his treatment of his tenants, will be interested in the following notes about him published in Current Literature:

"Life, habits, and residence have been transformed for William O'Brien by his feud with John Redmond. Next to his own native Ireland, O'Brien loves Italy. There he has lived with the lady of Russian extraction he wedded years ago, there he has studied the Italian classics, and there he has corresponded with some of the most brilliant students of this age upon the scientific themes that interest him.

"Few political agitators have so many intellectual interests as William O'Brien. He writes brilliant fiction. He is a profound student of Dante and Ariosto. He has fitted up a little laboratory for the chemical experiments in which he sometimes whiles away his leisure. He adapts himself to Italian modes of life when residing near Florence, eating spaghetti and wandering through art galleries like the average tourist. He speaks Italian well, and perhaps few foreigners are so much at home in the dialects of the natives of the northern provinces.

"In Ireland his tastes, although he is nearly sixty, remain athletic. Riding, shooting, sailing in his little cat boat—these are the occupations of his Irish leisure."

Ontario's Forest Preserves.

The policy of setting aside forest reserves is now followed by all countries that have considerable areas of land still in public ownership. The Province of Ontario has many such reserves, and it seems probable that still more will be added. This policy was inaugurated in 1893 by the reservation of Algonquin National Park, 1,733 square miles. Since then, the following have been added: The Eastern Forest reserve, 125 square miles, was made in 1899, and the Sibley reserve, 70 square miles, in 1900. The great and beautiful Temagami Park, 2,200 square miles, was then reserved, and the Western Temagami reserve, 3,700 square miles, was added in 1903. Others were as follows: Mississaga reserve, 1904, 2,916 square miles; Lake Nipigon reserve, 1905 7,297 square miles; and Quetigo reserve, 1909, 1,562 square miles.

A Valuable Collection.

What is described by Dr. Doughty Dominion archivist, as the best collection of medals in the world, has just been placed in the archives building at Ottawa. It is the gift of the British Government, and comprises every medal struck during Queen Victoria's reign, as well as every clasp issued. There are 214 medals in all, many of them being of gold. Their value sentimentally and intrinsically is very great.

"I have often cured sciatica by putting a mustard plaster on the calf of the patient's leg," said a doctor at the Southward, Eng., county court. fessed in the law courts, London, England.

Bee Notes.

One must be deliberate and not perspire when hiving bees. The bees do not like the smell of excited persons.

Always have an empty box hive about the apiary properly set on a floor board. This will often catch a swarm that might otherwise be lost.

It is never good business policy to sell a customer bad honey or honey with an undesirable flavor. This will injure future sales.

It is well to keep all vegetation down around the hives, so that it will not interfere with the flight of the working bees between their hive and the feeding ground.

The number of colonies which any locality will support depends on the flora of the vicinity. There are but few places, however, that will not support from ten to twenty-five colonies to the square mile, and many localities will support a greater number than this. Bees fly long distances for forage, averaging at least two miles.

Smoke is the best agent known among beekeepers that can be used to make bees submit to their wishes. All sorts of material may be burned in a smoker, such as cotton rags, rotten wood, etc. There is a great difference in the disposition of bees, however, some requiring more smoking than others.—Farm and Ranch.

Growing Potatoes.

In Ireland, in the best potato growing localities, a yield of 400 bushels to the acre is nothing unusual. It is obtained by the use of about thirty loads of barnyard manure to the acre, supplemented by 500 pounds of commercial fertilizers, proportioned as follows: One hundred pounds of muriate of potash and 400 pounds of superphosphate. In England the best results are obtained by the use of twenty to twenty-five loads of barnyard manure to the acre, supplemented with 100 pounds of sulphate of ammonia, 350 pounds of superphosphate and 50 pounds of sulphate of potash. The popular fertilizer for growing potatoes in Maine, when planted where a two-year-old crop of clover or grass has been grown, is made up on the farm of 135 pounds of nitrate of soda, 600 pounds of tankage, 200 pounds of acid phosphate and 400 pounds of sulphate of potash, making in all 1,335 pounds. One-half this amount is used in the planter or mixed in the furrow and the other half at the first harrowing, when the plants begin to appear.

Insects and Alfalfa.

It has been discovered that the honey-bee is of even more importance to the alfalfa than the alfalfa is to the bee. The wonderful strength and speed of the bees take them long distances for their food, and they have recourse to a great variety of plants. But the peculiar construction of the alfalfa blossom renders it unable to fertilize itself, and its shape makes cross fertilization very difficult.

At the Kansas experiment station a small plot of vigorous alfalfa was covered just before coming up into bloom with mosquito netting supported on sticks. It was therefore known that no bees or other insects could come into contact with the blossoms. Later a careful examination disclosed that the pods which had formed were entirely without seeds.—Coburn's "The Book of Alfalfa."

TWO FINGERS WERE ALMOST AMPUTATED

Mr. Gordon Langton, who is employed in the punch-press department of the Canadian General Electric Company, sustained a very painful accident while at work yesterday morning.

Two fingers of his right hand were almost severed by coming into contact with the descending blade of the machine he was operating.

Dr. Young, the company's physician was called and dressed the injured members, and is trying to avoid amputating them if possible.

GRAHAM—MILLIGAN.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at the Methodist church on Wednesday evening at seven o'clock, when Mr. William A. Graham, of Peterborough, and formerly of Lakefield, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Grace Hilda Milligan, of Smith. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. J. M. Cragg, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, who was given away by her grandfather, Mr. Richard Croft, was attired in a handsome cream suit with hat to match. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Pearl Milligan, who was dressed in a costume of blue silk. Mr. George Graham acted as groomsman. After the ceremony the party adjourned to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, where a wedding dinner was served. The happy couple drove to Peterborough in the evening followed by the best wishes of a large number of friends.—Lakefield News.

SPARKS FLEW AT HEATED SESSION OF COMMITTEE

The Granting of a Hearing to Ex-Fireman McBride Was the Source of All the Trouble---Ald. Metheral's Warm Words With the Fire Chief---Ald. Buller Withdrew From Meeting---No Holidays Given Chief.

Fire was the feature of the Fire, Water and Light Committee meeting last night. Not fire of the kind that forms one of the spheres of the committee's activities as a civic body, but fire of spirit fanned into being in a whirlwind of unconventional controversy.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

The trouble started when Ald. Morgan announced that a deposed fireman awaited without and had something to say to the committee. Mayor Morrow didn't think that he should be given an audience no matter what he had to say.

The proper course of procedure in the mayor's opinion was for the man to write his complaint and forward it to the council and that body could refer it to the Fire, Water and Light Committee with power to act.

Ald. Morgan thought that the man should be heard as it wouldn't take long, and a hearing had been promised him. Some other business interposed and it looked as though the mayor's suggestion would be acted upon, but Ald. Graham called attention to the fact that he had made a motion that the man be given a hearing and he was seconded by Ald. Metheral, and the motion submitted. There was confusion as to the outcome on the first show of hands and the chairman again put the motion. This time the mayor and Ald. Buller were the only ones who were opposed to the fireman being granted the privilege of verbally approaching the committee. Ald. Morgan, Graham, Batten and Metheral favoring it.

THE CHIEF THERE TOO.

But while all this was going on the chief, who had been summoned to the meeting by phone, was a highly interested spectator. He thought that if the committee wanted to deal with these complaints they should have them before them in writing. The head of the fire department had some strong objections to this method of giving a hearing to every man who had been discharged from the department or who had quit. He was about to leave when Ald. Morgan persuaded him to remain.

He accused Ald. Morgan of fomenting a young strike at the fire hall a short time ago, to which the chairman of the committee replied that he had had nothing whatever to do with the men of the department, and told the chief he was an untruthful man.

"If this man has any complaint it should be put in writing," said Mayor Morrow, "and referred to the council."

Ald. Buller concurred with the mayor.

CHIEF WANTED HOLIDAYS.

The chief asked that the committee grant him a couple of weeks' holidays. He said his wife was sick and he wanted to go on a trip with her when she recovered sufficiently. Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Batten, moved that these be granted.

Ald. Morgan didn't think it would be safe to leave the fire hall to the "raw bunch of men" that the chief had there. If a big fire broke out when the chief was away they would be unable to cope with the situation. He said he didn't know whether or not the chief was to blame for this, but the condition existed nevertheless.

HOT WORDS.

Ald. Metheral thought things had gone far enough at the fire hall. Men had been quitting all the time and it was up to the committee to get to the bottom of things. What was the cause of so many quitting?

The chief said that at $1.23 a day it couldn't be expected that men would work at the fire hall steadily when so much higher wages were being paid elsewhere.

"Is that the cause of them quitting," asked Ald. Metheral.

MUCH EXPRESS HEAVY TRAINS

C.P.R. Getting Big Express and Tourist Traffic-- Keep Away From Stations is G.T.R's Notice-- Non-union Brakemen on Belleville Train-- Commercial Famine Possible -- Boats Doing Record Breaking Business.

NOTICE.
ONLY PERSONS HAVING BUSINESSS WITH THE AGENT OR OFFICIALS OF THIS COMPANY WILL BE PERMITTED ON THESE PREMISES. OTHERS WILL BE PROSECUTED ACCORDING TO LAW.

This notice is posted at the local station of the G.T.R. and at all other stations of the company.

It serves a two-fold purpose. In the first place it keeps away the curious crowds who have nothing to do but loiter around and find out what they can about the strike, and in the second place the company realizes that there is a possibility of strikers assembling and doing violence to the trainmen on duty.

There is no sign of this at present, and the strikers say that they will not resort to force at any stage, but a strike is liable to grow dangerous at any time, as history has shown, and the company apparently intend to run no risks.

A NON-UNION BRAKEMAN.

Conductor Adams on the Belleville line has been forced to the limit, looking after his train single handed and has been kept constantly on the move, doing his own breaking and opening switches, and attending to other duties incidental to his dual position of conductor-brakeman since the strike.

To-day, however, he can attend more to his special duties as conductor, for he has an assistant. A brakeman has volunteered his services, and operations are greatly facilitated.

BIG BUSINESS FOR C.P.R.

"Are you doing a largely increased business as a result of the strike on the G.T.R.," Mr. A. G. Carruthers, the Peterborough agent of the Dominion Express Company, was asked by the Review this afternoon.

Mr. Carruthers replied that all of their delivery wagons were especially busy delivering express that is coming to the city.

All the Toronto firms and places west of Toronto, he said, were sending their shipments on the C.P.R., as they apparently didn't care to take any chances on their delivery. The same condition of affairs existed with regard to the C.P.R. when there was a strike on that line.

A BIG TRAIN.

The 11.26 C.P.R. train to-day on the C.P.R. was made up of ten coaches. There were a large number of tourists for the lakes on these and the afternoon boat that went from the Wolfe street wharf over the lift lock and up the canal was laden with passengers and freight.

LAKEFIELD CONNECTIONS.

A large number of citizens have been wondering if there would be regular connections made by the trains to Lakefield on Saturday.

Station Agent Sandy told the Review this afternoon that the Lakefield trains would make their regular run on Saturday as they have been doing right along and connect with the boats as usual.

He couldn't give assurance that the seven o'clock train would be run to Peterborough from the lakes on Monday, but stated that the 9.50 train would arrive at the station as usual.

COMMERCIAL FAMINE.

A traveller for a Toronto wholesale house informed the Review this morning that the strike was having a disastrous effect on the big wholesale firms of that city.

It is impossible to meet the demands for rush orders and in many cases time orders. There are of course many towns which can only be reached by the Grand Trunk. The express service is not adequate to handle the goods and under the existing circumstances that service is very irregular.

If the strike is not soon settled there is bound to be a commercial famine.

MEN OUT OF WORK.

As a result of the shipping drawbacks the Geo. Matthews Co. have closed at Hull and several of the company's men will be thrown out of work here.

LATE NEWS

Of the Strike--Arbitration Proceedings

GENERAL FREIGHT MOVEMENT.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Ont., July 22.—Mr. Brownlee, general transportation manager of the Grand Trunk Railway System announced that a general freight movement all along the line will begin on the Grand Trunk System tomorrow. All passenger trains are running on time.

ENGINEERS WON'T STRIKE.

Special to the Review.

Hamilton, Ont., July 22.—It was learned this morning that the engineers would not strike on August 1st, which date their agreement expires, but would leave their grievances to an Arbitration Board. The men, however, most likely will refuse to run trains where non-union men are working.

MINISTER'S TELEGRAM.

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, July 22.—Minister of Labor King to-day sent out a further telegram to President Hays and Messrs. Berry and Murderth, stating that neither replies answered the question asked, which was: "Whether, as representing one of the parties to the dispute, you will be willing to refer the existing difference to arbitration, provided a board of arbitrators mutually acceptable can be secured." Mr. King further points out that the peo-

NO HELP NEEDED TO BEAT WEST ENDS

MANAGER T. A. S.

No game for Saturday.

There has been a balk.

The manager of the West Ends has endeavored through the week to arrange another game with the T.A.S., whom he defeated last Saturday, but the leaders felt that under present conditions they were not warranted in playing another game to-morrow. The team is crippled through the absence of several of the players.

Yesterday morning Magnate Oldham issued a challenge to play a picked team from the T.A.S., P.A.C, and Strathconas, and the secretary had good grounds for believing that the challenge would be accepted. And it was then, as far as the P.A.C. and Strathconas were concerned. The T. A. S. club, however, cannot see it that way. It looks to them as though the West Ends were the high cock alorums all at once, while the standing shows them to be in second place, with two losses to the T. A. S.

The Abstainers feel, too, that it ill becomes them, as champions, to have to call upon the other two clubs to help them out, in an endeavor to take a fall out of the West Ends.

Imagine how the hat business would boom in the event of the Oldhamites taking the big end of the score.

Workmen are engaged in putting in a track at Riverside, and the conditions for a game to-morrow are not very rosy. There will be no game. The fans will have a rest. The players will have a change of atmosphere, but on Saturday, July 30th, look out for doings.

SPORTING COMMENT

Talking of prize-fights, seven or eight lacrosse players were worse damaged on Saturday in Montreal, Toronto and New Westminster than Jeffries by Johnson, and the police appeared on the fields four times. Worse than this, the injuries which were done were done foully and maliciously which is not tolerated in prize fights.

A New Canadian Flyer.

Ottawa, July 22.—George Lohner, almost penniless, but confident that he had constructed what would prove a successful airship, achieved partial triumph yesterday morning when his machine, attached to an auto, soared about two feet from the ground in a running test. Motor and propellers will be installed next week.

Sheriff Killed Five Negroes.

Elliot, Miss., July 22.—Five negroes were killed and two others were mortally wounded yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Sid Cauley of this county, when the negroes, who he was endeavoring to place under arrest, advanced on him with pitchforks and other weapons.

Mother and Child Burnt to Death.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 22.—Trapped in bed with her week-old baby, Mrs. Charles Wilson was burned to death yesterday afternoon. Nurse Mrs. Amelia Keeney, who heroically tried to rescue mother and babe, received burns which proved fatal.

CATTLE MARKETS.

American Exchanges Show Little Change—Hogs Active and Steady.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, July 21.—The railways reported 81 carloads of live stock for Wednesday and Thursday, consisting of 1114 cattle, 1564 hogs, 1614 sheep and lambs, 228 calves and 1 horse.

Fat Cattle Prices.

Geo. Rowntree, who bought 240 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Co., reports prices as follows: Choice steers and heifers, $6.15 to $6.30; medium, $5.60 to $5.90, and cows at $3 to $5.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Not much trade being done in either class, and H. Murby reports prices unchanged as follows: Steers, 850 to 1000 lbs., at $4.75 to $5.50; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $4.25 to $4.75; stockers, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

There was an active trade in milkers and springers, and prices were firmer at $40 to $65 each, with a few extra quality cows at $70 each.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was strong at $3 to $7.25 for the bulk of sales, altho a few new milch fed veals sold at 50c per cwt. more.

Sheep and Lambs.

Over 1600 sheep and lambs sold as follows: Ewes, $4 to $4.40; rams, $3 to $3.50 per cwt.; lambs, $7.50 to $8.40 per cwt.

Hogs.

On account of the railway strike there has been a shortage in hogs for the last two days, and prices advanced. Mr. Harris reported selects fed and watered at the market at $9.70 and another dealer reported $9.50 and $9.40 as having been paid for hogs f.o.b. at country points. These are strike prices, and should the strike end, look out for hogs to go down to where they were a few days ago.

SPORT — GET AFTER THE CROWD — SPORT

Sport and Professionalism is the heading of an editorial in the Montreal Daily Star of Tuesday and the following gives the pith of the article;

When our amateur sports or any special form of them, reaches that point in its development where we are informed, in connection with two out of three games that "the police were compelled to go on the field and take the names of several players" it is an excellent time for us to consider what it is that is producing results so out of keeping with the ideas and traditions of true sportsmanship.

To hit a man over the head with a lacrosse is not a bit more legitimate than it would be to assault him with a club. The fact that both the assaulted and the assailant are clothed in athletic uniforms and are performing for the edification and amusement of some thousands of spectators augments rather than lessens the offence and the hoots and yells of approval which invariably follow a particularly vicious attack are sufficient indication that quite a large proportion of the "patrons" of sport care more for the pleasure of seeing blows delivered and blood flow than for the skill and cleverness displayed in the game itself. We have seen players killed at hockey and the crime condoned. Unless some drastic measures are taken to check the rough play which is just at present so prominent in lacrosse, hockey will not be alone in this undesirable distinction much longer.

Whether or not the character of the play reacts on the spectators, there is no question about the character of the spectators reacting on the players. Unless there was a demand for rough unsportsmanlike play, we would see little of it, and this simply means that our athletic contests are being put on what is generally called a "business basis." We pay large salaries to certain young men, who, because of training and physique, are able to do one specified thing for us — win games. That is what they are hired for; that is what thousands of people every week pay to see them do. This being distinctly a business proposition, there is little room for the sentimentality of pure sport. Anything is legitimate which a player can "get away with" and the player who can come closest to the limit of an official tolerance is, other things being equal, giving the best demonstration of his zeal as well as his intelligence.

The writer has the situation correctly explained, but in noting, that the police were called, as a result of the actions of the players, he doesn't say anything about the conduct of the class of patrons, who attend athletic games and are, to a large degree, responsible for some of the deplorable incidents which take place. And they are not the only ones. Even the meek looking enthusiast will suddenly let loose and join the upheaval against the official, in charge of the event, or hand out advice to the player on how to get back at the other fellow. The police might do a good work here. Their efforts are certainly not being productive of any great change for the better on the part of the players. To stop rough work on the field, those who pay their money and pass the gate, must be educated as to how to conduct themselves.

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is no excuse for the Council to say that because the ratepayers once upon a time voted against a crude garbage by-law, unsuited to that time that they would now do likewise if a proper by-law were submitted. If the by-law against the burning of garbage in our back yards was enforced you would find the same ratepayers turning handsprings to get to the polling booth to vote for a garbage by-law such as you suggest. Besides, the Council has no right to shoulder the responsibility of the by-law upon the ratepayers when the Council is elected to pass such laws without submitting it to the ratepayers. What a pretty state of affairs it would be if all by-laws were submitted to the ratepayers for their approval. Does the Council consult its constituents when it is voting away our streets, giving fixed assessments to rich syndicates, etc., and in other ways making the poor man pay the taxes of the rich man!

Sincerely yours,
CONSISTENCY

Peterborough. July 22, 1910.

To the Editor of the Review.

Peterborough, July 22nd.

Dear Sir,—Will you give me space in your esteemed paper to draw the attention of the electors of Peterborough to the disgraceful manner in which elected representatives of the people transact the city business. I refer to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The contemptible means to get even for personal reasons, with the chief of the fire brigade, exhibit a state of affairs which should at once be remedied. The interests of the city are pushed into the background for the simple reason to give the opportunity to a few light heads to air their grievances and animus against the chief. I see by this morning's paper that not even a holiday was granted to him though every other city official is rewarded with a few weeks for recreation.

The municipal electors should see to it that such elements be weeded out of the council for a city like Peterborough deserves having its council an intelligent body of men, who can discern between the larger expansion of the business of the city and the small attempts of airing personal grievances and spite against an individual.

Yours sincerely,
CIVIS.

LATE NEWS OF THE STRIKE

ple of Canada are the chief sufferers, and have a right to a definite reply.

PRESIDENT'S ANSWER.

Special to the Review.

Montreal, July 22.—President Hays' answer to Hon. MacKenzie King is as follows:—

"I have your letter of July 20th, suggesting arbitration. What you propose is what I offered Mr. Berry and Mr. Murderth in my letter of July 8th; it is also what I proposed to you in my letter of July 13th, to which in yours of July 15th you replied: 'Regret that it does seem to me that I have the requisite authority to take either of the courses you suggest, nor do I believe it would be in the public interest to do so.' While your attitude appears to have changed, I infer from the reported statement of Messrs. Murderth and Berry, as contained in the morning paper, that they maintain the same position that they have taken from the beginning."

PRESS OPINIONS OF THE STRIKE

Expositor Brantford.

The outcome of the strike it is impossible to predict. Let us hope that it will be of short duration, no matter which side wins, and that no violence will be resorted to. It is pretty certain, however, that the incident will lead the government to consider the desirability of making the provisions of the Lemieux Act more stringent than they are at present, and to provide machinery which will protect the people as a whole—whose claims should come before those of any individuals—against the possibility of strikes which affect great public utilities.

Barrie Advance.

In the present instance, the men are asking the same wages as men are getting on other railway lines. Without disputing their claims or attempting to decide the case in any way between the employers and the employed, we are bound to remark that the general public should not suffer on account of the dispute as they have been doing.

"That's partly the cause," said the chief.

Ald. Metheral said he had been informed on good authority that it was the manner in which the men had been treated that had been the chief cause of them giving up their positions.

"You have an axe to grind," said the chief.

This drew forth a heated reply from Ald. Metheral. He told the chief that he had no axe to grind and characterized him as a "noted liar."

"It's a nice thing for you to call me a liar before all these gentlemen," said the chief, "You wouldn't do it in a back yard with your coat off."

"Yes I would," exclaimed Ald. Metheral, "for that's the kind of a man I am."

SOUGHT VINDICATION.

It was moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Metheral, that the committee hear what the fireman had to say.

The mayor, who had an engagement, left, as did also Alderman Buller. The chief made his exit also.

Ald. Buller came back later for other business, only withdrawing temporarily as he did not approve, he said, of the committee's way of doing business in giving the fireman a hearing.

When ex-Fireman McBride entered he said he was accused by the chief of being drunk at a fire on Friday afternoon and the chief ordered him away. Next morning his wife rang up the fire hall to say that her husband was sick and was told by the chief that he had been discharged.

There were other details to the complaint, but the point was that McBride wanted it understood that he wasn't drunk at the fire on Friday. This was rather a tame climax to such sensational preliminaries.

Then the question of the chief's holidays came up. It was decided that they should not be granted.

Taking the Oath In Different Lands

The ceremony of taking the oath has been known since earliest history. The only changes in form which have come in thousands of years have been due to the introduction of the Bible and the cross by Christian nations.

As administered in most of the English law courts the form of the oath is practically the same as that in the United States, though rather more uncermonious. In France it is perhaps the simplest. A crucifix above the judges' seat is supposed to obviate the necessity of the witness handling either the cross or the Bible.

"You swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth?" asks the judge. And the witness, raising his right hand, answers: "I swear it."

In Austria a Christian witness is sworn before a crucifix placed between two lighted candles. Holding up his right hand the witness says: "I swear by God, the Almighty and All Wise, that I will speak the pure and full truth in answer to anything I may be asked by the court."

If the witness is of the Jewish race he uses the same words, but places his hand on a Bible opened at the page on which appears the third commandment, and the crucifix is removed. In a Belgian court the witness says: "I will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help me God and all the saints." No Bible is required in the administering of the oath.

The Italian witness generally takes the oath in a dramatic manner. Resting his hand on an open Bible he exclaims: "I will swear to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth!"

More ceremony attends the administering of an oath in a Spanish court. The witness kneels on his right knee and places his right hand on the sacred book. The judge then asks: "Will you swear to God and by those holy gospels to speak the truth to all you may be asked?" The witness replies: "Yes, I swear," to which the judge rejoins: "Then if thus you do God will reward you, and if not will require of you."

In a few districts this form is varied by the witness placing the middle of his thumb on the middle of his forefinger, kissing his thumb and declaring, "By this cross I swear."

It is to be hoped that the Norwegian witness is properly impressed with his obligation to speak the truth or considerable energy is wasted. He is required to raise his thumb, forefinger and middle finger, these signifying the Trinity. Before the oath is actually taken a long exhortation is delivered, running in part:

"Whatever person is so ungodly, corrupt, or hostile to himself as to swear a false oath or not to keep the oath sworn sins in such a manner as if he were to say: "If I swear falsely, then may God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost punish me, so that God the Father, who created me and all mankind in his image, and His fatherly goodness, grace and mercy, may not profit me, but that as I persevere and obstinate transgressor and sinner may be punished eternally in hell. If I swear falsely, then may all I have and own in this world be cursed; cursed in my land, field and meadow, so that I may never enjoy any fruit or yield from them; cursed be my cattle, my beasts, my sheep, so that after this day they may never thrive or benefit me; yea, cursed may I be and everything I possess."

And sometimes all that—and all the rest of it—in the matter of a suit brought to collect for a pair of boots, perhaps.

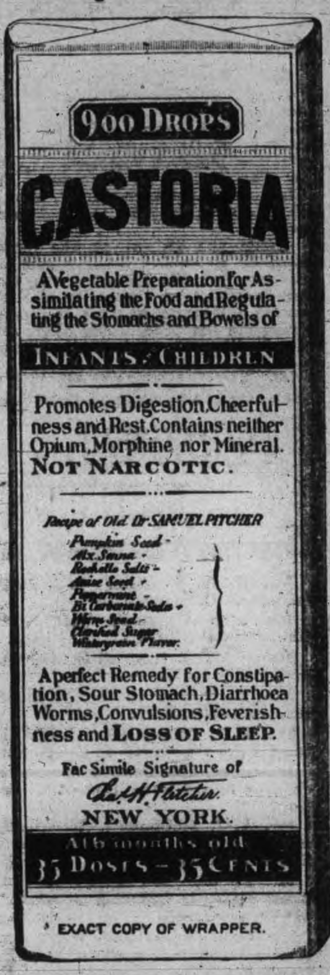
A Thoughtless Druggist.

ONLY a thoughtless druggist would offer a preparation without the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when Castoria is called for; the "delicate, faint and flickering light" that joins baby's life to its devoted parents being too sacred, to the self-respecting druggist, to be trifled with.

For over thirty years Mr. Fletcher has given, and still gives, his personal attention to the preparation of Castoria. It has won the confidence of mothers and physicians everywhere—never harmed the tiniest babe. This cannot be said of Imitations, Counterfeits and the "Just-as-good" rot.

The thoughtless druggist only offers the counterfeit because of a few pennies more profit. Any new preparation can be but an experiment, and they are experiments—mere guess work—irrespective of what their sponsors may say for them. It is experience of over thirty years, against wild and injudicious experiment.



EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

S. J. Briggs & Co., of Providence, R. I., say: "We have sold Fletcher's Castoria in our three stores for the past twenty years and consider it one of the best preparations on the market."

E. W. Stucky, of Indianapolis, Ind., says: "To say that we have recommended and sold your Castoria for years is the best endorsement we can possibly give any preparation. It is surely full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

Henry R. Gray, of Montreal, Que., says: "I would say that your Castoria for children is in large demand and that it gives general satisfaction. Not being a secret nostrum many medical men order it when circumstances indicate the use of such a preparation."

W. G. Marshall, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "We have found your Castoria to be not only one of the best sellers in the medicine market, but a preparation that gives almost universal satisfaction; in fact we cannot recall having had a single complaint from any of our customers who have used it."

Owens & Minor Drug Co., of Richmond, Va., says: "It is with pleasure that we lend our endorsement to Castoria, a preparation of proven merit. During our long experience in the drug business we have had abundant occasion to note the popularity of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria, which we unhesitatingly recommend."

Brannen & Anthony of Atlanta, Ga., say: "No doubt if we were called upon to state positively what medicine we had sold for the greatest length of time, the greatest number of bottles sold, and the most satisfactory preparation to us and also to the customer, we feel that we could safely and conscientiously say Fletcher's Castoria."

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of

COULDN'T ALL GO ON KNOX CHURCH GUILD MOONLIGHT

The moonlight excursion under the auspices of Knox Church Young People's Guild was the most largely attended of any so far this summer.

The steamer "Stoney Lake" was unable to take large numbers of those who wished to attend and crowds were turned away at both the Wolfe street wharf and the Street Railway wharf. About 275 managed to obtain places on board.

The Salvation Army band had been engaged for the occasion and this splendid company of musicians delighted all on board by their excellent music.

The merry-makers sailed down the river about five miles and although the weather was rather lowering, an extremely pleasant evening was wiled away with laughter and song.

The twinkling of the tiny electric lights, the murmur of voices and the soft strains of the music combined to present an extremely entrancing scene and all those who were present forgot the cares and worries of the past day, in the pleasure of the moment, and all regretted the only too soon conclusion of the evening's enjoyment when Peterborough was reached on the return trip.

Much credit is due to the committee in charge of the excursion, to whose energy much of the success of the affair was due.

The names of those in charge are Roy Laing, Kenneth Dendon, Miss Manson, Mrs. Parker, Miss Menzies, Miss Warren and Miss Harvey.

CRESSMAN'S THIRD ANNUAL

Without a thought of rush sales, bargain hunters and other incidentals, which go with the life of a big departmental store, the lassies and laddies of Cressman's left on the steamer Monarch yesterday afternoon for an outing at Highland Park. The party numbered fifty, and the third annual proved to be a banner one.

After the arrival at the park, a baseball game and other sports were put on, but the list of winners cannot be given, as the scribe of the occasion fell down on this assignment, owing to the pressure of other "business?" There was the three-legged race, the fat man's race, and a host of others, which, while being contested brought tears of joy to the onlookers.

The evening spread was a winner, and in this part of the program all had an opportunity to distinguish themselves. All made good.

The Monarch reached the wharf again at 9.30 o'clock, with a hppay lot of passengers, who greatly appreciated the kindness of Mr. Cressman for his thoughtfulness on their behalf.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, of Norwich, who are visiting Mr and Mrs. Cressman, took in the outing.

OBITUARY

MRS. W. G. METHERAL

At the Nicholls Hospital last night about ten o'clock, Millie Thorndyke, wife of Mr. W. G. Metheral, passed away. The deceased had been ailing in the hospital for one week. She was a daughter of the late John Thorndyke and was 44 years of age.

Having lived practically all her life in this city, the late Mrs. Metheral was well known and the many estimable qualities which she possessed, won the esteem and respect of all.

Besides her bereaved husband, her mother and one brother, Mr. Albert Thorndyke, both of this place, survive.

The funeral will take place Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of her mother, corner of Aylmer and Murray streets, to Little Lake cemetery.

CARNEGIE WILL BE ASKED FOR FIVE THOUSAND MORE

Toward the Cost of New Library—Better Police Quarters Will be Provided—New Lamps for Different Streets

A timely step was taken by the Property Committee last night, when it was decided that more adequate accommodation should be provided at the police station.

On motion of Ald. Graham, it was carried that the city trust commission be instructed, acting in conjunction with Chairman Duncan, of the Property Committee to look after the police quarters being enlarged and more adequate court accommodation and better accommodation for the prisoners being provided, and a better equipped office for the chief also.

In view of the cost of the Public Library the mayor was instructed to write Mr. Carnegie and ask him for $5,000 more and that the city agree to pay $3,000 towards the maintenance of the library.

The pillars in front of the new Public Library will be removed and more symmetrical ones erected.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT.

A hydrant was granted for Sophia street.

The placing of a hydrant at London and Gilchrist streets will be left with the chairman.

George Stevens, the Ashburnham junk dealer, got $23 worth of junk at the fire hall last year. So far he has not paid for it. He will be billed by City Treasurer Adams.

An arc lamp will be placed at the corner of Rubidge and Wolfe streets in the centre of the street, an incandescent on Brock between George and Aylmer and on Brock street west at Reid street. The chairman was authorized to have the arc lamps removed on Westcott street and replaced by four incandescent lamps.

The matter of purchasing two small houses next to the old drill hall in Ashburnham in order that the property might be used for park purposes was referred to the special park committee.

Mr. Turner at Havelock

Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., of Peterborough, will conduct the services in St. John's church on Sunday next, in the absence of the incumbent, Rev. C. W. Holdsworth.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses. If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

BROCKVILLE MOB BREAKS INTO STATION AND TURNS HOSE ON THE WORKERS

A Dozen Strike-Breakers Are Assaulted by a Crowd Numbering a Thousand Men, and Two Are so Badly Injured That They Are Forced to go to the Hospital.

Brockville, July 23.—A mob, estimated to number about 1,000 persons, late Friday attacked a number of non-union Grand Trunk employes in the station here, severely assaulted about a dozen of them and badly wrecked the building. Two men had to go to the hospital.

At one o'clock this morning the crowd is still hovering around the depot, awaiting the arrival of the Montreal local, which was due at 11.25 p.m., but which is apparently being held down the line until the crowd disperses. Station Agent Patton has asked the mayor to call out a militia company, but nothing has been done.

Although the crowd had been gathering around the station from about eleven o'clock, only two town policemen were on the job, and they were useless. The chief himself left the station a few minutes before the rioting broke out.

The disorder followed the arrival of the local passenger train from Toronto and a freight. Half a dozen Thiel detectives, a couple of trainmen and Road Foreman Szammen of Belleville were in the station agent's office, when the crowd made an ominous movement in that direction. Those inside bolted the door, but, while some of the crowd used a baggage truck for a battering ram, others began to stone the windows, and others again got out the company's hose and began to flood the office.

The occupants, unable to withstand the siege, came out on the platform, when they were surrounded by the crowd, and struck and kicked and generally assaulted.

Then the crowd moved against the telegraph office, where P. F. Wilcox of Toronto, the conductor of the local from Toronto, with two other Toronto men and a despatcher named Johnson of Belleville, so it is said, were sitting. Somebody in the office fired a revolver shot through the window to scare the invaders, but they came right on, forced the men out, and set upon them so savagely that Wilcox had to go to the hospital, suffering from cuts about the head and body.

E. Course, a private detective from Montreal, is also in the hospital. His shirt was soaked with blood when he was admitted. He said he had been hired to act as a special officer to protect trains along the line to Montreal. Wilcox says he was out of employment when he was engaged by the railway in Toronto.

The windows, doors and furniture of the station are practically destroyed.

Great excitement prevails in the town. Although a crowd has been gathering nightly at the station it has heretofore been only in a curious mood.

Wants Straight Reply.

Ottawa, July 23.—Annoyed by the evasive answers received from both parties to the G.T.R. strike, Hon. Mr. King, Minister of Labor, yesterday sent telegrams to Messrs. Hays and Murdock, saying:

"Referring further to my letter of the 20th instant and the replies received, I would respectfully point out that neither the reply from the president of the company, nor the reply from the representative of the general committee of the employes, answers the question it asks, which is, whether, as representing one of the parties to the present dispute, you will not be willing to refer the existing differences to arbitration, provided a board of arbitrators mutually acceptable can be secured, and the necessary expense incidental to such a board be met by the Government."

Police on Every Bridge.

Toronto, July 23.—Freight will move to-day if the plans of the Grand Trunk do not miscarry. The only fear of officialdom is that strikers or sympathizers may become belligerent, and to guard against interference the police authorities along the lines where traffic is to re-open have been asked to be particularly vigilant and afford the company's employes proper protection.

"We can start a through freight service from Brockville and Belleville at any time the authorities are able to furnish proper protection for our men against the mob which continues to molest them around the stations and yards," read General Manager Brownlee from a report received from the east yesterday.

Yesterday a policeman was placed upon every bridge in the city over the G.T.R. tracks. This is following the company's allegation that the wreck of the Muskoka express Thursday morning immediately north of the Dundas street bridges, was caused by tampering with the tracks.

Thirty extra policemen were sworn in by the company.

MR. RALPH H. THOMAS' ARRIVAL AT THE HOME OF THE BRIDE.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS LEAVING THE HOUSE BY THE SERVANT'S ENTRANCE.

CHILDREN OF MRS HELEN KELLY GOULD GOING TO THEIR MOTHER'S WEDDING

Mrs. Helen Kelly Gould and Mr. Ralph Hill Thomas were recently married in Mrs. Gould's apartment, at No. 540 Park avenue, New York City. Only a few persons were present at the wedding ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Webster, of the Brick Presbyterian Church. There was a crowd in front of the apartment in front of the apartment in Park avenue for a couple of hours before the wedding. In order that Mrs. Gould might be spared the annoyance of being photographed by the dozen photographers who were lined up at the curb, Miss Edith Whalen, of Baltimore, impersonated her. Wearing a tan gown almost exactly like that worn by Mrs. Gould, Miss Whalen, accompanied by Mr. Moran Hare, of Baltimore, drove to Mrs. Gould's apartment in a taxicab.

As they left the vehicle Miss Whelan dropped her white automobile veil took one look at the photographers, and exclaimed, "Oh, Ralph, this is terrible!" She was then photographed by men who thought she was Mrs. Gould. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Thomas left the apartment building through the servants' door, but the wily photographers were there and succeeded in "snapping" the couple.

None of the members of the Gould family attended the ceremony yesterday. Miss Helen Gould spent the day in town shopping. Speaking for her, Mr. W. B. Walker, her cousin denied the published reports that Mr. Frank Jay Gould had employed detectives to guard Helen and Dorothy Gould, his children. Both attended their mother's wedding.

THERE WAS NO COLLUSION

Lindsay Business no Affair of Head Office, Says Home Bank.

Toronto, July 23.—Referring to the Lindsay despatch in yesterday's newspapers, Col. James Mason, general manager of the Home Bank of Canada makes the following statement:

"The Home Bank of Canada has been considering the possibilities of opening a branch in Lindsay for some time. In September, 1908, the matter was under discussion through the solicitation that had come to us from a prominent business man in that town, and since then the matter of locating in Lindsay has been before us at different times.

"In the application which Mr. McGill sent to us, dated 22nd June, he stated that he had resigned from the Farmers' Bank on June 4. We did not open the branch until the 29th.

"Of course, we have no knowledge of what Mr. McGill may have said to his friends in Lindsay regarding the Farmers' Bank. If it had been intimated to us by the Farmers' Bank that he was injuring their credit in order to get business for the Home Bank, we would have at once cautioned him. The only instruction he received from us in the solicitation of business was in the form of a letter to be sent out to the people of Lindsay generally, announcing that the Home Bank had opened a branch. In this letter there was no reference whatsoever to the Farmers' Bank.

"The newspaper reports on this matter seem to give the idea that the Home Bank secured the staff from the Farmers' Bank and opened the branch, making a deliberate set for connection, at five o'clock yesterday not the fact—as I have said before, the matter of opening a branch in Lindsay has been under consideration for the past two years. Mr. McGill was, as far as we were aware at the time he was engaged, without employment in Lindsay, and he was engaged by the Home Bank upon recommendations which showed that he was an honest and trustworthy young man and was very well and favorably known in Lindsay and throughout the township. His work in Lindsay so far, has been what we would have expected from any competent manager opening a new branch of the Home Bank.

THE PRESS ON PREFERENCE

Pros and Cons of Balfour's Speech in London.

London, July 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Referring to the debate in the Commons, The Daily News says the colonies mean to control their own affairs, and Imperial preferentialists mean they will not. For that reason an Imperial preference is an insidious attack upon the integrity of the Empire. What Canada thinks of protection and preference the farmers' memorial shows. We would not add one word to it save this, that it is the farmers who are destined to control the Canadian policy.

The London Express says that party spirit has stood blindly in the way of tariff reform and the Empire has to suffer for it. Soon our chance of Imperial salvation will have passed from us; when it has passed it will have passed irrevocably and the Empire will pass with it.

The Morning Post says the French-Canadian treaty has been the severest blow at preferential prospects for the future. In discussing fiscal relations between Germany and Canada, Asquith carefully avoided the slightest reference to the real cause of that dispute.

The Leader says it is an odd coincidence that the Western Canadian farmers were protesting against the evils of protection on the very day that Balfour was preaching its advantages in England.

The Glasgow Herald says that Canada cannot give away a preference and keep it, therefore the danger of delay should be obvious to a Canadian. Canada's action as a separatist would be futile, even if it were accurate.

The Scotsman declares that even those who are unwilling or tardy converts recognize that tariff reform, with colonial preference is inevitable.

The London Daily Mail, in reference to Asquith's point about the difficulty of instituting a preference without causing jealousy, says that the dominions are not animated by the dog-in-the-manger temper which Asquith so unjustly ascribed to them, and declares that behind the acceptance or rejection of the offer of the oversea states lies the even larger issue of the union or disintegration of the Empire.

TOWN IS ENDANGERED; FOREST FIRES AT RAINY RIVER BEYOND CONTROL

Roundhouse is Threatened by Flames and Many Residents of Community Are Leaving—Winnipeg Rushes Men and Apparatus by Special Train.

Beaudette, Minn., July 23.—Forest fires, which were fanned by a strong wind Thursday, were under control Thursday night, when the wind dropped, and regained headway again yesterday and are threatening the Canadian Northern Railway's round-house at Rainy River. The C.N.R. have a large gang of men on hand to protect their buildings.

The fire, which was burning in the vicinity of Spooner, a small village across the river from Rainy River, burned out several settlers, many of them losing all their belongings. The party who were fighting the fire were forced to the river on account of the heat becoming too much for them to stand. Apparently the fires die out at night and burn underground, but as soon as the wind rises in the morning regain force. The air in the Towns of Beaudette and Rainy River is dense with smoke, it being almost too thick to see a hundred feet in any direction.

Many of the people are leaving the Town of Rainy River. Yesterday afternoon it is expected the town will be saved, as it looks as though the fire had been checked at right-of-way. Thousands of cords of pulpwood have been burned and the cabins of twenty settlers have been destroyed. It is reported that two little girls in the Rainy River district wandered into the forest and were burned.

The fire to the south of Beaudette is almost burned out and was under control last night.

Help From Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, July 23.—A small crowd of curious spectators saw the embarkation of a steam engine whose wagon and detail of six picked men were sent by special yesterday morning to the relief of Rainy River, at the urgent request of the mayor of that town. The party was in charge of Assistant Chief Code.

Within Limits of Kenora.

Kenora, July 23.—Bush fires continue to burn in this vicinity. One outbreak has been checked on Old Fort Island within the corporation limits. A fire is burning one mile north, but it is believed the greater danger is passed. Fires were burning fiercely along the west shore of the Winnipeg River, north of Keewatin, yesterday afternoon. Houses were in danger and much valuable timber was destroyed.

MASHERS BEWARE

New York, N.Y., July 22—Annoyed by the peristent winking of a masher in an elevated car, eighteen-year-old Eliza Certs pummelled the man passenger, breaking his nose and inflicting other injuries. In court she was complimented by the magistrate, who fined the man ten dollars.

ANGUS IS PRESIDENT

Financier Becomes Head of the Bank of Montreal.

Montreal, July 23.—The financial community is jubilant over the appointment of R. B. Angus, senior director, as president of the Bank of Montreal, the choice having been made yesterday at noon. The same meeting of directors also elected H. Vincent Meredith, manager of the Montreal branch, and assistant general manager, to a seat on the board of directors, both appointments being made necessary by the death of Sir George A. Drummond.

Mr. Angus entered the Bank of Montreal in 1857, and although he was a married man his salary, was then $600 per annum. He worked up to the position of general manager, leaving the bank in 1879 to accept the position of manager of the then newly-acquired St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway. He was made a director of the bank in 1891. Mr. Angus is a director of the C.P.R. and is generally considered the financial genius behind Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

Mr. Angus is known as a generous patron of art, and has one of the finest private art collection in Canada. He has also been prominently identified with the Royal Victoria Hospital, McGill University and various charitable organizations. It is understood that he will soon be knighted.

H. Vincent Meredith, who entered the bank in Hamilton in 1867, is also a safe banker and his promotion a well-merited one.

BAD MONEY MADE IN PRISON

Boston, Mass., July 22.—Something of a sensation was caused in Massachusetts States prison by the discovery today of a complete counterfeiting plant in one of the cells, with plenty of material and apparently lots of business done. It is thought that explains the origin of the flood of counterfeit money lately throughout the State.

AMERICAN CONTENTION

The Hague, July 23.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Continuing his argument for the United States, Elder affirmed that, notwithstanding Lord Elgin's warning to the governor of Newfoundland to conform to the modus vivendi concluded between Britain and America in 1906, the Newfoundland law prohibiting the sale of herrings to American fishermen for use as bait, which had for its object to render it impossible for Americans to fish for cod, was carried out with the utmost vigor against American vessels and those inhabitants of Newfoundland who had procured bait for them.

Elder further said that Newfoundland fishermen had demanded the abolition of the law, which did them great harm, and had also addressed petitions to the same effect to the Newfoundland Parliament. The Newfoundland law forbidding inhabitants of the colony to take service on foreign craft was repealed in the case of American vessels by a royal decree, but Newfoundland had, in spite of this, enforced its provisions.

He contended that owners of United States fishing vessels could engage foreigners to fish for them under the protection of the American flag. This contention gave rise to considerable discussion between counsel and several members of the tribunal, who appeared to dissent from the view of Elder.

WERE NEARLY ASPHYXIATED

Toronto, July 23.—Five men came close to death by asphyxiation in a trench at Sherbourne and Duchess street, where they were making a gas connection, at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. They were Gordon, James and Alex. Thompson, 107 Yarmouth road, Alfred Baker, 49 Jones avenue, and Jack Crest, Garden avenue, employes of the Consumers' Gas Co.

They had stopped off the gas from a section of the main by the insertion of a big rubber bag inflated to block the pipe, and were cutting off the emptied end when the bag was punctured, allowing the gas to escape.

The men were immediately overcome and it was with difficulty that they were withdrawn from the trench. So rapidly did the gas escape that it soon filled the street, and even loiterers who hung about were made dizzy. The police ambulance was summoned, but when it arrived Drs. Simpson and Glendenning had all the men returned to consciousness.

The escape of the gas became dangerous because of the possibility of ignition, and John Layton, superintendent of the company, undertook to shut it off. He descended into the trench with his head swathed in sacking and finally succeeded in doing so, but was in a serious condition at the end of his strenuous task.

SUFFERED FOR ANOTHER'S CRIME

Tours, France, July 23.—A rag-picker namel Joseph has confessed to the assassination, April 21, 1901, of five children of a farmer named Briere, in the vicinity of Chartres. The father of the children was found guilty of the murders and sentenced to life imprisonment. He died in prison.

The trial of Briere attracted the attention of the whole of France. Four of his daughters, aged respectively 14, 11, 5 and 4, and his son, aged 7 years, were found in bed one morning, stabbed and beaten to death. The farmer was arrested and charged by the police with the crime. According to a theory advanced by the police to provide for the crime, Briere, who owned a small farm near Cerancez, wished to marry a woman of considerable wealth.

Circumstantial evidence led to the conviction that the farmer, considering his family an encumbrance, murdered his five children in order to carry out his wishes.

SHOULD REGULATE SALE OF POISONS

Toronto, July 23.—That the sale of poisons by hardware stores should be subject to regulation, was the recommendation of the jury empanelled by Coroner Gilmour of West Toronto to enquire into the death of James Doyle.

Doyle, who was living apart from his wife, had been drinking heavily, and on July 13 committed suicide in his boarding-house by taking paris green, which he obtained at a hardware store.

The jury did not attach any blame to the proprietor of the establishment, but thought it would be wise to impose restrictions somewhat similar to those which regulate the sale of poisons in drug stores.

Bank Dividends.

Ottawa, July 23.—Quarterly bank dividends at the following rate per cent. per annum are announced: Bank of Toronto, 10; Bank of Hamilton, 10; Quebec Bank, 7. Proceedings are underway to effect the sale of the Union Bank of Halifax to the Royal.

WANTS NO ADVICE FROM AMERICANS

Melville, Sask., July 23.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's meeting yesterday was not without incident. Prior to the public meeting in the afternoon the Prime Minister met a deputation of grain-growers. Charles Lunn represented that American settlers were opposed to the naval policy of the Government, and objected to a grant to the Imperial navy. He characterized the bridging of the Saskatchewan River as a mere bluff, in lieu of the building of the Hudson Bay Railway.

Sir Wilfrid replied to the point, saying that he did not propose to take advice on the navy from American settlers.

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1910.

FERNELL

Pittsburg, Pa., July 22.—Sticking to his duty until the last, watching every steel rail that came from the rolls, for these were his orders, W. H. Fernell, inspector for the British Government, died of heat prostration at Braddock to-day.

The Edgar Thomson works a month ago began work on an order of 7,000 tons of rails for the British Government. Mr. Fernell went to the plant and inspected each roll from the ingot to the finished product. He was ill, but remained at the plant, watching the red hot steel.

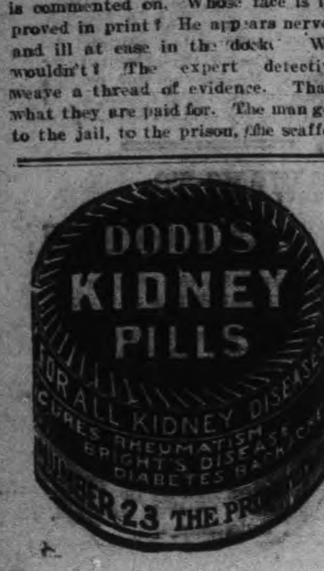
The nation has many monuments for the soldier who has fallen in the battle field, who has perished at war or at sea, and why not more memorials for cases such as this? It is not so very hard to march to war with a comrade on either side, with a regiment around us. It is glory, it is honor, it is a pension. It is to be a hero if we have gone through a bloody war and killed a man or two or captured a color. If we wear a wooden leg, an armless sleeve or a glass eye we are counted very heroic in these Christian times, that is if we were hurt in some ghastly war. But if we were only an engineer or brakeman, fireman, moulder, carpenter, and lost them while at work, we are merely unfortunate. The Government pensions men who were injured while trying to kill other human beings; pensions them and pins ribbons and medals on their breasts. But the heroes who were injured while working in honor of their homes or loved ones, must usually go to the courts to secure compensation.

Is there no monument for men like Fernell?

THE INNOCENT FOR THE GUILTY

Tours, France, July 22.—A rag picker named Joseph has confessed to the assassination, on April 21, 1901, of five children of a farmer named Briere, in the vicinity of Chartres. The father of the children was found guilty of the murders and sentenced to life imprisonment. He died in prison.

This is not a solitary case. If it were it would not be so bad. It is but one of the many cases that crop up to show that it is scarcely ever safe to condemn a man on circumstantial evidence. A man is arrested. He has, it is alleged, committed a horrible crime, or he has stolen. His past is dug into. Whose past will stand the white light? His picture in the paper is commented on. Whose face is improved in print? He appears nervous and ill at ease in the dock. Who wouldn't? The expert detectives weave a thread of evidence. That's what they are paid for. The man goes to the jail, to the prison, the scaffold or the chair, and it's a good thing there is a Supreme Court that never errs, for as long as man is man there will be miscarriages in justice, and the occasional innocent one suffering for the guilty.



WHY THE EIGHT YEARS?

St. John, N.B., July 21.—Charles McLaughlin, the 16-year-old youth arrested some time ago for coaxing little boys to lonely places, making them strip and beating and torturing them in fiendish manner, was yesterday sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary.

It would be interesting to know more of this case. The lad, who were his parents, what were his advantages? He must have had parents, but did he ever have advantages? Did any one ever use him kindly, was he welcome when he arrived in this world a pilgrim? What were the pre-natal influences? Why should he be the apparent fiend incarnate? and what will the eight years in the penitentiary do? Will this sixteen-year-old child come out better, more noble, with a higher ambition? or will he face the world sullen, hardened and a beast? Why the eight years in a penitentiary for a sixteen-year-old child? Isn't he bad enough without being made worse?

"The quality of mercy is not strained,
It droppeth as the gentle dew
from heaven
Upon the place beneath. It is twice blessed,
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest.
It becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown,
The attribute of awe and majesty.
For mercy is above this sceptral sway—
It is an attribute of God Himself
And earthly power doth then show likest God's
When Mercy seasons Justice."

WE ARE PROGRESSING

St. Paul, July 22.—The old tin dipper, the gourd and the cracked water glass are placed under ban by the Minnesota state board of health. In a communication to be sent broadcast throughout the state within the next few days, the public will be warned not to use the cups provided at free drinking places, but to carry the individual variety, and everyone drink out of his own. Placards will be posted in all public places where there are wells or fountains.

The placard will say: "Caution. Dangerous diseases, such as diphtheria, tuberculosis, etc., are frequently communicated by the use of the public drinking cup. Provide yourself with an individual drinking cup and thus avoid the possibilities of contamination."

We seem microbe mad. Our forefathers who read by the tallow candle, and who faced more hardships in a month than we will in our entire life, were stronger than we are. If it is a mile we take a street car, if it is five miles we drive. They walked. We are mollycoddled too much. We cannot sit on the ground. We must spread a paper. They slept on the ground. We cannot eat this, we must not eat that. They ate everything eatable. We cannot wear that, we must have this new. We must never wear a patch. Their pants were patched fore and aft. They were stronger, healthier and more content than we are. Their friendships were surer. They seemed happier in their wedded life, and divorce was comparatively unknown. There were large families in those days. It was a glory and honor to mother the brood and father the flock. Then the love was in the family, to-day its in the business or the five o'clock tea, or the tennis court, or golf links, at the club or in bridge. We have progressed. We have learned too much too quickly.

THE STRIKE

Popular sympathy always goes against corporations, and in strikes it is nearly always unwisely shown. The fact that violence has taken place at Belleville and an old man beaten and another injured, is in all probability not due to the trainmen, but to the rabble that is always ready to break the law on every occasion. Violence only reacts. If they are right, if their cause is just, they will win. Riot never makes friends of those whose friendships in worth anything. Beating a man into insensibility is not argument, its cowardice.

It is reasonable that a body of men should quit work if they do not like the terms of employment, but it does not seem reasonable when they step in and deny the right to work to those who would fill their places.

SPECKS OF LIGHT

A speck of light crossed our path the other night. Then darkness. It was in the evening, the sun had hid and this phosphorescent gleam went in and out among the bushes, a firefly, a miracle of God. And so we have human fireflies, their names shine out for the invention the discovery, the good deed done,—then darkness and oblivion. Most of us are fireflies, to-day bright and light of heart, to-morrow gloom, darkness. To-day the man in the shop finds the work easy, it is no trouble to get the lathe and chisel to work. To-morrow the hand has lost its cunning. It is darkness and drudgery. Take the clerk in the store or office. To-day the hours flit on, while the clerks nearby are inspired by the good will and humor. But on the Monday perhaps ill spirits come, and the day is one of gloom. The clergyman preached a splendid sermon last Sunday, none noddded in spite of the heat, and many carried away awakened resolves and aspirations. To-morrow he may come from gloom to bring gloom and many will sleep as he preaches.

The writer picks up his pen and the words flow unquenchable. People read and notice. To-morrow he cannot write. The idea has gone. 'Tis drudgery.

In every home, in every mansion, in every hut are human fireflies. Sunshine to-day, darkness to-morrow, hope this hour, despair the next, love following hate, birth following death, and sickness ever haunting, loss ever threatening, friends ever deceiving, but hope supreme. We cannot always be joyous, we cannot always smile, but when we do in life's rugged way, in that moment we are human fireflies, and have brightened things up a bit.

Gospel Truth About Zutoo

We tell you truthfully and concientiously that one of our little tablets called ZUTOO, harmless as soda, will cure your headache sick, nervous or neuralgic in twenty minutes and always leave you feeling good.

We tell you further that these tablets will break up a cold, will relieve indigestion and the monthly pains of women.

Every user of ZUTOO will tell you the same thing. So will every druggist and dealer who sells them.

Generally you accept what every body says as being so, but we don't ask you to take anybody's word about ZUTOO tablets. Try them. Know for yourself what these remarkable little tablets will do. 25c at dealers or by mail postpaid. B.N. Robinson & Co., Reg'd Coaticook, Q.

BEES ON A BAT.
Trenton Courier.

About two weeks ago a swarm of bees came to Mr. R. C. Brett's and alighted in one of the chimneys of his house. They cleaned the chimney and began working and now have quite a quantity of honey in their strange hive.

WHY NOT.
Kingston Standard.

If a great bank or a great railroad corporation, handling millions of money, can be managed by a small board of directors, why should it be necessary for Kingston to have twenty-two aldermen to govern (or misgovern) it? A half dozen good men as a board of control could do the work better—and the city would then make some headway.

BEARS NEAR BARRIE
Barrie Gazette.

When coming into town on the morning of the 9th, Mrs. Thomas Dawson was surprised to see a black bear and cub standing on the side of the road near the home of Alexander Payette on the 8th con. of Vespra. The bears were within 100 yards of the house. At the sound of voices the larger one reared up and stood watching the rig. "Look at him," said Mrs. Dawson to her little boy, "look at him. It's a real bear." The animal stood blinking gravely at the rig and its occupants for a few moments, while the horse manifested a desire to climb the fence on the opposite side of the road. Presently, with a low grumble, containing nothing but a satisfaction heard only in bears who have dined right royally on strawberries in the woods, Milady Bruin dropped on all fours and ambled into the swamp, followed by the sleek cub.

DREAMERS.
Joaquin Miller.

Ah, there be souls none understand;
Like clouds, they cannot touch the land;
Drive as they may by field or town,
Then we look wise at this, and frown,
And we cry "Fool!" and cry "Take hold
Of earth and fashion gods of gold!"

Unanchored ships that blow and blow,
Sail to and fro, and then go down
In unknown seas that one shall know,
Without one ripple of renown;
Poor, drifting dreamers, sailing by,
That seem to only live and die.

Call these not fools; the test of worth
Is not the hold you have on earth.
Lo! there be gentlest souls, sea blown,
That know not any harbor known,
And it may be the reason is
They touch on fairer shores than this.

THE AUTO CRAZE.
Montreal Gazette.

The New York Financial World tells of a well known automobile company's agent going from bank to bank in its city trying to raise a loan of $650,000 or $750,000 and offering real estate mortgages as collateral. The mortgages, it is further stated, were on property worth more than a million dollars, and had been made by buyers of automobiles, who were pledging their homes to secure touring cars. In one day in the registrar's office 45 per cent. of the mortgages were given to automobile dealers and manufacturers. Perhaps this is behind what ails the stock market. The great public, as a rule, does not have money for more than one craze at a time; and this is the time for the auto craze.

"SHOWERING" THE BRIDE.

Pretty Ways of Presenting Her With Prenuptial Gifts.

"Shower" parties for a bride to be are great fun both for the prospective bride and for the girl friends who give them. Still, there is likely to be a shade of embarrassment about the occasion, as there so often is when gifts are presented and received, unless some pretty foolery is devised to swallow up the bride's gratitude in laughter. At one very successful linen "shower" which happened not long ago the guests as they arrived deposited their gifts for the bride elect in an immense hollow wedding bell of orange blossoms, which was hung between the doors that separated the two parlors. The guest of honor, by the way, was invited for an hour a trifle later than that named for the others, so all the gifts were safely in the receptacle, out of sight, when she arrived.

After luncheon, when every one was assembled in the parlor, the hostess put the end of a long white satin streamer which hung from the bell into the bride elect's hand and asked her to give a good stiff pull. Out came a veritable shower of pretty handmade garments, burying the bride in filmy white, and amid the laughter and the scrambling to pick things up the bride's thanks and exclamations of delight couldn't possibly embarrass the givers.

Another good idea is to secrete the gifts in unexpected places about the house. Then after luncheon the bride and her friends have a hunt for them. It is as much fun as the game of "hide the thimble"—more, if the hostess will take the trouble to label each gift with a bit of quaint advice or some fun provoking motto. One woman whose home boasts a billiard room led the guests at a party she was giving in honor of a bride elect upstairs to this apartment. There on the table, upside down, were a number of plates, each with some absurd counsel for young "Newlyweds" on its back. The bride to be was commanded to read all this aloud before turning the plates, but when she had done this there were revealed twelve exquisite hand painted plates, each given by one of the guests.

A "traveler's luncheon," where the gifts are offered in miniature grips, suit cases and hat boxes, is nice for an engaged girl if she expects to spend her honeymoon traveling, as many people do.

EMINENT musicians have given unstinted praise to the Nordheimer Piano. They have done so especially on account of the full, rich, yet brilliant quality of its tone. Tone perfection, the greatest achievement of the piano-making art, has been attained in the Nordheimer Piano. Its success is the reward of tireless study and experiment, the comparing of older models with newer ideas, the selection of those points of construction which actual trial have proved to be the best, and the adoption of those proved-best ideas. The by its tone triumph has been given the title of the "Quality-Tone" Piano. We have no hesitation in saying that it is the best Canadian instrument, and thousands of users throughout the country will express the same opinion.

Important Anyone intending the purchase of a piano should not allow himself to be persuaded from giving a fair trial to the Nordheimer Piano. Your life-long satisfaction may depend upon it. Communicate with us at once, and we will gladly send you full particulars of prices, terms and delivery.

UGLY LADY KILLERS.

Handsome Men Do Not Always as History Shows.

"No women worthy of the name," wrote one of the loveliest ladies in London society recently, "really cares a brass farthing whether the man she honors with her hand is handsome or ugly, so long as he possesses the manly qualities of brains, physical strength, honor, and so on which make such a powerful appeal to our sex."

And certainly history supports this rather unconventional view, for many of the plainest men of whom we have any record have not only won pretty and well-dowered brides, but have been able to pick and choose among the fairest, to the confusion of their more well-favored rivals.

Was there ever a plainer wooer, we wonder, than John Wilkes, the famous champion of popular liberties, and one of the most dissolute roues of his day? So ugly was Wilkes that the very children ran away shrieking at sight of him in the streets; and yet such was the spell he cast over women that "ladies of beauty and fashion vied with each other for his notice, while men of handsome exterior and all courtly graces looked enviously and impotently on."

"Give me a quarter of an hour's start," he used to boast, "and I will win any lady's hand against the handsomest man in England." And he could have done it, too. There were few beauties, however fair or highly placed, whose hands could not have been his for the asking; and in the very early 'twenties he won for his wife one of the loveliest heiresses of the time—a lady who refused more than one coronet to be his bride.

"'Beauty and the Beast,' they call us," Wilkes once said to a friend; "and really I cannot find fault with the description."

Brougham, the great Lord Chancellor, was a man of almost repellent ugliness, without a solitary compensating grace of speech or manner. Conscious of his unattractiveness he shunned ladies' society as he might have shunned the plague. And what was the result? The ladies—the most lovely and aristocratic in the land—simply mobbed the "ugly lawyer," and were as proud to win a smile from him as an offer of a coronet from any other man.

When anyone asked, "Where is Brougham?" the invariable answer was, "Where the ladies are thickest." And sure enough, there he was; and the more he repelled his fair persecutors, the more they clustered round him.

But perhaps the most remarkable of all these cases of woman's infatuation for ugly men was that of W. Hamilton, a Scotsman of a century and a half ago. Hamilton was not only preternaturally ugly, but he was terribly deformed. "His legs," we are told, "were drawn up to his ears, his arms were twisted backwards, and almost every member was out of joint."

In spite of these terrible physical drawbacks Hamilton easily outstripped all the gallants in his district in the favor of the ladies. "He might have married any of them for the asking—indeed, it is said several of them actually asked him," says a chronicler. But he remained proof against all their wiles until after his eightieth birthday, and then he married a girl of twenty, himself being carried to the altar on men's shoulders.

Triple Drowning.

Montreal, July 22.—There was a triple fatality at the Light, Heat & Power Co. picnic yesterday at Maple Grove.

Four men named Dugas, Perrault, Pelerdeau and Higgins went out on the river for a row, and on changing places in the boat the quartette were thrown into the water, Higgins alone being saved.

The other three were not able to swim.

Had to Swim In Storm.

Cobalt, July 22.—S. R. Heakes, manager of Kerr Lake and Wettlauger mines, and his secretary, Mr. Bellingham, were forced to swim three-quarters of a mile, when the launch they were sailing swamped in a heavy sea on Lake Temiskaming Wednesday. The two men missed the boat for South Lorraine and chartered the launch.

When well down the lake, a storm arose. In spite of constant bailing it was soon seen that the little craft could not stand the storm, and it was decided to abandon her. It was fully three-quarters of a mile to shore, but after a hard fight they landed safely. Then they walked some two miles around the beach to Silver Centre and reached there just in time to catch the boat to Haileybury.

Will Continue the Fight.

New York, July 22.—The American Anti-boycott Association yesterday declined to abandon on its part the litigation between the American Federation of Labor and the Buck Stove Co., settlement of which between the federation and the company was recently reached.

Interurban Cars Collide.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 22.—Five persons were injured, none seriously, yesterday when two interurban cars on the Cleveland-Painsville & Eastern electric line, met in a head-on collision near Willoughby. The accident is said to have been due to a misunderstanding of orders.

Foster Spoke at Borden Picnic.

St. John, N.B., July 22.—Hon. George E. Foster was the principal speaker at the Borden Club excursion on the river Wednesday night and was greeted with hearty applause. Foster, in opening his speech, said he was not dead, but very much alive.

Baked Corn.

Score corn, cut it from the cob and scrape out the juice. Beat two eggs, season with salt and pepper and add one pint of milk and enough butter to season. Add corn until the mixture is almost thick. Pour it into a buttered pan and bake in a pan of water in the oven. Keep it covered while baking, for both corn and milk scorch quickly. Remove the lid and brown it just before serving. The corn can be baked in individual dishes.

Pie or Plato?

The devotees of the old fashioned idea of education for scholarship, of the value of scholastic attainment for its own sake, of the worth of culture as apart from its possible aspect of utility, might just as well fold up their tents and, like the Arab, quietly steal away.

They are done for. It is high time to be admitting it.

One by one the institutions of higher education have been knuckling down to the popular demand for dishwashers and home cooks.

And now Miss Caroline Hazard, president of Wellesley college, has joined the housekeeping brigade. "The day of the scheduled scholastic life is past," said President Hazard in her annual report. "In common with all so called higher institutions of learning, Wellesley must be ready to prepare its graduates for a useful and active life in the world."

In this connection President Hazard recommended the establishment of a new course in economics to have special reference to household management.

Now, it were a great pity to cast a word of reproach at the movement toward the proper understanding of household science which has swept over the country recently. It must without doubt be set down as one of the sanest and most helpful educational efforts that the last decade has seen.

With the ever increasing number of institutions who need women at their heads who are skilled in the science of housekeeping, it is essential that more and more women should qualify themselves for expert service of this sort. And, too, with the changed conditions in the home, where the tendency is no longer for girls to learn the homely arts of cooking and sewing from their mothers, there is a definite need for class room instruction in these branches.

But why must every cultured college in the country open its doors to the science of pie baking? A gentle and noble art in very truth it is. But must it rub elbows with the study of the poets and the thinkers of the world? Must it lock step with the pursuit of the significant facts in the world's history? Is what is left of four years, after time for basketball, fraternity dances, college plays and committee meetings is taken out, too much to spend in the atmosphere of mere books?

Doubtless it is. One forgets that only old fogies would refuse to class pie with Plato.

Beeswax In Cracks.

Ugly cracks or splits in furniture can easily be filled in with beeswax so that the marks will hardly show. Furniture dealers cover up many blemishes in this way. Slightly soften the beeswax until it becomes like putty, then press it firmly into the cracks and smooth the surface over with a thin knife. Sandpaper the surrounding wood and work some of the dust into the beeswax. This gives a finish to the wood, and when it is varnished the cracks will have disappeared. Putty is sometimes used in the same way, but it soon dries and falls out, while beeswax will remain in practically forever.

A. J. Drexel, Jr., carried a passenger in his Bleriot from Bournemouth to Beaulieu, England.

Big Gun Exploded.

Fort Monroe, Va., July 22.—Eleven artillerymen are dead, one fatally and several slightly injured as the result of the premature ignition of a powder charge in a 12-inch shore gun at the De Russy Battery during the coast artillery practice here yesterday.

The accident occurred while student officers were endeavoring to sink a fleet of towed targets, representing an imaginary hostile fleet proceeding towards Washington. The bodies of the dead artillerymen were terribly mangled.

The disaster was witnessed by a number of prominent officers of the army and navy, who were here to see the battle practice. The wives and children of several of the men killed saw them meet their terrible death.

First Train Through Michigan Tunnel

Detroit, July 22.—The first train has gone through the Michigan Central tunnel under the Detroit River. It was not drawn by one of the new electric locomotives intended for the submarine traffic. A regulation steam locomotive went through, with two freight cars attached, and came out on the Windsor side with a load of supplies for the contractors. No ceremonies attended the event, although it was the actual, if not the official, inauguration of the big $12,000,000 double-barreled Detroit tunnel.

Indians Were Swindled.

Ottawa, July 22.—It is stated here to-day that the notorious St. Peter's Indian reserve case, by which a band of Manitoba Indians are alleged to have been swindled out of their homes and lands, and in which deal Frank Pedley, superintendent of Indian affairs, is alleged to have used bribery, will be taken into the courts this fall. The case was handled in Parliament by T. W. Crothers, W. S. Middlebro and G. H. Bradbury, but Hon. Frank Oliver refused an investigation.

Had to Run For Their Lives.

St. Catharines, July 22.—The family of Wilfrid Fry, on the Thorold road, had to run for their lives early yesterday. They wakened up to find the house in flames. The building was totally destroyed, the loss being about $2,000.

Drinking on Trains Made Illegal.

Atlanta, Ga., July 22.—The State Senate yesterday passed a bill declaring the drinking of intoxicating liquors on passenger trains a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment.

Played With Matches, Will Die.

St. John, N.B., July 22.—Annie Davis, aged 3 years, was so badly burned while playing with matches yesterday that she is now in the hospital at the point of death.

Earl Grey Back In Canada.

Quebec, July 22.—Earl and Countess Grey arrived at 4 p.m. on the Empress of Britain.

Amongst the passengers who arrived on the Empress were Sir William and Lady Ramsay. Sir William's chief title to fame was the discovery and isolation of radium.

Windsor's First Fall Fair.

Windsor, July 22.—Windsor's first fall fair will be held this year on the grounds of the Windsor Driving Association, beginning Oct. 10, and lasting four days. It is expected that about $5,000 will be distributed in prizes for speed trials and exhibits.

CROWD LIKED THE DRUMMERS

Who Assisted in "Semper Fidelis" at Concert Last Night — A Good Program

There was some stir to the march "Semper Fidelis," played by the band at Victoria Park last night with the assistance of six drummers from the bugle band, who stacattoed their way to an enthusiastic encore.

Other features of the programme were "Miserere" duet on euphonium and cornet by Sergeant Hughes and Bandsman Cronk, with obligato by the band and Remick's No. 7 Hits in which the bandsmen allowed their vocal abilities to run free in "What's the Matter With Father."

The usual large audience was present and the whole programme met with approval.

PTOMAINE POISONING CAUSED DEATH

Death has been very active amongst the little children this summer and last evening, Charles, the four-year-ol son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Armson, 161 Douro street, East City, was added to the list of those who have been stricken down at almost the beginning of their lives.

His death was apparently caused by ptomaine poisoning and he had only been ailing a very short time.

The sympathy of a large number of friends will be extended to the parents in their sad bereavement, as the lad was a very bright affectionate little fellow.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 to Little Lake cemetery.

HECLA FURNACE

And Its FOUR Big Features

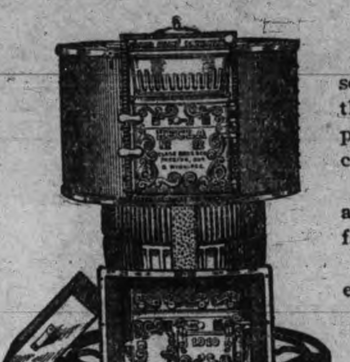
The "Hecla" has four exclusive features that have brought it steadily to the front as the perfect warm air furnace.

These improvements are so vital—they mean so much in comfort and health and economy—that every man who is going to put in a furnace this year, should study them in detail.

Fused Joints

are the only permanent joints between castiron and steel. By means of these joints, we prevent gas and smoke from getting in the Air-chamber and from there into the house.

Fused Joints are absolutely and permanently tight, and insure the warm air being fresh, pure and untainted by gas, smoke and dust.



Individual Grate Bars

Each bar can be shaken separately. Fire can be cleaned thoroughly without using a poker or shaking down good coal or live fire.

No clinkers to clog the grate as is the case when bars are fastened together.

Of course, one bar is much easier to shake than four.

Steel Ribbed Firepot

has three times the radiating surface of any other.

It never becomes red-hot—will not burn out—and will save ⅓ of your coal bill by actual test.

Castiron Combustion Chamber

We found out, by careful tests, that steel would not stand the intense heat of the furnace fire. So we perfected the Castiron Combustion Chamber, which has proved its wonderful strength, service and durability.

Our little book "Hecla Heated Homes" tells you a lot of things you ought to know about a furnace, besides the exclusive features mentioned above. Let us send you a copy. It's free. Write.

Send us rough plan of your house—and we will submit estimate of the cost of installing the proper size "Hecla" in your home. 100

LETTER FROM THE FIREMEN

The following letter has been received from the men of the fire department:

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As firemen in the employ of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough will you kindly give space in your columns to reply to the gross insult we received from three members of the Council at the last meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. We have been credibly informed that the press only published a portion of the insults that were hurled at us by Ald. Morgan, Graham and Metheral. These insults we wish to resent, as we consider that we are not a disgrace to citizens of Peterborough, as was reported in the columns of the press of the city. We are respectable, law-abiding citizens, and we consider the ungentlemanly treatment uncalled for, and should call for an apology. We know and so does the general public, that during the past two years very many good and reliable men have been employed in the fire department, and were compelled to sever their connections with the department owing to the low schedule of wages. These men are still friendly to Chief Howard and the department. This statement is borne out by the fact that we frequently receive assistance from former employees of the department, while working at fires. A number of former firemen visit the station and have expressed a desire to be at the service of the department at any time the remuneration of wages is made suitable. We see by the press that Ald. Morgan states he did not interfere with the men at the hall. We are prepared to contradict his statement, and in reply would say that he has made a habit of frequenting the hall for the purpose of making trouble. We consider that one boss is enough. There are some of us who have been a considerable period of time on the department, and while Chief Howard may have peculiarities we could cater to his ways, were it not for the interference of certain aldermen. We, as firemen, consider Ald. Morgan and Ald. Graham more of a disgrace to the City Council than the present men that are on the staff of the fire department.

(Signed on behalf of the men of the Peterborough Fire Department.)

Mr. A. L. Talbot, 412 George St., wishes all accounts with him be settled by the 15th of August at 243 George, corner Sherbrooke. Those not settled at that time will be placed in the hands of a solicitor,

HOW BUILDING OPERATIONS IN CITY ARE PROGRESSING

Activities in Building Trade Giving Employment to Many—Weather Conditions Have Been Seldom Better and Fine Fall is Hoped For.

Building operations on the whole are progressing favorably in Peterborough and hundreds of skilled and unskilled workmen, are making the most of the fine weather. This year has excelled itself in weather conditions and a fine fall will find a lot of contented contractors. From present indications it looks as though all the necessary outside work will be finished up early in the fall, with the possible exception of the operations at the Quaker Oats Co. On taking a walk in the city, no matter in what direction, one sees evidences of building activity, and this is no small advertisement for the city. The hundreds of excursionists and visitors which come here cannot fail but be impressed with its extensiveness.

THE QUAKER OATS CO.

A big elevator which is under construction for the Quaker Oats Co., is beginning to show signs of a raise from its foundation, and the Canadian Leonard Construction Co. is giving employment to a large number of men. The second floor is completed and a staff of carpenters are rushing the false work, for the pillars, etc. The C.P.R. sidings are going ahead. In the rear, the Canadian Stewart Construction Co. are being held back for want of iron hoppers. Eighteen cement tanks are to be erected and each will be 98 feet in height. The non-arrival of the iron work has resulted in a number of the men being laid off.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

The fact of their being no water available, has kept the contractors on the Isolation Hospital. Several weeks of splendid weather has been lost. The water main is now completed and Mr. J. J. Hartley has commenced the foundation, which will be of cement, to the ground level and from there up, of quarry stone.

MOUNT ST. JOSEPH.

The foundation for the extensions at Mount St. Joseph has been completed and the iron framework is being erected. The extensions are being made to the north end of the present building and are about 90x40. They will be of three stories besides the attic and basement. The walls will be of solid brick (white) and it is expected that all the work will be finished by the end of the year.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The new public Library, opposite Central Park, is nearing completion. Carpenters and painters are doing inside work. The building will be ready for opening as far as itself is concerned in the near future.

AT ACKERMANS.

The brickwork on the addition to the factory of B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co., is half completed and it is expected the building will be utilized in the middle of September.

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The brickwork of the new Knox Presbyterian church on Rubidge street has been finished and the building covered with the roof. The top of the tower is unfinished. The slate for the roof has yet to be put on. The foundation for the gallery is ready and plastering operations will be proceeded with. About the first of November the church will be ready for occupancy.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The stone work on the new All Saints' Anglican church on Rubidge street, is completed and the roof has been put on. The work on the interior is ready to be proceeded with.

SMITH STREEET BRIDGE.

Everything is going along smoothly at the new Smith street bridge, but it will be some weeks yet before the contractors are finished. The preliminary work was handicapped owing to the high water, but it has been well done.

PETERBOROUGH HARDWARE.

The warehouse of the Peterborough Hardware Company will soon be completed. The cement work is finished and the bricklayers have very little more to do.

C.G.E. MACHINE SHOP.

The foundation is being proceeded with. Many of the houses on Albert street have been removed to other sites.

FREE METHODIST CHURCH.

A Free Methodist Mission church is being erected on Aylmer street between King and Charlotte streets, and there are dwellings springing up in all parts of the city.

DIFFICULTY ON THE WABASH IS SETTLED

Special to the Review.

Niagara Falls, July 23—Superintendent Cunningham this morning received information by telegraph from Henry Miller, general manager of the Wabash-St. Louis, to the effect that the difficulty on his road, caused by the Grand Trunk strike, has been arranged with the brotherhood leaders, and all Wabash men would receive instructions from their leaders to return to their positions and would get back their old runs without prejudice to what has occurred.

Superintendent Cunningham states Wabash freight will be moved at once under these conditions.

BACKBONE OF STRIKE IS BROKEN — VICE PRES. FITZHUGH

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., July 23.—Vice-President Fitzhugh, of the Grand Trunk, declares the backbone of the strike is broken. He claims the road now has all the men needed to move trains. With regard to the freight situation the company claims it will be in a position next week to resume its full freight service. This will be done just as soon as the company can get protection for its property at different points along the line.

TROOPS WERE CALLED OUT IN BROCKVILLE

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Ont., July 23.—Troops had to be called out at Brockville, Ont., at 1.30 this morning, on account of rioting at the G.T.R. station there, and the Ottawa military authorities were telegraphed to. Last night sympathizers with the G.T.R. trainmen, who are on strike, wrecked part of the station there, and several officials were roughly handled.

Conductor Wilcox, Toronto; Special officer Edmund Course, Montreal, and Emile Monseau, Montreal, are in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Brockville, and all were roughly handled, and are badly marked up, but will recover.

The G.T.R. refused to let any more trains pass through there unless protection was afforded.

Mayor Patterson applied to Colonel Buell, commandant of the 41st Regiment, Brockville, who ordered seventy-five men, and they are patrolling the station.

Two arrests have been made, and there may be a third.

THEFT CHARGE

Wm. Wallace was arrested last night by Chief Thompson and will be taken to Lindsay this afternoon, to face a charge of stealing a watch and chian.

Constable Foster, of that place, is in the city and will take the prisoner back.

Mark St. Excursion

Mark street Ladies' Aid annual excursion August 5th to Stony Lake, per steamer Stony Lake. Leaves Wolfe street at 8.00; Lift Lock at 8.30. Look out for our ad. next week.

THE G.T.R. ISSUES ORDERS NOT TO HANDLE EXPRESS

The Latest Phase of the Strike in Instructions Issued From Headquarters--C.P.R. 11.26 To-day Was so Heavy That it Was Split into Two Sections--Local Strike Intelligence.

The G.T.R. station masters have been instructed not to handle any express. This is the latest development in connection with the strike.

EXPRESS IS HEAVY.

However, the Peterborough express is very heavy and Mr. Skitch, of the local office of the Canadian Express Company, said his company was handling all the express that they were commissioned to take to the trains and their was an especially heavy consignment on the Belleville train this afternoon.

TWO SECTIONS OF 11.26.

The increasingly heavy traffic on the C.P.R. on account of the strike is amounting to a small harvest for the company in this division and the incoming express is correspondingly heavy, all of which has the effect of taxing the boats from the Wolfe street wharf for Stony Lake as the tourist trade is experiencing its first brisk rush this season.

The C.P.R. 11.26 to-day came in two sections, one train following the other very closely. There were eight or nine coaches on each train.

Conductor Boundy, of the Toronto train, is on duty again, after a brief illness.

The passengers are running as usual on the G.T.R., but not a freight train has come into or gone out of Peterborough since the strike.

FIRST VISIT TO PETERBORO' IN TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS

Mr. W. H. Ryan, of Saginaw, is amazed at the transformation of Peterborough from an unpretentious little town to a bustling thriving city.

But in a place with the enterprising spirit that has characterized Peterborough it is only natural that great progress should have taken place in the long time since Mr. Ryan has been here.

Twenty-seven years ago he left Peterborough and has not returned until the occasion of his present visit. He is the guest of his sister, Mrs. John Primeau, Ashburnham, and is accompanied by his daughter, Miss Mamie and his sister, Mrs. T. C. Hynes, of Saginaw.

Mr. Ryan used to be a clerk in the employ of P. Connal and Company, when Mr. W. G. Ferguson, now managing director of the Otonabee Light and Power Company, was a partner in the business.

Was Honored

Mr. Fred Miller, London street, was presented with a pipe and an address was made to him by the employees of the Wm. English Canoe Co. to-day.

Mr. Miller has severed his connections with the concern, after having been twenty-one years in their employ.

At Welland the jury enquiring into the death of Wm. H. Wilson, shot by a revolver, in the hands of a police returned a verdict of accidental death.

MANAGER OF WEST ENDS HAS SOMETHING TO SAY

To the Sporting Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I was greatly surprised to read in your paper last evening the article inserted by the manager of the T.A.S. baseball club, as I find most of it of a very untruthful nature.

First of all we had no intention of playing the T.A.S. until approached by the manager of the same, as we recognized them as champions of the City Baseball League.

The aforesaid manager asked me on the 18th instant if we were sure of going to Lindsay, and I informed him to the best of my knowledge that if we did not go we could arrange a game as they were not entirely satisfied with the outcome of the last game, so that does not seem as if I was looking for a game with them.

About the $5.00 to $200 proposition it looks as if the T.A.S. had something up their sleeve, as I was willing to put up a little bet on the last game, but there was only one man who seemed to be willing to bet, and that was Jimmy Callaghan, and he bet a nickel.

I do not pose as a gambling man, but I am sure the T.A.S. can be accommodated as far as side bets are concerned.

The T.A.S. seem to be crowing over the way they defeated the West Ends two games to one, but for the benefit of those who do not follow the City League games, I will say that the team which the T.A.S. defeated and the team which defeated the T.A.S., are two different aggregations. On the infield there is only one player of the old team left, G. Mizorgan, and in the outfield, one left, H. Dockey.

I suppose the T.A.S. are intending to ring in the Toronto City Amateur Leaguers and Prince Edward County Leaguers, and I must say we have no objections.

Yours,
Manager West End Athletic Baseball Club.

AROUND THE DOPE TRACK

Fielder Jones, the former Chicago White Sox manager, who, a few weeks ago, joined the Chehalis, Washington, club to assist that organization in winning every game played, has handed in his uniform and is back on the job in his lumber camp. Jones evidently was a disappointment to himself, for he did not as much as hesitate long enough to get the customary relief papers. Once more we may harp on that old question "Can a fighter come back?" etc.

"I will fight Langford," said Johnson, "Provided he puts up $20,000 as a side bet, we will go into a room and fight it out. No purse is needed. Let the winner take the $40,000.

"This Langford matter has reached a point where it is up to me to call Samuel's bluff."

Some time ago a subscription was taken up to procure new uniforms for the Lethbridge team. The suits were ordered and arrived here on Saturday, but they were so hideously at fault that they were immediately shipped back to Toronto from whence they came. They were small and badly made.—Lethbridge Herald.

What a gem Connie Mack picked up in Eddie Collins. Not only is the youngster a great fielder and hitter, but he is an intelligent player who knows the game and plays it.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb is the first major league player to drive out 100 safe hits this season. The century bingle came in a recent game with the Naps. Then for good measure he shot out another safe one, boosting his total to 101. He has been at bat 273 times, which gives him a .370 average.

Mons. L. Lajoie continues to top the dandy Detroiter for the bingling honors. The Frenchman's notch is over .400. Lajoie will likely reach the 100 mark second, as he owns ninety-seven. Cobb has a big edge on his rival in run getting and stolen bases. In these departments it is:—Runs, Cobb, 54; Lajoie, 31; stolen bases, Cobb, 37; Lajoie, 11.

SPORTING COMMENT

Ernie Johnston, known all over the hockey circuit as a member of the Wanderer team, holders of the Stanley Cup, was arrested last night at Brockville, charged with assault. Johnston had been in the employ of the Grand Trunk for some years, first as brakeman and more recently as freight conductor. He worked on the line between here and Brockville all the year round, with the exception of the winter months, when his time was taken up with hockey. No details were given out as to the cause of his arrest, but it is presumed it was brought about by a mix-up with some of the men who were now working the company's trains.

Johnston has been a member of four world's champion hockey teams, playing for Wanderers in each of the years they won or defended the Stanley Cup. His original position was left wing, but last winter he dropped back from the forward line to cover and there proved one of the sensations of the season. He is counted one of the fastest defence players in the history of hockey.

For the first time this season New York sport writers practically concede that unless there is a startling reversal of form the Chicago Cubs are due to win the National League pennant this year. The fight for second place in the league, however, has become interesting. The Giants are now in that position, with Pittsburg and Cincinnati a short distance away. Only 58 points separate the three teams. For a time it seemed the Pittsburg Pirates had "come back." They did "come-back" long enough to put the giants practically out of the race for the pennant, and then slumped again. The Reds are not playing the "classy ball" that was expected of them earlier in the year, and easterners do not believe they have much chance of nosing out either the Giants or the Pirates for the place.

CAUGHT IN THE DRINK

St. Paul, July 22.—Falling into the lake after a long run for a high fly, Arthur Anderson, of the Deep Haven baseball team, caught the ball before it struck the water and swam to shore, heading off three runs for the opposing team.

It was in the eighth inning and the score was 9—4 in favor of Deep Haven. The game was being played on Excelsion Commons, and Anderson who was in centre field for Deep Haven, was playing deep, about ten yards from the lake. Lindstorm, the hard-hitting fielder of the Prince team, was at bat, with three men on bases, and with two out.

Lindstorm hit the ball. It soared toward centre field and Anderson began to run backward. The ball continued soaring and Anderson kept on running. Finally the ball dropped. So did Anderson. Both fell in the water.

The water off the commons is deep and players on both sides ran toward the lake. When they reached the shore they saw Anderson swimming in with the ball in his hand.

In the meantime the three runners of the Prince team had completed the circuit of the bases. The players gathered around the umpire. The umpire took the ball from Anderson's hands and dropped it into the water. It sank.

"Out," he said.

Tied Twine on Sunday.

London, Ont., July 23.—Five employes of the International Harvester Co. were in the Police Court yesterday morning charged with a breach of the Lords' Day Act in working on Sunday. The men were at work last Sunday tying up and getting ready for shipment packages of binder twine. The manager pleaded that, at this time of the year it was a work of urgency and necessity to meet the needs of the farmers so that the farmers might get in their crops. The magistrate dismissed the case.

Wireless Overland.

New York, July 23.—Although the plan of sending wireless messages on land for a distance of more than 100 miles has been declared impracticable in a commercial way, a scheme is now on foot to form a company for this purpose. It is to be formed of five companies, that now have $14,000,000 capital. The largest of these companies which it is proposed to form into an organization to control the wireless field is the Pacific Wireless Telegraph & Telephone Co., with a capital of $10,000,000.

Mutiny In Spanish Prison.

Madrid, July 23.—A grave mutiny broke out at the prison here yesterday. The fighting lasted for three hours, and was only ended by the calling in of the troops. The soldiers intimidated the mutineers by firing in the air.

Thought He'd Killed Mother-in-Law.

New York, July 23.—Apparently believing that a shot he had fired through a glass door at his mother-in-law had killed or seriously injured her, Richard Solle, a young westsider, went into the basement of the house on West 55th street yesterday and sent a revolver bullet into his own brain, dying instantly.

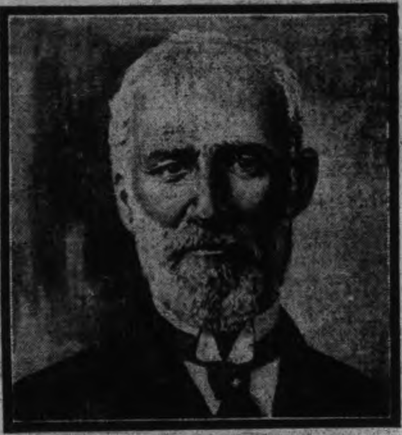
"I FEEL IT MY DUTY

To Give You a Statement In Regard To 'Fruit-a-tives'"

HARDWICKE, MIRAMICHI, N.B., Jan. 17th. 1910.

"I feel it my duty to give to you and the world an unsolicited statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered with for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets but nothing did me any good.



I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man', the Hon. John Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered from for so many years. My general health is once more excellent and I cannot say too much to express my thanks for the great benefits derived from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.'"

A. G. WILLISTON.

"Fruit-a-tives" is not gotten up by druggists or expert chemists—who know nothing about disease and the needs of the human body—but is the scientific discovery of a well known physician, and is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WINDPIPE SEVERED

Wm. Fortune Inflicted Injuries on Himself at His Home at Villiers

Wm. Fortune, who resides about one mile from Villiers, is in the Nicholls Hospital, suffering from injuries which he inflicted on himself, at his home, Thursday night.

The unfortunate man, whose mind is said to be affected, nearly severed his windpipe in an attempt to commit suicide.

He was found in the loft of a stable in the rear of the home, and Dr. V. McWilliams, of Keene, was sent for. He attended to the wound and the patient was sent on to this city and taken to the hospital.

Dr. McWilliams was assisted by Dr. Young this morning. Fortune's condition is serious.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Peterborough, July 22.

The call of "Hot Roasted Peanuts," does not harmonize very well with the immortal strains of Verdi's "Miserere." Yet while this and other numbers with soft passages were being played at the band concert last night the strident appeals of the peanut vendor broke in harshly.

Of course I realize that the selling of peanuts as a purely commercial venture and the object is to make as much money as possible. At the same time I think that the peanut sellers should restrain themselves when the band is playing. For after all the people go to the park to hear the music and not to buy peanuts.

Yours truly,
MUSIC LOVER.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The flies fly and flourish,
Their victims die and perish,
The Council is sleeping,
The constabulary is resting,
The Board of Health defunct,
The M. H. O. draws his salary and his breath,
And the band plays on.

MODELS OF WARSHIPS

Splendid Display of Various Kinds in Britain's Fleet

When you talk of the British navy do you fully realize what a variety of styles of vessels it takes to make up Britain's mighty fleet? At the Canadian National Exhibition this year you will see a display of warship models that will be at once interesting and educative. It will consist of models of submarines, torpedo boat destroyers and battleships. These models are furnished by the great shipbuilding firms of Vickers, Sons & Maxim and R. & W. Hawthorne, Leslie & Co., and are beauties, some of them being sixteen feet long.

Barge Rammed Gates.

Cornwall, July 23.—Every available man of the Cornwall canal staff is working night and day to repair the damaged lock 18, caused by the Geo. Hall Co.'s steam barge Phoenix, which rammed two gates out of that lock yesterday afternoon.

The rush of the water into the lower level resulted in several thousand dollars' worth of damage to the plant and stock of the Dundas Mill, into the card room of which the water rose to the height of four feet. The office was also flooded to a certain extent.

A big staff is working on the repairs, which will require from two to four days.

Alterations to Niobe.

London, July 23.—Admiral Kingsmill returns in a fortnight. The Admiralty has agreed to make alterations in the Niobe suggested by Canada. She will not sail until September. The Rainbow sails the first week in August, and the Admiralty has agreed to lend men of skilled ratings and an instructional staff of officers for the safe conduct of the ship. Admiral Kingsmill states that enquiries are now being made among firms on the Admiralty list for tenders for the construction of four Bristols and six destroyers.

A body of free trade M.P.'s will spend their holidays in Canada under the leadership of J. A. Simon.

Canadian teachers visited Windsor and inspected the castle and were entertained by the mayor at lunch. They afterwards visited Eton.

D. O. Malcolm, ex-secretary to Lord Selborne, sails shortly for Canada as private secretary to Earl Grey.

Fourteen boy scouts will sail for Canada on the 29th.

A Big Diamond.

It is said to be two inches long and three-fourths of an inch thick, tapering from one and a quarter to three-fourths of an inch. It is estimated to be worth $150,000 uncut.

LIFE A NIGHTMARE

Helpless and Broken Down, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Came to the Rescue

There are many who think anaemia is a trouble confined to growing girls and women, but this is not the case. Thousands of men are anaemic, and attribute their growing weakness to mental or physical overwork, or worry, and who do not appear to realize that they are swiftly passing into that condition known as general debility, and that their trouble is due entirely to the fact that their blood is watery and impure. If the trouble is not taken in time, they pass from one stage to another until the breakdown is complete, and often until a cure is beyond hope. To men in all walks of life there is no medicine so valuable as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you feel jaded, weak or worn out these Pills will make that rich, red blood that puts vim and energy into every portion of the body. Making good blood is the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and good blood is the one secret of good health and vigorous life. An excellent case in point is that of Mr. R. W. Ellis, of Balcarres, Sask., who says: "Just four years ago I was in England making preparations to fulfil the long cherished ambition of coming to Canada. My health at that time was normal, though I was never very strong. Three weeks before the time of my departure, I was overcome with a feeling of general weakness and faintness which rendered me so inert and lifeless that my days were shrouded in glood. Consultation with a doctor brought me no consolation. Debility was my trouble and I was on the point of a breakdown. "Canada in your condition means death," said the doctor. "You must have a complete rest." A rest, however, was out of the question. A fortnight's holiday I had and then back to earn my daily bread. The next years were a series of misery and despair, body and brain undermined with a complaint the doctor could only call debility, but apparently could not cure. Snatching holidays when I could I struggled on until the opening of 1909, when completely prostrated I was compelled to go to my parents and become a burden to them. My life was simply an existence and friends said, behind my back, "consumption."

"In April, 1909, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Three months later, on July 1st, I sailed from Liverpool on the Tunisian for Montreal, full of new life, energy and hope. In this great country I am making good, and I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In three months they changed me from a nervous to a healthy man. When doctors failed they succeeded, and I honestly believe they saved my life."

You can procure this great health-giving medicine from any dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Graft In Railroad Circles.

Chicago, July 23.—A system of long-standing graft and corruption in Chicago railroad circles, by means of which stockholders of railroad companies have been defrauded out of hundreds of thousands of dollars may be brought to the surface as a result of the scandal which sprung up following the tragic death of President Rawn of the Monon road.

Big Seizure of Nets.

Belleville, July 23.—The Ontario Government patrol boat Navarch on Thursday night seized a mile of net near Gananoque, which were being illegally used. At Trenton Thursday Capt. Hunter, fish and game inspector, fined two parties, named Young and Ferguson, $10 each for illegal fishing.

COCAINE FIEND

Ottawa Journal.

There was consternation at the meeting of the Allied Trades and Labor Council last night when Delegate Langley informed the assembly that in a certain district in this city there were cocaine fiends by the hundred.

He told the meeting that an Ottawa man was being supplied by a Hull druggist with this drug wholesale, and was retailing it to the youths of Ottawa, who were fast becoming habitual cocaine sufferers.

Delegate Draper remarked that the delegate who had supplied this information owed it to his country to see that this information was prosecuted further and that the seller was brought to justice. The matter will be investigated and a report made at the next meeting of the Council.

Mr. Langley said that on the previous night he was in a house in the city an there saw a man, apparently drunk, but who was under the influence of cocaine. Mr. Langley described him to the meeting. His face was hollow; he trembled; his nostrils quivered like those of an excited horse; his skin was yellow as a berry.

OWNER OF HAAG'S CIRCUS FINED ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

Violated Special Act When He Removed Five Performing Dogs From Orillia to Peterborough — An Aftermath of the Rabies Scare.

Ernest Haag, owner and manager of the Mighty Haag Shows, which gave two performances in this city on Tuesday, June 27th, was fined one hundred dollars with costs, amounting to $15.25, by Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning.

Mr. S. T. Medd acted for the Attorney-General's Department, which ordered the prosecution.

He was charged with an offence against the Animals' Contagious Disease Act, and violated the law when he brought five performing dogs from Orillia to Peterborough. Orillia is in a district which is under quarantine owing to the outbreak of rabies, and Peterborough is in an uninfected district. The dividing point is between the two places.

The defendant's plea was that while he was told by a government officer at Brampton that he would be violating the law if he took the dogs from Orillia to Peterborough, he had not committed the offence wilfully. He expected that at the boundary line an official would meet him and prohibit the taking of the animals further. No such official met him.

Mr. Medd called Dr. W. W. Story, Vetinary Inspector for the Department. He was the official at Brampton who notified defendant regarding the Act on June 24.

Witness stated that he told Mr. Haag that the western district he was then travelling, was under quarantine, and that he wasn't at liberty to take the dogs further east than Orillia.

Mr. Haag wanted to know if he couldn't get around the trouble by securing a license, and witness sent the following telegram to the Department at Ottawa: "Haag circus applies for permission to remove five performing dogs from Orillia to Peterborough." The answer came: "Haag circus must not remove dogs from quarantine area."

The next he saw of the dogs was in Belleville, where they had been taken from quarantine, in the stable of the Albion Hotel.

High Constable Broody, of Peel County, and Dr. Perdue, Veterinary Inspector of Toronto, were present to give evidence for the prosecution, but they were not called, the defendant admitting that the dogs taken at Belleville were those brought from the western into the eastern districts.

His Worship characterized the offence of the defendant as a wilful, deliberate defiance of the law. He placed the costs at $22.95, but inspectors Stork and Perdue, claimed they, as government officials, were not entitled to fees, and the costs were decreased to $15.25.

The fine is just half of the maximum.

HEARD ON THE MARKET TO-DAY

"Madame, how are eggs selling today?"

"Twenty-one and 22 cents per dozen sir."

"And butter?"

"Well, some are asking 23 cents and others 25c."

"How about raspberries?"

"That lady over there is asking $1.25 a pail for her's, ten quarts to a pail."

"These spring chickens are tender, and 50 cents a piece is the price."

Proceeding a little further another farmer was interviewed.

"You can have these old potatoes for 60 cents a bag and new ones at 40 cents per peck."

"These little squealers are $12 a pair."

"My gooseberries are 10 cents and these large black currents 12 1-2 cents a quart."

The above were the prevailing prices at the busy market square to-day.

It was largely attended.

CALLED TO ACCOUNT POLICE COURT CASES

Introductions to Chief Thompson Cost $5.75 each, if You go at it the Wrong Way — Other Offenders.

The fact of the genial proprietor of the Haag Shows going before Magistrate Dumble this morning had considerable to do with the filling of the police court this morning, by the rank and file of the city's enemployed. The case is reported in another column.

VERY SORRY.

P.C. Meagher was called upon to act as interpreter when a deaf and dumb prisoner was charged with having been found drunk in a public place. He had been remanded to jail Thursday morning to make repairs to his general appearance.

"Tell him he is charged with being drunk," was the order.

"I am sorry, but I am guilty" came back the answer over the finger line, exclusive service.

"I am going to stop drinking" came a flash.

The prisoner had about $50.00, and the usual fine, $2.00, and $3.75 was the edict.

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

Last night Chief Thompson was conversing with a citizen at the corner of Hunter and George streets when a party of celebraters came along. They did not know the chief constable.

Profane language was being used, and in making an arrest the chief was called an ugly name and received a kick on the leg.

"We are not going to allow this blackguard conduct on the streets," was the substance of the Magistrate's oration as he fined the chief offender $5.57

MUST BE STOPPED.

"Profane language is too prevalent and it has to be stopped," was the chief's comment as another young man was asked to contribute $5.75.

CAUGHT.

George Walker resided at a boarding house kept by Mrs. Sarah Page and when he was left to himself the other night he found himself ransacking trunks and purloined one gold ring, one silver watch and two brooches.

The accused has been in this country about five weeks.

He elected to be tried summarily and pleaded guilty.

A remand for eight days was the sequel. He may be deported.

THREE ARRESTS

Alleged Thieves Taken Into Custody at Noon

A trio of alleged thieves, Wesley Crouter, Frank Hamilton and James Wilson, were arrested at noon on Euclid avenue, East City, and taken to the police station.

Chief Thompson, assisted by P. C. Newhall and Constable Foster, of Lindsay, made the arrests.

Robberies have been committed in and about the city of late, and the police have been on the lookout in an endeavor to get all three offenders.

This morning P.C. Newhall learned of the whereabouts of the three men and at 12.30 the three officers left the police station in a rig and drove to a house on Euclid avenue, where the culprits, after an endeavor to escape, were caught. Their intention was to get aboard a C.P.R. eastbound freight.

They will appear before Magistrate Dumble Monday morning.

Ottawa Exhibition

In order to provide adequate amusement for the patrons of the coming Fair a much larger appropriation was set aside for special attractions. The best vaudeville talent and acrobatic performance that could be secured in New York are on the programme. These will appear twice daily before the monster grand stand. The grand stand has been completely covered since last year and now seats 12,000 people in comfort. This great structure is fire proof, and tested in every respect as to strength, has no equal on the continent outside of the big metropolitan cities. It is 470 feet long, 103 feet deep and cost $100,000. From this place of vantage will be watched in addition to the performances mentioned, horse racing, prize animal parade, and the night spectacular,

PETERBOROUGH MAN ON A VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH

"In my opinion Canada has greater possibilities than any other country," said T. I. Slater, of Peterborough, Eng., to the Review last night.

Mr. Slater is a former mayor of Peterborough, and is on the council in that city, which has a population of between thirty-five and forty thousand. He is in the grain business in the old land, and is also interested in farming. He is on a visit to Canada for the first time. He came partly on a holiday trip and partly to make a study of agricultural conditions of the Dominion.

SPEAKS WITH AUTHORITY.

Mr. Slater has travelled in every continental country, and speaks with authority when he talks so optimistically of Canada's farming recources

The city of Peterborough, England, is noted for its historic cathedral, as readers of history and travellers know. The cathedral is a point of great interest to all visitors to that city.

Yesterday Mr. Slater was shown around by Mayor Morrow and Mr. James Kendry. He was much impressed with the namesake of his home city as a bright and busy place.

He left last night for Montreal en route for England.

PLUMBER ROBBING HIMSELF AND NOT THE PEOPLE

Is What Plumber Claimed to Review — Standard Scale of Prices by Which Twenty-five Per Cent Profit Will be Made — The Argument Advanced.

"The people thinkk the plumber is robbing them when the plumber is really robbing himself," said a Peterborough plumber to the Review this morning.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT PROFIT BASIS.

This was in the course of a conversation as to the adoption of a scale of prices by the local plumbers by which they will be in a position to make twenty-five per cent profit on their work. At the present time, the Review's informant stated, many jobs don't pay for themselves. This may seem a broad statement, but it was true, nevertheless, he said. The cause was too close figuring, and when the freight, labor and other expenses incidental to a job were met, the plumber was often left without profit, or with only a very small one.

To make a reasonable profit it is necessary to obtain twenty-five per cent on all work, it was stated, and by way of argument it was held that the merchant made from thirty to thirty-five per cent profit.

MUCH WORK, SMALL PROFIT.

Peterborough is an active plumbing town as there has been so much building going on here and work to the extent of $265,000 has been done in the last four years, said the plumber with whom the Review had the interview, but in spite of the volume of work he stated Peterborough was one of the worst towns in the Dominion from the standpoint of profit on plumbing.

Several meetings of Peterborough plumbers have been held, and when a standard schedule is agreed to it will be published in the local papers.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

MEN BLAME GOVERNMENT FOR SUSPENDING ALIEN ACT

The Lifting of the Bars to Contract Railway Workers on Pretext That it Was for Construction Work in the West is Said to Have Been Inspired by the Grand Trunk.

Niagara Falls, July 25.—Canadian immigration officers received notification Saturday that the rule requiring all immigrants to have $25 would be suspended, providing applicants for admission to Canada had contract to work for a railroad. Indignation is felt over the order here. The men say that it is inspired by the Grand Trunk.

"Toronto, July 25.—"I can hardly believe that the Government would compel us to think it is unfair in this connection," said Vice-President S. M. Berry of the O.R.C., when seen on the C.P.R. train for Montreal last night, "therefore I am inclined to believe it must be an erroneous report.

"I have nothing more than what I saw in the paper last evening to go by. Of course, it is the Government, but nevertheless we will be compelled to believe that it is unfriendly toward railroad men, if it is as the despatch says.

"We regard it as unfortunate that industrial wars are necessary, while they do create a certain amount of trouble for the innocent; but it would be far more serious if the hundreds of thousands of laboring men were given to understand that they have no rights whatever.

"A strike is the only weapon they have got to insist on getting what they are justly entitled to, and this is the first time that the organizations concerned in the present difficulty have been forced to enter into industrial warfare in years."

When told that General Superintendent Brownlee of the Grand Trunk had blamed the strikers for three attempts to wreck trains since Saturday night, Mr. Berry replied:

"We find out that in matters of this kind the company themselves have been known to do this sort of work and blame it on to the strikers for the purpose of turning public sentiment against the strikers. I'll venture to say that he can't prove that this is the work of the strikers."

Mr. Berry went to Montreal to have a conference with Mr. Murdock. He had received no word from Chairman Mabee of the Railway Board in reply to his letter of three days ago. He said his trip to the metropolis had nothing to do with negotiations to arbitrate, and had no intimation that the strike was nearing an end.

Toronto, July 25.—Two attempts on Saturday night to wreck passenger trains and one to cripple a freight train between stations was officially declared by W. G. Brownlee, general master of transportation for the Grand Trunk, last evening. Luckily, in no case was the result serious.

The passenger trains were derailed by the throwing of switches, and the freight was forced to back a few miles into a station to allow a passenger to pass on ahead of it.

"In connection with the derailment of the passenger trains," said Mr. Brownlee, "we have every reason to believe they were strikers, as they must have had switch keys.

"These derailments indicate that the strikers, realizing the hopelessness of their efforts to stop the running of trains, are resorting to this method of blocking lines, having no regard for the lives of the passengers on the trains."

It was at four o'clock yesterday morning, at South Dunham, Que., that the derailment occurred of a train running from Portland, Me., to Montreal.

"Some one threw the switch and derailed three coaches, causing a delay of three hours," said Mr. Brownlee. "We believe it was done by some strikers from Richmond, as the switch was set and locked a short time prior to the accident.

The switch was in a rock cutting, and the man who opened the switch stood in the shadow of the rock until after the engine passed over and then threw the switch under the train. It was pulling out of South Dunham."

A similar derailment happened to a passenger train entering the Brockville yards at nine o'clock Saturday night.

Considerable light is thrown upon the derailment of the G.T.R. Muskoka express near the Dundas street bridges early Thursday morning by the statement of a striking yardman yesterday that he had been on a train on that track a month ago when two cars were derailed by the switch at just that place after the first part of the train had passed safely over it.

Train Cut Up.

South Bend, Ind., July 25.—The first freight train on the G.T.R. that had been started in this city since the strike was called was halted on Saturday night by strikers, who cut it into two sections. So many cars were uncoupled that the train was strung out along the track for blocks. Despairing of making headway, the train crew ran the engine into a roundhouse.

Firemen Buried Under Walls.

Cincinnati, July 25.—Two explosions early yesterday wrecked a manufacturing plant at Central avenue and Friday street, starting a fire that destroyed three adjoining plants. Five firemen were buried by falling walls and were taken out seriously injured.

The combined losses by the fire are estimated at $250,000.

Only Forty Saved.

Tokio, July 25.—The Tetsurei Meru plying between Kobe and Darien, sank Saturday night off Chindo, Korea. The steamer had 246 passengers on board, of whom 40 were saved. The others are missing.

Warships have been sent to the rescue.

PROMINENT IN AFFAIRS OF MEXICAN GOVERNMENT

PRESIDENT PORFIRIO DIAZ.

RAMON CORRAL PHOTO BY F. L. CLARKE

COLONEL EMILO KOSTERLITZKY

Mexico City, July 25.—During the next six-year term of President Porfirio Diaz, Mexico will, in the opin on of her statesmen and publicists, make greater progress than in any like period in the history of the Republic. These men are reading into the popular agitation of the last two years, a good, rather than a bad omen. It is a good sign, they believe, that the masses of Mexico are taking an individual interest as never before in the affairs of the government.

The bugbear of poverty has been attacked by President Diaz, Vice-President Ramon Corral, Senor Landa, Governor of the Federal District, and General Olegario Molina, Minister of Fomento. They, with others, are taking a particular interest in the welfare of the working classes and in the promotion of enterprises which will ameliorate their condition.

Leaders of the opposition parties, instead of dwelling on the need of education, to equip the masses for the duties of citizenship guaranteed by the constitution, have made demands that involve an advanced type of paternalism and other demands that are radically socialistic.

SHORT ON SUPPLIES

Campbellton Authorities Are in Very Great Difficulties.

Campbellton, July 25.—With more than 1,500 people to feed every day, the provisions at the disposal of the Campbellton relief committee are rapidly running short, and, unless the supply comes in in greater quantities, the daily allowances will have to be curtailed. In addition to the people fed by the committee, there are many trying to order their own provisions, or else boarding on vessels at the wharf.

Among the cash donations received Saturday was $5,000 from the Quebec Government, with a letter from Sir Lomer Gouin. Apart from the $20,000 donation from the New Brunswick Government, this was the first contribution from any Provincial Legislature. The cash contributions totalled over $27,000 on Saturday. In addition, several orders were received to draw on banks, which, with the recent Quebec contribution, brings the total up to $38,133. Just now it is difficult to estimate how much relief money will be needed.

In every tent, however, there is real suffering. The officials who made a tour on Saturday morning after the heavy rain witnessed piteous sights. Some of the women and children had been sleeping on boughs cut from the trees; others on hay, and many on the hard ground.

RELICS OF DARK AGES

The Standard.

One of those events of ancient origin, of which even Londoners know little, has just taken place. The Lord Mayor of London has received the first password to the Tower issued in the new reign. It bears the King's sign-manual, "George. R.I.," and it enables the Lord Mayor at any time of the day or night, even though the guard is set, to pass through the gates to see the constable, or for any other, public duty. Every three months a new password is sent to the Mansion House, although there is no record, in recent times at least, of the Lord Mayor having availed himself of these privileges.

Another new note at the Tower is the use of King George's name in the stately and ancient ceremony of locking up the fortress. On the stroke of eleven the head warder appears before the guardhouse and loudly calls "Escort, keys!" The sergeant of the guard and five or six men, then turn out and follow the warder to the outer gate, each sentry challenging as they pass the post, "Who goes there! "Keys!"

Train Severed Both Legs.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 25.—John Verrick rode a bicycle across the New York Central tracks Saturday night and was struck by a freight train. Both legs were severed. He was rushed to a hospital, but his recovery is doubtful.

One Hundred and One Years Old.

Kingston, July 25—Hale and hearty, possessed of all his faculties, and enjoying life, John Barton, inmate of the home for aged and infirm people, has just celebrated his 101st birthday. Mr. Barton was born in Ireland.

SIR WILFRID IS WARY; IS NOT IN FAVOR OF OF PUBLIC ELEVATORS

Tells Farmers of Melville, Sask., That He is Providing Transportation Competition in the Form of the H. B. Railway.

Lanigan, Sask., July 25.—The apparent calm with which Sir Wilfrid Laurier's assurances with respect to the grain growers' demands have been received during the past week does not seem to have satisfied a large constituency of farmers, and something more than his academic utterances were sought at Melville on Friday, and again Saturday at Lanigan, when straight questions were asked as to the Government's intention as to the Hudson Bay Railway and terminal elevators and tariff.

The Prime Minister's train only stopped here two hours, but during that time much business was done. A crowd had gathered in the Town Hall, and after the introductory remarks were over, David Ross, president of the Strasburg Grain Growers' Association, made a pointed reference to the building of the Hudson Bay Railway and its subsequent opposition by the Government. He claimed that this railway ranked first in the estimation of the farmers and business men of western Canada, not for selfish purposes, but for the interest of the country as a whole.

"We want competition on transportation," he said, "and we have not got it. The situation has become intolerable. The reason why we are so intense with regard to the Hudson Bay Railway is that we want a competitive trade route to regulate the excessive freight rates throughout the West.

"If a private corporation should get control of the last trade route we have in the West, where are we to get our competition?" he asked. "There is no other way that we can get competition, unless the Hudson Bay Railway is owned, controlled and operated by the Dominion Government. They did not ask for Government ownership of railways, but believed it was essential, as a check on excessive freight rates. He declared that no analogy could be drawn from the Intercolonial, as that was part of the Confederation compact."

The same line of argument was taken by Richard Fletcher, president of Lake Centre Association, in regard to terminal elevators. He, too, said that relief from the abominable oppression of grain manipulators could only be secured by Government ownership and operation of the elevators at terminal points. The abuse which exists to-day affected the farmers like pinching a man on the jugular vein. The present law was not sufficient.

Edward Anderson of the Lanigan Association, voiced the sentiments of the free traders. He said he had some difficulty in speaking on the tariff, because he was a free trader.

"So am I," quickly countered the Premier.

Mr. Anderson declared that the manufacturer was always a free trader for what he wanted to buy. The raw material of the farmer was his farm implements, without which he could not raise a bushel of grain. The agricultural interests should have the first consideration of the Government. It was the interest that was producing the wealth of the country. He realized what the Government had done, but would like to see it do a little more. He was of the Manchester school of free traders and wanted to see the Liberals carry out the program of 1893.

"We would not be Liberals, if there was not room for improvement," said Sir Wilfrid. England herself had not reached perfection in tariff matters, he went on, but in matters of politics and trade, England was a shining example to the world. Canada could not arrive in one year at the same place that it had taken England eight centuries to reach. If he had his way, and did not have the farmers as well as the manufacturing and professional interests to look after, he would go further. He believed with Mr. Anderson that the tariff should be gradually reduced, and would have a commission, composed probably of Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. Wm. Paterson and another, study the matter, but he did not say when.

Sir Wilfrid would not be stampeded into declaring outright for state ownership and operation of terminal elevators. He could not enunciate a policy on such short notice. He reiterated the principle that the buyer of the wheat should not elevate it. The reason why the C.P.R. had not been guilty of the practice was because it was interested only as a carrier, and not a purchaser. Government ownership might be the remedy, but he thought if the State of Minnesota could legislate so that the manipulators were driven out of Duluth to Port Arthur and Fort William, Canada could accomplish the same results by similar legislation.

Saskatoon, Sask., July 25.—Sir Wilfrid passed a quiet Sunday, attending high mass in the morning. In the afternoon he received an address from the Catholic population in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new St. Paul's Church, at which Bishop Pascal officiated.

Thunder showers are general throughout the Saskatchewan district.

A RACE FEUD IN STEEL MILLS

Pittsburg, July 25.—Lorrie Long, aged 14 years, a "puller" employed in the Park Steel Mill here, was horribly burned Saturday while asleep on a bench by a four-inch white hot billet of steel, which, the boy says, was placed inside his shirt against his back by a crowd of negro boys also employed at the plant, and with whom there had been a feud of long standing.

Six colored boys, from 16 to 18 years of age, have been placed under arrest charged with the offence. It is said the feud had been made more bitter by the outcome of the Reno prizefight.

Pte. W. L. Hunt, of the 57th Regiment, Infantry, received his silver medal Saturday for long service in the colonial auxiliary forces. Pte Hunt, entered service at the time of the Northwest rebellion.

DARING ROBBERS HOLD UP COACH OF IMMIGRANTS

At Point of the Pistol and Robbed Them of Perhaps $500.

New York, July 25.—Within sight of the lights of Manhattan, four men held up a coach load of immigrants Saturday night at the point of the pistol, and robbed them of perhaps $500 in cash, while their train was standing in the West Shore terminal at Weehawken, N.J. A cry of "Police" from the lookout gave the gang warning, who were able to mingle with the crowd and lose their identities. The lookout was felled by the night stick of a patrolman and is now locked up.

There were perhaps a hundred immigrants in the car. The order for "all aboard" had been given and many had their hands outside the windows waving good-bye to friends, when two men stepped on the rear end of the last car of the train and two on the front platform.

All four whipped out revolvers and shouted "Hands up," "Shell out." Most of the immigrants did not understand the language, but the revolvers were wholly intelligible. The four men walked down the middle aisle of the car from either end, taking toll in jewelry and cash. They might have got more if a trainman had not stepped to the rear platform and taken in the situation at a glance. He ran to the station yelling to the police.

But the robbers had been warned by their lookout and bolted for the waiting-room, where a thousand persons from the ferry were waiting for other trains. A man in a hurry is not conspicuous in a railroad station, and the four were soon able to lose themselves.

Surveyor Drowned.

Selkirk, Man., July 24.—Word reached here Saturday evening by steamer Wolverine of the drowning near Norway House on July 18 of Paul E. Findlay of Ottawa and an Indian named Charles Omen. The men belonged to a party working under J. K. McLean of Ottawa making surveys for the Dominion Government.

To Escort Earl Grey.

Winnipeg, July 25.—Sergt. Nichols of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police arrived here yesterday with several constables, who will act with him as an escort to Earl Grey on his overland trip to Fort Churchill. The men selected for the trip are all experienced travelers in the northern wilds.

STUNG!

Hamilton Herald.

A peculiar case is reported from Dundas, John P. Burton, while working in his barn, was stung in the head by a bee and collapsed and was unconscious for some time. After being removed to his house, Doctors Bertram, Lauchland and Main were called, and even after Mr. Burton became conscious he became very ill. Some few years ago he suffered in the same manner as a result of a bee sting. Some of the physicians have never had any previous experience in such cases. Dr. Bertram says that such cases are rare, but that to some people the sting of a bee is the same as taking deadly poison and affects both body and brain. To a person who is susceptible to this form of poisoning, the sting of a bee he says, will produce intense pain, followed by loss of consciousness and a deadly sickness when consciousness is regained.

THOUGHT HE WAS DROWNED

Toronto, July 25.—Edward G. Verrall, 23 Allan avenue, a decorator, threw a scare into the police without disturbing his own comfort yesterday morning.

He had gone to sleep on the west bank of the Don, just south of the Winchester street bridge Saturday night, after removing his coat and hat. After sleeping for a time he arose and sauntered home, leaving the coat and hat behind him.

They were later found and it was thought that he had ended his life in the river. When enquiries were made at his home by Policeman Greenwood, the supposed suicide was found to have peacefully continued his slumbers in his bed, and to be on his way to take a swim.

Caused Loss of $3,000,000.

Victoria, B.C., July 25.—Advices to Premier McBride declares that forest fires are extinguished throughout the province. The official estimates place the loss at $3,000,000.

BELLEVILLE OLD BOYS' REUNION

Belleville, July 25.—The Belleville Old Boys' reunion, which is booked to last till next Tuesday afternoon, opened Saturday under most favorable conditions. The city is splendidly decorated with flags, banners and electric lights.

The Toronto Old Boys came in a special train of ten cars, loaded to the doors. The Chicago Old Boys are here fifty strong. One visitor, Lew Yeomans of Dawson, traveled 4,900 miles to get here. Rochester, Montreal, New York and, in fact, all the leading cities, are well represented. It is estimated that at least 10,000 visitors will be in the city before the reunion closes.

IS DR. CRIPPEN ON LINER? POLICE WILL MEET SARDINIAN

Wireless Conveys Information That Steward on Board Steamship Has Discovered Crippen and Miss Leneve in Disguise of a Minister and His "Boy."

London, July 25.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—While the chase was proceeding hotfoot in the neighborhood of the Pyrenes, particulars obtained by wireless from the Allan liner Sardinian lead the Scotland Yard officials firmly to believe that Dr. Crippen, wanted in connection with the Callous-Camdentown murder, the details whereof horrified the world, and his companion, Miss Leneve, were on board, en route to Montreal. Inspector Dow, who had charge of the case since suspicion was aroused against the United States quack, sailed on the Baltic the first boat available, on Saturday night

The Sardinian left Havre on Monday last. It is stated that the couple joined her two hours before she sailed without attracting, under the names of Rev. Robinson and son, till the alleged discovery, subsequently told by wireless to the French police.

It seems that the steward who attended the couple in their second-class cabin, noticed that the clergyman wore false eyebrows. When his attention was attracted to the pair he observed other peculiarities, especially about the boy. Watching, by permission, the latter perform his toilet, he concluded that certainly the alleged boy was a girl, and, moreover, that her height and features corresponded with those of the missing typist. Minute descriptions of the reverend gentleman and his son were sent by wireless to the French police, and subsequently Scotland Yard was also informed via Browhead.

The latter, as stated, attached the fullest importance to the news and despatched Inspector Dow immediately, while the Canadian police were cabled full instructions.

The Sardinian, having only a short range wireless installation, further information will be unobtainable until she gets within range of Canada. The couple will probably know first of the suspicions concerning them when the Canadian police board the liner at Montreal, the greatest care having been urged on the captain of the Sardinian to instruct his crew not to alarm them.

According to the description given the French police, the suspected man was wearing a full clerical suit. He has heavy brown eyebrows, now known to be false, a short sprouting brown beard, running up the sides of his cheeks, evidently a recent growth, and a clean-shaven upper lip. He also walks with a slouching gait, with head a little thrown back. The "boy" is of rather stout build and very pale, with a particularly broad nose and wearing a smartly cut suit of dark tweed.

Conflicting reports are current anent the alleged discovery of Crippen and his typist en route to Canada, but it seems agreed that they sailed on the Montrose. The story of the discovery already cabled, was based on a circumstantial despatch from Havre.

It is not altogether correct that the couple that sailed as Rev. Robinson and son, were subsequently suspected, Scotland Yard was informed by wireless, and Inspector Dow was ordered to catch the fastest boat to Canada.

Scotland Yard have issued a guarded announcement, stating that they have been ordered not to handicap Dow. No details of his journey will be divulged.

A VOTE OF THANKS

The flies of Peterborough spent a very restful Sunday. The garbage could not be burned or buried, and a glad reunion was held in all the back yards. They were joined by a few mosquitoes, for these energetic, bloodthirsty swordsmen like damp and filthiness.

"I'd sooner live in Peterborough than anywhere else," said one fly, as he sat on a decayed bannana.

"That's right," said a blow fly, as he cleaned his leg on a scrap of fish.

"Right you are," said a maggot, as it lay in a mess of filth.

And a vote of thanks to the Board of Health and the Council for their kind patronage, was passed, amid much buzzing of wings. A resolution of indignation was also put through condemning the inventor of tanglefoot and fly poison.

The meeting then adjourned to go into the kitchen nearby, for it looked like rain, and supper was on the table.

DON'T WORRY

The following editorial reference to Mr. Raymond's new book, "The Happy Life," appeared in Saturday's Toronto News:—

Charles F. Raymond's cheery sermons are well-known to readers of the News. For some months he contributed one a day to the editorial page of this paper. Each was short in paragraph and snappy in sentence. It condensed philosophy into epigrams. It got more "action" in four sticks of type than some learned Doctors of Divinity can get in five thousand words. Raymond does not worry over the Book of Genesis or the Prophecy of Isaiah. He says, "We're here. Let us make the best of our lives, and be cheerful." It is not a bad motto for busy men.

Two volumes of Raymond's little essays have been published by The Dodge Company, of New York. A third, entitled "The Happy Life," has just been issued. It contains one hundred pages of admonition, the burden of it all being, "Get busy, and stop your worrying." The essence of Raymond may be given in this quotation: "Old man, whoever you are, you are right. I heard you tell a fellow last night on the street car that you had lived nearly eighty years, and had had lots of troubles, but that not half of them ever really reached you. Lots of us think that the bottom is coming out of everything, when it is nailed on and clinched on the inside. We worry about the winter, and almost ere we are aware, winter is past and spring is here.'

It has been said that Raymond writes platitudes. Perhaps so, but he makes people read them. Of all platitudes the chief are the Ten Commandments. But they are important. Too many of us are so anxious for originality that we miss the importance of platitudes. Flat stones are used for the foundations of a building. Trite, perhaps tiresome, truths must make the foundation of character. "The Happy Life" is not a large book. It will fit your pocket. You need not be ashamed of its typography, its binding or of the truths it endeavors to hammer home.

Mr. Raymond is editor of the Review.

AN ECHO FROM THE WEST

Is Rev. Dr. Bland a true prophet? The Vancouver Province gives nearly a column and a half of a sermon he preached when striking statements were made in his discussion of the attitude of the church to the state. He said:

The loads of some of these poor men and women of the old land," are almost too hard to be borne. Do you ever stop to think what the whole business of your religion must look like to these people that are starving for bread? What do you imagine they care for your church while their life is one long struggle to keep the wolf from the door? Is it any surprise to you that it has no appeal for them? And do you think that in the future, if the present system of industralism continues, that the cities of our country are going to be any better than the cities of the old lands? I tell you they will not.

When a preacher talks about Christianity applied to the methods of business, and still more when he makes the application to politics, men are offended. But the fact remains that the religion that can talk only of death and heaven is really not a religion at all, but merely a sentiment. I tell you that in religion there is only one damnable heresy, and that is the divorce of religion from life. A religion that does not deal with a man and a man's job is not fit to keep.

"I warn you that there is danger ahead. Do you think that the lower classes of the United States are going to be satisfied with the present distribution of wealth when they read of the rich women who are lavishing wealth upon a dog, who has its special establishment, its special doctor, its special manicure, its special coachman to drive it out? the church for righteousness? I tell you that the day is coming when the cities of this continent will be sacked by its mobs unless they are previously saved by their mobs. The city that can show that it exists for the good of its lower classes can never be sacked by its lower classes." After all there is more generosity and unselfishness among the poor people than there has ever been, or ever will be, among the rich. I tell you that the charity of the poor makes the charity of the rich seem paltry in the extreme."

His words are too true. The church to-day is more or less of a refined social club. The ladies have their various societies and give different entertainments during the winter season. In the summer the midweek services are either called off or shortened, or the young peoples society thrown in with the older ones. Sometimes by way of variety the young men will give an entertainment in which the ladies are to have no part. In order to add spice to the Sunday meetings, song services are occasionally given. But old Nick takes no holidays. The breweries, distilleries or gambling places do not shut for warm weather. And what of the poor. What of the man or woman who with all their power are putting up a battle daily against some besetting sin. Does the church come to their rescue individually? Does the church help the poor woman solve the problem as to where she can get a pair of shoes for her boy, or get in a little flour? Does it throw its arms about the woman who has erred, or reach down in the gutter and pick up the unfortunate who has fallen there, and who is heartily tired of it all, and wants to do better? It certainly does not. What does it do? It dresses up on Sunday and many who kneel to pray rise to prey on Monday.

POLITICAL ENGINEERING

There has been much promising so far in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tour. Up to date the record is:

1. The harbors of Fort William and Port Arthur Will have great sums spent upon them.

2 The Welland Canal will be deepened.

3. The Georgian Bay Canal will be dug.

4 Mr. Conmee's Canal from Port Arthur to Edmonton is under hopeful consideration.

All this comes under the head of "Political Engineering. Needless to say, Mr. Pugsley was in the vicinity when some of these promises were made.

SIX MEN

A man next to me in a city church bowed low and sang loudly. When he had to give up to the Lord, he had an earnest hunt for a five cent piece, and when he did locate two nickels, he gave the Lord the one with a big hole in. He couldn't pass it on the street car, he couldn't buy stamps with it, and there was no way of it helping to get a beer, so he gave it to the Almighty, the Architect of the Universe.

But the Lord let him live on.

—o—

A man in Peterborough was very ill. He saw the grave yawn and the doctor shake his head, so he prayed: "Lord let me live and I'll be a better man." His health returned, and his profanity with it, and he was worse than ever before.

But the Lord let him live on.

—o—

A landlord turned a poor family out of the house not many miles from our city hall, and seized what the law allowed. He threw the family out on the street because they were behind in their rent, and he wanted the house for another man who had more ready money, and eased the voice of his conscience by repeating "Money talks now-a-days."

But the Lord let him live on.

—o—

She sat watching by the window. It seemed a long time since he should have arrived. It seemed long for her with two kids to clothe, and with little to eat in the house. But it wasn't long to him. He asked the boys "What'l ye have," and sprawled his elbows on the bar. Her's was a sigh, his was a laugh, the laugh of a man with a jag. He went home and when she brushed the dirt from his hat and asked him for a little money, he cursed her, and called her a vile name.

But the Lord let him live on.

—o—

A man caught the hand of a girl, and through his gentle pleading reached her heart, and she was happy in him. She thought on him at work, and at rest, in the light and in the darkness, and loved that man, as only a woman can love. The ring was almost bought, the day was almost set, when he saw a new face and was attracted by a new fancy, and deserted her.

But the Lord let him live on.

—o—

A man lived a pure life, and although he was over many, he was humble and kindhearted. He lived quietly and unostentatiously, and was not spoiled by his position or power. His life might be summed up in the words: "He was a good man."

And just as he was developing into the flower of his manhood the Lord took him.

But the Lord never errs.

Neither does He explain.

MARS

Schiaparelli, the Italian astronomer, died the other day. He was the one who discovered the canals in Mars. Perhaps he was right. Perhaps they form a system of irrigation, and Mars is inhabited as he claims. Some day the world may be astounded by a message from that planet, and why not! Why all this orderly array in the heavens? Is it too much to think that our bodies cast aside, we freed from clay, flit to yonder planet to re-assume life under another form.

And why not pay more attention to one's ethereal self? We spend much time in piling up brick and mortar, and call it a home. We strive for a bank account in our endeavor to become rich. But that invisible Ego, that real self, is scarcely ever considered. We train our hands to paint in oils, or play the piano, we train our eye to hit the bull's eye with the rifle or cannon ball, we plant and harrow and reap, but that self, of which our body is the envelope, is seldom considered. We are too busy.

HYPNOTISM

New York, July 23.—Dr. Alfred J. Fox, of this city, believes he is curing Conrad Schaumberg of infantile paralysis, a disease which, up to now, has regularly baffled physicians. The doctor has some reason for the faith that is in him, too, inasmuch as Schaumberg, whose legs have been withered since he was a baby, can now walk short distances without crutches. Not the least amazing feature of the treatment is that the doctor is working by hypnotic suggestion.

It is not so long ago that hypnotism was denounced as a fake and an imposition. It is not, of course, but is practiced to-day by many physicians. We are all more or less hypnotists. The business man who succeeds is a hypnotist or one whose personal magnetism is such that favorably impresses those whom he meets. We are all creatures of suggestion; we are all, each day, unconsciously being hypnotized and hypnotizing.

"Vice is a monster of such hideous mien
That to be hated needs but be seen;
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity and embrace."

This may not be the exact wording, but it's the sense of the quotation.

Quietly, unconsciously, we are each day hypnotizing the man or woman in the house, office or shop.

The pronounced degree is seen in cases noted above, for the mind has a marvelous influence over the body, and it never sleeps.

THE POINT OF VIEW

GIRLS WANTED.
Vancouver Province.

Ten thousand girls are wanted for Toronto factories, and twice that number are in urgent demand by the lonely ranchers and miners of the West.

PLAY ON SUNDAY.
Hamilton Times.

"Boston Common" has a word of warning for those who would make Sunday a "blue" day. It says: The normal child needs play on Sunday not less than on other days. The kind of observance which makes Sunday irksome and repellent to children is the kind which stimulates bad thinking and ill conduct." It advocates the opening of the playgrounds on Sunday. It is to be doubted if the "dont's" of some Sunday advocates are not less valuable than the wise direction which might be given to help the children and others to spend Sunday pleasantly and profitably.

AN ABHORRED PEOPLE

THE RODIYAS OF CEYLON ARE DESPISED BY OTHER CASTES.

They Have No Intercourse With the Rest of the Island People—Contact With Them Is Regarded as Contaminating by the Higher Classes—Their Origin Is Veiled In Mystery—Shameless and Brutalized.

Abhorred and degraded as is no other community of people under the sun, with the possible exception of the Indian pariahs, are the Rodiyas, of Ceylon. Dwelling in their own separate villages, writes an Englishman, they are remote from other habitations and have no intercourse with the rest of the island folk. They are forbidden by immemorial custom to hold a single rod of land as private property; they are not permitted to follow any recognized trade or occupation; they may not cross a ferry or draw water from a well; if they meet another native on the road, they must cower away to one side lest their proximity should pollute him.

They must not wear any garment other than a scanty cloth tied around the waist and reaching only to the knees, male and female alike; they must keep the upper part of the body bare, and if they are covered when they meet another native they must strip off their covering, for not to do so would be a deadly insult. They gain their livelihood, if they labor at all, by the most degrading of work, making ropes from the hides of cattle, an occupation abhorred from its ancient association with the hangman.

They also prepare the skins of monkeys for use in making the native drum or tomtom. They are paid for these in kind. They deposit their handiwork outside the houses of likely purchasers; if the ropes and skins are needed, they are taken in and boiled rice is left in their place.

Naturally this people, living for centuries under a system so insulting, is in every way shameless and brutalized. Most of them live as itinerant beggars. They creep warily to the back of a house, and standing at the lawful distance, call monotonously for alms. So deeply ingrained is the sense of the degradation of these people and the contamination of their contact that not even the lowest servant will go near to turn them away. It is told of a Cingalese police officer that when ordered to arrest a Rodiya murderer, he replied: "Impossible, but I can go near his hamlet and shoot him."

The Rodiya beggars attend all places of festival, and especially the harvest home, and never fail to extort a contribution by their shameless importunity. The men are often well made and not ill-favored, sometimes tall and of a pleasant, light brown complexion. The women are many of them among the finest specimens of womanhood in the east. They wander about the countryside giving displays of dancing and juggling. Their moral code is very low.

Of late years, under the British Government, this unhappy tribe has made some advance in material things, though the social stigma remains. Many of them have reclaimed pieces of waste land, raised grain and vegetables, and by selling their produce in the larger bazaars where European civilization has blunted the edge of old time prejudices have made enough money to buy a piece of good land from the crown—from the crown, be it noted, for no private person would degrade himself by having money transactions with these folks; nay, there has been much difficulty in many villages where the Rodiyas have bought land even from the crown, for the villagers have thought it an insult that a Rodiya should be a property owner among them and have harassed him in every way in the occupation and development of his purchase.

Fortunately in the courts of law the Rodiyas can gain an impartial hearing, though here too they are handicapped by the difficulty of obtaining witnesses to give evidence on their behalf. As regards education their condition is deplorable. They could not be tolerated in schools along with other children; their presence would be an abomination. Nor have they had any schools of their own until recent years, when a mission has started work among them. Under these circumstances they have had no chance of improvement; they have sunk lower generation after generation.

The origin of the Rodiyas is lost in obscurity. Popular tradition among the Cingalese says that they are the descendants of royal huntsmen who were banished and degraded for an abominable crime; they served up human flesh before the King on a day when they had been unsuccessful in the chase. There is no reason to think that this story is anything more than a myth having its source in a natural tendency to assume a terrible cause for so terrible an effect.

Brahminical influences must not be lost sight of. Among Orientals in whose philosophy life was all misery and death a happy escape, the extreme form of punishment would not be death, but a continuance of life under conditions which should add to its misery by every conceivable means. So the Rodiyas would be the descendants of people condemned for various crimes to this form of punishment, and their ranks would be added to from time to time. There are, moreover, authentic records of cases where offenders guilty of high treason and similar crimes were cast out by the Kings of Kandy to join the Rodiyas, their wives and families being cast out with them.

This would explain the fine physique of this people and the good looks of their women, for some of the best blood of Ceylon must flow in their veins, recruited as they have been from the ranks of treasonable nobles and fair but frail princesses.

This Year's Baby Crop.

In spite of high food prices, our national baby crop promises to be a record breaker. Based on figures compiled by a Boston economist, its value for 1910 will be $4,887,000,000. These figures represent, approximately, of course, the economic value to the United States based on potential productive capacity of the 2,500,000 babies which it is calculated will constitute this year's crop. This makes each six pound youngster worth about $2,173, or $362 a pound.—New York Herald.

WORKMEN ARTISTS.

England Is Showing Some Quite Remarkable Work.

A short time ago the papers referred to a wonderful collection of pictures by German working men which had been collected by Dr. Adolf Levenstein, of Berlin. An article dealing with these pictures was published in The Strand Magazine, and the editor of that famous monthly invited working men of this country who had devoted their leisure to drawing and painting to send specimens of their work.

The result of the invitation was astonishing. Hundreds of paintings and drawings were forwarded by British working-men. Dozens of trades were represented, including such diverse occupations as gardener, house-painter, lighterman, paperhanger, compositor, railway porter, weaver, coal-miner, waiter, and many others.

A selection of these pictures is published in the May number of The Strand, and the general artistic merit is such as to cause one to marvel that so much talent lies hidden amongst men whose daily toil secures for them a wage averaging from $5 to $6 per week. The article published in The Strand commences with an initial picture-letter worthy of Walter Crane. It has been drawn by H. W. Ford, who for eight years worked as a bottle-washer to a firm of wine merchants, and whose weekly wage amounts to $5.50.

But this humble artist has higher thoughts than bottle-washing. "Whenever I discover a book like Burke's 'Sublime and Beautiful'," he says, "at the lending library, I reckon life's worth living. But you don't get much sympathy. Some people imagine that artistic cellarmen, bricklayers' laborers, etc., are simply wasting their time. Keeping pigeons or poultry, or canvassing for insurance companies in one's spare time, would, according to them, be much more sensible. But they are narrow-minded, that is all."

A shoemaker named Robert Mallett, earning $5.50 per week, has executed a beautiful landscape depicting the village of Costessey, near Norwich. He has never been taught painting. A sign-writer employed by the gas company at Beckton sent in a realistic study of a lion. "The Adoration of the Shepherds," a striking picture painted by Alfred Bonheur, a house painter of twenty-four, earning $7 a week, "deserves great praise," to quote the words of The Strand's art editor: "The composition and lighting show a sense of truth, as well as of the dramatic needs of the scene."

Kitchener Anecdotes.

During the South African War Lord Kitchener, who has returned to England after eight years' work abroad, entrusted a certain captain with an important commission. Unfortunately, the captain's horse cast a shoe. Hence a disastrous delay. "Very sorry," was the general's sarcastic comment, "but I cannot rest my plan of campaign on a horse's shoe or an officer's carelessness." Thus it is that "K. of K." impresses upon his officers the futility of excuses and the necessity of being prepared for anything and everything. No man, it is said, has a greater faculty of estimating a man's capabilities at a glance. But he made a mistake on one occasion.

It was during the Boer War, at Vredefort Road Station, that he started fitting out extempore mounted infantry columns. He determined to equip and send them into the field at once. He went to the waiting-room to look for officers, and found a single man in occupation. He was smart and well-dressed, and pleased Lord K.'s critical eye. "You will command a corps of mounted infantry I have just raised," said the general. "Very good, sir. What will my duties be?" "Don't you know your duties?" "My own—yes, sir." "Then don't argue. What is your regiment?" "Blankshires, sir." "What rank?" "Master tailor, sir." Kitchener hurriedly left.

Famous Miniatures Found.

A curious discovery of valuable miniatures has been made at West Haddon, near Rugby. For some years an elderly lady, Miss Fouquier, a descendant of a Huguenot family, had lived with a shepherd and his wife, and when she died a few weeks ago it was found she had bequeathed her belongings to the couple. The goods were not thought to be worth more than $100, but it is reported that when the cupboard of the ancient writing cabinet was opened a rare collection of miniatures was discovered, all of famous artists, as well as fine old prints and antique china pieces of rare value. They will bring in a decent fortune for the shepherd and his wife when they are put up for sale.

Wooed With Music.

Among the Yao Midos, one of the many Burmese-Tartar people, the young men woo their wives absolutely without words, but to the sound of music. On the first day of winter they have a great feast, at which all the marriageable girls gather and listen to the music made by the bachelors, who sit under the "desire tree," each playing his favorite instrument. As the maiden he loves passes him the youth plays louder and more feelingly. If the girl ignores him and passes on he knows that she will have none of him; if she steps up to him and lays a flower upon the instrument he jumps up, grasps her by the hand, taking care not to drop the flower, and they go away together.

Distilery In Bath Room.

Raiding premises in a crowded neighborhood of Belfast, Ireland, the other day, the police found an illicit still in the bath-room in full working order, together with a quantity of spirits, and a second still was found in another room. The front of the premises was fitted up as a grocer's shop. The gas used for the still was drawn direct from the main, and not through a meter. The amateur distillers were fined $500 each.

London Shop Clerks.

The London employer in hiring a shop clerk insists on an agreement that the latter shall not go into business for himself or enter the employ of another within a certain distance radius and within a certain time limit after leaving his employer.

A. J. Drexel, Jr., carried a passenger in his Bleriot from Bournemouth to Beaulieu, England.

WHEN JENNY LIND SANG.

A Nightingale That Charmed Hearts as Well as Ears.

Nothing in Richard Hoffman's musical recollections is more charming than his description of Jenny Lind.

"She would trip on and off," he says, "as if in an ecstasy of delight at the opportunity of singing, bowing and smiling to her audience and giving every one present a flattering sense of contributing in a measure toward the success of the evening. She had three or four songs which showed the wondering compass and power of her voice, and one or more of these were called for at every concert—a Swedish echo song in which she would echo her own voice by a sort of ventriloquism that was quite marvelous and another in which she made a remarkable diminuendo, reaching a pianissimo as faint as a sigh, but with a carrying power that made it distinctly audible at the most extreme limits of Castle Garden or Tripler Hall, where the later concerts were given.

"This was a fine building situated at Broadway and Bond street and just finished in time for the second series of concerts. The hall had fine acoustic advantages, and it was a great loss to New York when it was destroyed by fire a few years later. The Winter Garden was afterward built on the same site.

"One of the most haunting things to me was her singing of Taubert's bird song, 'I Know Not Why I Am Singing.' Her shake was the finest I ever heard, so close and even as to be altogether perfect. Her voice, which she said herself was naturally stiff and stubborn, she had educated and practiced into such a degree of perfection that her roulades and cadenzas were unparalleled in their execution.

"In her sacred songs she rose to the sublime, and on one occasion as she finished singing the aria 'I Know That My Redeemer Liveth' I recollect that Daniel Webster, who was seated in the centre of the balcony, rose from his seat and made her a profound bow. Her rapt expression of face and never ending volume of voice made her appear like some inspired seraph delivering a divine message.

"She was indebted to Sir George Smart, with whom she had studied in England, for all the traditional renderings of oratorio parts, he being at that time the greatest living authority in this school of music, but her vocal training was done under Manuel Garcia in Paris."

A Smallpox Scare.

The pluck of Sir Harry Johnston, the famous explorer—who has lately been elected a corresponding member of the Italian Geographical Society "in recognition of his research work in Africa"—is unquestioned, but strategem has got him out of many a tight corner. On one occasion his zareba was surrounded by a howling mob of savages, who sent an envoy asking him to surrender. Sir Harry merely told the envoy that they had smallpox in the camp, and a wretched albino was trotted out as the awful example. Five minutes later the scared tribesmen were busy putting as large a stretch of Africa as time would permit between themselves and danger. As Sir Harry well knew, they were more afraid of "the white disease" than they were of all the inventions of Maxim.

The Proper Place to Look.

During the moving a portrait of one of the ancestors of the Brent family had got lost. No one could find it at either the old or the new house, and there was great consternation. William Brent, aged six, was offered a "treat," value not announced, for any hint that would lead to the return of the missing grandfather. One noon he came home from school breathless.

"I think, mamma," he said—"I think we can find Grandfather Trent's picture."

"Where?" asked his mother.

"Downtown," said William confidently. "I saw a notice on a shop window, and it said 'Paintings Restored Within'."

A Delicate Compliment.

To be able to compliment without seeming to flatter is a rare gift, and probably no race of men is endowed with that gift more entensively than the French.

An example of the Frenchman's rare tact in matters of this sort is shown in that sweet little story of a man who had ventured to compliment a white haired old lady upon her beauty.

"Ah," said she, "I fear you flatter me. You call me pretty! Why, I am an old woman, my hair is white, and, see, here is a wrinkle."

"A wrinkle?" he replied. "Never, madame. That is not a wrinkle. It is but a smile that has drifted from its moorings."

His Bad Words.

An old woman in an English village took a strange dislike to the new rector and expressed the hope that his stay would be short. On being asked why she had such a rooted objection to him she replied:

"'Ow could I 'elp it when 'e uses such bad words in the pulpit?"

"But what bad words?" she was asked.

"Just think," was her reply, "'ow often 'e says peradventure, and you knows what David says about such like—'If I shall say peradventure the darkness shall cover me.'"

A Reminder.

Small Edgar's mother had invited a few friends to tea, and the little fellow was warned to be on his best behavior. The conversation having become quite animated at the table, Edgar was forgotten. A few moments later his mother asked the servant for a plate, when Edgar said: "You can have mine, mamma. There ain't nothing on it."

WERE ORDAINED ELDERS OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

At the morning service at St. Paul's Presbyterian church yesterday the interesting ceremony of the ordination of three prominent members to the office of eldership was performed.

Rev. Robert Pogue conducted the ceremony, which consisted of the asking and answering of certain questions contained in the Presbyterian Church creed for such occasions, and then the reception of the elders into the session of the church.

Messrs. H. B. Cowan, W. A. Logan and Elias Beavis were the three members who were ordained.

MYSTIC ACT A BIG SENSATION

The Lindsay Post says the following of Ita and her company who appear, at the Grand on August 1st:—

Ita and her talented company again delighted a big audience at the Academy of Music last evening. Ita again demonstrated her wonderful mental powers in a marvellous manner, and electrified the audience by her really clever and mystifying work. The Ashton's beautiful electrical number made a great hit. The Harrington's in their musical stunts again made themselves solid with the audience, while Walker and Rhodes in their singing and comedy act made a decided hit, and fully earned the rapturous applause with which their turn was greeted.

The Photographic Society of Moscow will hold an international photographic exposition in that city next March and April.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In your issue of Saturday you notice the fact that death has been very active amongst the little children this summer, and that on the previous evening a child had died apparently by reason of ptomaine poisoning.

These numerous fatalities are quite natural, and will continue so long as our present unsanitary conditions are allowed to exist. Every day children may be seen eating rotting fruit picked out of the garbage behind the fruit stores. How long shall we suffer? Oh! how long?

WM. FORTUNE WILL RECOVER

Man Who Attempted Suicide is Believed to be Out of Danger

Upon inquiry at Nicholls Hospital the Review was informed to-day that the condition of William Fortune, the Villiers man who attempted suicide last Thursday, was much improved and there is every reason to believe that he will recover.

OBITUARY

MRS. ADELINE GOYETTE.

After a lingering illness of five years' duration, Mrs. Adeline Goyette, 304 Louis street, passed away yesterday at 1.30 p.m.

Death was due to paralysis. The deceased was 71 years of age, and is survived by one son and one daughter, namely, Harry, of Hastings, and Mrs. Murphy, of this city.

The funeral will proceed to St. Peter's cathedral at nine o'clock to-morrow morning and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

Death of Infant

The infant daughter of Mr. Redmond McGrath, 47 Lafayette avenue, died last evening.

The funeral took place this afternoon to St. Peter's cemetery.

At St. Luke's

A special meeting of the W.A. will be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the infant class rooms. All members are requested to attend.

TOOK $3000 TO $5000 WORTH OF JEWELLRY

Thieves Broke Into Sanderson's Jewellry Store This Morning—Diamond Rings, Watches, Gold and Gold Filled Chains Taken Away in Wholesale Quantities—Stolen Jewelry Not Insured Against Loss by Burglary.

Robbers made a heavy haul at Sanderson's jewellery store some time after two o'clock this morning when they looted the premises for diamond rings, gold watches and gold and gold filled chains to the extent of between $3,000 and $5,000.

Mr. W. E. Wasson, proprietor of the store, informed the Review that the loss was unprotected by burglar insurance.

BROKE IN BACK DOOR.

He stated that the thieves entered by means of the rear door, got everything they took, with the exception of the chains, from the show window. The vault was not interfered with.

Employees of the store were there about nine o'clock last night and Nightwatchman Rose tried the doors about two o'clock this morning. Everything was all right then.

The robbery was not discovered till Mr. Wasson came to the store about a quarter to eight this morning. He immediately notified the police.

ANOTHER FIRST PRIZE COMES TO THIS CITY

Mr. J. C. Edwards, window trimmer and advertiser with A. W. Cressman's departmental store, has won first prize in the monthly prize window dressing competition of the Dry Goods Review, Toronto. Mr. Edwards received notice to this effect Saturday, and the check for the amount of the prize accompanied the letter.

The window was the spring opening exhibit, entered in the month of March. Mr. Edwards' efforts in the window dressing line have won for him several other first prizes in the Dry Goods Journal.

TRAGIC TALES TERSELY TOLD

GOING HOME IN THE DARK STUMBLED DROWNED

Special to the Review.

Belleville, Ont., July 25.—The body of James Michael Horan, call boy at the Grand Trunk Railway station, was found in the Moira River this morning. Horan had been missing since Friday night. He was paid Friday with other G.T.R. men, and his cheque was found on him. Horan, who was twenty-one years old, is supposed to have fallen in the river while sleepy and under the influence of liquor,

A YOUTH A PUNT A DROWNING

Special to the Review.

Lindsay, Ont., July 25.—A sad drowning fatality occurred here this morning, directly opposite Horn Bros.' woolen mills, when Harold, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Walker, who reside on William street, fell out of a punt in which he was playing. The body was recovered after about twenty minutes, by Mr. Horn, but all efforts to revive the unfortunate lad were of no avail.

BODY FOUND ONE MONTH MISSING

Special to the Review.

Kingston, Ont., July 25.—The body of Michael Hennessy was found last night off Macdonald Park wharf by F. J. Todd, a barber. Hennessy, who was a Wolfe Island farmer, was drowned July 16th, along with Jno. Kaskey, while trying to cross from the city to Wolfe Island.

ONE HUNDRED DEAD ONE THOUSAND HURT FIVE MILLION GONE

Special to the Review.

Rome, July 25.—Fully one hundred persons are dead, one thousand injured, as many more homeless and property worth $5,000,000 has been destroyed as the result of hurricanes which have swept Northern Italy, according to the latest dispatches. It is believed that when the full reports have been received from the country districts, with which communication is still crippled, the damage list and death roll will be found even larger.

Troops and army supplies are distributed through the affected region. Refugee camps have been established, together with special hospitals at the most important towns struck by the storm including Seronna, Solaro, Lonate and Revellesca.

MOTHER AND CHILD DIED TO-DAY

An extremely sad double death occurred this morning at Nicholls Hospital, when Mrs. Hugh Cruickshanks and infant child both passed away.

The deceased was the wife of Mr. Hugh Cruickshanks, baggageman at the G.T.R., and was thirty-two years of age. She was born in the township of Hope and was a daughter of Mr. John McAllister.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

NEWEST WAY OF CATCHING A LUNGE

Probably the most peculiar and original capture of a 'lunge that was ever effected in the long years of unusual catches was the bona fide landing of a huge one, about half a mile below Young's Point on Saturday evening by Messrs. E. Hatton and C. A. Radcliffe, of the local office of the Bank of Montreal.

Even the most imaginative angler couldn't conjure up such an extraordinary catch, which is but another conclusive proof that truth is stranger than faction.

The two principals of the capture were paddled when they observed a monster 'lunge moving lazily along the surface. A sharp crack from the paddle stunned the fish. Mr. Hatton reached out and shoved his hand down the 'lunge's throat and managed to haul it into the boat, not before he had his hand lacerated.

This morning the 'lunge was weighed in W. H. Hamilton's grocery store, Simcoe street, and balanced the beam at twenty pounds. It was three feet eight inches in length.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S. BUYS PARK OF THIRTY TWO ACRES

Negotiations were closed to-day by which St. Peter's T.A.S. purchased 32 acres of land from Mr. John Chambers the site of their annual picnic on the Otonabee. The land, which will be used for park purposes, is on the eighth concession of Monaghan and five miles from the city. Sections of it will also be sold to persons wishing to build summer cottages on the property.

The price paid was one thousand dollars.

PETERBOROUGH C.C. WON FROM BRINTON'S ELEVEN

The cricket match between the Brintons and the Peterborough C. C. played at the oval, Saturday afternoon, was won by the former eleven, and the contest was well played and interesting throughout.

The premier game of the old country is getting a strong foothold in this city, and the hundreds of Englishmen who have come to make their home here will be pleased to learn of this. There are many good players and numerous others, who would develop into splendid cricketers and all are asked to attend the practices, which are held at the oval Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week. The Peterborough C. C. will play the C.G.E. team next Saturday at the oval at 2.30 o'clock sharp.

The teams and scores Saturday were as follows;

PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. Ferguson took 8 wickets, Mr. McArthur 7 wickets, Mr. Moriarty 2 wickets, Mr. Coleman 3 wickets.

A GAME OF SMILES

The game opened. Molasses sticking fine. Smallpox catching. Cigar was in the box and had plenty of smoke. Horn was playing at first base and Fiddle was playing at second base. Corn was in the field and Apple was umpire. When Ax came to bat he chopped and Cigar let Brick walk, and Sawdust filled the bases; Song made a hit and Twenty made a score. Every foot of ground kicked and said Apple was rotten. Ballon started to pitch and went straight up. Then Cherry tried it, but was a wild one.

When Spider caught the fly the crowd cheered. Old Ice kept cool as the game went on until he was hit by a pitched ball and then you ought to have heard Ice Cream. Cabbage had a good head and kept quiet. Old Grass covered lots of ground in the field. Organ refused to play, so Bread loafed and put him out. In the fifth innings Wind began to blow about about what he could do, and Hammer began to knock, then trees began to leave. Knife was put out for cutting first base.

There was lots of betting on the game, but when Glass fell they went broke, but Soap cleaned up. They all kicked when Light was put out. The way they coasted Peanut was a fright. Balloon went up in the air when Pigs began to root. The score was 1 to 0 when Apple told Fiddle to take his base. Oats was shocked. Song made another hit and Trombone made a slide, but was put out. Meat was out at the plate.

ON ICE

Under a splashy Panama,
The West Ends' magnate stands,
The Duke, a mighty chief is he,
And talks to beat the bands,
And the feelings of this brand new team
Are countless as the sands.

SPORTING COMMENT

The T.A.S. team will practice on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Riverside Park. All players are urged to turn out and be on hand at 6.30 o'clock.

Out in New Westminster the players of the two teams playing for the Minto mug saw the first game reproduced by a moving picture machine, a few days following the exhibition.

Manager Clark Griffith, of the Reds, has made a novel proposition. Becoming somewhat peeved at the criticisms of the Cincinnati sporting writers, he has proposed that on a certain day in September the baseball writers run the Reds and the opposing team, and that he, the visiting manager and the umpires write the stories of the games. The writers have accepted the challenge, but it is very doubtful if the scheme will ever come off. Griff always did talk a lot.

MODEL MILITARY CAMP

American Troops Will Occupy It at the Canadian National

The Model Military Camp at the Canadian National Exhibition will be occupied by American troops this year. The 65th Regiment of Buffalo, 600 strong, will be there the first week and the 3rd Regiment, N.Y. National Guards, twelve companies strong, the second week. This will furnish a splendid opportunity of comparing Canadian and American military systems.

BOXING

John May, in Montreal Herald.

At risk of causing some good people shocks,
I hold that all men should know how to box;
That every youth, ere out in life he start,
Should have a training in the "manly art.",

"An advocate of quarreling!" you exclaim!
Not so; to minimize it is my aim.
The quarrelsome are not the men that know
How to administer or dodge a blow.
The brawler seldom knows the way to fight;
He starts the row and then gets out of sight!
The scienced boxer ne'er provokes attack;
But if it comes he doesn't turn his back.
The bully is a coward in his heart—
Brute force his notion of the "manly art."
And I have known one touch of scienced fist
Place him for life upon the "civil" list.

No man can say how soon he must defend Himself, his goods, a woman, or a friend;
One scienced blow, and it is done.
Without a bludgeon or a Yankee "gun,"
Or keen stilletto, letting out the life—
All bad, and needless to a manly strife.

The Englishman's a boxer, high or low;
What other nationality can show
A scanter use of poniard, club or "gun?"
Fist settles matters; and no harm is done.

Canadians, use the fist! At most it stuns;
No plunging poniards here, no pulling guns.
If all could box, our quarrels would decrease,
This is the high road to a stable peace.

Whitney Cannot Attend.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 25.—Arthur C. Jackson, president of the National Good Roads Congress, who was expected to arrive Saturday, has been detained in Chicago and will not reach here until Monday.

Word was received from Sir James Whitney that he would be unable to attend the congress, but an attempt will be made by Mayor Dores of Niagara Fals, Ont., and E. R. Dewart, members of the Canadian invitation committee, to have the Premier name an Ontario official to represent him Col. Roosevelt is also unable to come.

Search For Each Other.

Kingston, N.Y., July 25.—Louis V. Ziedel, a New York broker, with offices at 29 Broadway, shot dead Clements de Maron, an Italian, saloon keeper at West Park yesterday morning, and while officers were searching for him, spent several hours himself searching for officers to whom he might surrender.

Fall Wheat Thrives.

Winnipeg, July 25.—Yesterday's advices show that rains were general over the entire prairie country, and the benefit to grains in filling and quality cannot be accurately measured. Of course, however, this rain, while benefiting grains and fodder, is altogether too late to materially affect the quantity of the crop. Other than that the plump grain will weigh and bulk more than shrivelled or undeveloped grain, indeed, fall wheat cutting has started in Prince Albert, where the crop is good, and it will very shortly start in southern Alberta, the only place in the west where winter wheat is extensively grown. The rain will greatly benefit the farmers, who, despairing of obtaining a crop, have not plowed down portions of their grain, which it was hopeless to expect to head, in hope to eke out a scanty fodder crop.

What is believed to be tha smallest colt in the world, a 15-pound Shetland, was born recently on a Pennsylvania stock farm.

Downpour Saves Rainy River.

Rainy River, July 25.—Providence intervened in behalf of the fire-swept district of Rainy River and northern Minnesota yesterday morning. Rain is pouring down, and the thunder is booming its welcome flashes over the heads of the two places. A steady downpour started at 9.30 a.m., and a few hours of it completely put the town of Rainy River out of the danger zone.

During the early hours of yesterday morning things looked ominous, and at four o'clock Chief Code inspected the defences of the residential district, and with Mayor Hugh Carson took horse and rode for fifteen minutes through the black stumps along the river front, in cedar swamps and cordwood camps, and returned to the King Edward Hotel, the headquarters of the brigade, with the intention of putting all men on duty, but the rain descended and a great feeling of relief and thankfulness prevails in the community.

At one o'clock yesterday the mayor and council met the fire chief to decide whether under the circumstances the Winnipeg contingent will be kept over Sunday. This morning the Merryweather engine, hose wagon and equipment will be hitched on to the morning's regular passenger for Winnipeg.

Slaughter of Seals.

Washington, July 25.—Replying to the charges made against Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, by the Camp Fire Club of America, that the seals on the Pribylof Islands are to be slaughtered by the United States Government in the name of "protection," Benjamin S. Cable, secretary, in Mr. Nagel's absence in Alaska, has issued a statement, in which he declares that the course of the department has the support of the highest authorities on seal life in the United States, whose knowledge is derived from personal study of the seal islands.

Baldheads Will be Scarce When Parisian Sage Is Better Known

It Keeps Women's Hair Soft and Glossy Says Elizabeth House

No man likes to look older than he is. Every woman on earth absolutely abhors such a condition.

You may be 30 in years, but if you are bald-headed or grey, people will surely take you to be many years older, and you will be helpless to prevent.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage, America's greatest hair restorer, will keep you looking young and attractive.

It is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to make hair grow, and stop falling hair; to cure dandruff in two weeks; to stop itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Parisian Sage is the most invigorating, satisfying and pleasant hair dressing made; it makes the hair soft, luxuriant and handsome; it is especially praised by women who have beautiful hair. Parisian Sage is for sale by W. Madill at 50 cents a large bottle, or charges prepaid, from the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle.

"I have used only one bottle of Parisian Sage, and, of course, I can not praise it as much as if I had used more, but I find it a good tonic for the hair.

It keeps the hair soft and glossy, the scalp clean, and make the hair grow long, and stops falling hair.

"I recommend it to any one as a good tonic."—Elizabeth House, Manchester, Conn.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The Grand Trunk workshops will all be reopened to-day.

The Cornwall canal has been repaired and traffic resumed.

Bountiful rains are reported from Manitoba and parts of Saskatchewan.

Over two thousand men in the building trades have gone on strike in Chicago.

John McDevitt and John Hunter were killed at the Canadian Northern station at Beaverton.

The corner-stone of Beaverton's new Town Hall was laid by Mrs. McTaggart and Col. Henderson.

Westbrook & Hacker's brewery at Brantford was burned and the Empire Hotel at Brandon was badly damaged by fire.

Nearly forty persons are reported to have met death in a terrific cyclone that swept over Italy in the vicinity of Milan.

The Vatican has heard that there is danger of a revolution in Spain and Portugal and the formation of an Iberian republic.

Mrs. Thomas J. Millward of Hamilton started off from the Beach in a rowboat with two children and has not been heard of since.

WORK OF BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London, July 25.—The secrets of the conference regarding the veto power of the Lords are locked up in the Prime Minister's private room. He may open the door on Monday, when an explanation is promised, but more probably Parliament will adjourn early in August, with the understanding that the conference was a roving holiday commission to effect a compromise during the intervals between rounds of golf, grouse drives and yachting cruises.

Augustine Birrell is the most hopeful member of the council of eight, and he may be actively employed as negotiator until November. An agreement on the financial articles is in sight, if intimate associates of the leaders can be trusted, but the remaining problems of constitutional revision are considered hopeless by practical politicians in the existing condition of partisanship.

Opposition to the declaration bill is increasing on both sides of the Commons, but its passage on second reading next Wednesday is virtually assured by an agreement between Premier Asquith and Mr. Balfour, who are equally anxious to dispose of the vexatious religious question. The ministers are determined to send the bill to the Lords by the end of the week, and while there are signs of bigotry and irreconciliable hostility among the extremists, they will probably force the enactment of the measure before the recess.

THE MONGOOSE.

If He Can't Get Snakes He Will Fill Himself With Chicken.

"The loneliest living creature in the United States is undoubtedly the mongoose," was the statement made by Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York zoological park. "I believe that there are but two or three of the beasts in this country. Mongoose society, you might say, is not teeming with members. A mongoose is a pink eyed, flexible snouted little animal with a shape like a debutante. He is chiefly waist, that is to say. He is partial to snakes as a steady diet, or perhaps it might be better to say a wriggly or unsteady diet. He was one of the original 'catch-'em-alive-ohs'. A mongoose will kill almost any sort of an ordinary sized snake. Most of the constrictor family, however, are too big for him. But he's a bold mite of a furry creature and will tackle almost anything in the serpent line. A mongoose is easily domesticated and in many respects is quite as pleasing a pet as a cat or dog.

"The single objection to him is the fact that if he can't have his snakes he is only too willing to subsist on chicken. As a raider of henroosts a Maryland darky is a neophyte compared with a mongoose. That is the reason there are so few of him in this country. There is a federal law which absolutely forbids the importation of a mongoose. It really is a pity that this most companionable of animals has to be barred from the country. But you simply couldn't keep a chicken in the same neighborhood with a mongoose, safeguard the henhouses as you might. A mongoose can go any place he chooses. If there isn't a hole he imagines one and crawls through it. I'd like to keep one in the Bronx reptile house, but I couldn't afford to. He'd dine on my rarest snakes despite anything I could do to prevent him."—New York Press.

Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, known to medical men as tetanus, is one of those terrible maladies which occasion great suffering and baffle the best attempts of the profession to successfully treat them. Commencing with stiffness of the jaw muscles, tetanus quickly goes on to produce violent convulsions, which utterly exhaust its victim's strength, while preventing him from taking food owing to his being unable to open his mouth; hence its more popular designation of lockjaw. Investigations have shown that this dreadful disease is due to a microbe which commonly exists in ordinary soil and the surface mud of the streets, which habitat explains the reason why tetanus frequently attacks persons who have been injured in street accidents and had their wounds contaminated with refuse and dust from the roadway. Although no certain cure for tetanus is yet known, progress is being made with injections of anti-tetanic serum.—London Telegraph.

The World's Largest Crab.

The gigantic Japanese crab, measuring twelve feet, is probably the largest crustacean in the world. It is a type of the spider crab, which inhabits the waters of the group of islands forming the empire of Japan. The body portion is the size of a half bushel measure, while its two great arms, or "feelers," could easily encircle the figure of a man. Its eight arms, or legs, resemble huge bamboo poles and are extremely elastic, and if strung into one line they would reach to the top of a four storey apartment building. One of the extraordinary peculiarities of this crab is the faculty of assuming a disguise by affixing pieces of seaweed and sponges to the body.

Guarding the Cash.

The gypsies in some parts of Europe have a curious way of looking after the honesty of their money collector. The person intrusted with the mission of taking the hat around among the crowd has a living fly put into his left hand, while he holds the hat with his right. When he returns with the funds he must bring the fly back alive as a sign that he has not taken any money from the common property, but if the fly be wanting or even dead he does not get even his share of the money.

Pleasure of Wisdom.

"Your boy likes to go to school better than he used to," said the relative.

"Yes," answered Mr. Bliggins. "He's getting old enough to enjoy learning a lot of things so that he can come home and dazzle me with his superior knowledge."

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

DESOLATION AND DEATH

REIGN IN ST. PIERRE, THE CITY OF 40,000 DEAD.

Roofless Houses and Cavernous Windows Strike Terror to the Hearts of Sightseers—Vegetation Now Covering Many Ruins—It Was the Wickedest Spot in the Whole West Indies—Only One Man Escaped.

"It is men, not walls, that make a city," the Greek maxim ran, and more, it is living men, writes a correspondent of The London Times. For the walls of St. Pierre are there still, and probably no fewer than 40,000 of its inhabitants are there also. But they have been asleep these eight years now. And it is extraordinarily impressive, this white, sightless skeleton of a dead city.

In orderly rows the houses stand as seen from the sea, the streets rising in tier upon well graded tier back from the shore to the hills. But every street is silent, every house roofless, every window cavernous and blind.

Before us as we land lies the wide paved street which runs along the parallel to the waterfront. "And there," says the ship's officer who is my guide and counsellor, "was the wickedest spot in the whole West Indies. That row of houses, pink and white, to the left. The French nature, you know, away from the restraints of home, with the ignorance and docility of the blacks. It is a bad combination."

There are legends now of blasphemous rites which were in progress when the "fire from the Lord out of heaven" was rained down — legends which have probably grown up since the event. But there seems to have been good ground for that description, "the wickedest spot in the West Indies." And of over 40,000 people who were presumably in the city at the time only one man escaped, prisoner under sentence of death for murder confined in a cell impervious to the flames and fumes, and he only escaped to die of the shock a few days later.

Fifty yards of a narrow cross street bring us to what was once the chief business thoroughfare of St. Pierre. Wide and straight it runs for a mile in either direction, the roadway flagged with blocks of stone, fair and smooth, to where on each side the gutters are now green ribbons of herbage. Then the high curb rises, and beyond it the broad paved sidewalk (for the French build their colonial cities better than we) reaches to the straight, clean, orderly frontage of the stone built shops. Straight and orderly the line of the shop fronts still stands—the fronts only, with gaping doorways and empty windows.

Here and there, still fixed in the heavy masonry, the rusted clamps and pins show where doors were hung and window shutters fastened, but beyond the bare incombustible stone and metal not a fragment or shred of wood or glass or fabric remains of all the bravery of what was once perhaps the gayest and most fashionable shopping street in the West Indies. Now and again one gathers indications of what kind of stock was carried in this shop or that.

Here a mass of what was once coiled chain, now fused to a solid lump of metal, suggests that this was an ironmonger's. There the wreckage of a massive safe inside the wide windows, framed for display, makes it likely that a jeweler throve. But for the most part each building is full, choked to the roof, with ash and volcanic dust, dreadful to see, but merciful perhaps, for under it, buried deep, are things that one does not care to think of. No life, no perishable material survived that first strifling, withering blast, then came the rain of dust and ashes, covering all things as for the most part they remain hidden to this day.

And more mercifully yet nature in the tropics is prolific. Whatever man holds he holds only by keeping the vegetable armies at bay; wherever he retreats the ranks of the green things advance. From the hill slopes on all sides vegetation has pushed its way among the ruins. Seeds have been borne by the winds or dropepd by birds, or having long lain dormant in crevices of houses and in the uncongenial earth of the city, have now thrust up through the overlying layer of debris to the air. In every interstice, overhanging every wall from where the roofs once were, a mantle of foliage and blossoming shrubs has been drawn over the whole dead city.

Each straight paved street, with the white walls on either hand, is little more than a pergola, a grotto, an avenue cut through the green.

In the cemetery the tombstones lie split by the heat and twisted from their beds, and the monuments lie strewn broken on the ground, but it has little meaning now, this place where the resting places of a few hundred dead were honored with monuments of marble and granite, while all around in the city which is one vast cemetery lie 40,000 dead unmarked.

My ship's officer told me that he knew St. Pierre well before it was stricken, and no less than once a year since then he has been able to put in here and come ashore, and at each visit he has seen how nature has gained upon the town. In a few more years the streets will all be overgrown, the masonry buried in green and the forest growth will have pushed its way down to the shore.

This is one of the islands where the dread snake, the Fer de Lance, is found. In just such a broken wilderness as this, where under the flowers and the butterflies the wreckage of the city offers strange dark hiding places, it will love to make its home. Then few people will care to push their way through the thick growth among the ruins. Ships will content themselves with passing off shore, and passengers will be shown from a distance the place where once St. Pierre stood. But a little more and a generation will arise to which the story of the disaster is but a tradition, and the very site of the wickedest spot in the West Indies will be forgotten, its memory overgrown with myth and legend, even as the ruins of the city itself are already half submerged in flowers and green leaves.

Friendly to Organized Labor.

St. Louis, July 25.—Formal announcement was made Saturday night by J. T. Templeton, secretary of the Bucks Stove & Range Co., of the end of the fight with organized labor. The employes of the plant are to be organized. The secretary, however, did not state if the present workmen would be required to join the union.

The announcement in part says: "The present management is and always have been friendly to organized labor. We believe labor has a right to organize for its protection and advancement."

Harriman's Estate $71,053,737.

New York, July 25.—The records of the state comptroller's office show that the transfer tax paid on E. H. Harriman's estate was $675,000. This means that the estate was valued at $71,053,737. Many estimates had placed it at from $100,000,000 to $140,000,000. Few, even of friends of the family, thought it would fall below $80,000,000.

G. T. R. REPAIR SHOPS ARE RE-OPENED AS OTTAWA

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, July 25.—The Grand Trunk repair shops reopened here this morning, giving employment to 125 men thrown out of work when the strike started. Two additional freights were started on the Ottawa division, one to Parry Sound and the other to Montreal. A through freight from St. Albans, Vermont, arrived at Ottawa with 42 loads and two empties. Supt. Donaldson reports everything running satisfactorily, all passenger trains being on time. Freight is being received again.

MEN ON WIARTON DIVISION WENT BACK TO WORK

MEN GO BACK.

Special to the Review.

Montreal, July 25.—The Grand Trunk passenger service in this section is running in good order, and the freight service is fast assuming its regular proportions. The men on the Wiarton branch in Ontario asked to be taken on to-day and they were re-instated. Work was resumed in all the company's shops this morning. All but about three hundred went to work. The others, it is assumed, did not know work was to be resumed and went away for a holiday.

BROCKVILLE WANTS REGULARS SENT THERE

Special to the Review.

Brockville, July 25.—"The Council met here this morning and decided to ask that twenty regular troops be sent here. There are now 30 members of the 41st Regiment on duty in the day time and thirty at night, but everything is quiet. These men want to get back to work, and, moreover, in such cases as these it is generally outside troops that are brought in. At 2.15 it could not be stated definitely whether regular troops would or would not be sent to Brockville to replace the members of the 41st regiment doing special duty there now. A telephone message making the request has reached the military authorities, but a formal requisition in writing has to be made before the militia council or any of its officers could consider the question of ordering out regular troops. This letter will not reach here until five this afternoon, and it is proable that there will be a decision then or early to-morrow morning. If troops are sent, regular ones, they will be from Kingston, Ontario, that being the nearest point where there are regulars stationed.

FREIGHT TRAINS MOVE.

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 24.—Several freight trains were moved to-day by the Grand Trunk mostly way trains. The passenger trains appear all to be running on schedule time.

GOING WEST TO LIVE

Mr. R. F. McWilliams has been offered a partnership with a leading law firm in Winnipeg, and the Review understands that he will accept and remove to Winnipeg at an early date. He will enter the Aikens law firm. Mr. McWilliams is a young lawyer, and in the west he will have more scope to show his ability than here in Peterborough, and citizens in general will wish him the success which he truly deserves in his new home.

He has always been a prominent figure in Peterborough, although comparatively young man. He was mayor of the city during a trying time, and fulfilled his duties acceptably. Although politically on the other side of the fence, the Review is pleased to bear testimony to his straightforward character and general desire to promote the stability and improvement of the people at large. He has never in any sense been a truckler, and is qualified to occupy a large sphere of usefulness. He will be missed in his church connections and he will also be missed by those interested in manly sports.

Mrs. McWilliams has endeared herself to her many friends in Peterborough, and she will be a welcome addition to the social and intellectual life of Winnipeg.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE

Men Will Remain Firm it Was Stated to Review To-day

There are no new developments in the local strike situation to-day.

The men are firm and it is claimed that in spite of what is done in any other districts they will insist to the last in the stand they have taken in regard to obtaining the full standard scale.

Express is still being carried on the trains.

The passenger trains are all going as usual and ran pretty well on time to-day.

Y.M.C.A. BOYS ARE BACK AGAIN

All the boys arrived home Saturday from camp, sunburnt, but happy. This year's camp was one of the best if not the best that has ever been held at Sandy Point.

No accident of any kind happened to mar the pleasure of the outing, and the boys will long remember the pleasant times they had together, especially the camp fires at night with the smoke and the sparks ascending high into the air, while the boys sat with their blankets wrapped around them eating popcorn until they were almost asleep. and one by one they would move toward the camp ready for bed. Many of the boys were sorry that the camp did not last longer, thus showing that they enjoyed the outing.

AT CHEMONG

Chemong Park is now at the height of its summer popularity and everything about the Park hotel and grounds reflects the painstaking efforts of the genial proprietor. Mr. W. B. Rickey to provide the constant influx of guests with the best possible attention.

Guests are constantly coming and going.

Some of the registrations at the hotel last week were;—T. R. Boyd, Bobcaygeon, W. W. Dean, Peterborough; F. R. Hoyt, Pittsfield, Mass.; Miss Ethel Smith, Pittsfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Canfield and daughter, of Peterborough; Miss Mildred Sadler, Miss Geneieve Sadler, Lindsay; Mr. Thomas Lake, Mr. Gerald McFadden, Miss Margaret McGrath, Miss Florence O'Connor, Mr. Russell Robertson, Mr. Quinlan, Peterborough; Mr. M. J. Stacey, Rugby, Eng.; Mr. Sommerville, Hampton, Leicester; Miss E. Freeland, Buffalo; Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Peterborough; Mr. J. H. Taylor, Toronto;

On Sunday Mr. Hatton, Reggie Stratton, Ald. Bradburn and Mr. A. H. Stratton, autoed out and had supper at the hotel.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was also at the hotel in the morning.

A meeting of the Chemong regatta committee is called for Tuesday evening of this week. The following members are asked to attend;—Mr. Wm. McIlroy, Alex. Elliott, W. B. Rickey, W. S. Davidson.

Castle For Composer.

New York, July 25.—High on a crag of the Orange Mountains, not far from the Harriman estates at Arden, J. Pierpont Morgan is building a greystone castle in miniature, which, both for the spirit in which it was conceived and the manner in which the gift is being carried out, is perhaps without counterpart.

Mr. Morgan for many years has been a close personal friend of Homer A. Norris, the composer, who is also organist of St. George's Episcopal Church in Stuyvesant Square, New York, of which Mr. Morgan is senior warden. He believes that, free from the daily grind of city life, Mr. Norris can compose better music than in his town studio, and, in proof of his belief, he is building for the composer a $20,000 retreat in the forest.

Drowned In Lindsay.

Lindsay, July 25.—A drowning fatality occurred here yesterday morning about ten o'clock, in which Philip Walberg, a Jew, was the unfortunate victim. It appears that he and Mr. Applebaum, another Jew, with whom he was staying, went out to Tulley's Landing, a point situated about a mile north of the town, for a bath. There were a number of young men on the shore, but only one, Bert Johnston, made any attempt to save the drowning man, although he made several outcries for aid. The body was soon recovered.

A Valuable Collection.

What is described by Dr. Doughty Dominion archivist, as the best collection of medals in the world, has just been placed in the archives building at Ottawa. It is the gift of the British Government, and comprises every medal struck during Queen Victoria's reign, as well as every clasp issued. There are 214 medals in all, many of them being of gold. Their value sentimentally and intrinsically is very great.

THE BRONCHO SCOPE

London, July 25.—By the use of a newly-invented miniature searchlight telescope passed down the windpipe and into the bronchial tubes of a patient who had swallowed a shawl pin, one of the surgeons of King's College Hospital was recently able to see the pin; to remove it with forceps and to save the life of the patient who was apparently beyond human control.

The instrument called a broncho-scope resembles a small bent telescope fitted with lenses at different angles and has a tiny electric light which can be passed deep into the lung.

The day after the pin was swallowed an X-rays examination showed its position beneath the sixth rib, about an inch to the right of the breastbone. The patient was chloroformed, and then a 20 per cent solution of cocaine was sprayed over the larynx and windpipe. The telescope tube was then passed through the mouth and larynx down the windpipe.

Peering down the tube the surgeon finally located the pin, fixed head downwards in one of the branches of the windpipe, at a distance of thirteen inches from the mouth. A pair of very fine forceps on the end of a long flexible wire passed down the hollow telescope tube was then made to grasp the pin, and the pin, forceps, and telescope were withdrawn together. Within a few hours the patient was able to return to her home none the worse for an accident which before the invention of the lung telescope would almost inevitably have proved fatal.

EARLY MORNING WRECK ON C.P.R.

TWO FREIGHT TRAINS MET AT CURVE ONE MILE WEST OF INDIAN RIVER

Engineers and Firemen Saved Their Lives by Jumping From Engines, But Received Injuries—"Indian River" Left Out of Despatch Sent Trains on to Their Doom—Track Will be Cleared This Evening.

SUMMARY

THE INJURED.

E. J. TOUT, engineer; shoulder, head and ankle injured.
E. C. KNAPP, brakeman; right side bruised; cut on face.
R. FALLIS, engineer; shoulder dislocated.
THOMAS DARBY, fireman; right knee injured.
JAMES WEIR, right knee injured.

PLACE.

At a curve fifty yards west of the one mile post out of Indian River.

CAUSE.

The elimination of the words "Indian River" in the orders for the trains.

ESTIMATED LOSS.

Between $30,000 and $40,000.

From Our Man on the Spot.

The one mile post, west of Indian River, was the scene of a bad wreck this morning at four o'clock, when two heavy C.P.R. freight trains met while running at the rate of about forty miles an hour. The engineer and fireman of each engine and a brakeman of the east bound freight, jumped when they became aware of the situation and in taking this step, the men on the engines escaped what would have been, had they remained at their posts, death.

LONG FREIGHTS.

Both locomoties were drawing long freights, engine No. 641, running west and engine No. 614 going east. The former was rushing down a long grade when it met the other as it rounded the curve, about fifty yards from the one mile post.

REMAINED ON TRACK.

Neither engine left the track, but they telescoped each other in such a manner, that they were joined together as one. The first two cars of the west bound train, were thrown up on top of their engine and a flat car, loaded with glass, next to the tender of the east bound, was completely demolished and the next, a closed car, was smashed to such an extent, that not one in a hundred persons would believe that originally there had been two cars.

NINE CARS DESTROYED.

And yet only nine cars were destroyed, five of these being on the eastbound. These contained Quaker oats, and flour from the local mills, one car contained pickles. About half of the shipment of oats and flour was saved and piled up on the bank. The eastbound too, had a large number of cattle in the middle of the train, but these were not injured.

A SLIM CHANCE.

Judging from the appearance of the two engines, it is safe to say that neither the engineers or the firemen would have escaped with their lives. While the cabs were not very badly damaged, the amount of wreckage, from the cars and the manner in which they were thrown upon the engines would have meant at the least, fatal injuries.

INJURED ATTENDED.

Word was sent to this city and at five o'clock Dr. Young went down on an engine and caboose to attend to the injuries of the wounded. They were brought to the city and taken to the Nicholls hospital. Both engineers were suffering from very severe injuries received in the jump from the engines. Brakeman Knapp and the two firemen got off with injuries which, while painful, were not severe. The engineers, Tout and Fallis, are still in the hospital, but the others have returned home. All the men live at West Toronto.

TRACK CLEARED TO-NIGHT.

An auxiliary from Havelock and one from Toronto are at work on the wreck and the line should be cleared early this evening. The track was not torn up and the rails were but slightly twisted, and this was only where the engines met.

THE CAUSE.

A Review representative, who was on the spot soon after the wreck occurred and learned from one of the officials of the railway that a mistake was made in the orders for the trains. The words "Indian River" were left out and the wrong station for passing was given.

THE LOSS.

The loss will be in the neighborhood of $35,000. The engines can be put in running order again and several of the cars can be repaired. It is fortunate that no lives were lost, and the damage under the circumstances, is not as great as it might have been.

PASSENGERS TRANSFERRED.

The passengers travelling each direction were delayed somewhat, but were able to continue to their destination by service on either side of the wreck. The passengers of the early morning train did not arrive here until 12.30, and those of the 11.28 were taken on and transferred to the train waiting on the east side of the wreck.

The affair gave many of the passengers with cameras a good opportunity to secure pictures of the wreck. Mr. Harvey Staunton secured six splendid pictures.

One lady passenger who was on the passenger train from Montreal, was unable to stand the excitement, and had to be attended by a trained nurse, who was also a passenger.

THIRD WRECK.

This makes the third wreck on the C.P.R. in this vicinity within three weeks. One occurred at Caladar, which is some miles east of Haelock, another at Myrtle, but this morning's occurrence caused the greater amount of damage to the railway.

Conductor Was Taken Ill.

Conductor Boundy, of the Toronto train, was taken seriously ill yesterday afternoon in Port Hope, about 4 o'clock, and required the services of a doctor.

His place is being taken by Trainmaster D. Shields.

STITCHES BEATING HEART

Philadelphia, July 25.—Holding the beating heart of a living man in the palm of his left hand, while, with his right he made five stitches, between the beats, into a wound made in the organ by a knife when the victim was stabbed during a quarrel, Dr. Francis Stewart, chief visiting physician at the Pennsylvania Hospital, has probably saved the life of Joseph Spence.

After sewing up the wound, yesterday, Dr. Stewart put the heart back in its place, stitched up the incision in the side, and Spence was sent back to the ward with a good chance of revovery.

WHAT A MATCH DID

Long Beach, Cal., July 24.—Four accidents resulted from the attempt of Mrs. Walter Martin to clean bed-springs with gasoline yesterday. Mrs. Martin took the springs to the front porch, sprinkling gasoline over them and applied a match. The leaping flames severely burned burned her neck and hands. Floyd Martin, a son, heard his mother's screams, and seeing the flames, turned in an alarm of fire.

A blind woman, who occupies the room from which thes prings were taken, went to her bed to lie down, and fell through to the floor, receiving a blow on the back of the head, which rendered him unconscious for an hour.

Miss Orva Martin, the 16-year-old daughter, ran several blocks to summon her father, and on the way back fell in a fit of hysterics.

Miss Lulu Long, a sister of Mrs. Martin, after rendering assistance to both the injured women, fell in a faint as she was ascending a flight of stairs.

BELLEVILLE OLD BOYS' REUNION

Belleville, July 26.—The Belleville Old Boys' reunion, so far has been a most unqualified success. Visitors by the thousands are here from all points of the compass. Last night the official reception was held in the 15th armories, when the visitors were welcomed by the mayor, and Sir Mackenzie Bowell and other prominent people made brief speeches. The procession yesterday afternoon was the best thing of the kind ever seen here. Five bands were in it and the floats shown were handsome.

Investigating Graft Charges.

Woodstock, July 26.—The special committee of the County Council, appointed to investigate the graft charges, have had detectives working in the county, and it is said that some incriminating evidence has been hung up. The council will be called together in a few days to receive report of committee, when developments are looked for.

APPEALS FOR HELP

Judge McLachy Says Campbellton Must go if Succor is Not Forthcoming.

Campbellton, N.B., July 26.—In a statement yesterday, Judge McLachy, chairman of the Campbellton finance committee, asks: "Do the people of Canada think it worth while to save this town, or do they calmly contemplate its extinction? Before the 11th of this month, we had an enterprising and energetic municipality with a happy population. Now many of them have gone away, never to return, and the remainder are living in tents, looking to the public to provide them against the winter. What has been done for them already is totally insufficient, but I have faith in the response of the people of the Dominion, if they are made aware of the actual suffering here."

Although none of the cash contributions received yesterday were large, they indicate sympathy with the town's position. The total cash received is now $40,273.

MAKES WIFE TRADEMARK

Baltimore, Md., July 26.—"The American man makes his wife the trade mark of his bank account. He uses her books, her clothes and her jewels to express his own business success," said Mrs. Donald Hooker, president of the Just Government League, yesterday.

"He himself cannot wear gems and elaborate clothes to prove to his associates that he has made money, so he urges extravagant costumes, extravagant homes and extravagant entertainments on his wife."

"Do you think, then, that fashionable women are useless?"

"As a whole and as a working body they are not worthy of consideration," replied Mrs. Hooker. "Some individuals who rise above the petty frivolities become wonderful powers for good and advancement. Mrs. Belmont and Mrs. Mackay, for instance, have done much excellent work."

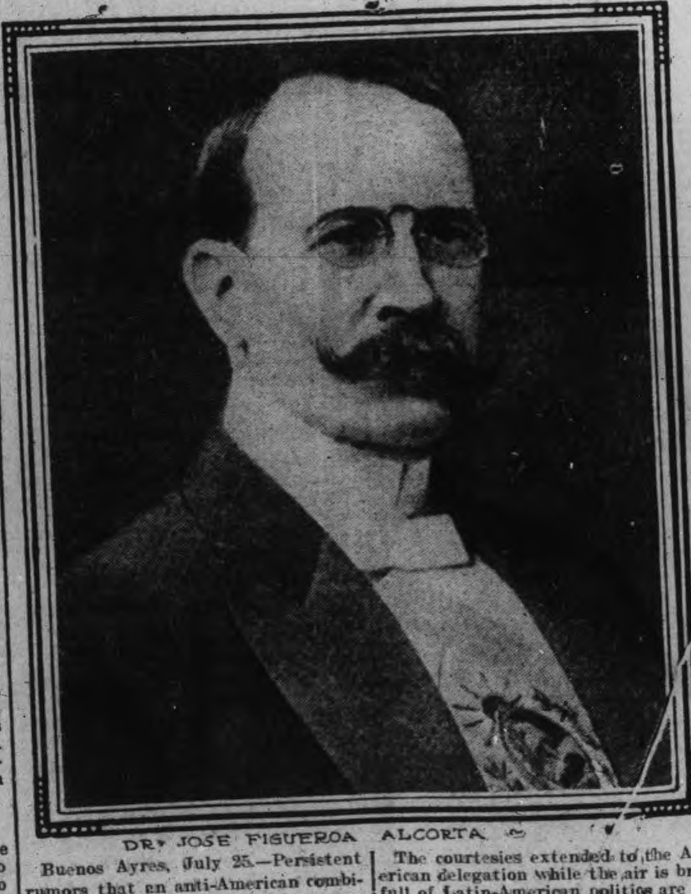
BODY OF CALL BOY FOUND IN RIVER

Belleville, July 26—At an early hour yesterday morning the body of a young man was found in the River Moira, and it was later identified as Michael Horn, a call boy at the Grand Trunk station here, 19 years of age. He was last seen Friday evening. How he met his death is not known. The face was in a badly bruised condition, and it is thought he fell off the Grand Trunk bridge and drifted down the river. His pay check was in his pocket, and no foul play is suspected. Coroner Yeomans decided that no inquest is necessary. The young man was lately acting as a brakeman.

Big Yawl Feared Lost.

Detroit, July 26.—Grave fears are entertained that three women, two men and a boy, all of Detroit, who left here at 8 o'clock Sunday morning in the yawl Comfort, a 46-foot cruising craft, and have not been heard from since, were drowned in the gale which swept Lake St. Clair on Sunday afternoon.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.



DR. JOSE FIGUEROA ALCORTA

Buenos Ayres, July 25.—Persistent rumors that an anti-American combination would be brought to light when the fourth Pan-American conference convened, have been effectively quieted by the invitation extended to Mr. Henry White, chairman of the United States delegation, to reply on behalf of Pan-America to the opening address of Senor de la Plaza, Argentine Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The courtesies extended to the American delegation while the air is brim full of Latin-American politics are interpreted as significant.

Mr. White was received by President Alcorta, with the Diplomatic Corps during the parade an dfestivities in celebration of the ninety-fourth anniversary of the Argentine constitution. Mr. Sherrill, the American Minister, entertained the delegation at dinner.

HONDURAN REVOLUTION

Washington, July 26.—Official reports of the uprising against the Honduran Government and details of the progress of the revolutionary movement were received at the State Department yesterday from U. S. Minister McCreery at Tegucigalpa.

The first conflict mentioned by the Minister took place on Friday at Peurto Cortez, where the revolutionists attacked the barracks. The attacking party was repulsed and its leader, Gen. Marian was killed. An uprising at Sanpedro was reported by the Minister as having been suppressed after the capture of several persons.

WAS A VICTIM OF INJUSTICE

Ottawa, July 26.—An error by an Ontario physician seems responsible for an apparent case of injustice by the immigration branch. A man named John Butler, who came out from Norwich, England, in 1905, spent three years in Canada and "went home" in 1908, returning in March, 1909. He then entered the employment of a farmer at Thorndale, near Toronto, but while at work in a hayfield he suddenly fainted. He claimed it was a sunstroke, but the local doctor, who was called in stated that he had an attack of epilepsy. The immigration regulations specifically debar epileptics, and Butler was taken to Montreal and held during investigation. He has just been released, the Government paying his expenses back to Thorndale.

Searching For Andree.

Winnipeg, July 26.—Martin Rosendohl of Stockholm, Sweden, is in Winnipeg on his way north to see if he can find any trace of Andree, the Swedish explorer. A short time ago stories came down from the north that Indians had relics of the party.

LITTLE CHANGE SEEN IN THE STRIKE SITUATION

President Hays Refuses Hon. Mr. King's Last Offer to Intervene and Arbitrate Differences in G.T.R. Strike and Declares That He Proposes to Fight it Out to a Finish.

Toronto, July 26.—Little change was effected yesterday in the railway topography at Mimico. Five freight trains were moved—two east and three west. But, barring one of the latter, which left at 10 p.m. with four threshing machines and two threshing engines of the American Abel Co. for the Northwest, all were lightly loaded. Nevertheless, R. H. Crew, the yardmaster, claims they carried off the residue of perishable stuff. In the morning, between 8 and 11, two pulled out for London and Stratford, and one passed through from Sarnia to Belleville, while at 6.15 p.m. a second came in from Sarnia on its way to York.

No less than thirty-eight special constables were picketed about the yards, several of whom were out on their posts without shelter throughout the greater part of Sunday night's storm. Everything seemed peaceful, running smoothly and in an almost harmonious way. A group of strikers, ex-switch, yard and brakemen, loitered about the Church street crossing, chatting amicably with the pickets and throwing jocose Billingsgate at passing strikebreakers.

Some alarm was taken in the yard office near 5.30 p.m. when the report of a shot rang out from a neighboring field, just as a locomotive shunted a caboose past that locality. Where it came from no one could exactly ascertain.

Early in the morning a switch tender, who had never written the rules, was dismissed from the G.T.R. service for refusing to flag yard engine 1,560 on the main line. The yardmaster says the reason of the latter's dismissal was because the man became so scared of the strikers that he was unable to obey orders.

The night yardman has given in his resignation, and has been replaced by the car checker, A. Hawthorn.

The reopening of the G.T.R. shops here yesterday gave resumed employment to 645 men, divided: machinists, 125; blacksmiths and helpers, 220; freight sheds, Simcoe street, 300.

Want's Militia's Help.

Brockville wants twenty regular soldiers to protect G.T.R. property, to relieve the militiamen, who want to get back to their jobs. Four summonses have been executed charging disorderly conduct on Friday night. One defendant pleaded guilty and paid $1 and costs. Two of the other parties charged cannot be found. The authorities have the names of several others against whom action will be taken for a breach of the peace, including a number of women, who were more active than the men in inciting the law-breakers. William H. Kerr, a hockey and lacrosse player of note, was arrested yesterday charged under a section of the criminal code with "acting in a manner likely to cause damage to valuable property." He is held without bail.

Murdock Scornful.

Montreal, July 26.—"Eighteen freight trains? Why, that isn't two per cent. of their freight business," said Mr. Murdock, when shown the Grand Trunk freight statement in which that number of trains was scheduled as moving yesterday.

Will Not Arbitrate.

Ottawa, July 26.—The Minister of Labor stated yesterday morning that in view of President Hays' refusal to submit the strike differences to a board of arbitration, as suggested by the Government, there was little further that the Department could do at present beyond awaiting the result of the pressure of public opinion, which is on all sides demanding a speedy settlement of the strike. There is no law to compel the company to accept the principle of arbitration; and if, as is apparent from President Hays' last reply to the Minister, the company is now prepared to fight the strikers to a finish, the Government has no power to intervene and compel the appointment of a board of arbitrators. President Hays' reply to Hon. Mr. King's third request for a definite statement of the company's attitude is apparently final.

The Minister, in acknowledging it yesterday morning, calls the attention of the Grand Trunk president to the fact that so far as the records of the Government show there has never been any real offer of arbitration from the company. Mr. King notes that President Hays' request for a board under the railway and labor disputes act did not involve any binding arbitration proceedings, as proposed by the Government, but merely a second investigation, which would in all probability have simply duplicated the work of the board of conciliation and investigation under the Lemieux act. The chief result of the correspondence of the past week between the Minister and the two parties to the strike is now the enabling of the public to determine better who is responsible for the refusal to settle the strike by arbitration. Hon. Mr. King states that the good offices of his Department are still volunteered for any mediation possible, but at present a deadlock seems to have been reached.

New C.N.R. Line.

Victoria, B.C., July 26.—The Canadian Northern has applied for a Dominion charter for a line of railway which it is proposed to run from Edmonton to Bear River, situated on Portland Canal. This will provide a shorter route to tidewater than the Grand Trunk Pacific's line to Prince Rupert.

N. B. London Offices Opened.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, JULY 26, 1910.

HIS MARK

The News, Prince Albert, wisely remarks, "This is the fly time, man, girl, and house varieties." The fly man we have with us both winter and summer. He is the kind that is sure that all the girls are fond of him when in reality he is only a joke, the fly girl of summer time is harmless and necessary to the complete fitness of a summer resort. She may be an heiress, she may be a clerk, she may be a school teacher, but whatever she is she is charming in the summer time. But in the fail, of course, she is entirely different. But the fly fly, he is our especial friend, protected by our authorities. The fly man leaves his mark on the pavement as he stands on the corner and decorates it with spit, the fly girl leaves her mark, the dent in her fellow's pocket-book. The fly fly. He leaves his mark everywhere.

BOUNTIES

Sundry Liberal Journals spend most of their time in shouting that the Liberal party is devoted to free trade, or at all events to low tariff. The low tariff song is being vigorously sung in the west just now. Let those who are disposed to yield credence to this consider the matter of the bounties. Paying bounties to favoured industries admittedly is extreme protectionism.

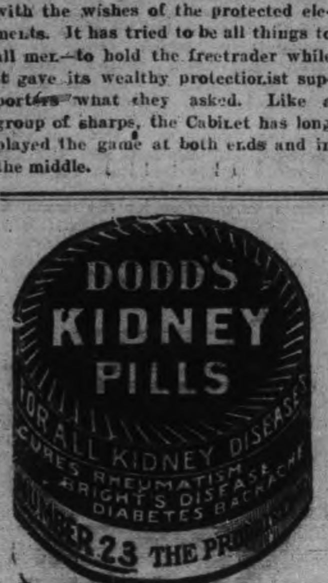
When the Laurier Government came into power it found that the payment of bounties had prevailed for some years on a small scale. Everyone expected the Government, with its "tariff-for-revenue" professions to abolish these. But those at the head of the iron and steel industries were Liberals. The bounties were continued. Then they were increased. Moreover the duties on iron and steel were left much where they were before. The anti-dumping regulations were invented to help the iron and steel men by hampering German and American competition.

As for the bounties, since the Laurier Government came into office it has paid out in bonuses to Canadian iron and steel manufacturers no less a sum than $15,480,329, made up as follows:

Bounties upon pig-iron	$6,835,607
Puddled iron bars	113,674
Steel	6,356,534
Steel manufacturers	2,174,514
Total	$15,480,329

Thus it has paid out more than a million a year for fourteen years. That shows how earnestly official Liberalism has kept its promise to eliminate the principle of protection and special assistance from the country's fiscal policy.

It is a very double game which the Laurier Government has played. For nearly fifteen years its newspapers talked low tariff to the farmers while its acts have been in complete accord with the wishes of the protected elements. It has tried to be all things to all men—to hold the freetrader while it gave its wealthy protectionist supporters what they asked. Like a group of sharps, the Cabinet has long played the game at both ends and in the middle.



CHIEF HOWARD'S HOLIDAYS

The Council have given Chief Howard holidays and granted him $50. He will attend the International Fire Chief's Convention at Syracuse. This is only fair. When Chief Howard goes to Syracuse he will go as a representative of Peterborough. He should not go half equipped. Fifty dollars doesn't go far when a person is on his holidays and a city like Peterborough doesn't want its representative stopping at anything but a first-class hotel. He should gather valuable information at the convention.

A QUESTION

Each Sunday recently there has been a death or two from drowning in the waters opposite or near Toronto. Monday and Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and Saturday go by in peace, on Sunday comes the alarm. Why is this? There must be a reason. Sunday is a day not to be spent in sad-faced silence in a room nor in hilarity on the water. Many a girl who says she is going out walking in reality sneaks down to the water and goes for a paddle with her beau. And a beau that goes paddling and sailing on Sunday is usually not the most careful escort. Is this an explanation? Or is there a certain recklessness that goes with the feeling that one is breaking the Sabbath, a recklessness that ends in the call for help, and the face in the paper, the crepe on the door and the funeral. The Almighty does not drown these people in vengeance. They drown themselves.

A CAUSE FOR ANXIETY

There was considerable anxiety among the Flies of Peterborough yesterday, and this morning they are worried again. The Council was to meet and it was feared that perhaps some action against their joyful, garbageful life would be taken. "I will roost in the spitton in the committee room and let you know first thing in the morning," said Prof. Bluebottle.

"Where?" asked the maggots. "You know we can't fly yet."

"Oh, right here on this garbage pile" answered the professor.

Then flew to the spitton and from there to a sugar bowl and taking a sip from a milk pitcher he returned to the company assembled this morning.

"No action, our life has been spared."

Then there was great buzzing in flydom and the maggots shook their tails and revelled in the stink.

But another fly came in. Prof. Bluebottle had got in the wrong spitton.

"The Council will take action in the garbage matter. We may be turned out of house and home."

There was a great stirring of the maggots and the flies went away, some to the dung pile and some to the parlor, some to the sick room and some to help the baby awake.

HIS MISTAKE

A reader of the Review has sent to this office a marked copy of the Toronto Telegram. It reads:

The breath seemed to suddenly leave the body of 17-year-old Joseph Bishop when he heard he was to spend six months among thugs, malefactors and criminals of all shades. The boy, a nice, clean looking chap, comes from Boston. Finding himself on the rocks in Toronto he took a bicycle from the kerb and sold it for something to eat. That was theft and the hand of the law hit him.

The Salvation Army put out a saving hand, but the law refused to see it. It demanded the boy. When the lad was up a few days ago Mr. A. R. Hassard appeared for him and elected to be tried by a jury. That would mean his waiting in jail till September. This morning Mr. Hassard was not on hand when the boy appeared and the lad pleaded guilty—anxious to get it all over. Then the sentence of six months in the Central fell like a heavy thud and the boy went down. Mr. Hassard came in later and tried to get the case reopened, taking all responsibility for the lad's change of plea. But the Magistrate was adamant. Counsel spoke of mercy. The lad was not known. This appeared to be his first offence. Would His Worship please reopen the case and allow his client to take chances before another judge?

"No!" replied Mr. Rupert Kingsford determinedly. "But I am glad to know there are some more merciful than I am."

This young man made a mistake. He should not have stolen a bicycle. He should have stolen a million. He should have waited and promoted a company, or done something big. We can offer him no sympathy. He was hungry and traded a bicycle that did not belong to him for something to eat. He ought to have registered at the King Edward or some other leading hostelry and given champagne suppers on other people's money. In short he is in wrong. He didn't get half enough. He might have done well as a stock broker or promoter. But a bicycle for something to eat, six months! It should have been life.

THE POINT OF VIEW

JOKE ON STRIKEBREAKER
Hamilton Herald.

The strikers tell an amusing story about an inexperienced trainman at Burlington the other day. The 5.30 train from Toronto stopped there because the order board, in front of the station was against it. The green conductor got out and signalled the engineer to go ahead, but the latter refused on account of the board being out. He told the conductor to "take it down," and the "breaker" started to climb the post to do so, instead of going in the station and operating it in the manner provided.

A POPULAR MAN.
Brandon Sun.

All men are popular—with themselves.

WHAT EVERYBODY KNOWS
Halifax Herald.

Knowledge is great!

Yesterday the world was flat; we know it. To-day the world is round; we are sure of it. To-morrow the world may be three-cornered.

We were positive we would pass through the tail of Halley's comet. Did we?

Yesterday the horse was the fastest thing in the world. This morning the locomotive beat the horse. This very afternoon the automobile beat the locomotive. And this evening, perhaps, the aeroplane will outdistance the automobile.

Yes, we are all of us very wise. None of us but can tell how this and that political question should be—must be—settled. The spinster school principal makes herself president of the mother's club. The city man is sure he could make money on the farm. The farmer could work wonders in the city. And every subscriber knows how to edit the newspaper better than the editor himself.

A SERMON IN RHYME.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
That gives you a bit of the heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten;
The letter you did not write;
The flower you did not send, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts at night.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way;
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say;
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
The gentle winning tones,
Which you had no time nor thought for
With troubles enough of your own.

Those little acts of kindness
So easily out of mind,
Those chances to be angels
Which we poor mortals find.
They come in night and silence,
Each sad, reproachful wraith
When hope is faint and flagging
And a chill has fallen on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our soul compassion
That tarries until too late;
And it isn't the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of a heartache
At the setting of the sun.

The Odd Bodice Cool For Summer Days.

SIMPLE LINGERIE BLOUSE.

Though by no means occupying the first place of interest, the odd bodice is still a very important adjunct to a comfortable wardrobe.

It is absolutely required for the street suit of coat and skirt, and fashion requires that the smart bodice match the gown material in color and be made with the utmost care.

White waists are plentiful, materials in these ranging from the coarsest linen to the most diaphanous nets, laces and gauzes, yet even these charming garments, while gaining prestige, fail in the elegance that the gown colored waist will give.

Thin stuffs are the favorite for this waist, such fragile textures as chiffon, crepe de chine and net being used, the garment showing what may be dubbed a tailored finish.

A decided feature with the new waists on shirt waist lines is the horizontal trimming, this being shaped with bands of lace or embroidery between tucks.

Such up and down lines replace the yoke effects to a great degree, and as they induce the slim look still required for all raiment these trimmings are likely to have great vogue.

For all waists, whether practical or fine, the belt is a needed detail, and since the beaded and plain rubber ones fit any figure and hold the waist snugly they are in great demand, exquisite ones in evening shades appearing as frequently as the graver day effects.

The wide, soft ribbon or bias of velvet that fastens with a jaunty bow or rich buckle of some sort is the species of girdling most used, however, for the dressier waist, and there is no end to the pretty possibilities of this style.

Extreme Fashions.

It is to be hoped girls who belong to the business world will not adopt extreme styles of clothes for wear during office hours. For example, however pretty the square or round "Dutch" necks may be, they are entirely inappropriate for wear in an office. And if Dame Grundy does not approve of these for working hours how much more sternly must she frown upon the exaggerations of the style that are sometimes seen, when the Dutch becomes almost decollete, so much below the throat line is it cut. To tell the truth, no girl of refinement would wear one of these extreme models in the street. She knows that such an exposure of neck is suitable only for the house, and her sense of fitness of things would be sadly jarred at appearing so gowned elsewhere.

The girl who goes downtown to business must dress conservatively unless she wishes to be seriously misjudged, for, though she may only be called silly because of the fashions that she adopts, it is far nicer to be treated with dignified consideration than to be the butt for office jests.

It must not be thought that because girls work in offices they are not to have the pleasure of wearing soft and dainty articles. The fact that they do work should make it possible for them to buy pretty dress accessories, but the time to wear them is not in office hours. They have evenings and Sundays to wear fripperies and to "dress."

Conservatism in dress for business hours does not mean unattractiveness or dowdiness. On the contrary, nothing is more becoming and smarter than a plain frock immaculately clean, well put together and worn with distinction. A girl so attired attracts desirable attention by her air of good breeding and style.

The Sunbonnet Babies.

The newest in china dishes for children's use are the sunbonnet designs. The pictures of the little sunbonnets are familiar to us, though no one has ever caught a glimpse of the faces beneath. Neither are they revealed on the cups, plates, etc., but the pictures are there in all their bright colorings, and the little figures will, I am sure, be pleasing to the youngsters using them.

An oatmeal set is only 25 cents, cups and saucers, also mugs the same price. Sugar and cream sets are 50 cents, plates 35 cents and large bread and butter plates 50 cents each.

In food value, a pound of raisins is equal to a pound of bread, two pounds of milk, five pounds of bananas or six pounds of apples.

Slaked lime, mixed with three times as much sand, will scrub grease spots from a wooden floor.

FIGHTING A CROCODILE.

An Exciting Adventure In a Chinese Timber Camp.

A chance visitor to a Chinese timber camp has related in Chamber's Journal an extraordinary adventure with a crocodile, in which the crocodile came very near having the best of it: "Arriving in my boat at the little jetty or landing place, I was astonished to find Graham, the white man in charge of the camp, lying on a rattan couch within a few yards of the bank, with a heavy express rifle across his knees, gazing intently at a rough fence erected in the stream.

"Throwing myself down near him in the welcome shade, I learned the following story:

"Two nights before Graham was sleeping peacefully in his little palm leaf house in a clearing about twenty yards from the river bank, when his dog began to growl. Graham turned out and walked round the hut to ascertain the cause of the disturbance, but, seeing nothing, addressed himself to the dog in his usual vigorous sailing ship language and retired to bed again.

"Five minutes later he was once more aroused by a yelp from the dog, and this time, really annoyed, he seized a stick and sallied forth to inflict punishment on the disturber of his dreams. Suddenly a dark form glided swiftly from the shadows, and Graham felt himself seized by the right knee as in a vise. Stooping to free himself, he found he was in the grip of a large crocodile, whose teeth were firmly embedded in the flesh.

"Backward and forward the struggle swayed, the crocodile striving to pull its destined victim to the water's edge and Graham, hampered as he was by his imprisoned leg, fighting for his life to reach higher ground. At last the beast, hurling its victim to the ground with a shake of its powerful head, began to drag him swiftly toward the water.

"Poor Graham, feeling, as he expressed it, that it was 'all over bar the shouting,' determined to make one last effort for his life, and, taking advantage of a momentary halt as the brute was steering past a tree stump, he sat up, and succeeded in getting both his thumbs into the reptile's eye sockets—the only vulnerable part of a crocodile's head.

"The rest of the story is perhaps best told in Graham's own words, or as nearly as circumstances will permit:

"'As soon as I gets my thumbs made fast in 'is eyes, 'e opens 'is mouth to shout an' lets go my leg. Then first thing next mornin' the coolies lays 'is breakfast for 'im, as you see, an' I gets into this chair an' 'ere I stays, if it's a month.'

"Vainly I tried to persuade him to come away with me to the next station and see a doctor. I argued with him, I implored him, but it was absolutely useless. He refused to move from that chair till he had bagged his crocodile, and I was at last obliged to leave him, having dressed his leg and exhausted every known means of persuasion short of brute force.

"I met him again a week later in a hospital bed, suffering severely, but quite happy in the knowledge that the bones of that crocodile were bleaching in the sun outside his house."

Books of the Old Testament.

The Great Jehovah speaks to us
In Genesis and Exodus;
Leviticus and Numbers see,
Followed by Deuteronomy;
Joshua and Judges sway the land,
Ruth gleans a sheaf with trembling hand;
Samuel, and numerous Kings appear,
The Chronicles we wondering hear;
Ezra and Nehemiah, now
Esther, the beauteous mourner, show;
Job speaks in sighs, David in Psalms,
The Proverbs teach to scatter alms;
Ecclesiastes now comes along,
And the sweet Song of Solomon;
Isaiah, Jeremiah then
With Lamentations takes his pen;
Ezekiel, Daniel, Hosea's lyres
Swell. Joel, Amos, Obadiah's
Next, Jonah, Micah, Nahum come
And lofty Habakkuk finds room,
While Zephariah builds the walls,
And Malachi, with garments rent,
Concludes the ancient Testament.

The Certainty of Fate.

The Mohammedans have a fable which they repeat to illustrate the certainty of fate.

A sultan was once asked by his favorite, the grand vizier, for permission to leave at once for Smyrna, although a brilliant court fete was then in progress. Upon being asked his reason for such haste the vizier replied:

"Because I just saw the angel of death yonder in the crowd. He looked at me so earnestly that I know he has come for me. I wish to escape him."

"Go! Go at once!" said the sultan, who then beckoned to the angel and asked why thel atter had looked so earnestly at the vizier.

"I was wondering," replied the angel of death, "why he was here, for I have orders to kill him in Smyrna."

A Stroke of Business.

A writer who was very intimate with Frank R. Stockton says that when the Stockton family lived in Bucks County, Pa., Frank and his brother had a dog which they trained solely to hunt cats. The brothers were overhauled one day by a farmer whose cat they were chasing. To placate the farmer they gave him a dollar for a pig, which they took home. By driving away their father's pigs at feeding time they soon made their own the fattest pig in the pen and sold him a a profit of $7. Frank R. Stockton always considered the deal a tribute to his business acumen.

Meyerbeer and Thunder.

Meyerbeer, like Handel, composed best in a thunderstorm. He had a room made at the top of his house with glass roof and sides, so that he might enjoy these conditions to the full whenever they presented themselves. It is said that no beast of the field, no raven or nightjar, could scent the approach of a storm more unerringly than Meyerbeer, and nothing was allowed to interfere with his solitary enjoyment of it when it arrived. Wherever he was he would leave at the first premonitory rumble.

The town of Wabash, Ind., was the first to adopt electricity for general illumination, installing arc lamps in 1880.

JAPANESE HEROISM.

The Brave Record of the Loss of a Submarine Vessel.

Subjoined is the translation of a message written by Lieutenant Tsutoma Sakuma, who was in command of the Japanese submarine No. 6, which foundered while maneuvering in Hiroshima bay. The message was found in the conning tower of the submarine after she had been brought to the surface:

"It is with the deepest regret that I write this message to describe the loss of this boat with my fellow officers and men, due to my own fault. I would here specially mention that all steps have been taken to raise her, my comrades and men working earnestly and calmly till the end. I ordered the ship to dive with the engine running, but as I found she went down too far I tried to shut the valves which admit the sea water to the ballast tank, but unexpectedly the chain working these valves broke, and I was left helpless, unable to control the boat. Meanwhile the tanks filled with water, and the boat went down at an incline of about twenty-five degrees. After striking the bottom the water began rushing in, the switchboard was immersed in water, all electric lights went out, the fuses burnt away, and the boat was filled with poisonous gases, so that we experienced the greatest difficulty in breathing.

"Under these conditions we worked our very utmost with the hand pumps to empty the main ballast tank, which, I believe, we succeeded in doing, although we could not read the gauges owing to darkness. No electric current was available, as I mentioned before, and our last hope of rising to the surface lay in working the hand pumps only.

"I write this in the dim light coming from the conning tower—11:45 a. m.

"I earnestly beseech his majesty to grant me forgiveness and to succor the families of my comrades and men who have lost their lives in this perishing boat. This is my only wish. 12:30 p. m.

"It is with the utmost difficulty that I can breathe, though I am sure we must have blown out the gasoline entirely from the tanks. I cannot continue any more. 12:40 p. m."—London Times.

A DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

She Tried to Fascinate Hubby and Was Rudely Shocked.

She had been reading that a titled Englishwoman advises married women to flirt with their husbands. As she finished the article her husband came home to dinner.

She ran to meet him.

"A little late tonight, duckydoozelum," she said, with a dimpling smile.

"What's that?" he growled.

She looked at him archly.

"Don't you dare to kiss me!" she tittered.

"Gee," he cried, "I don't intend to! What put that in your head?"

She half closed her eyes and coyly surveyed him through the drooping lashes.

"Don't you want to sit here by me on the sofa?" she cooed.

"No, I don't. Why, you told me only yesterday that the springs were getting weak. Aren't you feeling well?"

She laughed softly and shot him a side glance and drew in her cheeks and flashed her white teeth and perceptibly winked.

He drew back suddenly.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded. "Who are you imitating? Can't you make your face behave?"

She picked up the paper she had been reading and flung it into the decorated wastebasket.

"There's nothing the matter with me," she coldly replied.

"Just mugging for fun, eh? Glad of that. Stimson was telling me today about a lot of trouble his wife is having with her facial nerves, and I was afraid you'd caught it. Ain't that confounded dinner ready?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Popular Jokes.

The most popular joke which has been published in any language in the history of the world is stated to be that which appeared in an obscure corner of the Punch almanac for 1845. It read, "Advice to persons about to marry—Don't!" It would be interesting to know who was its author. Another, founded on a similar subject, was the "Advice to persons who have 'fallen in love'—Fall out!" One of the most brilliant things that ever appeared in our contemporary was the brief dialogue between an inquiring child and his impatient parent: "What is mind?" "No matter." "What is matter?" "Never mind."—Westminster Gazette.

Beeswax In Cracks.

Ugly cracks or splits in furniture can easily be filled in with beeswax so that the marks will hardly show. Furniture dealers cover up many blemishes in this way. Slightly soften the beeswax until it becomes like putty, then press it firmly into the cracks and smooth the surface over with a thin knife. Sandpaper the surrounding wood and work some of the dust into the beeswax. This gives a finish to the wood, and when it is varnished the cracks will have disappeared. Putty is sometimes used in the same way, but it soon dries and falls out, while beeswax will remain in practically forever.

District Organizer of Woodmen Makes Encouraging Report

The Woodmen of the World met last evening at their lodge rooms, and a large number of new members were initiated.

Mr. H. T. Collins, District Organizer, is meeting with unusual success, having secured 42 new members in just four weeks' time.

He is aiming to secure a class of 100 by September 1st.

AT REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. G. Metheral was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of her mother to the Little Lake cemetery. A short service was held at the house at 2.30 o'clock, at which Rev. R. Pogue, of St. Paul's, officiated.

Many beautiful floral tributes were received, and amongst these were a wreath from the officers of the 57th Regiment, and one from the sergeants.

Out of town mourners were W. C. Metheral and William Thompson, of Rochester; W. Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Clarke, Toronto; Mr. McIlwain, Balla, Muskoka, Wm. Thorndyke, Port Hope; Mrs. Stewart, Denver, Col.; Miss Williamson, Toronto; Miss Dennis, Palmyra, N.Y.; Mr. Williamson, Millbrook.

The Annual Gathering

The annual gathering o' the clans of Belleville, Madoc and Campbellford Camps of the Sons of Scotland, will be held this year in Campbellford on Thursday, August 11th, and promises to be the largest celebration of the kind in Ontario this year. The prizes are larger than before, and already a large number of entries entries have been received.

Passed With Honors

In the report in a Toronto paper of the candidates who passed the examinations of the Toronto College of Music Miss Bernice Giroux was not given the proper standing. She was only credited with an ordinary pass whereas she should have been mentioned as passing with honors. It appears the error was made in the returns from the college.

A shrill voice came over the 'phone at four o'clock this afternoon and said: "Put in the paper that Melson Kilgour caught a 24 pound fish this morning."

FORMER PETERBORO' BOY IS HONORED BY HIS FRIENDS

The members of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. were on Friday night, at the call of the president, assembled in the association rooms to bid farewell to their general secretary, Mr. H. A. Pearson, who is about to enter a new field of labor in Toronto.

After a few items of business had been dealt with, the following address was read to Mr. Pearson by the secretary of the board, the presentation being made by the second vice-president.

Mr. Pearson was presented with a fruit holder.

At a garden party at Mr. Gillen's in the city on Friday night, Mr. Pearson was again the recipient of a gift, this time in the shape of a basket. Mrs. Pearson was at the same time presented with a handsome handbag, both gifts from the Young Men's Bible Class of St. Paul St. Church, of which Mr. Pearson was the teacher.—St. Catharines Standard.

Mr. Pearson is well known in Peterborough, having been a resident of this city a few years ago. He was a former physical director and also secured his wife here. Mrs. Pearson is at present visiting her father, Mr William Hill, Union street.

His brother, R. B. Pearson, is foreman in the Review press room.

THE NEWS FROM THE LAKES

Oak Orchard, July 25.—Fishing is particularly good in the vicinity of Buckhorn and Pigeon Lake this season, and some good catches are recorded by those summering at Oak Orchard, Miss Perry being one of the fortunate ones, having landed a magnificent fifteen pound 'lunge one day last week, and other similar catches occur quite frequently.

VIAMEDE.

Viamede is now full of guests from the leading Canadian and American cities.

The fishing is excellent, good catches being made by Mr. Toner, of Syracuse; Mr. Culver, of Rochester; Mr. F. Gordon, of Ottawa, and Messrs. Ratcliffe and Book, of Toronto.

MASQUERADE BALL.

A masquerade ball was held in the dancing pavilion, which was a great success, the costumes being exceedingly pretty and appropriately representing the different characters. ASPHALT BLOCK PAVEMENT DECIDED UPON---60-40 TAXATION BASIS

At the special meeting of the City Council called last night to consider the question of paving George street from McDonell to the C.P.R. station and Charlotte from George to the G.T.R., all the members of the Council with the exception of Ald. Buller and Ald. Morgan were favorable to having the work proceeded with this year. Ald. Buller thought it would be a serious mistake to do the paving as the city was too heavily taxed now. He was seconded and supported by Ald. Morgan, but all the other city fathers came to the conclusion that the time had come when the paving should be done and it was decided to advertise to this effect.

ASPHALT BLOCK FAVORED.

Ald. Hicks, chairman of the Board of Works, read a report from City Engineer Hay in which the latter gave his opinion on the desirability of the different kinds of pavements examined by the deputation from this city in the various places visited. In most places sheet asphalt was looked upon with the greatest favor, but an extensive and expensive repair plant was necessary in connection with this style of pavement. Asphalt block impressed Mr. Hay as the best class of pavement for Peterborough. His chief objection to sheet asphalt was the initial expense of laying and the heavy cost of repair.

On the sections of George and Charlotte streets to be paved there would be 4,914 feet by 46 feet to be paved by the city and asphalt block cost from $2.65 to $2.75 a yard.

In other cities the pavements were paid for generally in ten yearly payments and the City Solicitor recommended in his report on the matter that this system of payment be adopted in Peterborough.

MAY BE PETITIONED AGAINST.

After the intention of the City Council to pave the streets has been advertised the paving may be petitioned against and a month will be allowed for this purpose. Those entitled to petition against the paving are property holders and those tenants on over a ten year lease.

Ald. Buller thought that if the Council wanted to pave the streets they should consider the buying of granite blocks, such as may be obtained from the Stony Lake quarries. It was thought, however, that these would be too noisy and not the type of pavement material for the main section of the city.

SIXTY AND FORTY TAXATION.

Ald. Hicks' motion to have the paving by asphalt block done on a taxation basis of 60 per cent property and 40 per cent general, was seconded by Ald. Duffus and carried, a motion by Ald. Morgan and Graham that the tax be a straight frontage, being defeated.

BRIDGE LAMP POSTS.

Tenders for eight lamp posts for the Smith street bridge were submitted as follows:

FIRE CHIEF GETS HOLIDAYS AND GRANT OF $50 TO GO TO THE CONVENTION

Council Re-considered Application for Vacation Which Was Turned Down by Fire, Water and Light Committee—Ald. Graham Takes Exception to Committee's Treatment by Council

The Fire, Water and Light Committee at its last session refused to grant any holidays to Fire Chief Howard. The chief persisted in his request, however, to the extent of carrying it to the City Council, and last night at the council meeting a letter was read from the chief, in which he asked that the holidays be granted. He requested two weeks, and expressed his desire that he be granted fifty dollars expenses, in connection with a trip to the annual Fire Chiefs' Convention at Syracuse.

When the letter was read Ald. Buller moved that the chief should have two weeks' holidays.

WOULD'T TRUST FIREMEN.

Ald. Morgan, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, said he was willing personally that the chief should have two weeks' holidays, but he didn't think the men at the fire hall were competent to look after a serious fire in case one broke out, and for this reason didn't favor granting the vacation.

However, the motion was seconded by Ald. Turner that the chief get the holidays and carried.

THE FIFTY DOLLARS ALSO

There was no provision made for the chief being given $50, however, and Ald. Duffus thought there should be. This would be only according him the general treatment, Ald. Duffus held. The vote on this phase of the matter showed an even show of hands, and the mayor decided in favor of giving the chief the grant.

Ald. Graham objected to the way in which the Council disregarded and overrode the decisions of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. If he were the chairman of that committee he would hand in his resignation, he said.

Two weeks were also granted City Clerk Armstrong, T. Q. Quartermaine and Robert Wilson, the janitor of the city buildings.

GARBAGE LEGISLATION MAY BE GRANTED YET

The garbage question has at last received some consideration at the hands of the City Council.

Ald. Turner, just as the Council was on the eve of adjournment at last night's meeting, made the suggestion that the garbage by-law should be referred to some committee. The matter, in his opinion, was an important one, and one that demanded proper consideration. Ald. Duffus shared his views and seconded his motion.

The motion was carried, and the matter was referred to the Property Committee, which will report to the Council.

WM. BLACKWELL

ALD. PHELAN DECLARES THAT HE IS NOT MR. TUDHOPE

And Says He Knows Nothing of the Man Who Wrote the Letter to the City Council About Elm for Sale—Ald. Hicks Offers to Wager for Charity on Price of Elm

Last night's meeting of the city council was called principally for the consideration of the street paving question, and there were not the usual number of communications to deal with.

S. H. Salls protested against an income taxation for $37.45.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

The city solicitor wrote re the paving of George and Charlotte streets and pointed out that it was necessary to get the permanent approval of three-fourths of the council before the by-law could be passed.

A POINT OF DISCUSSION.

Thomas Tudhope sent a communication to the council that he had elm trees for sale at a lower figure than elm was supplied to the city by R. Hicks & Co. The price given the latter was $24.00 per thousand.

At a previous meeting of the council Ald. Phelan stated that he had been credibly informed that the price asked by Hicks & Co. was too high.

At last night's meeting Ald. Hicks took occasion to explain that the price he asked was quite legitimate for rock elm. The elm he supplied was not swamp elm.

And he furthermore challenged Ald. Phelan to prove by any means that the price was too high. He would wager a stated sum that it was not, and the loser in the matter would donate his portion of the wager to the Children's Aid Society.

Ald. Phelan's betting proclivities didn't seem to be enlivened by the defi and he explained that he had been given his information by a reputable authroity and was prepared to give the name of the party to the mayor, and trusted that this course would be satisfactory to the council. It was approved of and the mayor was satisfied with the name himself.

Ald. Hicks insinuated that Ald. Phelan was of the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde type of alderman when he stated that he believed the Tudhope who was writing about the elm for sale was none other than Ald. Phelan, and said that he would continue to do so unless that gentleman could produce Mr. Tudhope.

Ald. Phelan characterized Ald. Hicks' assertions as preposterous, and said he had no connection with the letter in any way.

OTHER COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication from Hon. J. R. Stratton drew attention to the petitions being circulated for the Legislature to grant municipalities the privilege to fix their building taxations. He thought that Peterborough should fall in line and petition for the privilege.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

A letter from Dr. Wightman, secretary of the Riverside Park, to Ald. Hicks, was read. Dr. Wightman referred to the fact that the Penman games would come to Peterborough and would like to have the city co-operate in getting the track in good shape by allowing the roller to be used for an hour or so to help level the track.—Referred to Chairman Hicks of the Board of Works with power to grant the request.

A by-law for the changing of the polling sub-divisions was introduced by Ald. Duffus and passed its various readings.

Mr. A. L. Talbot, 412 George St., wishes all accounts with him be settled by the 15th of August at 243 George, corner Sherbrooke. Those not settled at that time will be placed in the hands of a solicitor.

REPLY FROM T.A.S. TO WEST END MANAGER

To the Sporting Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Allow me a little space in your valuable paper to reply to a letter over the signature of the manager of the West End Baseball Culb, which appeared in Saturday's paper, and which, I think, needs a lot of pruning before the naked truth is visible.

In the first place I wish to say it is not our desire to engage in newspaper controversy of any kind, as I believe that only tends to make a lot of hard feelings, and create erroneous ideas, but as secretary of the champions of the City Baseball League for 1910, I think it is only fair to our supporters and to ourselves we should reply to said letter and state our position in the matter.

Whether Mr. Oldham was approached by our manager on the 18th inst, regarding a game here for last Saturday, or whether it was merely their excursion to Lindsay that was discussed, that does not explain the West End Club's position at a meeting of the league which was held on Tuesday evening, 19th inst., in the West End Club rooms, and at which I was present. At that meeting we were asked by the league if we would consent to play a game with a picked team from the P.A.C., Strathconas and West Ends for last Saturday, but before I had a chance to reply Mr. Oldham stated emphatically he would have nothing to do with a combination team, that he was running one team and one alone. This, of course, put the P.A.C. and Strathconas out of any division of the gate money, small though it might be, but which, nevertheless, was the main object in playing such a game. A team from the Straths and P.A.C. versus the T.A.S. nine was considered a very poor drawing card, so the matter was dropped, for at that time the West End Club were banking on going to Lindsay on the 23rd inst. The next day we were informed the West End Club excursion to Lindsay was off, and had a personal call from the the aforesaid manager, trying to arrange a game with us for last Saturday. We would gladly have accommodated him but for the fact that three of our regulars were out of town and a fourth in the hospital, and feeling that, in the interests of the game, we should not put on a weak aggregation and to be fair with our many supporters, and especially the spectators who would witness that game, we refused to play. The next thing to happen was a sweeping challenge to the league by the manager of the West End Club, offering to play any or all combinations from the other three clubs, which, of course, was out of the question, as far as we were concerned, and which, to any fairminded follower of the national game in this city, must have seemed funny indeed, for, having beaten the West End Club two out of three games, and having been proclaimed champions of the City Baseball League for 1910, it would seem rather farcial indeed to then turn around and have to call on outside assistance to defeat the West End Club again.

Now, to come down to the point, Mr. Editor, we wish to challenge the West End Club to a game on Riverside Park next Saturday, 30th inst. We will play our regular team, providing they will do the same. We have not got the habit of importing players or of allowing them to drift in quietly from across the line. We will not even consult the Prince Edward County League or the Toronto City Amateur League for the latest "dope" on the game. We will accommodate our opponents as far as side bets are concerned, as much as they are willing to lose, and we will let the public judge on the outcome of that game whether last Saturday's victory warranted such an increase in the size of yellow and black hat bands as has lately taken place in this city.

We hope the manager of the West End team will see his way clear to accept this challenge, and trust he will be willing to back his team, and do so substantially.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in advance for this insertion, I am

Yours truly,
J. J. DORRIS,
Sec'y T.A.S. Baseball Club.

CUP STAYS OUT WEST

New Westminster. B.C., July 23.—By thirteen goals to five New Westminster defeated Montreal this afternoon in the second game of the lacrosse championship of Canada, bringing the total scores of the series to 23 to 11.

Montreal was outclassed from the start, the heart being taken out of the players when they saw two goals scored against them in the first six seconds of play. The match was much cleaner than had been expected, not a single man being wilfully badly hurt. Only 5-minute penalties were given, the smallest penalty handed out in any game on the coast. Westminster were penalized a total of thirty minutes, and Montreal forty.

The discovery of six new chemical elements recently was claimed by a group of German scientists.

ON ICE

The heights of ball teams reached and kept,
Were not attained by "hot air" fights
But they while their companions beefed
Were out at practice all week nights.

In yonder lot where once the Straths won out,
Will still be famous by another bout,
There, cross the bridge and gently flowing stream,
The West End big gun, hopes to leads his team.

A man he is to all the fair fans dear,
And passing rich—he hopes his club to clear.

SPORTING NOTES

"I won't fight Kaufman in Philadelphia on Labor Day. About another fight with Jack Johnson I have nothing to say. I want to be left alone, that's all." This statement of Jim Jeffries would seem to indicate that the big fellow is not going to mix up in the boxing game again soon. Jeffries said to his manager: "If you get any more telegrams offering me fights, you just go right ahead and answer them; nothing doing, without consulting me. I don't want to talk fight."

No Fight Pictures For Chicago.

Chicago, July 26.—Moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno will probably not be shown here. Chief of Police Steward returned yesterday from his vacation, and immediately afterward issued an order placing a ban on all moving pictures showing illegal acts, such as murder, robbery, etc. As a prize fight is illegal in Illinois, the order is taken by the picture men to mean that the fight pictures are barred.

Fear Chinese Aggression.

London, July 26.—Strong reinforcements, reported from Simla, as joining the British garrisons along the Thibetan frontier, leave no doubt that the Government is anxious over the danger of Chinese aggression against India.

A CUNNING WEASEL

The Trick by Which He Trapped His Big Rat Antagonist.

Once a sawmill in a western town was infested with rats, which, being unmolested, became very numerous and bold and played round the mill among the men while they worked during the day. But one day there appeared on the scene a weasel, which immediately declared war on the rodents.

One by one the rats fell victims to the weasel's superior strength, until only one very large, pugnacious rat was left of the once numerous colony. The weasel had a go at the big rat several times, but on each occasion the rodent proved more than a match for his slender antagonist and chased the weasel to a hiding place.

Shortly thereafter the weasel was seen busily digging under a lumber pile near the mill. He was engaged for some time, but later appeared again in the mill, seeking his old enemy. He soon found him and at once renewed hostilities. As usual, after a lively tussle the rat got the better of the argument, and the weasel ran, pursued closely by the rat, straight to the hole under the lumber pile.

He ran in, still followed by the rat, but immediately reappeared round the end of the pile and again dodged into the hole behind the rat. Neither was seen again for some time, but the weasel finally reappeared, looking no worse for the fight.

The curiosity of the men in the mill being aroused, they proceeded to investigate the hole under the lumber pile. They found that the weasel had dug the hole sufficiently large at the opening to admit the rat, but had gradually tapered it as he proceeded until at the other end it barely allowed his own slender body to pass.

When the rat chased him into the large end of this underground tunnel he quickly slipped through, and while the rat was trying to squeeze his large body into the smaller part of the hole the weasel dodged in behind him, caught him in the rear and in a place where he could not turn round and finished him at his leisure.—Harper's Weekly.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, July 25.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, offerings were 700 cattle, 800 sheep and lambs and 50 calves. Supplies of cattle were ample to fill all requirements. Choice steers sold at 6¾c; good at 6¼c to 6½c; fairly good at 5¾c to 6c; fair at 5¼c to 5½c, and common at 4½c to 5c per lb. There was a good demand for sheep and lambs. Sales of yearling sheep were made at 3½c to 3¾c per lb., and spring lambs at from $3.50 to $5.25 each. Calves met with a ready sale at from $3 to $12 each.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market, receipts for last week were 2641 cattle for export account, and 1200 cattle, 1600 sheep and lambs, 1477 hogs and 1200 calves for local consumption, while the supply to-day consisted of 1000 cattle, 950 sheep and lambs, 575 hogs and 250 calves. Prices showed no material change from a week ago. Sales of choice steers were made at 6¾c; good at 6¼c to 6½c; fairly good at 5¾c to 6c; fair at 5¼c to 5½c; common at 4½c to 5c, and carloads of northwest ranch cattle changed hands at 6¼c per lb. There were some very choice cows offered, which brought 5¾c, and the lower grades sold at from that down to 4c per lb. The trade in bulls was fair at prices ranging from 3c to 5c per lb.

Hog prices scored a further advance of 35c to 50c per cwt. The demand from packers for supplies was keen, and this also tended to strengthen situation. Sales of selected lots were made at $10.50 to $10.75 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. In small meats an active trade was done. Yearling sheep sold at 3½c to 3¾c per lb., and spring lambs at $3.50 to $5.25 each, while calves brought from $3.50 to $11 each.

Women and Children First.

London, July 26.—Tales of splendid heroism, in many cases resulting in death, were told in messages received yesterday from Tokio regarding the sinking of the Tetsurei Maru off Chindo, Korea, with the loss of 101 lives.

When the little vessel, fog-bound, crashed on the shore and began sinking there was no panic. Officers and men calmly began filling the lifeboats with passengers, women and children first, but there were not enough boats to hold all. When the last life raft had been shoved off from the sinking vessel the crew gathered on the highest deck and calmly stood there to await death in the sea. Survivors report that there was not a single instance of cowardice or panic in the wreck.

Earthquake In Wyoming.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 26.—A series of severe earthquake shocks at Rock Springs, Wyo., beginning Sunday night and continuing yesterday. They were so severe that houses were rocked, and the walls of a coal mine moved so badly that work at the mine had to be abandoned. The first shock was felt at 6.30 p.m. Sunday, and the last at noon yesterday.

COAL RESULTS

We sell the very best quality of hard coal, as good as we know how to buy.

¶ Are you getting results from the coal you are now using? Are you sure it's good? Are you burning it the right way?

¶ There is a deal of difference in how you handle the range or furnace. Our long experience tells us that fact, and we are ready to advise any in doubt as to the best way to make use of coal as fuel.

HOW MANY REALIZE THE MARVELLOUS VALUE OF FRUIT

IN CURING MANY DISEASES ?

Wonderful Success of "Fruit-a-tives" —The Famous Fruit Medicine

Fruit juice consists of about 91% water, 8% of sweet matter, and only 1% of an intensely bitter substance. Careful experiments show that it is this bitter principle, which is the active or medicinal material of fruit juice.

Under certain conditions, the bitter principle can be made to replace or transform some of the sweet atoms in the juice, thus making a new compound which is much more active medicinally than the ordinary juice.

Many fruits were analyzed and it was found that the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes gave the best results. These fruit juices, having been made more active by the secret process of changing the sweet principle into the bitter, are combined with tonics and antiseptics and made into tablets. These tablets are the famous fruit medicine—"Fruit-a-tives"—known in every part of Canada for their wonderful curative qualities in diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c.

HOT ON THE CRIPPEN CLUE ALL EYES ON STR. MONTROSE

Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard is Coming Along on S. S. Laurantic Behind the Montrose and Expects to Land on Same Day in Time to Make the Arrest at Montreal,

London, July 26.—That Dr. Howley H. Chippen and his former stenographer, Ethel Clara Leneve are aboard the Canadian Pacific steamer Montrose, now on the high seas bound for Montreal, is Scotland Yard's firm conviction. Of the many clues followed to the final ending, that which led to the docks at Antwerp, and to pursuit across the ocean, seems to hold out the best prospects for the capture of the two.

Inspector Dew is now aboard the steamer Laurentic, which is due to arrive at Montreal on July 30. That is the date also of the arrival of the Montrose, but the Scotland Yard officials hope the inspector will reach Rimouski in time to arrest the fugitives. The inspector knows both Dr. Crippen and the Leneve woman personally.

According to one despatch received here from Montreal, the Canadian Pacific Railway officials were in receipt of a wireless message from the Montrose, stating that the Leneve woman had been found and confessed. Another despatch from Montreal stat-ed that the company had not been able to establish communication with the steamer.

Gave Names as Robinson.

Antwerp, July 26.—The two passengers on the steamer Montrose, who have been the object of inquiries by the London police, were booked at the steamship office as John Robinson and John Robinson, jr. The elder gave their ages as 50 and 17 years. They booked passage for Montreal on July 13 by the steamer Montrose, sailing on Aug. 31. Later Robinson asked that they be transferred to the same steamer sailing July 20, provided they could obtain a two-berth cabin.

The passenger agent for the line recalls their appearance. Upon being shown a photograph of Dr. Crippen, the passenger agent said:

"If Robinson is Crippen, the photograph flatters him."

He added that Dr. Robinson did not show any nervousness, and that the boy did not speak at all. Robinson wore a light grey suit and a grey hat. The agent did not detect any American accent.

SUSPENSION OF IMMIGRATION LAWS ONLY ADMITS NAVVIES

Department at Ottawa Vigorously Denies Charges of Collusion With Grand Trunk and Issues Orders to Officials on Boundary to See That Law is Strictly Enforced.

Ottawa, July 26.—At the Immigration Department yesterday, it was stated emphatically that there had been some misunderstanding as to the effect of the recent order which allows railway construction hands to come into Canada on the same terms as agricultural laborers, namely, without showing themselves possessed of $25.

"The company claims," said one of the officials, "that the immigration regulations have been enforced with undue severity against train hands coming from the States to seek positions, while the strikers assert that strikebreakers are being brought to Canada in open and flagrant disregard of the law."

He said the Immigration Department was enforcing the law strictly, and in proof of the assertion, pointed to the telegraphed instructions sent to the inspectors when the strike commenced.

These instructions read as follows: "Make no alteration on account of Grand Trunk strike in dealing with train crews bringing trains across international boundary. Regarding any persons entering Canada as passengers with intention of accepting work as trainmen, whether temporary or permanently, examine and admit if they comply with the regulations, otherwise reject."

It was pointed out that, under the act, the officers are powerless to reject a man simply because he is a strikebreaker, if he is otherwise desirable, but if he is a vagrant or a criminal, if he is coming from the country of his birth or naturalization on a ticket purchased therein, or if he has not $25 belonging to himself in his actual and personal possession, or if in any other way, he fails to fully comply with existing regulations, he will be immediately refused entry.

Asked as to what action they had taken on the rumor that strikebreakers were being furnished with transportation from one United States point to another, with instructions to drop off at a Canadian point, thus avoiding the examination of the officials, he showed telegraphed instructions reading as follows:

"Parties traveling through Canada on tickets between United States points, and remaining over and commencing work in the Dominion, are illegally in the country and liable to a fine of $100 and to be arrested without a warrant by any immigration officer and deported. Give full publicity, newspaper and otherwise, to this law, and do your best to have it enforced. Question all suspicious cases closely take ticket number and personal description, and wire or 'phone such to our officers at the points where they should leave Canada, requesting our officers to arrange with American immigration officials to check out the through traffic. Hurled Into the Canal.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 26.—An unknown Italian was killed and three others severely injured by a premature explosion by which ten men were hurled from a raft into the swift waters of the canal. All were hauled out alive, but one, whose body is still in the water.

Mob Drowns Negress.

Munroe, La., July 26.—Undentified men broke into the jail here yesterday and carried off Laura Porter, a negro woman prisoner, keeper of a resort where several white men are reported to have been robbed. It is believed she was thrown into the Ouachita River and drowned.

The woman had been warned to leave town many times prior to her recent arrest for larceny. Officers declared they had unearthed a conspiracy which showed that the woman had lured intoxicated white men to her resort., where they were beaten and robbed by negroes. About the same time that the City Jail was broken open, five short term prisoners made their escape from the Ouachita parish jail. Two of these are negroes, the other three white men. This jail delivery has no apparent connection with the seizure of the negro woman.

Died From Pounding.

Sherbrooke, July 26.—L. B. Doherty died shortly after being attacked by Wm. Richards at Philipsburg Sunday, who is being held pending an investigation. Both men were employed in the marble quarry, and considerable drinking went on between Saturday night and Sunday morning. They got into an altercation and finally came to blows. Richards, who is 28 years of age, pounded the deceased, who is 45 years of age, unmercifully about the head with his fist.

Dog Gave the Alarm.

Sherbrooke, July 26.—Joseph Marchand, 26 years of age, committed suicide at Magog Sunday. He left his home with his dog and jumped into the lake with his dog, but the latter got away, returned home, and attracted the attention of people there. They followed the dog to the water and found the remains.

Believed to Be Murder Plot.

Cleveland, July 26.—Mrs. Mary Emerson, 52 years of age, who died in a hospital here on Thursday, is believed by the police to have been poisoned, as the result of a murder plot. Two women companions, who were with her when she was taken ill, have disappeared.

CRUDE ASTRONOMY.

Russian Peasants Have Queer Ideas of Sun, Moon and Stars.

We have it on no less authority than that of Caesar that the Druids taught their disciples many things about the form and dimensions of the earth and the heavens and a body of doctrines on the motions of the stars. Even death itself was to them an astronomical fact. They held that from this life we pass to take up our abode in one of the heavenly bodies. That they firmly held to this belief is manifest from the fact that they had no objection to lending money to be repaid in the other world. They looked upon the passage of life in much the same way as we regard a journey across the Atlantic.

There is no doubt that even now in various parts of Europe the views of the peasantry as to the heavenly bodies and celestial phenomena have changed but little from those of their predecessors of a thousand years ago. A Russian contributed to the bulletin of the Astronomical Society of France has given the results of his observations on this point extending over ten years. The astronomical lore of the Russian peasantry of the north, center and south is limited to a knowledge of the existence of the sun and moon, of three constellations, of the Milky way, of one planet, of comets, shooting stars and meteors. The sun is to all a mysterious and beneficent being.

The moon covered with ice and snow is ever in flight from its brother, the sun. Upon its disk may be seen unmistakably portrayed the murder of Abel by Cain, the latter being done to death by a pitchfork. Chill are the lunar rays, and woe betide the child of man who shall sleep unprotected therefrom! From the horns of the crescent much useful information as to the forthcoming weather may be derived by the learned in such things.

The stars are lamps or candles which are lit and extinguished daily by the Eternal. A shooting star is the soul of one who has just passed away. Comets are heralds of war and famine. No Russian ever forgets that the Napoleanic war followed the great comet of 1811.—Westminster Gazette.

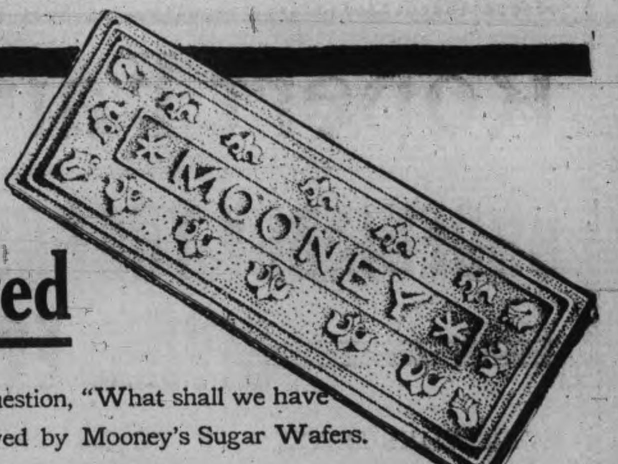
The Dessert Problem Solved



That ever bothersome question, "What shall we have for dessert?" has been solved by Mooney's Sugar Wafers.

This delightful confection is taking the country by storm. Mooney's Sugar Wafers are now served in thousands of homes in place of pastry and cake. At dinner, luncheon or tea—for picnics or the unexpected guest—with berries, fruits, ices or beverages there is nothing better.

Waded to Church.

The inhabitants of Cruit, an island in Donegal, have been sorely inconvenienced lately by the collapse of a bridge. At a District Council meeting it was stated that there had been a football match in the district, and when the teams were crossing the structure it caved in with a crash, many of the passengers being immersed in the sea. The people going to mass on the following Sunday had to wade across up to their waists, and after the service wade back again. Such heroic conduct ought to get them a new bridge soon.

Old Heads Found.

An important archaeological "find" was made near Castlepollard, County Westmeath, Ireland, the other day, where some men were engaged making fences on a ranch. The relics comprised ten human skulls, some of which had teeth still left in them, shin bones, vertebrae and finger bones, as well as some swords of an old pattern and deer horns. The bones were all of huge size, and must have belonged to men of far distant times.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

OBITUARY

JOSEPH GALLIPEAU

A highly respected resident of Otonabee, Mr. Joseph Gallipeau, 58 years of age, died this morning, after a lingering illness.

He was born in Perth, and came to this country in his youth, settling in the township of Otonabee, concession 10, where he resided at the time of his death.

The funeral takes place at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

WARFARE ON CHARLOTTE ST.

There was lots of fur on Charlotte street this morning about ten o'clock when two Jews met. Both are interested in the distribution of clothing, on the weekly payment system, and one twitted the other, about a police court case of recent date and the scrappy ones came to blows.

The younger and lighter man won the bout and the features of his opponent are looking swell.

WRITING UP MANUFACTORIES

Mr. Edward Wright, of Toronto, is in the city writing up local manufactories for a Toronto trade journal.

Mr. Wright is a well known sporting and general writer. Last year he represented the Mail and Empire at the Minto cup games in New Westminster between Tecumsehs and New Westminster, and this spring accompanied the Toronto ball team to Virginia on their annual training trip.

POISON IN FLOWERS.

Dainty and Beautiful Blossoms In Which Lurks Death.

When the good friar in "Romeo and Juliet" reflected upon the properties of the simple flower, "within whose infant rind poison hath residence and medicine power," his observation embraced a goodly category of well known flowers whose secretions furnish the world with so many poisons.

For instance, the laburnum, which has been compared to a fountain of gold leaping into the sun—a most charming sight—is one of the most poisonous things imaginable, inasmuch as it is poison in leaf and flower and seed. Even the grass growing beneath it is poisonous by reason of its proximity to the innocent looking blossoms overhead, and it has been found necessary to guard against cattle eating this grass for fear of fatal results.

The bulbs of such dainty and beautiful flowers as the narcissus, hyacinth, jonquil and snowdrop secrete the most deadly poisons, not to speak of the oxalis, the monkshood and the foxglove, all of which furnish noxious liquors sufficient to destroy life.

To these may be added certain of the crocuses, the lovely lady's slipper, the quaint old jack-in-the-pulpit and the laughing little buttercup. The latter, despite its most innocent appearance, is one of the worst of the poisonous flowers. Even the cow is aware of that and carefully avoids it. The cousins of the buttercups, the peonies, the larkspurs and the rest, all contain toxic fluids.

Another source of deadly poison is the olenader tree, while the bark of the superb catalpa tree contains many deadly doses.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A reporter called on a rector to ask him if he had accepted a bishopric that had been offered him. The servant said that her master could not be seen. He was at prayer seeking for guidance. Then could the reporter see the rector's wife? "Oh, no," said the slavey, "you can't see her. She's busy packing up!"—Circle.

INDIAN RIVER

Special to the Review.

Indian River, July 25.—The lawn social which was held at Mr. J. R. Elmhurst's, was a great success financially and socially, strawberries were in abundance and the ice cream was very palatable. The lawn was nicely decorated with beautiful lanterns hanging from the boughs of the apple trees. Mr. Kidd's ice cream parlors have not been opened this season as yet, but we are in hopes they soon will be.

The carpenters have been very busy lately enlarging the village at Indian River by building houses, repairing etc.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fox have again gone to their cottage at Rice Lake. Mr. Fox says he can only stay a short while this season as business urges him to return to his law office in Toronto.

Miss Ada Elmhurst is home for her holidays.

It is thought that Messrs. Gib Elmhurst and Robert Hope will again undertake to get up the excursion over the locks as it was enjoyed so much last year.

MINISTER OF LABOR STILL HOPES FOR A SETTLEMENT

Special to the Review.

Ottawa July 26.—The Minister of Labor has not despaired of a settlement of the G.T.R. strike by arbitration. To-day he sent a further communication to Chas. M. Hays, pointing out that the public, and not the parties directly interested, were the heaviest sufferers. He calls upon the G.T.R. president to accept the government arbitration proposals.

Drunks Discharged

Two drunks, whom Chief Thompson took in tow yesterday afternoon about four o'clock, were discharged at the police court this morning. It was their first offence and the Magistrate was lenient.

"SEVEN" SOCIAL GIVEN BY CHARLOTTE ST. LEAGUE

Last evening's session of Charlotte St. Epworth League was devoted mainly to missionary topics, and a splendid programme of musical numbers was also introduced.

The meeting was conducted on a different plan to the general run of missionary meetings, everything hinging on the number seven.

The meeting opened at seven minutes to eight, there was seven cents collection, seven different kinds of refreshments, seven musical selections and seven papers on missionary subjects.

Miss M. Sherlock presided. After the usual opening exercises had been conducted, Miss Marion Lyle read an interesting paper on the work of Rev. Mr. Large, B.C.

A chorus by the girls' choir was then sung.

Miss Annie Rigby read a paper on the Galecian work in the west.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

The remainder of the programme was as follows:—

Paper on Domestic Missions—Miss Alma Frowde.

Solo—Miss Olive Howell.

Paper on Western Missions—C. Frowde.

Vocal Solo—Miss Maud Titterson.

Paper on Dr. Smith, of China—Miss Clayton.

Vocal Duet—Mr. Wesley Dartnell and Mr. Asa Huycke.

Paper on Rev. G. W. Sparling—Miss Pearl Bell.

Solo—Mr. Lee.

Paper on Rev. J. L. Bates, of Japan—Miss Sophie Elliott.

HYMN CONTEST.

After this part of the programme had been completed a hymn contest was indulged in and won by group number four.

Refreshments of seven kinds were then served, and the evening brought to a close.

To the energy and resourcefulness of Miss Mountjoy and the Missionary Committee, much of the enjoyment of the evening is due.

The accompanists of the evening were Mrs. S. Campbell and Miss Madeleine Morrison.

LITTLE GIRL SUSTAINED BAD COMPOUND FRACTURE OF LEG

Irene White, the little daughter of Thomas White, of Smith street, had her leg broken in two places last night, about 7 o'clock. She was playing with some other children and was accidentally struck with a brick. The fracture is a compound one of the right limb, between the knee and ankle.

Dr. Leach was called, and, assisted by Drs. Eastwood and Hammond, reduced the fracture, which is a very serious one.

The child was taken to Nicholls Hospital, and is progressing favorably, her physician states.

Suspended Sentence

William Wallace, a young, light bearded gentleman from Toronto, appeared before Magistrate Jackson this morning charged with stealing a watch from N. Henry, of Lindsay, a couple of weeks ago. He pleaded guilty to the offence and was let go on suspended sentence by paying the costs of the court, $9.25. The young man was arrested in Peterborough by County Constable Foster, on Saturday.—Warder.

PASTOR AND WIFE HURT

During Conflagration in Irish Hotel Rev. W. J. and Mrs. McCaughan Jump From Window.

Belfast, July 27—Fire swept through the Kelvin Hotel yesterday, burning to death three employes, while several guests received frightful injuries. Five of the guests were dangerously burned and others are in a serious condition.

Among those surviving who suffered most were Rev. William J. McCaughan, for several years pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, Ont., and later of Chicago, and his wife.

The McCaughans were caught on an upper floor, and in attempting to find an exit through the hall were terribly burned. Their escape through the usual exits being cut off by the flames, the minister and his wife finally threw themselves from an upper window. Both struck the pavement with great force and when they were removed to a hospital it was found that Mr. McCaughan's skull had been fractured. Mrs. McCaughan's injuries are less serious.

ACCIDENT ON THE TRANSCONTINENTAL

Belleville, July 27.—John Donavan of this city received word that on Friday afternoon last an accident occurred on the line of construction of the Transcontinental Railway at a point about 230 miles north of Quebec City. Donavan & Doheny are contractors for the construction of the new railway in that section. As the result of the accident nine men were killed and several injured, some of the latter to such an extent that their lives are despaired of. It appears that an explosion occurred of a large quantity of dynamite and giant powder.

The Crop Outlook.

Winnipeg, July 27.—The crop outlook is improving, according to the report of the Canadian Northern Railway, issued yesterday, shows that many wheat fields are in good condition. In some districts rain is needed.

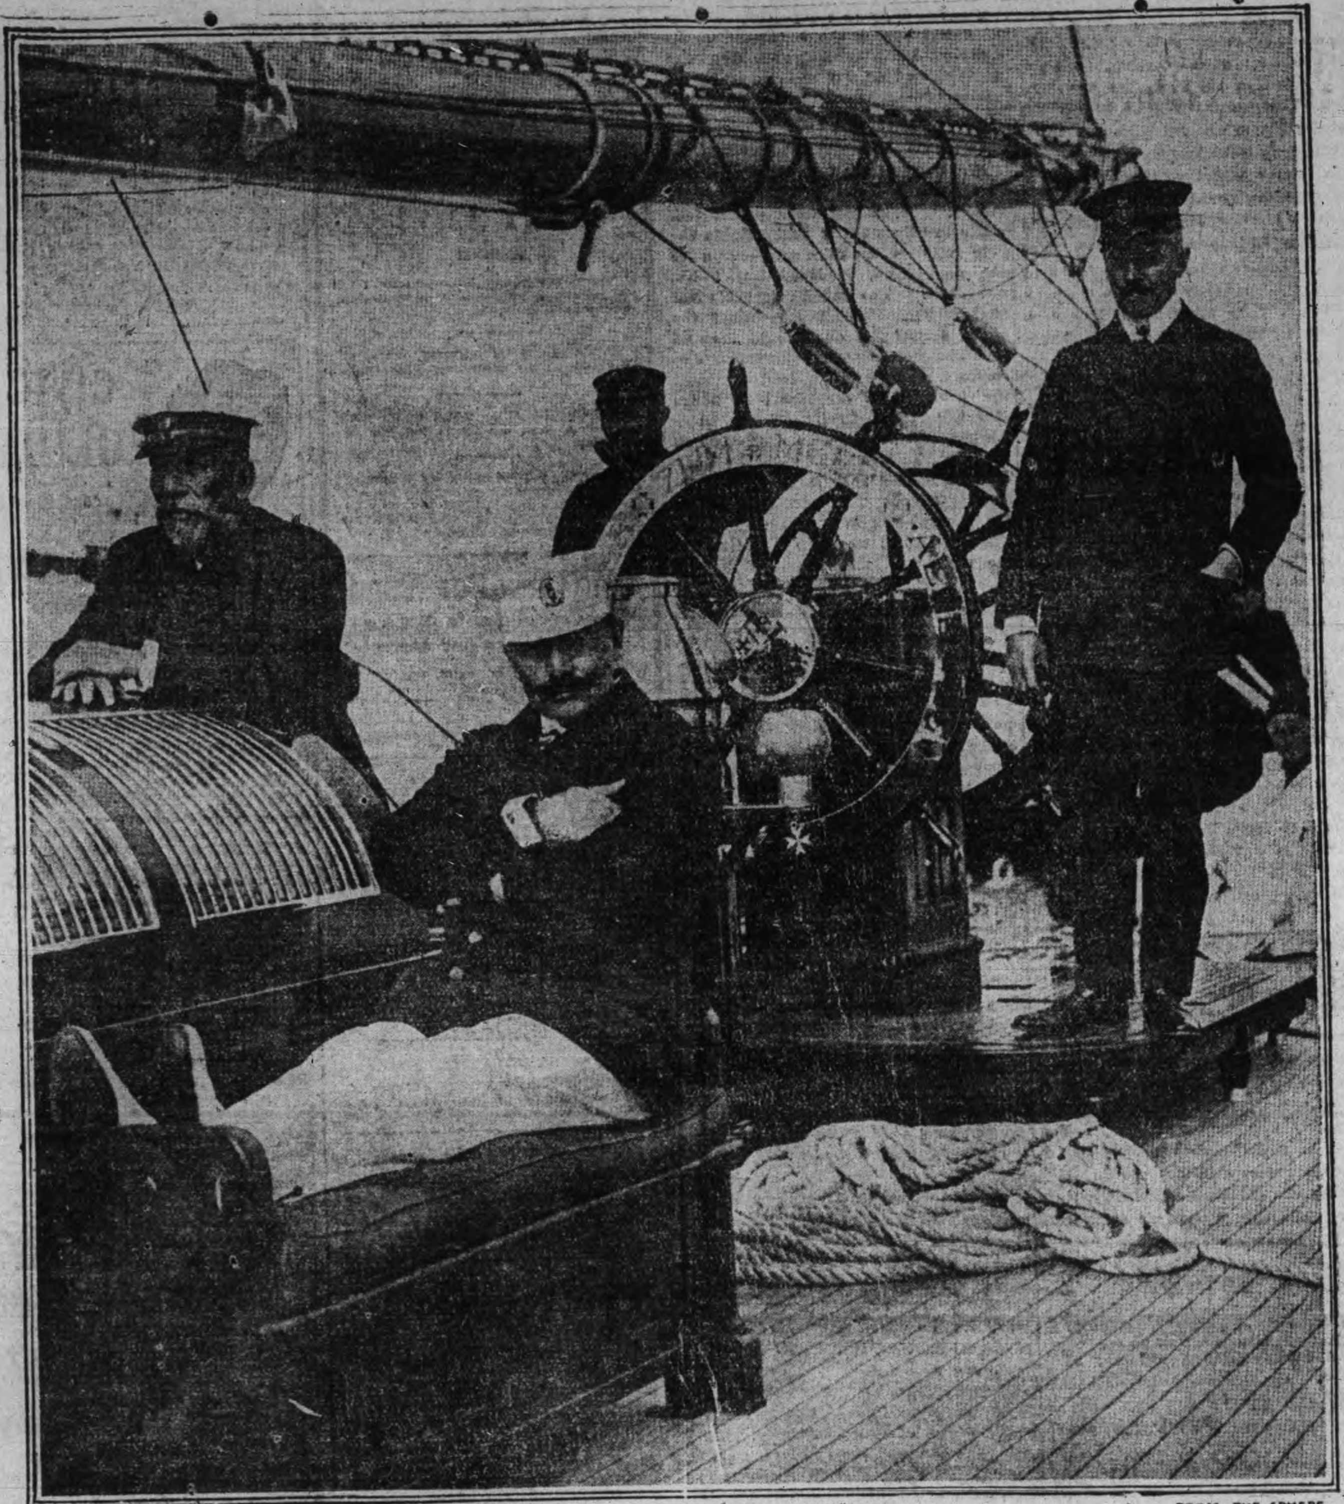
Ottawa, July 27.—Dr. W. Saunders, director of Dominion Experimental Farms, wires from Brandon saying the crop will be light. Some fields are well up to average, but others have short straws. Crops north of the railway are a good average, but in the south they will be light.

AUTO ON FIRE

Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

With an explosion like that of a cannon, a big touring automobile, belonging to an Ottawa man, caught fire while taking gasoline at the Division Street Garage. Luckily the gasoline tank, containing over five gallons of the explosive liquid, did not catch fire. A fire extinguisher put out the blaze. The origin of the fire seems a mystery.

GERMANY'S FIRST GENTLEMAN AND HIS MUSTACHE



THE KAISER ON HIS YACHT. — FROM THE SPHERE

Reports of Kaiser Wilhelm's recent serious indisposition, following his being made a semi-invalid through an abrasion of the skin on his wrist, after which he suffered from an abscess on the knee caused by horseback riding, seem to have been somewhat exaggerated. Early despatches from Berlin and Potsdam said the German Emperor's condition was such that for the first time he would be forced to cancel his engagements to attend the regatta at Kiel, where the imperial yacht 'Meteor' was entered in several events.

This, however, proved not to be the case, as the Kaiser's afflictions so readily yielded to the treatment given by the royal physicians that His Majesty was able to leave the palace and go to Kiel, where he witnessed the regatta and saw the 'Meteor' both victorious and defeated in the various yacht races there.

In the above photograph the Kaiser is shown sailing on his own yacht. He is seated on the bridge. His right hand, which earlier threatened to keep him away from the regatta, and reports concerning which caused some anxiety throughout the empire, was apparently still under the physician's bandages at the time this camera picture was obtained, but the wrappings have been painted out by the court photographer. As may be seen, the Kaiser seemingly is enjoying good health and keenly watching the splendid yacht races.

WAS ONLY A PERMISSION

Treaty Gave U.S. no Proprietorship in British Grounds.

London, July 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At The Hague fisheries dispute tribunal, Counsel Robson, dealing with the American assertion, said the treaty of 1818 accorded them sovereignty in British territorial waters, and maintained the historic arguments put forward by the Americans in support of the contention that the treaty accorded them an international "servitude."

He proceeded to argue that if America had the right to decide whether the legislation of the British colonies concerning the fisheries was reasonable, the arbitration tribunal could never examine whether America refuses, rightly or wrongly, to recognize such legislation.

He opposed the American view that such laws were unnecessary for the protection of the fisheries and the preservation of the fish and he argued that before 1783 fishermen in British colonies were everywhere subjected to the laws and regulations regarding the fishing treaty, which "accorded" to Americans the same right as they had formerly to come to fish in waters subject to local regulations. The right had not been increased by their independence, and in the course of the negotiations for the treaty of 1818 America had recognized that Britain had exclusive jurisdiction in those waters. In the treaty America had not been given a share in the fisheries as a co-proprietor with Britain, but only the "liberty," the permission, to fish; that is to say, under the same conditions as British fishermen in Australia.

TIRED OF LIFE'S STRUGGLE, SUICIDES

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 27.—Tired of life's struggle in solitude, Mrs. Mary Cleber, a dressmaker, with rooms in the Simmons-Baker building on Third street, threw herself into the Niagara River from the Three Sister Island at 6.15 o'clock Monday night and was speedily carried over the Horseshoe Falls. The deed was long premeditated and the woman tore herself from the arms of her life-long friend, Mrs. Herman Paylock, of 403 Ferry avenue, with the words, "Before I'll go hame I'll——"

The sentence was never finished. It was a reply to an entreaty to go home made by Mrs. Paylock as she placed her arms around the woman's waist.

FISH CUT BOY'S THROAT

Palm Beach, Florida, July 26.—Death in an unheard of form waited for Laurence S. Baker, an 11-year-old Jacksonville lad, when he dived from a boat in Lake worth.

A stingaree was lurking just under the boat. One of the barbed spines which this fish carries on his whip-like tail pierced the boy's neck, cutting into the juglar vein. He rose to the surface crying for help and bled to death in four minutes.

GRAND TRUNK ORDER GOES TO AGENTS ALL OVER ROAD

Men Declare That in Spite of the Company's Statement of Increased Freight Service the Tie-up Still Continues—Troops Go to Brockville

Montreal, July 27.—The Grand Trunk strike situation shows little change, except that the claims of the company are more persistent than ever, while Mr. Murdock comes a good second. The strike leader will in fact admit nothing but continued evidences of the company's failure to overcome the tie-up.

The Grand Trunk says there were 200 more freight cars moving yesterday than the day before, and that a better showing will be reported to-day.

Vice-President Murdock again repudiated any connection between the strikers and those who are committing acts of violence.

Henri Bourassa's "for arbitration" article in Monday's Devoir brought several strikers to The Devoir office yesterday, who want the nationalist to intervene. They would also like Mr. Bourassa to see Mr. Hays, but the Grand Trunk president says there is nothing to arbitrate, and is sending out orders all over the system to refuse no freight except cattle and perishable goods.

Asked to Return.

Toronto, July 27.—A great number of the old employes of the Grand Trunk who are on strike had in their possession last night letters from the company demanding that they return to the service.

"The company has said that they have their road completely manned, but this doesn't look as though they had a complete staff of competent men, does it?" commented Vice-President Berry of the Order of Railway Conductors, dryly, when acknowledging that this was really the case.

Acting on instructions from the Militia Department at Ottawa, Gen. Cotton despatched two detachments R.R.C.I. from Toronto and London yesterday afternoon to the scene of the Brockville riots. [illegible]

A contingent of fifty-four men and five officers from Stanley Barracks left by train late in the afternoon under the command of Major Carpenter. The men were out at the Long Branch rifle ranges when notified to prepare for immediate departure. The non-commissioned officers are: Sergeant-Major Upton, C.M.S.; Instructor Blake Foster, Sergeant-Major Price, Q.M.S. O'Neill and Sergeant McGinnes. In Brockville the two corps will be under the authority of Col. Benson, D.O.C.

It is reported from Kingston that 40 men of A Battery, R.C.H.A., are in readiness to turn out for strike duty as cavalry, with carbines, wearing bandoliers and carrying ball cartridges. A special train will be kept prepared for their use, if the riot call comes from Brockville.

Only three freight trains were moved out of Mimico yesterday, the main endeavor being to meet the requirements of certain manufacturers in their imperative need of coal. A train of 23 cars, filled mostly with machinery, left for the west in the early hours of the morning under Conductor Sprigg, lately train despatcher of Montreal. Another, 20 cars all told, went west at 3 p.m. with a cargo of mixed freight, in charge of Conductor O'Connell, lately foreman of a Montreal steam shovel. Extra 692, the third train, came into the yards from Sarnia with 22 cars of dead freight at 6.40 p.m. The conductor and two brakemen were, it is said, in such a state that G.T.R. Detective Tutt was ordered to escort them back at once to Port Huron, Mich.

Pickets continue to hold the Mimico yards in the state of a beleaguered city. Trespassers are continually halted, rightabout-faced and turned off the company's premises. The pacific attitude of the strikers, however, has greatly relaxed the vigilance of the police, and, in fact, several of the special constables were sent back to the city yesterday morning.

Train Wrecked Near Sherbrooke.

Sherbrooke, July 27.—The G.T.R. train from Quebec, due at Richmond at 10 o'clock, was wrecked near Standfold Monday night. It is reported that a rail was placed across the track with the intention of wrecking the train. Several cars went off and the wrecking train from Richmond was called. No one was injured.

Held Up the Mayor.

St. Catharines, July 27.—Mayor Reyburn, Philadelphia, passing through here Monday evening in a motor car with a party of friends, was held up by the police for not having a back number on their car. The chauffeur said he was following instructions given him at Niagara Falls, so the party were allowed to proceed.

Tragedy at a Funeral.

Kingston, July 27.—Mrs. Thomas Murphy of Wolfe Island was at the funeral of the late Michael Hennesy, drowned last week, on Monday at Wolfe Island Church, when she took a fainting fit. She was taken home and died during the night. Heart disease was the cause.

THE DEADLY HOUSE FLY

(By Dr. N. A. Cobbs, of Washington, D.C.)

Flies kill a greater number of human beings than all the beasts of prey and poisonous serpents, for they spread disease.

Flies like odors of filth; a pleasant smelling substance, the fragrance of flowers, geraniums, mignonet, lavender or any perfumery will serve to drive them away. Sprinkle your garbage can with lime or kerosene oil.

Here are some cheap ways to get rid of flies:—

Heat a shovel and put 20 drops of carbolic acid on it. The vapor will kill them.

Dissolve one dram of bichromate of potash in two ounces of water and add a little sugar. Put the solution in shallow dishes about the house.

A spoonful of formalin or formaldehyde in a pint of water, exposed in a room will kill the flies.

Burn pyrethrum powder in the room. This stupifies the flies so that they may be swept up and burned.

STOCKS TAKE A BIG DIP ON THE NEW YORK MARKET

Drop in Prices Unheard of Except in Panic Times Sends Values to Low Ebb, But All is Done in Cold Blood—Preparing for Strain in Coming Months

New York, July 27.—Liquidation of stocks, while banking and financial interests refrained from offering support, played havoc with stock market values yesterday.

So rapid and comprehensive a shrinkage of prices is witnessed rarely except in periods of absolute panic. There was some selling by holders through sheer fright at the rapid melting away of values, but for the most part the selling was done in cold blood and with the systematic determination of a surgical operation.

The absence of the usual talk of embarrassments on such occasions was taken to prove the selling to come from sources outside the immediate stock market circle and to represent losses from large resources which amounted to impairment rather than wiping out of fortunes.

There was every indication to warrant the assumption that some heavy speculative accounts were in process of closing out, while, at the same time, a thorough house-cleaning was going on amongst the lenders of money on collateral looking to the weeding out of undesirable loans.

Occurrences in the immediate news were disregarded. The U. S. Steel quarterly meeting to be held after the market closed, almost dropped out of the consideration. The declaration of the regular quarterly dividend was taken for granted and the probable showing of the earnings report was discussed with only languid interest.

The money market was easy and the rate for call loans ran off to the lowest level touched in several months, while influences towards replenishment of the supply of bank cash continued actively at work.

That acute apprehension was at work was obvious, nevertheless, from the swift drop in prices to a level for which it would be necessary to go far back into the year 1908 to find any parallel at the Stock Exchange. Reading at 1.30 5-8, Union Pacific at 125 1-4, U. S. Steel at 61 1-4, and Southern Pacific at 1.03 will offer a graphic suggestion of what occurred in the day's stock market.

Even more sensational were movements in stocks which are not the favorites of the professional traders. Missouri Pacific, Southern Railway preferred, St. Louis, Southwestern preferred, Rock Island preferred, Republic Steel preferred, American Steel Foundries, Westinghouse Electric, Central Leather and others were forced down from 5 to 12 points.

There was seen in this list the evidence of a concession that hopes of increased or initiated dividends had slender foundation. The consensus clearly amounts to a determination by bankers, financiers and ruling authorities generally in finance to retrench resources and to be prepared for a strain in the coming months.

Although there was a rally during the final hour, the close was weak and unsettled. Sales totalled 1,279,339 shares and only 36 issues of the 146 in which trades were recorded failed to break to their lowest records of the year.

In the absence of any specific cause for the slump, the only explanation lies in the belief that the financial powers agreed that the situation required a drastic purging. Sales were made in consequence, at severe sacrifices. This was especially true of many stocks not of first grade, which have been lifted on speculation based on slender hopes of increased dividend returns. But no demand for such issues were found even at wide concessions.

There were no exceptions, however, to the day's weakness, and at times it appeared as if purchasing power of the market had vanished. Prices were swept downward with almost no resistance. Before the middle of the afternoon session had been reached, there was hardly a stock in the entire list that did not show losses of 2, 3 or 4 points from the closing figures of the day before.

Big Salt Plant for Sandwich.

Windsor, Ont., July 27.—A new salt company, an offshoot of the Canadian Salt Co., in which the Canadian Pacific Railroad is said to be heavily interested, will erect a mammoth salt plant in Sandwich, and have asked the Town Council to give them a fixed assessment of $35,000 for ten years, and in return the company will likely spend a quarter of a million dollars in the next five years.

May End In Fizzle.

Chicago, July 27.—So many complications have arisen in the building trades unions' fight against the machinists that threatened to spread the strike of workmen may end in a fizzle. Reports of six trades where members compose three-fourths of the workmen engaged in the buildings threatened with strikes, have announced that they would not take part in the struggle.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1910.

GOOD DAY, MADAM

GOOD DAY, MADAME, ARE YOU AWARE THAT FLIES KILL MORE HUMAN BEINGS THAN ALL THE BEASTS OF PREY AND POISONOUS SERPENTS PUT TOGETHER! THEY SPREAD DISEASE. SPRINKLE YOUR GARBAGE WITH LIME AND KEROSENE OIL, MEANWHILE BLESSING THE BOARD OF HEALTH AND CITY COUNCIL FOR THE LONG SLEEPS THEY ARE HAVING ON THIS QUESTION, AND REMEMBERING THAT THERE WILL BE AN ELECTION OF ALDERMEN SOMEDAY.

THE BARTENDER

Many people who never had a drink in their lives think that a bartender is a chap with horns just under his hair, with cloven toes, a sort of he devil as it were, without a heart or soul.

There never was a bigger mistake.

Any one who has had any experience with a real bartender will tell you that they are always ready to keep a fellow from getting full.

They pity the booze artist, and when a man who has been a real whiskey fighter announces his determination to quit, no man will be quicker than they to say "Good Boy, now stay with the game."

THE STRIKE BOSS

Unions are necessary to fight corporations and trusts, but it is seldom the first-class man in his particular trade that is much affected by a union. He is on the sure way to a higher position anyway. There is no doubt but that the trusts and corporations are without feelings, and if the president or other high officials in the great companies of the land would only go down in the mines, or out on the road, or up a pole with a pair of pliers and a belt, that they would have more heart for the men beneath them. The men have the work and the boss has the worry, while the agent, the strike manipulator, who calls the men out, seems to have the big end of the horn and his salary goes on forever.

But sometimes strikers get too particular, as may be gathered by a strike that took place at Port Stanley, when a crew of sailors struck. The St. Thomas Times says;

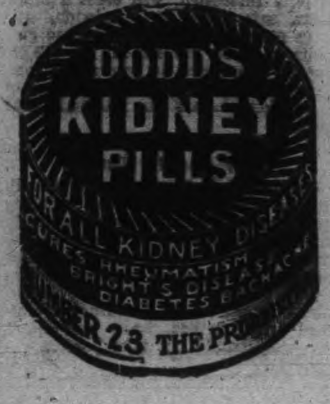
"It seems that in the case of the so called strike on the Forest City, the purser, Mr. Thompson, was given a couple of chickens by a friend. Upon the fowls being cooked the purser divided them among a couple of friends. The crew, getting wind of this and thinking they were discriminated against, refused to work unless they had chicken. The result was that the crew quit, the captain filling their places with other men."

Of course, the crew may have been colored and then the strike would have been perfectly justifiable.

OUR FARMER FRIEND

And they of the cities laughed at the simple life—at the farmer with his big boots, with his big straw hat, his heavy team and rattling waggon. They poked fun at him and asked him if his rhubarb was up, and wanted to know if he had threshed his pumpkins. But he laughed and drove on. And one day hard times dawned on the cities — a period of depression. Chimneys ceased their smoking, wheels their whirling, and men walked the streets in hundreds, unemployed. Prices rose The poor suffered. Those in ordinary circumstances practised extraordinary economy. It was grey fall, and winter was coming—biting winter. It would be a winter of hardship and distress. The coal bin was gaunt. There were no black diamonds rattling down the bin, no dust of its coming, no noise of its fall in the cellar of the poor man. The grocery waggon basket was not carried to the small house. Yes, it was grey fall. The leaves were glorious in the country, the birds were happy in the country, and the farmer went whistling down the lane. His bins were full, for he had had an early threshing. His mow was filled to bursting. The straw stack in the barn yard was very large. The lane was piled with hardwood and the shed was filled to the ceiling. And his faithful collie rounded up his cows for the milking, and there they stood in the early gloaming, and she comes out humming a tune and his daughter with her. While they milk he goes into the barn, for the pigs must be fed, for pork will rise, and the sheep must be attended to, for mutton will soar. The horses hear his footfall and know his voice, and they call him with their neighing, and that team, the one that he refused $400 for, the one that he is getting in shape for the roadster class at the fair, he strokes their necks, and they put back their ears in fun. Yes, and the women talk as they milk to-night, and they discuss the new dress that they each expect to get, for they are going to the fair, for the crops are good, and eggs brought no mean figure this particular fall. He is out in the orchard now, with his collie yet by his heel, and the turkeys are already in the trees roosting for the night. Looking, he beholds the bended boughs, for the orchard is prodigal, and he is happy.

That night as the paper is brought out by a neighboring friend, and as they read of the hardships of city life and learn of the wants of the army of unemployed at this particular time, they of the simple life are sorry, and he forgets the hour when they asked him if he had threshed his pumpkins. The pigs revel in milk, and in the morning the chickens will find a surfeit of good things from off the table.



THE ETC.

"John McNeely, of Norwood, has been appointed constable, sanitary inspector, caretaker of town hall, assistant collector of taxes, ETC."

Why the ETC?

Why in this magic ETC. are the real duties? The cutting of the weeds, the shovelling of snow, the keeping the cows off the streets, the taking of advice from everyone. This last is the real task of the small town official. John Jones advises him, so does John Brown, John Green also takes a hand in it, then John White has his say on the quiet, and John Smith gets his ear for a while. The life of the official in the small town or village would be one sweet dream if it were not for the boundless, exhaustless, limitless advice he must receive, and receive with much good grace and a show of profound attention.

BE NATURAL

"I always say to my young friends," says Adelina Patti, "not can you shake, can you trill, can you imitate a mocking-bird?—but can you sing a simple ballad in honest, straightforward fashion, such a ballad for instance, as 'Home, Sweet Home'? That is the real test."

Patti knows. And it is worth observing that what she says of singing applies also to every other work in life. Naturalness is the soul of art. No two things are more closely akin than art and heart.

The truest art lies in directness. The great message is always a simple one.

So says the Halifax Herald, and so agrees the writer. The greatest difficulty is to be natural. The speaker, fresh from college, apes his profession, forgetting that he is losing power by not being his real self. The singer whom people love to hear is the singer who, as Patti declares, can sing the sweet song sweetly, and from the heart. The young woman whose company is most sought, is not the one with an affected manner, but the wholly natural girl. We like nature because it is natural. We expect to find prickles near the rose blossom and would feel disappointed if we didn't. We expect to see the ivy cling to the house, and would be surprised and sorry if it refused to follow the course of nature. We do not expect to see the clerk as important as the manager, but we often find him so. That clerk is not natural, and there are many people right here in Peterborough who are copying some one else, and making fools of themselves in doing so. We cannot all be great or unusual, or important, for the bulk of life's necessary work must be accomplished by the average man and the average woman. We can do without the great man or woman easier than we can without a good sound, honest and and earnest rank and file.

WHY THIS INJUSTICE?

A Hamilton paper notes the fact that spotters are in that city to try and find out who is selling liquor to the Indians. Why hasn't an Indian got as much right to drink as a white man? Is there are real common sense reason why he shouldn't have as much liberty to go to a licensed bar and take a drink of beer or whiskey as the Italian or any other foreigner? Why this injustice? The Indian has buried the hatchet and the scalping knife ages ago; He can at least act as well as many of his white brethren when they get tight.

THE HOT WEATHER

Nineteen people died in one day this week in New York from heatstroke. Thousands were prostrated, while in Chicago and Philadelphia the rate was as high in proportion to the population. Hard work? No, not that. Too much clothes? Not that either. Too much food, too much drink? If one would stand the hot weather without much discomfort, there must be self denial at the table. An occasional 24 hours abstaining from food, and once in a while fasting for a week will do much to clear the mind and give the body a much needed rest in this hot weather. Seventy-five per cent of us are miserable, pimply, unambitious, simply because we stuff ourselves at the table.

OBSERVATION BY ADMIRAL MAHAN

A remarkable, if indirect, condemnation of the course of the Laurier Government with regard to the Canadian navy comes from an unexpected quarter. Admiral Mahan, the American writer, is the greatest living authority on naval subjects. His great books on "The Influence of Sea Power" have had an enormous effect, and are largely responsible for the present anxiety of the nations to improve their navies. Not long ago he contributed to the Daily Mail, of London, a weighty article on naval preparations and the defence of the British Empire. In the course of it he observed that it is difficult for democratic governments to prepare properly for emergencies, and then follows this passage:—

"As it now stands, the British Empire, territorially, is an inheritance from times not democratic, and the world is interested to see whether the heir will prove equal to his fortune. There are favorable signs; one of the most so that has met my eye has been the decision of the Labor Government in Australia that in time of war the Australian navy should be at the absolute disposal of the British Admiralty. Such sentiment, realized in commensarate action, is effective imperial democracy."

Observe that he praises Australia for resolving to place her forces at the disposal of the Admiralty, and says not a word about Canada and her "May" clause. He does not regard that as a good sign. By inference he regards it as a bad sign.

(With apologies to Tennyson.)

On the G.T.R. trains, O men!
And I would that my tongue could coax you
To "break" on those trains again.

O well for the steamboat Co.
That they have no brakemen to strike.
O well for the travelling folk
Who travel by auto or bike.

For the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O, for the touch of conductor's punch
And the sound of those trains that are still.

At your posts on the trains, O men,
But O that this worry and hurry of strike,
May never come back again.

DESPICABLE ACT.

St. Catharines Journal.

A most despicable act was that of some unknown party or parties who have been stealing ribbons tied about flowers on graves at Victoria Lawn cemetery. A few days ago friends of a young lady who was buried about a week ago visited the cemetery and discovered that the ribbon which was tied about the the flowers placed on the grave by loving hands, had been taken from the withered flowers. It will not be well if the sneak thieves are caught.

A Want Ad in The Daily Review

—repeated a few times if need be—will sell that property of yours. This claim is made because these little ads sell most of the property that is sold in town. They are consulted and considered FIRST by the intending buyers—"which is why."

A RUTHLESS SLAUGHTER

ELEPHANTS PRACTICALLY EXTERMINATED IN AFRICA.

For Two Hundred and Fifty Years the Great Beast Has Been a Target For the Gun of the Ivory Hunter—French Society Makes Plans For His Preservation—Britain Is Working In Same Cause.

For many years, in fact almost ever since the white man and his native allies have been killing off the elephant, there has been discussion of means of preserving the big beast from extinction. The discussion has concerned the African elephant chiefly, because the Indian elephant through hard work as a helper of mankind has become a valuable member of society and has practically saved himself; but the big fellow of the African veldt has merely basked in the sunshine, played in the pools, tramped down the early settler's corn and been such a nuisance and an idler that he has been considered a good target for ivory hunters' guns.

Now a French society, known as The Friends of the Elephant, as bestirred itself in his behalf. This society has awakened so much interest that not only has France given it support but other nations that have African possessions are seeing what can be done to prevent the loss of this interesting and valuable animal. The plan advocated by the society is that of establishing preserves or sanctuaries where the elephant might live in some sense of security with his family and not be disturbed by hunters seeking his tusks to sell for ivory.

There is no doubt that he has got very much the worst of it ever since the white man went to South Africa. His case has a parallel in this country in the buffalo. As the buffalo was able to make out against the Indian, so the elephant was able to live and thrive with the black men that surrounded him. He was not in great danger of extinction from the pitfalls and assegais of the natives. It was when the white man with firearms appeared upon the scene that he began to lose ground. When the Dutch landed at Cape Town about 250 years ago his evil days began.

One of the old time hunters left an especially interesting record for daring and skill. It was a trick with him to call attention, according to the stories that are told of his prowess, to some fine big old bull in a herd, make a chalk mark on him and then kill him. The wagers that this hunter made with tenderfeet, it is said, kept him in gin and tobacco until he happened to run across a lively old brute that objected to being chalked and plugged with lead to adorn a hunter's tale. This hero of the herd turned on the great hunter, tusked him, and trampled him until there was not an unbroken bone in his body.

Jacobus Botha, ancestor of one of the Boer leaders in the war against England, was famous as an elephant hunter. He used to kill four or five elephants a day and in this way laid the foundation of quite a respectable South African fortune. A historian who wandered along the African coast at that time reported that Botha killed 22 elephants on two different occasions and that he shot as many as 13 elephants in a day. Some one who knew Botha declared that it was doubtful if he ever said such a thing and suggested that some one else told the story for him in order to see how great a tale that historian would believe.

Oswell, who was one of the greatest African hunters of Livingstone's time, relates that in one of his expeditions he saw 400 elephants in one herd. "As far as the eye could reach in a fairly open country," he said, "there was nothing but elephants. I do not mean in serried mass, but in small groups."

Gordon Cumming was another famous African hunter who killed his full share of big game, and F. C. Selous was another. The latter is said to have shot 23 elephants in three seasons with an old Dutch elephant gun.

The result of this slaughter has been to exterminate the elephant in South Africa. To-day there are no herds south of the Zambesi and the Cuene rivers except two or three small protected herds in Cape Colony, a small troop or two in Bamangwato and Bechuanaland and a few in Mashonaland and perhaps in Matabeleland. This is all that remains of the herds that 60 or 70 years ago roamed in freedom over most of the South African interior.

The English have taken a special interest in the elephant since they have seen it disappear rapidly from their South African colonies and several societies have been formed to preserve it. These societies have apparently been gathered into one which has for its purpose the preservation of the fauna of all the British empire.

The African native ever since he has been able to obtain and use firearms has killed the elephant regardless of size or sex. He has found that it is the most profitable trade that he can engage in because ivory finds a ready market at a good price. There have been laws made by some of the colonies that no cow elephants or immature bulls shall be killed, and the minimum weight of tusks that may be bartered has been fixed according to the colony at from 9 to 30 pounds; but the great difficulty in enforcing this rule is that the native has found that if he cannot sell the underweight tusks legally he can always find some one who will take them off his hands as contraband.

The French society has taken all these points into consideration and has directed its crusade against the slaughter in the interior of the continent, in the valley of the Congo. From here has been coming recently much of the contraband ivory as well as much of the finest that has been finding its way into the European markets. The killing of the big beast has been ruthless and without discrimination.

"Tear 'Em!"

When Mr. Balfour held the Irish Secretaryship in the old days of Coercionists and Land Leaguers, Sir Edward Carson, whose health has been causing some anxiety to his friends, was his right-hand man. And no one was more abused than "Tear 'Em," as Sir Edward was nicknamed for carrying out Mr. Balfour's policy. So bitter indeed were the attacks of the Irish papers that one day a friend asked Sir Edward to take steps to stop them. "Stop them?" replied Sir Edward. "No, certainly not. Attacks like those are the manure on which one's reputation grows." Few people are aware that Sir Edward intended to be an architect at first; but the attractions of the law proved too great, and, oddly enough, his first brief was in a building case.

The discovery of six new chemical elements recently was claimed by a group of German scientists.

QUESTIONS IN COURT

A Series That Moved an Observer to Turn Critic.

SOME GEMS HE PRESERVED.

The Lawyers Didn't Seem to See the Ridiculous Phase of the Inquiry, but It Loomed Large to the Man With an Idea That the Law Is Solemn.

A man who spent several days in a courtroom listening to the examination of veniremen was struck with the reflection that some shining legal minds would not be unduly dimmed by the infusion of a few of the principles of logic. The time taken up by attorneys in drawing the conclusion that a juror who lives at a given address makes his home there and then referring the conclusion to the juror for confirmation has not been computed, but any one mathematically inclined may figure it out by multiplying the following examples by any handy large round number:

"What is your occupation?"

"I am a switchman."

"On a railroad?"

The obvious answer which the juror's awe of his surroundings prevents him from making would be, of course, "No, in an ice cream parlor."

"Judge," said a juror, "I would like to be excused from service. When summoned I was making arrangements for my brother-in-law's funeral."

"Is your brother-in-law dead?" inquired the court.

It developed that he was.

"Now, Mr. Juror," came another question, "what is your age?"

"Forty-four."

"Forty-four years old?"

That is exactly what the juror meant. The lawyer guessed right the very first time.

Here is another flash that came to one of the attorneys. "Where do you live?" he asked.

"At 4416 Blank street."

"You reside there, do you?"

Once in awhile there is a funny answer which isn't to be wondered at considering the power of suggestion.

"Are you married?"

"Yes."

"Any family?"

"Two."

But the balance is well on the lawyers' side. Witness this: The questioner had asked if a juror was related in any way to any of the principals or witnesses in the case.

"I am a brother-in-law of Mr. Blank, one of the witnesses," was the reply.

"You married his sister, then?"

He had.

"Let me ask you now, Mr. Juror, have you formed any opinion about the guilt or innocence of this defendant?"

"I have."

"Is it a fixed opinion or is it one that could be changed by evidence?"

"It could be changed if the evidence were strong enough."

"Then you would not call it a definite opinion?"

"No."

"It is a vague opinion, then?"

"Yes."

"Now, Mr. Juror, follow me closely, if you please. You say your opinion is a vague one and not definitely fixed. Now, then, if that is the case and you went into that jury box and listened to the evidence adduced from that witness stand and heard the law expounded by the judge from that bench, would it not be possible for you to lay aside that opinion and concur in a verdict warranted by the evidence and the instructions of the court?"

"Yes."

The attorney, having received the same answer to his long question as to his short one, is perfectly satisfied and throws a triumphant look at his colleague, which says, "I knew I could get it out of him if I kept at him long enough."

Here is another astonishing deduction: A juror took the stand dressed in a blue uniform with brass buttons. Around his belt was strapped a money changer. The examining attorney looked at him long and searchingly and then said in a tone which admitted of no trifling:

"You are a street car conductor?"

It was the same attorney who forced this confession from another juror:

"What is your occupation?"

"I'm a bookkeeper for Blank & Co."

"You keep books in the office?"

Unmasked, the bookkeeper broke down and made a clean breast of it.

"Now, Mr. Juror, be good enough to state how old you are."

"Fifty-six years."

"How long have you resided in this state?"

"Fifteen years."

"Then you were not born here?"

The trapped man admitted the truth.

Here is another:

"Were you born in Missouri?"

"No, sir."

"Oh, I see. Then you moved here from some other state." And then in a "come-come-don't-delay-the-court" tone of voice, "Where did you come from?"

"Chicago."

"Chicago, Ill.?"—Kansas City Times.

Unhappy Man!

"Yes, my old friend, I have been the victim of misfortune in all my love affairs. My first sweetheart died, the second jilted me, and the third became my wife!"

Tears are often the telescope through which men see far into heaven.—Beecher.

Top Spinning One of the Most Ancient Sports.

SOME TOP DESIGNS.

Top spinning is one of the oldest games in the world. It has been played for thousands of years, and there are few even of the savage nations of Asia and Africa who don't play the game with some sort of top. Long before Columbus sailed for America the Indians knew a good deal about tops and top spinning. The Sioux whittled them out of bits of wood something like those shown in the picture. In Ceylon, Siam and China nearly all the tops are so fixed that they whistle or sing when they spin. The ordinary top used by the American boy is probably the most popular in the world. It is extensively used in England and in all of her colonies. The German top is larger and more expensive, and the French top is quite different in shape. None of them will stand the pegging of the stubby little American top.

About the Screech Owl.

The barn owl, or screech owl, as it is often called, from its weird, piercing shriek, so unlike the deep, mellow hoot of some of its near relatives, is the best known of its kind. It is also the best worth knowing and most useful of its tribe and a good friend of the farmer, for it destroys hundreds of the farmer's greatest enemies—rats and mice.

In its favorite haunt, the barn, it will stand bolt upright in some dark corner or on a lofty beam, seemingly asleep, but with eyes and ears open. At the slightest rustle in the straw below it is all attention, head bent downward and bright eyes gazing intently at the spot from whence the sound comes. If the mouse or rat shows itself, without a movement of his wings the owl simply "drops" upon his prey and seldom fails to grasp it in his strong, sharp talons. Flying back to his perch with it, he seems to meditate awhile, then gravely bolts his victim whole and solemnly waits for the next sound from below. His method of swallowing the mouse he has caught is curious. He takes it from his talons and holds it in his beak by the middle for a few moments, then by a quick jerk of the head throws it in the air and catches it by the head. A second jerk sends it head first down his throat, except for the tail, which remains hanging out for another minute of meditation, when a third jerk puts it out of sight.

India Rubber.

When we think of the many different uses to which india rubber is now put we cannot repress a smile as we read the following allusion to it in Dr. Priestley's book on perspective, published in 1770, which, it is said, is the earliest mention of the substance: "I have seen a substance excellently adapted to the purpose of wiping from paper the marks of a black lead pencil. It is sold by Mr. Nairne, mathematical instrument maker, opposite the Royal Exchange. He sells a cubical piece of about half an inch for 3 shillings, and he says it will last several years."

Why?

Why is a lazy dog like a hill? Because he is a slow pup (slope up).

Why is a bee a great deceiver? Because he is a humbug.

Why is a jailer like a musician? Because he fingers the keys.

What grows the less tired the more it works? A carriage wheel.

What is that which never asks a question, yet requires many answers? A doorbell.

Seasonable Advertisements.

This advertisement was seen posted in Birdland: "Master Robin has opened a singing school at 23 Songster street. A limited number of pupils will be admitted. Master Robin will teach the birdlings to sing the sweetest and latest songs, such as 'The Merry Widow Waltz,' 'I'm Afraid to Go Home In the Dark,' etc. All who wish to join the summer school will leave word at his nest."

Willie Winkie's Drive.

Willie Winkie drives his horses
Over hill and over dale,
Never stops for flood or fire
When he's going for the mail.

Though the way be long and dreary,
Willie's spirit never flags.
All his thought is for his horses
And the safety of his bags.

When at last his journey's ended
All the mail that he has brought
Willie runs and gives to mother,
As a good mail carrier ought.

Then the fiery steeds and driver
Like a flash are off once more,
But with all their speed they never Get beyond the nursery door.

BERRY SAYS STAND FIRM

Prominent Figure in Strike Situation Passed Through City

Mr. S. N. Berry, of Toronto, vice-president of the Order of Railway Conductors, passed through the city yesterday afternoon on his way to Toronto. Mr. Berry came from Montreal, and was one of the passengers who had to tranship as a result of the freight wreck near Indian River yesterday morning.

As a prominent figure in the G.T.R. strike, Mr. Berry informed a number of the local strikers that the situation as given out by the railway was not correct, and that the cause for which the men were fighting fighting would ultimately result in success. Mr. Berry says "stand firm."

FELL AND BROKE ARM

A young daughter of Mr. Ed. Conroy, Mark street, East City, fell from a tree last evening and broke her arm.

The steamer "Stony Lake" will leave the Wolfe Street wharf at 12.45 on Friday for Stony Lake points. On Saturday July 30th the steamer "Islanda" will leave at the same hour for Stony Lake points.

Going Some

McDermid & Jury's drug store was the scene of some tall hustling yesterday afternoon, when a film of six exposures taken of the C.P.R. wreck, near Indian River, was developed and dried, and several fine prints of each scene were made in three hours. Mr. McDermid handled the film and the prints.

The Cure.

He—There is a certain young lady deeply interested in me, and while I like her, you know, still I never could love her. I want to put an end to it without breaking the poor girl's heart. Can you suggest any plan?

She—Do you call there often?

He—No, indeed; not any oftener than I can possibly help.

She—Call oftener.

What Did He Mean?

THREE HOUSES NARROWLY ESCAPED DESTRUCTION IN $1,400 CONFLAGRATION

When Mrs. S Lang, a widow lady, who lives at 107 Rubidge street awoke this morning about 2 o'clock she was terribly alarmed when she saw a sea of flames raging at the rear of her house and of the two adjoining.

She hastily donned some outer garments and afterwards ran out to the neighbors, calling "fire!" at the top of her voice.

TRIED TO WAKE UP PEOPLE.

"I ran up and down the street in my bare feet," said Mrs. Lang to the Review this morning, "and kicked and battered the doors, but it seemed ages before I could wake up anybody up."

Mrs Lang had good cause for her excitement and anxiety, as a fire razed barn and three houses, Nos. 101, 103 and 107 Rubidge street, bear speaking testimony.

The houses respectively are occupied by Robert Davis, owner and tenant; D P. McFarlane, owner and tenant. and Mrs S Lang, tenant, and T. Coughlin, owner.

WAS IT INCENDIARIES?

The cause of the blaze is not known. The fire originated in a barn in the rear of Mr McFarlane's residence, and as Miss McFarlane and her father, who were the only occupants of the dwelling, were on a visit to the farm of Mr. Colin McFarlane, Otonabee, and did not return until this morning.

Although the blaze may have had an accidental source incendiarism is suspected.

ABOUT $1,400 LOSS.

The loss to Mr. McFarlane will be about $500 it is estimated, covered by insurance, and about $300 to each of the other dwellings, these amounts embracing the damage to both buildings and contents. All the buildings and contents were insured with the exception of the contents of Mrs. Lang's house. The insurance is in the Western. The barn is valued at about $200.

Mrs. Lang is a widowed lady and lives with her youngest son and Mrs. Corneil, dressmaker, boards with her.

DAMAGE KEPT DOWN.

Owing to the highly creditable work of the fire brigade the flames were confined to the rear of the properties, which being of frame, were of a very inflamable nature. The rear portions of all three dwellings are badly charred, windows are smashed, walls blackened, furniture damaged and wrecked, and there is general confusion and disorder, but the flames were checked with remarkable skill, and the loss therefore reduced to a minimum.

ALARM AT 2.11.

Mr. Archambault, who lives at the south end of the row of closely situated frame houses, sent in the alarm at 2.11, being awakened in the confusion attendant on the fire. The brigade responded promptly and two streams of hose were immediately played on the burning buildings.

BARN WAS GONE.

When the firemen arrived on the scene the roof of the barn had fallen in and no effort was made to save the building as the three houses were on fire, and all attention was directed to them. The brigade stayed till 4.45 this morning before the chief felt satisfied to leave.

AXES FREELY USED.

There was a large pile of lumber in Mr. Davis' yard, and while it was badly eaten at one end by the flames, it was drenched by water to an extent that it did not become a source of serious difficulty.

The firemen's axes were wielded freely, and large holes cut in the double roofs in which the flames had made considerable progress, and the water was poured into these openings.

The neighborhood was in a state of great alarm, and it was feared that the fire would wipe out the entire row of buildings.

MURDER IS THE CHARGE

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 27.—James Burke, of North Bay, is in custody here on the charge of murdering George Matthews of Horning's Mill.

The two men fought in the Winnipeg hotel at North Bay, July 11, and as a result Matthews had to go to a hospital.

Burke brought Matthews to the Toronto General Hospital this morning, and the man died shortly after admission.

Burke was arrested at the dead man's bedside. He then produced a document signed by Matthews exonerating him from original liability, provided he paid all medical expenses.

WILL THE ENGINEERS STRIKE?

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., July 27.—The three years' contract of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of the G.T.R. expires at the end of this month, and another interesting question of wages will be on the carpet immediately. The management has had before them since a demand from the brotherhood for an increase of 15 per cent. in their wages. But so far it has not indicated what action it proposes in taking. The management of the Grand Trunk announces that it moved 126 freight trains on their system yesterday, making a total of 25,086 cars handled.

TRAIN CREW WAS ASSAULTED NEAR NIAGARA JUNCTION

Special to the Review.

Bridgebury, Ont., July 27.—The first disturbance on the Grand Trunk in this section since the strike started occurred just west of Niagara Junction last night, when a freight train from the west stopped before pulling into the yards. The train crew was attacked by a crowd of men and were roughly handled, one of the crew having his head badly cut.

No arrests have been made as yet.

It is not known whether the trouble was caused by G.T.R. employees or by sympathizers.

The international bridge car, which has not run since the strike began, started on its regular trips yesterday afternoon, but did not run after dark.

MOTHER OF REV. E. A. PEARSON PASSED AWAY

After having successfully passed through an operation two weeks ago at the Toronto General Hospital, the wife of Rev. M. L. Pearson, who resides at 377 Rusholme road, this city, died unexpectedly Monday morning. She died at the hospital where hopes had been entertained for her complete recovery.

Rev. M. L. Pearson is a veteran pastor and had just retired, accepting the superannuation allowance from Strathroy. Formerly president of the Toronto and Bay of Quinte Conferences, Rev. Mr. Pearson has been 48 years in the ministry, and his late wife had been his helpmate and companion for 43 of those years.

Those of the family who survive besides Rev. Mr. Pearson, are Rev. Ed. A. Pearson, B. A. of Central church, Hamilton; Mrs. F. Edson White, whose husband is assistant general manager of Armour's Packing House, Chicago, Wm. P. Pearson, South Africa; Harold W. Pearson, Toronto, and Miss Kathleen, who resides with her father. The funeral took place yesterday at Toronto and was private.

TWO BOATS GOT STUCK AND THE PEOPLE HAD TO WALK

A number of people from Stony Lake had to beat it over the brow of the hill to the dusty city last evening, when the steamers "Stoney Lake" and "Lintonia" were stalled at the lift lock. A hitch in the mechanism of the lock was the cause of the holdup.

The lock is working as usual now.

WHEN JEW MET JEW A STORMY MEETING

Good morning, Harry.

Good morning, Mr. Schwartz.

With this kindly salutation two Jewish clothing dealers, proceeded to mix it up on Park street, near the C.G.E. gate, yesterday morning, and Magistrate Dumble had two charges of assault to deal with this morning at the police court.

He dismissed both charges, as His Worship held that he had a doubt as to which was telling the least or the greater amount of truth. Each contributed $2.60 as costs of the case.

Mr. R. Ruddy appeared for Mr. Schwartz, who was first to lay a charge, and Mr. R. F. McWilliams acted for Harry Koplen, who laid a counter charge against Schwartz.

ONE STORY.

The evidence of Schwartz was to the effect that he accosted Koplen and informed him that in case he did not desist from making personal remarks about him, he would make him, by use of the law. Koplen then, witness stated, hit him in the face and knocked him off the sidewalk, held him down and landed a few more. He finally succeeded in arising and was handed another dose of fives.

ON THE OTHER HAND.

Koplen's version of the meeting was that Schwartz approached him and called him a name which isn't used in polite society, and followed it up by alluding to him as a "poor beggar." Schwartz used his finger nails like a cat on his (Koplen's) face, and both fell off the sidewalk in a position not unlike that of the babes in the woods. He admitted punching Schwartz, but claimed that he was only protecting himself.

Mr. Schwartz was somewhat put out by being charged by Koplen with using bad language, and would like to have it made known that he was not guilty of such an offence, nor has he been in the habit of using profane language.

MILLBROOK NEWS

Special to the Review.

Millbrook, July 27.—Mrs Woods, of Millbrook, had a rather unique experience the other day, having had occasion to go to Peterborough on on Monday. Mrs. Woods took the G.T.R. local from Millbrookk. Having completed her business in town she proceeded to make the return trip but on going down to the G.T.R. station Mrs. Woods was informed that the trains had ceased running owing to the strike, which had taken place after she had left Millbrook. Mrs. Woods had to take the C.P.R. to Cavanville, where some friends of Mrs. Wood's drove her home.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

Mr. W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister of Public Works, addressed an interested audience at the town hall on Friday, the subject being the good roads question. Such meetings as these are of inestimable value to the country and should be encouraged.

Mr. and Mrs R. Ruddy have taken a summer cottage at Chemong for the summer.

Millbrook is beginning to feel the effects of the strike especially the storekeepers, who are handicapped by the failure of the G.T.R. to deliver the goods. The Presbyterian S.S. excursion, which was scheduled to take place on the 21st to Cobourg, had to be postponed.

St. Thomas' S.S. held a very enjoyable picnic at the rectory on Tuesday, which was well patronized by the young people.

Mr. Ferguson occupied the pulpit of Centreville Presbyterian church church on Sunday in the absence of the Rev. Mr McKenzie.

Mr. E Burnham, of Peterborough, was a visitor to his old home here on Sunday.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

SPORTING NEWS

THE BIG MUGS HAVE MET AND THE GAME IS ON

The fray will be pulled off at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon.

The West Ends claim that they can put it all over the T.A.S., but the Abstainers hold that the yellow and black brigade haven't got the performers to pull off the trick.

'Twill be a merry struggle.

The main gazooks of each team got together last night, and after saying a whole lot of things, decided to line up their teams on the weak end half holiday.

Fans may be assured of a big fifteen cent's worth of fireworks. The team that wins—well, we'll hear about it anyway. Meanwhile it behooves those who will be on hand, to avoid all excitement for the remainder of the week.

HAVELOCK CHAMPIONS

Junior Footballers of the Railway Town Have Not Lost a Game This Season

The Havelock junior football team has been successful in carrying off the Midland junior football series for 1910 without losing a single game during the whole season. The Madoc team were unable to secure a team that they would feel like putting against the Havelock team and thus the honors goes to the local team.

With manager T. P. Lancaster and Captain B. Brooks, the junior team have succeeded during the season in working up a good combination, which with the stalwart defence, was responsible for their good showing.

Havelock won out from Norwood in district No. 2, by 5 goals to 1 on the round and then succeeded in beating Warsaw, winners of district three, by 5—0, in a game which the executive ordered to be replayed and which the Warsaw team defaulted.

ROUND FOUR TENNIS TOURNEY

Games in This Round Should be Played Off at Once

Appended hereto will be found a copy of round four in the city tennis tournament, and it is especially requested that any who have not as yet played off their games in this round will do so immediately. As soon as the game is played make as prompt a report as possible to the secretary of the singles tournament, thus enabling the schedule to be continued without furthey delay.

SPORTING NOTES

John L. Sullivan: "I was a great big, powerful fellow, and I might add, mentally as well as physically, yet old John Barleycorn outwrestled me every time that I thought I had a grip on him. We all think when we start out hitting the booze that we can hold it successfully. I learned that there was only one way to do him, and that after many bitter experiences, was to get a strangle hold on him and never let go."

Head Hit Pavement.

Kingston, July 27.—Chilton of the Ottawa postal service came here with the old boys and while in Dr. Bogart's automobile had an accident that kept him two days in the General Hospital, fearing concussion of the brain. When the auto slewed and bumped a pavement he jumped and lit on his feet, but fell, striking his head on the cement.

A sad accident occurred out at Odessa on Saturday evening, when John McEwen of Wilton, who in company with his brother, Isaac, was returning from Kingston, pitched over the rear of the wagon and broke his neck, death following instantly.

Spea Tvanoff, a Pole, working on a gravel train on the Kingston & Pembroke Railway, was run over by a handcar at Lavant. He was brought to the Hotel Dieu, and is improving.

It is said that one of the guards in the penitentiary has been suspended and that his case has gone to Ottawa.

Aeroplane Somersaulted.

New York, July 27.—After his aeroplane had turned a complete somersault, falling to the ground with him, during a flight near Garden City, L.I., yesterday, George Russell picked himself up and walked from the debris without a bruise or a scratch.

Russell had made one flight in a 25-mile breeze and was rising from the ground for a second spin when the accident happened. He ran along the ground at high speed for several hundred yards, but when he undertook to rise the second time, the soft soil caught the tail of his aeroplane and caused it to swerve as an automobile skids in the mud. The aeroplane aired straight up, turned a clean "backslip" and came down on its back, with the engine on top. Russell was flung head over heels and fell in a tangled nest of snapped wires. The aeroplane was damaged badly.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP.

The Financial Man Totally Forgot His Little Snare.

Mr. Harry Scott, at one time financial editor on The Toronto Globe staff, and now Canadian Commissioner in New York, has many friends in Toronto. On one occasion, while he was on The Globe staff, occasion arose for editorial comment on the financial situation in the United States. In the nature of things, one should expect that Mr. Scott would have been assigned the job. But Mr. S. T. Wood received the instructions to write the articles instead.

Mr. Scott, being only human, felt some chagrin at this event, which became an impatience when Mr. Wood, in his leisurely fashion, strolled down to the financial editor's den every afternoon to seek enlightenment on his task and get the latest news from American centres. He habitually, and to the other's distaste, spread his huge limbs upon half the surface of the financial desk, genially disposed to launch into side issues. After several repetitions of the visit, Mr. Scott determined upon reprisals in self-defence, and the sight of the mucilage pot suggested their mischievous nature. One day, at the approach of the fatal hour, therefore, he seized his brush and with swift, remorseless strokes smeared that portion of his desk upon which the editorial interloper was wont to side-seat himself.

Mr. Wood arrived, and the plot deepened.

He walked in, was attracted momentarily to the window, and, all unconscious of what he was expected to do—ranged himself along the—radiator!

Fortune had so far befriended him.

His guilty host, however, refused to be frustrated in his design. Scott began manoeuvres to dislodge him and lead him into the snare. He entered with heat into the controversy, for Mr. Wood has the faculty of putting one's opinions into pillory. But there was too much heat. The interest heightened. Mr. Scott, engaged, wholly forgot, in the moment, the desk, and, presently seeking a base whence he might rear a fresh argument sat down on the spot so carefully prepared for the undoing of another.

"Something (ah! tell me what) there is
To cause that scathing tone.
I fear a thought has gone amiss,
Returning quite alone."

The New Conservative Whip.

The event predicted for weeks back has come to pass, and when the House of Commons assembles next autumn "Taylor of Leeds" will no longer be Whip of the Opposition and his duties will be performed by George H. Perley, M.P. for Argenteuil.

Mr. Perley is one of the best known citizens of Ottawa. The son of W. G. Perley, the head of the lumber firm of Perley & Pattee, who was himself member for Ottawa from 1887 to 1891, Mr. G. H. Perley was born at Lebanon, New Hampshire, in 1857, but came to Canada at an early age. He was educated at the Ottawa Grammar School, at St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., and at Harvard University, where he took his degree of B.A. in 1878.

He has long been active in the life of the city of Ottawa. He was vice-president of the Canada Atlantic Railway; a director of the Bank of Ottawa; has been president of the Rideau Club; is an enthusiastic golfer and has been president of the Ottawa Golf Club; and was chairman of the relief committee which administered the funds for the relief of the sufferers by the great fire in Ottawa and Hull in 1900. His first essay at political honors was in 1900 when he contested Russell County against Mr. W. C. Edwards, but was defeated. His next attempt was at Argenteuil at a bye-election in 1902 upon the death of the late Dr. Christie, but there again he was defeated by 191 majority, but he had better luck in 1904 when he won out by 176 and was re-elected at the last general election. Mr. Perley has taken a prominent part in the affairs of the Church of England in the diocese of Ottawa.

Indian Relics.

The Ontario Education Department has obtained a curious and interesting collection of Indian relics. The collection was bought from Mrs. Rutherford, whose husband was in the British Civil Service in India, and spent many years in gathering the curios.

The collection is a large one. Chief among the relics is a river crocodile which had a known record of killing six Indian women, before Mr. Rutherford shot it. There are two mounted wild black boar heads and one glimpse of them makes the timid person glad that he is many miles from India.

The collection also contains the mounted heads of six black buck, four jackals, and a wolf; a fish-eating crocodile, and the skull and horns of two Indian bison. Some of the minor relics are: a fusee, which is like a heavy shot gun, and is used for shooting elephants; a hill-gun; a spear 10 feet long, made of solid bamboo, and used for boar sticking; Indian gods, anointing bottles, pistols, sabres, breast plates, daggers, Indian tyles taken from a temple, a holy bull which they worship, and five silver coins, some round, some square.

Mrs. Rutherford also sent an original copy of The London Times of Thursday, June 22, 1815. The copy contains the first official report by Wellington himself, of the battle of Waterloo. The report is dated June 19, the fighting having continued from the 15th to the 18th.

Buys Regina Land.

Mark Hambourg, the distinguished pianist, during his recent visit to Regina, purchased four lots of land or two double corner sites. These lots, writes The Standard of Empire correspondent at Regina, are pleasantly situated in the Lake View annex, which adjoins the new Parliament building site. Mr. Hambourg said that this was the first property he had purchased in Canada, and he considered his investment a good one. He was thoroughly impressed by the wonderful growth of Regina since he last passed through the town some years ago.

USED GEORGIAN ROUTE

CHAMPLAIN WENT OVER THE PROJECTED CANAL.

When the Great Explorer Started Inland He Chose For His Journey to the West the Ottawa River, Lake Nipissing and Down the French Into Georgian Bay—The Nipissings Were Superstitious Indians.

The first governor of Canada to pass beneath the bold cliff on which now stands the federal capitol, to navigate the Great Lakes and traverse what is to-day the fair Province of Ontario, was Samuel de Champlain, "the crusader, the romance-loving explorer, the curious knowledge-seeking traveler; the practical navigator." Champlain's first journey to the West was made, not by way of the Upper St. Lawrence River, the great waterway of the present time, but up the Ottawa, across Lake Nipissing and down the French River into the Georgian Bay. This route, it is claimed, will be the greater waterway of the future, when made available by the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal. The Government engineers, in making the surveys for this proposed gigantic work, practically followed in the footsteps of Champlain.

On his first trip up the Ottawa, made in the early summer of 1613, Champlain did not proceed much beyond the point where the Coulonge River, flowing down from the north through what is now the County of Pontiac, joins the Ottawa a short distance above the Calumet Islands. He had heard of the Great Lakes, the inland "seas of sweet water," and of the Lake of the Nipissings, but at the Indian settlement reached on the Upper Ottawa guides could not be procured to lead him westward. In consequence the journey westward had to be abandoned, and Champlain returned to Quebec.

Two years later the expedition was renewed, and this time carried out successfully. It was midsummer when Champlain, accompanied by twelve Frenchmen and a small band of Indians, set out from Montreal in canoes on his extended tour into the interior of Canada. The journey was one of toil and hardship. All day they paddled up the river or carried their canoes and baggage over the rough portages at points where rapids and cataracts made navigation impossible—at the Long Sault above Carillon, at the Chaudiere opposite Ottawa city, at the Chats, the Calumets and the many other points where the fickle river suddenly changes its placid course into a raging torrent. "It would be hard to tell you," wrote Champlain in a letter to a friend, "how tired I was with paddling all day, with all my strength, among the Indians; wading the rivers a hundred times and more, through the mud and over the sharp rocks that cut my feet; carrying the canoe and luggage through the woods to avoid the rapids and frightful cataracts half starved all the while, for we had nothing to eat but a little sagamite, a sort of porridge of water and pounded maize (Indian corn), of which they give us a very small allowance every morning and night."

At Mattawa a river flows into the Ottawa from the west. This was followed until it dwindled to a stream too small to float canoes; and then the portage was taken that brought them to the shores of Lake Nipissing. Here dwelt a small nation whose name the lake now bears, a people so beset with demons and given over to superstitions that the Jesuit missionaries called them "The Sorcerers." Crossing the lake to its outlet their canoes now glided swiftly down the French River. The ten gluttonous Indians, having by this time devoured all the provisions, hunger became pressing, and the party landed from time to time to gather raspberries and blueberries. While collecting their dinner one day from the bushes they suddenly came upon a band of three hundred Indians, also engaged in gathering blueberries which they dried in the sun for winter use. They wore their hair in such a startling fashion that Champlain called them the "Cheveux Releves." "Not one of our courtiers," writes Champlain, "takes so much pains in dressing his locks." Their only other bodily adornment was the tattooing with which their bodies were covered. They were armed with bows and arrows and shields but were entirely naked. From them Champlain learned that the great lake was not far distant.

After leaving this remarkable band of Indians, Champlain and his party continued their journey and soon reached the broad expanse of the Georgian Bay. Coasting along its eastern shores they crossed Byng Inlet and Parry Sound, now a lake port of one of the great railway systems of the country; and finally landed a little west of the harbor of Penetanguishene. From there a path led them to the villages of the Hurons, which were scattered through the district lying between Lake Huron and Lake Simcoe, and which now forms the northern part of Simcoe County.

The visitors were received with open arms and given a hearty welcome, principally because Champlain promised to accompany the Hurons on an invasion of the country of their implacable enemies, the Five Nations of the Iroquois. The fame of the victory over the Mohawks, won chiefly through the assistance of Champlain and his white companions, during their trip up Lake Champlain in 1609, had reached the western Hurons. Firearms had not yet come into use among the Indians, and the Hurons believed that they could easily conquer even the fierce Iroquois, if they had the assistance of Champlain and his companions, armed with thunder, as the Hurons described the Frenchmen's arquebuses, or primitive muskets.

Canada Now Stands Fifth.

A statement prepared by the census and statistics branch of the Department of Agriculture shows that among wheat-producing countries of the world Canada now ranks fifth. In 1908 Canada ranked tenth. The total production of wheat in Canada last year is given at 166,744,000 bushels, as compared with 112,434,000 bushels in 1908.

Fell Into a Furnace.

St. John, July 27.—Francis Roy, aged 17, while feeding a furnace in the Nepisiquit Co.'s Shingle Mill at Bathurst, fell in and was so badly burned that he died before being rescued.

Michael Driscoll of Hanwell dropped dead as a result of over-exertion during a day of extreme heat.

Miss Anne Skene, aged 62, of Pennfield, fell into the Letang River and was drowned.

Mrs. O. Martin of Waltham, Mass., while visiting her sister, Mrs. Ephraim Pine at Richibucto, was killed by lightning while washing some dishes in the pantry.

Belleville Old Boys.

Belleville, July 27.—The old boys' reunion closed yesterday afternoon and has been one of the greatest successes in the history of this city. The visitors were entertained by aquatic sports, band concerts, etc., and yesterday afternoon Lee Riggs of New York, an old Belleville boy, gave an organ recital in the Bridge street church. Most of the visitors go home to-day.

OAK ORCHARD

PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE.

Oak Orchard, July 25.—A progressive euchre party took place in the pavilion on Thursday evening, which was largely attended, the first lady's prize being awarded to Miss Urquhart, of Toronto, and the second to Mrs. F. Gordon, of Ottawa. Mr. Geo. Urquhart, of Toronto, won the gentleman's prize.

Divine service was held in the pavilion on Sunday evening by Rev. C. Lord, of Apsley.

A full programme of sports and games is arranged for the coming week, which will make things lively around this popular resort.

The Dining Car Service

Of the Grand Trunk Pacific is already commencing to attract very favorable comment. A few days ago a number of representatives of Marshall Field in Chicago, gave the following unsolicited testimonial: "We have travelled extensively and in our judgment the service and cuisine are as perfect as any we have ever experienced. C. H. Ford, Field Manager, Chicago, Ill.; H. L. Johnson, Sales Manager, New York City; H. Cunningham, Winnipeg."

TRAINS COLLIDE.

Wreck Near Peterboro Results In the Injuring of Five Men.

Toronto, July 27.—Five men were injured in a collision on the C.P.R. in a rock cut at Indian River, ten miles from Peterboro, at four o'clock yesterday morning. They are:

Edmund Trout, C.P.R. engineer, 273 Pacific avenue, West Toronto, shoulder dislocated and badly bruised.

R. Follis, C.P.R. engineer, 43 Clendennan avenue, West Toronto, shoulder dislocated and otherwise injured.

Thomas Dirby, fireman, Toronto, engine 641, injured in back and legs.

E. C. Knapp, conductor, 183 Mavety street, West Toronto, right side badly bruised and legs hurt.

James Weir, fireman, West Toronto, hands and arms injured.

Two freight trains were to have "crossed at Indian River," but through some error in orders a collision occurred that telescoped both engines, and piled nine cars filled with Quaker Oats all up in a heap and scattered their contents over the road.

Engine 641, with Engineer Trout, Conductor Thomas Dirby and Fireman James Weir were going east, and met the up train in charge of Conductor Knapp and Engineer Follis near Indian River. Both trains slowed down, and in this fact is explained why one of the two crews is alive to tell the tale.

The error in the order is said to have been the omission of the words "Indian River," the crossing place, from the order.

A great deal of trouble was also given by a few cars filled with cattle attached to the rear of the train from the west. The animals were terrorized. They rushed from side to side of the cars, crushing each other in their mad struggles.

Earthquake Works Havoc.

Tokio, July 27.—Tremendous earthquakes and a volcanic eruption have worked havoc on Usubay, on the southern part of the Island of Hokkasdo, according to advices received here yesterday.

For four days a panic has reigned in the vicinity of the mountain, and 8,000 refugees have abandoned their homes and fleeing inland for their lives.

The meagre advices received here state that there was a terrific upheaval of the bottom of Usubay, and that the harbor and practically all of the shipping in the bay were destroyed. Several war vessels were hastily loaded with supplies yesterday, and will be rushed forward at once.

The public apprehension was increased when the Government announced yesterday that it had received no word from Hakkodate, the largest city on the island, a town of about 50,000 people. It is feared the city has suffered heavily as the result of the earthquake.

Think Dentist Is Crazy.

Toronto, July 27.—Divine revelation played a prominent part in the arrest of Dr. J. R. Irish, an aged dentist with offices at 90 West Queen street, who was taken into custody yesterday morning by Detectives Murray and Wallace, charged with being insane.

Complaint was made to Acting Staff Inspector David McKinney by a patient of the dentist, who says that he went to consult him about a tooth earlier in the morning. The doctor produced a formidable array of forceps and declared that he had just had a message from God, that he must extract all the teeth, and that he intended to obey. The patient immediately declared that he, too, had received a message to the effect that he must not have them out that day, but must wait till to-morrow. This appeared to satisfy the doctor, and the extraction was postponed.

Preacher Has a Title.

New York, July 27.—Considerable attention has been attracted by the following newspaper advertisement.

"Preacher.—Rev. Sir Charles Dunbar, Bart., desires temporary or lenthened charge of preaching tour in U.S.A., Episcopal or other denomination; New York, Ramsgate, Eng."

He succeeded to the baronetcy last June, and in a letter says: "I would much like to visit America as an extempore preacher—a privilege I have never hitherto enjoyed, but have always desired."

Protests Against King's Oath.

London, July 27.—Three hundred petitions against the accession declaration bill have been received from Scotland. A Canadian petition containing 25,000 signatures has been forwarded to the King.

The Nonconformist M.P.'s will consider to-day a proposal to vote against the bill. The Bishop of Manchester protested against the change at a mass meeting in Cottonopolis. Dr. Clifford demands that the King should repudiate the papal claims in England.

Verdict of Manslaughter.

Sherbrooke, July 27.—The coroner's jury at Philipsburg returned a verdict of manslaughter against William Richards in connection with L. B. Doherty's death at that place on Sunday. The doctors stated that Doherty died from hemorrhage caused by the blows on the head.

No King George Coins Yet.

Ottawa, July 27.—There will be no issue of a new coinage bearing the effigy of King George until January. The new dies are being designed in England, and Canada and Britain are expected to have the first coins of the new reign simultaneously.

Delimiting New Reserve.

Ottawa, July 27.—Two survey parties have been sent out by the Forestry Department to delimit the boundary of the new Rocky Mountain forest reserve. When their work is completed it will be submitted to Parliament for enactment.

Returns to England.

Ottawa, July 27.—The Earl of Lanesborough, who succeeded Sir John Hanbury Williams as military secretary to Earl Grey, will return to England in October. The name of his successor has not yet been made public.

Home Rule and the Panama Canal.

London, July 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A piquant rumor which is gaining strength is current to the effect that the conference is seeking a solution to the home rule question. It is stated in Irish quarters that the approaching completion of the Panama Canal is inducing the parties to consider the matter more urgently in view of the necessity of the closest relations with the United States.

Honor For Canadians.

London, July 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The following have been admitted members of the Royal College of Surgeons: A. Gilchrist, W. Krupp, jr., McRae, Toronto.

Dropped Dead.

Port Colborne, July 27.—William Mehlenbacker, aged about 45 years, hotelkeeper of Humberstone, dropped dead yesterday afternoon from heart disease. He leaves a widow and three children.

Twenty-Five Perish In Cloudburst.

Budapest, Hungary, July 27.—Twenty-five persons perished in a flood that followed a cloudburst at the Town of Dees yesterday. The damage to property and crops was heavy.

Walk-Out Didn't Happen.

Madrid, July 27.—This is the anniversary of the general strike at Barcelona, but the threatened walk-out did not materialize. Official despatches state that complete tranquility reigns in Barcelona. The factories are being operated as usual, and only the longshoremen quit work. Ten thousand troops occupied strategic points in the Catalonian capital.

Insurrection In Cuba.

Havana, July 27.—The Government is much alarmed over the insurrection at Elcaney, in the Province of Santiago de Cuba. Following a midnight council at the palace, troops were rushed to the disaffected districts yesterday. The insurgents are reported as retreating to the hills, pursued by troops already in the province.

Says Strike Will End To-morrow.

Lindsay, July 27.—"Ita," a young girl mentalist, who has been giving clever performances in this town, has declared that the strike will be settled on Thursday and that the men will return to work.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Another debate on Imperial preference took place in the British Commons.

The Germans resident in Brazil are anxious that the Kaiser should pay them a visit.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell estimates a crop of six million bushels of wheat for Saskatchewan.

A party of Michigan Central officials made a trip through the tunnel from Detroit to Windsor.

Earl Grey leaves to-day for his five-thousand-mile trip through the country adjoining Hudson Bay.

W. J. Bryan was deposed from the Democratic leadership in Nebraska at a Democratic state convention last night.

Two boys of eleven, who wanted to be "bad men," committed 600 burglaries in the neighborhood of Canton, Ohio.

Count De Lesseps left Montreal for New York last night. During the day he made a wonderful high flight in Le Scarabee.

A Grand Trunk engineer discovered the spikes pulled out of the ties in a stretch of track about one hundred feet long east of Brockville.

Scotland Yard has had no word of Dr. Crippen since the C.P.R. steamer Montrose got out of touch with the wireless stations on the east coast of the Atlantic.

A workman on the National Transcontinental Railway west of La Tuque tried to open a can of explosive with an axe. An explosion resulted, ten or eleven men were killed, and several others injured.

R. H. Campbell, chief of the Forestry Branch, blames the Canadian Northern Railway for the fires in Saskatchewan and Alberta, stating that the company disregarded orders to clean up its right of way.

Charged Apostacy From Race.

Ottawa, July 27.—H. N. Bourassa's campaign against Hon. L. P. Brodeur's son, who is a naval cadet, has somewhat fallen flat from the visiting card point of view. Mr. Bourassa accuses the lad of forsaking his mother tongue for the more plebeian language of the vile sassenach, and of disgracefully talking English instead of French in the city of Halifax. The Quebec Nationalist has stated also that young Brodeur's cards are printed in English. The card reads: "Cadet Victor Brodeur, C.G.S., Canada." This card is purely French, except the letter "S" for steamer, and if "C" for Croiseur had been used it would have been a card truly Parisian or Bourassite.

An official of the Marine Department naively suggests that there's nobody in Halifax to talk French to except R. L. Borden.

New Calgary College.

Calgary, July 27.—The new college to be started by the Methodist Church in Calgary will be ready to receive classes in September, and a staff of professors and teachers will be engaged at the earliest possible moment. Pending the erection of the proposed college building, the classes will be held in Blow's new block, on Eighth avenue, rent and heat free of cost.

HAPPENINGS IN HAVELOCK

Excursion, Fire, Marriages, Officers Elected, Personals

Havelock, July 27.—Owing to the G.T.R. strike, a large quantity of the freight leaving and going to Campbellford is being sent by Havelock. The woollen mills of Campbellford shipped a large quantity of goods here on Thursday, while the merchants of Campbellford have to get their goods shipped to this point and team it over from here.

Master Douglas Dart, the five-year-old son of Mr. George Dart, while playing with the axe on Monday inflicted a nasty cut in one of his big toes, nearly severing the member.

EXCURSION.

About three hundred people took in the Oddfellows excursion to Thousand Islands on Wednesday, July 20th, and an enjoyable time was spent. The weatherman provided the very best in his line, adding much to the beauty of the trip. A special train left Havelock at 7 o'clock in the morning, arriving at Kingston at 11 o'clock, where the steamer "America" was boarded for a six hour sail through the Island. The 14th Prince of Wales band of Kingston, provided excellent music during the boat trip. A stop of two hours in Kingston on the return trip gave ample time for the visitors to see the city.

The local auxiliary was called to Burketon on Thursday morning to replace five cars that left the track at that point.

Mr. T. E. Pace, of Cordova, has purchased a gasoline launch which he will place on Belmont lake.

WEDDING BELLS.

Miss Maud Parcels, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Parcels, of Havelock, was united in marriage to Mr. James Hanlan, of Tweed on Monday evening, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. James Skene, Mr. and Mrs. Hanlan left on the local train on Tuesday for Tweed, where they will reside.

SUCCESSFUL PUPILS.

The following is a list of the local pupils who were successful at the annual examinations of the Toronto College of Music;

Second piano—First-class honors, Eva Lynch; honors, Lillian McNichol.

First piano.—Honors, Edna Marchand, Edith Scott, Jewel Bennet; pass, Amelia McArthur, Lillian Webb, Vera Bennet, Nellie Trudean.

Primary piano.—Honor, Edith Newton; pass, Essie Foley.

Miss Myrtle F. Johnston, of Belmont, was successful in passing her limited third-class examination at the Peterborough Normal school.

Mr. Thos. Hubble has moved into the residence adjoining R. J. Graham's.

Thos. Edwards, the young Cordova resident charged with the theft of a colt from Mr. Youman's, was acquitted by Magistrate Edmison when he appeared for trial on Tuesday last.

Mr. John Boylan was in Belleville this week representing Havelock A.F. and A.M. at the 55th annual meeting of the Masonic Lodge of Canada in Ontario.

"Jamie Pointer," the valuable stallion owned by Mr. J. M. Watson, of town, had its leg broken in Marmora last week. The injured limb has been set and placed in sprints, and Mr. Watson thinks that the animal will soon be all right again.

Mr. Frank Young, of town, while making a coupling at Leaside Junction on Monday had the muscles of his left arm severely torn.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., of Peterboough, will conduct both morning and evening services in St. John's church on Sunday next.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

The following officers of Royal Lodge 286, Oddfellows of town, were installed on Friday evening last by Lt.-Col. Miller and W. S. Robinson, of Otonabee Lodge:

W. G.—P. J. Wright.

HOUSE BURNED.

The house occupied by Mr. Henry Clapper, at the west end of the town, was burned to the ground on Monday afternoon. The cause is unknown, as there had been no fire in the house since morning. The house adjoining it was easily saved by the bucket brigade. The house, which was owned by Mr. C. A. Ghent, of town, was insured for a small amount. Mr. Clapper succeeded in saving all his household effects.

CHURCH SERVICES.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., of Peterborough, conducted both morning and evening services in St. John's church on Sunday last in the absence of the incumbent, Rev. C. W. Holdsworth.

STRIKE HELPS C.P.R.

Owing to the increased freight traffic over this line, caused by the G.T.R. strike, the railroad men here are kept very busy. The passenger traffic is also large, but the trains are kept pretty well on time.

Owing to the wreck at Indian River on Tuesday, the early morning train stopped at this station, where the passengers breakfasted. The train did not leave here until ten o'clock and thus the passengers had ample time to inspect the railway town.

There was another large shipment of cheese made from this station on Tuesday, all the factories within twelve miles south, shipping from this point.

DIED TO SAVE A PIGEON

Buffalo, N.Y., July 26.—At the cost of his own life, Peter Zifute, of No. 2462 Allen avenue, saved a pigeon from electrocution. Just as the bird fluttered to freedom Zifute toppled over dead, the current from a city arc light passing through his body.

On Saturday evening Zifute noticed a pigeon on the arc light at Nineteenth street and Cuddaback avenue. The bird appeared to be unable to get away from the light, and although its wings were beating the air it was impossible for the pigeon to free its feet, held to the light by the electricity. Zifute called J. H. Sullivan, who boards at Conboy's hotel, Allen avenue and Twenty-fourth street, and between them they unfastened the rope that holds the light aloft and lowered it. It was raining at the time, and Zifute reached up, putting one arm around the light while with the other hand he took hold of the bird. A few seconds' work was enough to free the bird, and just as it fluttered away and Zifute turned to his companion he came in contact with a wire, the hand resting on the light completing his death circuit.

PRES. HAYS REJECTS OFFER OF STRIKING TRAINMEN

Union Officials Call on Mr. Hays of Grand Trunk and Say They Will go to Work at Old Rate With Pensions the Same—Some Deny Story of Offer.

Montreal, July 28.—The most important development which has occurred since the strike commenced took place yesterday. A conference was held in Mr. Hays' office between G.T.R. officials and Messrs. Lee, Garretson, Maloney and Kelly, representing the strikers. With Mr. Hays was associated Mr. Fitzhugh. The representatives of the men stated that the strikers were willing to go back to their old jobs as if they had never left the service. In other words, they accepted Mr. Hays' offer of an 18 per cent. increase made to them before they went on strike, and wanted to have each man reinstated and occupy his old position. Their demand also included the restoration of their pensions. The date of increasing the wages to the standard rate was to be submitted to arbitration. This had been promised by Mr. Hays for January 1, 1913, but the men wanted to have this point arbitrated, in the hope of having the standard wage paid them at an earlier date.

To their request Mr. Hays' said "No," and added: "We have no feeling of anger against our former employes, but you must apply for your jobs as new men, and only on this condition will you be taken back. We hired a number of men in good faith, and we cannot discharge them to make way for those who went on strike. The men who went out will lose their pensions, but those who apply for positions will be taken back, as far as we have room for them. This applies to all except those who committed deeds of violence against the company's employes or property."

In keeping with the contradictory stories issued by the two sides, the strike leaders last night denied that there had been any yielding on their part. "We had a conference with Messrs. Hays and Fitzhugh yesterday afternoon," said Mr. Garretson, "but no definite results were achieved. We met Mr. Hays and laid it before him that if a friendly settlement was possible by any honorable means we were favorable thereto, and that if there was no such possibility we were in the game for all it was worth. We took into consideration the hardships placed upon the public, who were dependent upon the Grand Trunk services. We made no offer at all, but simply suggestions as to our general attitude."

Brantford Industries Shut Down.

Brantford, July 28.—The Farmers' Binder Twine Co., employing seventy hands, was forced to close down here yesterday as a result of the Grand Trunk strike. The factory was unable to secure raw material. The Schultz Sand Lime Brick Co. also laid off its employes. Absolutely no freight is being handled out of this city.

Smithers Is Coming.

London, July 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A. W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway Board, goes to Canada on Saturday, sailing on the Mauretania.

RULER OF A TURBULENT STATE

Pekin, July 26.—Confidential advices from Corea state that Japan is rapidly increasing her military force in anticipation of the early promulgation of the annexation scheme. The most strict censorship is being exercised by the Japanese authorities upon telegrams and mails, and even the correspondents of Japanese papers are not permitted to mention these happenings.

It is understood that the first step, according to the programme of the Tokio authorities, will be to force the imbecile Emperor to delegate his ruling authority to the Emperor of Japan, advancing the farcial claim that the Corean Emperor surrenders on his own initiative.

One thousand Hupeh troops are leaving Hankow for Yuan Kiang, on the border of Tun-Ting Lake, where a serious uprising is reported.

JAMES BURKE TOOK MAN HE WOUNDED TO THE HOSPITAL

On July 11, Burke Had a Fight With George Matthews at North Bay and Has Since Spent Every Effort to Save His Victim's Life.

Toronto, July 28.—To carry a man about the country, nursing him as a mother because he was the cause of his injuries, to have the man die just as he had got him within the doors of Toronto General Hospital, where he had hoped he would be cured, and then to be taken into custody by the police, charged with his murder, is the experience of James Bourke, erstwhile butcher of North Bay, which reached its climax at local police headquarters yesterday morning. Bourke two weeks ago sold out his business.

The deceased is George Matthews of Horning's Mills, Ont., who had been in North Bay for some time and was employed as general workman by Bourke. On the night of July 11 the two men were in a bar at North Bay. An altercation arose over a money matter, when Matthews, it is alleged, called Bourke vile names. Bourke struck him and Matthews' head struck the bar. He became unconscious and a doctor was called, who declared Matthews' condition due to liquor rather than the blow. Then it was suggested that they take him to the hospital at North Bay. Bourke set out for the hospital with Matthews in a rig. On he way the injured man asked that he be taken to his boarding-house, where he was refused admittance, and was taken to a doctor's house. From there he was taken back to the boarding-house, where he spent the night. He was then removed to the hospital, where he remained until Tuesday, when the authorities said they could do no more for him, and put him on a train to be taken to Sudbury and thence to his home at Horning's Mills. On the train he became very sick, and was seen by a doctor at Sudbury. It was then decided to bring him to Toronto to an hospital. They were met at the station yesterday morning and hurried to the General Hospital in the police ambulance. There Matthews died in the corridor, and Bourke gave himself up to Ambulance Driver Egan.

Before leaving North Bay a lawyer had been called in and an agreement drawn up and signed by Matthews in which he waived all claims to action against Bourke, civil or criminal, in consideration of Bourke's undertaking to pay all doctor's bills and other expenses of Matthews' treatment.

Matthews was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and three children. Bourke is 30 years of age and unmarried.

REFUTES CLAIM OF SERVITUDE

The Hague, July 28.—Continuing hi[s] argument, Sir William Robson, at[torney-General of Great Britain, re]futed the assertion that after the de[cision in the arbitration case at Hali]fax, the United States had paid th[e] indemnity only after having receive[d] assurance from the British Govern[ment that Britain had no right to ex]ercise jurisdiction over America[n] fishermen.

Sir William then dealt with the doc[trine of international servitudes o]n which the United States based it[s] claims and its rights to fish withou[t] being subject to British laws. Couns[el] argued that no one would preten[d] that subjects of a foreign state t[o] whom had been accorded the righ[t] to enter the ports of another state fo[r] the purposes of commerce were free[d] from local laws. No logical reaso[n] had been advanced by the Unite[d] States to justify the exception in th[e] case of fisheries.

The United States had in no wa[y] proved that when treaty was conclud[ed, the doctrine of universal servi]tude was universally admitted.

In conformity with the tribunal's desire, Senator Root has submitted [a] note embodying clauses of Canadia[n] and Newfoundland laws to which th[e] United States raises objections.

The proceedings are expected t[o] terminate on August 10. Senator Roo[t] will deliver the closing address.

COW ADOPTS LITTER OF PIGS

Owensville, Ind., July 26.—Reese Gentry, a prominent farmer living near Mt. Vernon, has a cow on his farm that adopted a litter of pigs after her twin calves were sold to a butcher. It happened that the piggies became motherless about the time the cow became calfless. The grief-stricken cow wandered about the farm hunting something to coddle, when her eyes spied the squealing orphan pigs and it was love at first sight. The cow does the mother act, until it comes to grunting, and it must be admitted that she is shy on that art. The pigs do the calf stunt, by standing on their hind legs and bracing themselves against their foster mother while taking nourishment.

NOTED EDITOR PASSES AWAY

After Months of Suffering John A. Ewan, Editor Toronto Globe, Succumbs.

Toronto, July 28.—After months of suffering, John Alexander Ewan, associate editor of The Globe, died at 1.40 yesterday morning at his home, 10 Victor avenue.

Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1854, he came to Toronto when a boy and learned the typographical art in The Globe office. In 1879 he went on the reporting staff and later reported for The Mail and Empire at Ottawa. Then for a time he was editorial writer on The World, returning to The Globe in 1892. In 1897 he became widely known as a writer of a series of articles on life and conditions in Quebec, achieving a national reputation as war correspondent for The Globe in Cuba, and later in South Africa with the Canadian troops. He also "covered" the big Pennsylvania coal strike for his paper a score of years ago, and his last series of special articles were on the Esplanade viaduct, gleaned from a trip to the United States. He was well known at the Ottawa Parliament buildings.

Mr. Ewan was president of the Civic Guild, a member of the Canadian, National and Ontario Clubs, an ex-president of the Ward One Liberal Association and a member of St. Matthew's Church. He is survived by a widow and one daughter, a brother and two sisters, all in Toronto.

The Globe this morning says of him: "No one was so beloved by his colleagues of The Globe or by the other newspapermen throughout the Dominion, as well as an extraordinarily large circle of friends outside of newspaper work, as the late Mr. Ewan. Every newspaper man who visited Toronto in the course of his work or on pleasure bent, looked in on The Globe's associate editor for a friendly chat or exchange of opinions. To the younger newspapermen of the city he was a kindly godfather."

Canada to Be Represented.

Ottawa, July 28.—One of the Canadian Cabinet Ministers will be present at the opening of the first Parliament of United South Africa. It is probable that the Canadian envoy will not be named until Sir Wilfrid Laurier returns to Ottawa.

NO FEDERAL GRANT FOR SUFFERERS

Campbellton Citizens Are Becoming Disheartened—$300,000 Urgently Needed.

Campbellton, N.B., July 28.—Hon. Mr. Pugsley will arrive in Campbellton to-day and will be taken through the ruins in an automobile and given an opportunity of visiting every tent in which the unfortunate people are living. He will attend a joint meeting of the Town Council and relief committee, when plans for the future will be discussed. The prospect of Government aid and of further assistance from the public is the only ray of hope for the disheartened towns people. As the excitement wears off the people are feeling more and more discouraged, as the people of Canada do not seem to be aware of the misery they are called upon to relieve.

The first session of the Campbellton Police Court since the fire was held Tuesday in a large tent, with Judge Mathewson sitting on a rough plank supported on a couple of flour barrels.

No assignments among the ruined merchants of the town have yet been reported. This is perhaps owing to the general consideration shown by outside creditors, many of whom have sent in accounts marked "paid."

In the meantime the business men are evidently waiting for some definite assurance from the Government before preparing to start life over again on the site of the town. "It is a matter of life and death for the people, if $300,000 at least is not raised quickly," says Chairman McKenzie of the relief committee.

Mayor Murray has replied to the enquiries of the Winnipeg City Council, stating what the ruined town needs in the way of money and goods.

No Federal Grant.

Ottawa, July 28.—Hon. William Pugsley left yesterday for Campbellton, N.B., where he will meet the relief committee. It is expected that arrangements will be made to reconstruct at once the Government building and wharf. No Federal grant for the sufferers will be made.

SNAKE NESTED IN GIRL'S RAT

Richmond, Va., July 27.—Bitten by a small moccasin snake nested in her "rat," when she had laid that creation off during the evening in a hammock in her front yard, Miss Mary Wood, of the West End, is reported to be in a serious condition.

The girl is a department store clerk.

The day of the strange occurrence she went to work as usual. Her head began to itch and pain her. Miss Wood and another girl went to the dressing-room, where the hair was taken down. Several small red and swollen splotches were discovered on her scalp. enduring the pain all day the girl went home at closing up time and told her mother of her trouble.

The hair was again taken down and drops of blood with more incisions were discovered. The mother then asked for the "rat," and taking it began squeezing it. Feeling something wriggle inside the "rat" and hastily tearing it to pieces, a six-inch moccasin dropped to the floor. The girl fainted at the sight of the reptile and is now under the care of a physician.

LADY TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

Los Angeles, July 28.—Determined upon another effort to clear the mystery surrounding the death of her son, Lieut. J. N. Sutton, on the campus of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis two years ago, Mrs. Rose B. Sutton probably will be a candidate for the House of Representatives from her district.

"I firmly believe I will secure a Congressional investigation of my son's death at the next session of Congress," she said. "If going to Congress myself appear to be the only way, I certainly will be a candidate. Already many influential persons in Portland and other cities have promised their support, and several attorneys have volunteered to take the stump for me. If I go to Congress it will be with one object, to secure an investigation of my son's death. Woman's suffrage and other matters that usually interest women will have no place in my fight there. I will, however, advocate reforms in our army and navy life."

Lieut. Sutton was shot on the Annapolis campus. His death was attributed to suicide, after a lengthy investigation. A second probing resulted in a similar decision.

McCULLOUGH SUCCEEDS HODGETTS

Toronto, July 28.—Information was given from the Provincial Secretary's Department yesterday afternoon to the effect that Dr. John William Scott McCullough of Alliston, Ont., has been appointed secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, to succeed Dr. Chas. Hodgetts, who recently resigned to fill the position of medical adviser to the Conservation Commission at Ottawa.

Dr. McCullough has been a member of the local Board of Health for some time, and has a large practice in his surrounding neighborhood.

"His work on the Board of Health," said Hon. W. J. Hanna, "has, in the opinion of the Department, made clear his qualification for the position."

The duties of the new secretary are to commence on August 1, 1910.

BUCHANAN WILL RETIRE FROM POLITICS

Lethbridge, Alta., July 28.—At the annual meeting of the Lethbridge Liberal Association, Hon. W. A. Buchanan said: "That he had been loath to leave the Government. He recognized at once that the A. & G. W. deal was indefensible from a business standpoint, but the issue was mixed up with so many political jealousies and ambitions on the part of the Liberal members that it was necessary to be careful. He had acted according to his best knowledge and judgment in the matter and believed he had done right."

Mr. Buchanan paid a high tribute to the worth of the new Premier, and in concluding stated his intention to retire at the end of his term as a member of the Legislature. Not only had he all the politics he wanted, but his defective hearing and the demands of his private business made it difficult for him to stay in politics.

FOR PEACE CELEBRATION

Toronto, July 28.—The Centenary of Peace Celebration Association (1915), of which Col. James Mason is chairman, and R. S. Neville, K.C., secretary, has decided on the following program:

(1) A national monument to commemorate the successful defence of the British Provinces and their preservation to the British crown.

(2) A great historical pageant to be held at Toronto illustrating the history and progress of the country from the earliest times to the present day, including the following:

(a) Early life in the wilderness.

(b) The French regime.

(c) The struggle between the French and the British.

(d) The Anglo-American schism (1776).

(e) The coming of the United Empire Loyalists.

(f) The first Upper Canada Parliament in 1792.

g) The war of 1812-14.

(h) The union of the French and British provinces (1841).

(i) The federation conferences and the Confederation of Canada.

(j) The acquisition of the Northwest Territories and British Columbia with various views representing their development and history.

(k) The growth and development of the Empire.

(l) Tableaux of Empire.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Henry Rochette, the French promoter, was found guilty of swindling and sentenced to two years in prison.

Two men were shot at Little Rock Ark., both fatally, in a fight growing out of a feud of twenty years' standing.

A. E. Faulkner of Brantford has secured the contract for the new Collegiate Institute at Dunnville at $35,000.

The Detroit authorities are anxious to find a Mrs. Brewer of Toronto whose brother, Breeze Dana, was killed in Detroit.

The second reading of the bill amending the King's accession declaration passed the House of Commons last night.

The first estimate of the crop yield in the Regina district has been given out by the Department of Agriculture: Wheat, 18 to 20 bushels per acre; oats, 30 bushels, and flax, 10 to 12 bushels.

SMALLPOX IN BRANTFORD

Brantford, July 28.—The recurrence of smallpox continues in this city, and two more cases were discovered yesterday, making a total of 32, all of a mild nature. A general vaccination order has been asked for from the City Council by the health authorities, but refused on the ground that the situation is not serious enough. The provincial authorities may be called in to give advice. The cases are distributed in several parts of the city and the hospital accommodation is insufficient.

George Culham, employed as lineman on the street railway, fell from the top of a tower wagon here yesterday evening, striking head first on the pavement. His recovery is doubtful.

ELEVATOR COMMISSION HAD A RUMPUS

Winnipeg, July 28.—As a result of what was practically an altercation between Prof. Magill, chairman of the Saskatchewan Elevator Commission, and George Langley, M.P.P., and a member of the commission, the session of that body came to a sudden and unexpected termination.

During the examination of John Fleming of A. McPhee & Co., an ex-president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, Mr. Langley took vigorous objection, practically contending that the chairman was trying to prevent the witness from giving the evidence which he (Langley) was desirous of eliciting.

Mr. Magill warmly denied the insinuation and insisted that Mr. Langley retract what he had said, otherwise he would adjourn the session. Mr. Langley, however, proved stubborn, and, instead of retracting, reiterated his remarks, whereupon Mr. Magill, rising, gathered his papers together and left the room.

SENSATION AT THIS EXECUTION

Auburn, N.Y., July 28.—While William Gilbert, a Cataraugus County negro, was being led from the death house to the electric chair in Auburn Prison yesterday morning the convicts in the cell house shouted oaths at the legal witnesses, declaring they were murderers of an innocent man. Gilbert himself was resigned to his fate, and exhibited no fear as he walked to the chair.

May Be Triple Murder.

Quebec, July 28.—The bodies of three men, who are supposed to have been murdered, were discovered some days ago, along the line of the Transcontinental, some 90 miles west of La Tuque.

All that is left of the bodies is the bones and hair, but their clothes are well preserved and their pockets have been turned and cut open.

28,000 WILL GO OUT ON STRIKE

Chicago, July 28.—A general strike of building trades was decided upon at yesterday's conference of thirty-seven unions, which met in a final effort to obtain a settlement with the Otis Elevator Co.

By noon to-day it is said the strike order involved 28,000 men. The carpenters' union is the only one not affected, the representatives of that union at the conference declaring against a sympathetic strike. The cause of the strike is the refusal of the Otis Elevator Co. to remove machinists from elevator construction work.

Two Men In Trouble.

Whitby, July 28.—Percy N. Bell and William Ney, two Toronto young men have been committed for trial on a serious charge. The complainant in the case is a young Scotch woman, Lizzie Rae, but two months in Canada. The three young people went up the Rouge River for a row on Wednesday evening and Miss Rae charges that the men criminally assaulted her.

DENIES THAT SETTLERS ARE RETURNING

Winnipeg, July 28.—Immigration officials here issue vigorous denials of reports that settlers are returning to the United States in large numbers. J. Bruce Walker, commissioner, has official figures to show that in six months to July 1, only 261 farmers went back to the United States from Canada, and of these more than half went before May 1. Wm. J. White, superintendent, Ottawa, now here, says that offices in the United States have not been able to find traces of any movement back to the republic, as reported in certain papers there.

Barn Burned.

Pickering, July 28.—A very heavy electric storm passed over here yesterday afternoon, accompanied by heavy rain and considerable hail. Lightning struck Alexander Lawson's fine barn, about one mile east of Cherrywood. The barn, stables, sheds, and this season's crop of hay and nine pigs were burned. The loss will probably reach $3,000, insured in the Maple Leaf Insurance Co.

Destructive Storm.

Cayuga, July 28.—A terrific electric storm, accompanied by high wind, passed over here last evening. The barn of John Peart, four miles south of here, at Kohler, was struck by lightning and destroyed, together with one horse, two pigs, a calf and 18 loads of hay. In town a number of sheds were unroofed. R. Sinnet's barn was blown down and many windows broken. Shade and fruit trees were destroyed. The rural telephone service was demoralized.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1910.

A PLEASURE

IT IS A PLEASURE TO WRITE A BRIEF EDITORIAL DAILY ON THE GARBAGE QUESTION. IT HAS BEEN DISTINCTLY PROVEN THAT FLIES BRING DISEASE AND DEATH TO MANY PEOPLE, AND ESPECIALLY BABES. IT HAS ALSO BEEN DISTINCTLY SHOWN THAT WERE THERE NO FILTH THERE WOULD BE NO FLIES, AND THIRDLY AND LASTLY IT IS PROVED THAT THE LOCAL AUTHORITIES ARE IN FAVOR OF FILTH AND FLIES.

THE STRIKE

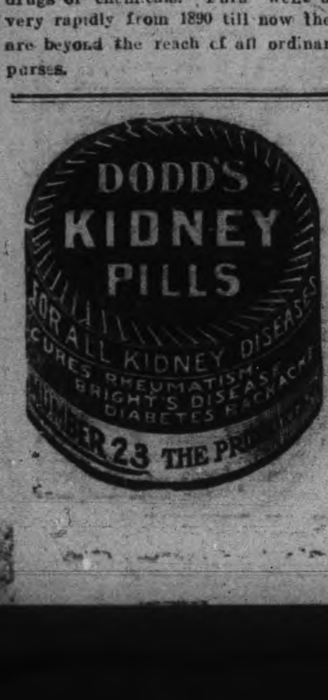
The brakemen and conductors on the Grand Trunk have apparently been ill advised. If the engineers are going to ask for a raise of 15 per cent., as stated in a despatch published in last night's Review, the strikers should have waited and made a good job of the thing. The general public is fast loosing sympathy and the travelling public are mad. When the men strike again for a raise, it is to be hoped they will be able to get a settlement quicker than this time. The company and the men are much like the prize fighters, they are both confident, both are going to win. The G.T.R. is moving freight and the passenger trains are running regularly. The strikers say the G.T.R. is lying. Meanwhile we are all suffering and think it very strange that in this year, 1910, there is no means of bringing matters to a settlement.

AN EXPLANATION

The writer is attacked for speaking a kind word for the bartenders. The letter appears in another column of this paper. This is not kind. The man, not the business, was spoken of. The temperance people in their fight for the abolition of the sale of liquor do not fight the man, it's the booze they are after.

PRICES

The Labour Gazette has arrived. Despite the fact that labor is spelled labour and it is printed by a Grit Government, there is much interesting matter between its covers. The most interesting thing in it are the charts showing the relative prices of commodities from 1890 to 1909. Groceries fruits and vegetables were much dearer in 1890 than in 1909. In 1897 they dropped to bottom prices and gradually rose, till 1907, when they slumped again. Lumber was at its cheapest in1899, its dearest in 1907, and then gradually fell till 1909. Miscellaneous building material was highest in 1890 and then gradually dropped till 1898 to rapidly rise during the next two years. It is still "riz." Fuel and lighting has remained practically unchanged. Iron and steel was highest in 1890, lowest in 1898, rose in 1900 and during the ten years following has fluctuated, but there was a sharp decline from 1907 to 1909. House furnishings show little change, neither do drugs or chemicals. Furs went up very rapidly from 1890 till now they are beyond the reach of all ordinary purses.



DR. CRIPPEN

The world is very small. It used to be large, but since man has made possible the cable, the railroad, the steamship, the wireless, it has shriveled a lot. Then we are becoming wiser. Our thumb print will betray us. A murderer was arrested on Monday. He had left his bloody thumb print on a door knob.

"I didn't do it," he pleaded.

The microscope declared him guilty. Then he confessed. The Bertillion system of tracking criminals is complete. No longer can murderers and embezzlers roam free. The great eye of Justice has opened world-wide. Dr. Crippin is in the focus, it is thought. If he isn't he will be. Then there is that other accuser—conscience.

THE ST. ANDREW'S FISHERY

A feature of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's western tour has been a mean little attempt to deprive a Conservative Member of Parliament of credit for a useful piece of public service.

The story begins with a recent dispatch from Winnipeg respecting the fishway in the new dam at the St. Andrew's Rapids, on the Red River, below Winnipeg. The American consul, the dispatch stated, made representations to the Premier that the absence of the fishway interfered with the supply of fish in the upper reaches of the river, which are in American territory, and that thereupon Sir Wilfrid Laurier graciously consented to have the fishway constructed.

Now, in the last session of the Dominion Parliament Mr. G. H. Bradbury, M.P., for Selkirk, brought the matter of the fishway up, in the interest of Canadian, not American, citizens above the dam. Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised to have the fishway constructed, but apparently contented himself with stirring up the Department of Public Works. A while after the House had prorogued, Mr. Bradbury received a letter from the Department telling him that it had looked into the matter, and that engineers had assured the authorities that no fishway was needed, inasmuch as at certain seasons of the year the water was high enough to allow the free passage of fish. Mr. Bradbury knew all about that. The water is at that height only when there is an ice jam, and when there is an ice jam the fish are not moving freely. He wrote back to this effect.

Matters were in this posture when the Premier's visit to the west drew near. It occurred to Mr. Bradbury that the matter came under the provision of the recent waterways treaty and he wrote suggesting that the matter be referred to the Commission now examining the subject of the western fisheries. He also mentioned the international aspect of the case to an acquaintance, who mentioned it to the American consul at Winnipeg. The American consul thereupon brought the matter before the Premier, who immediately agreed to have the fishway constructed.

Two things demand notice in this affair:

1. The Premier instantly granted to American citizens what had been denied to Canadian citizens.

2. An attempt has been made to attribute the credit of the change which will benefit the people on the Upper Red River, to the American consul, rather than to Mr. Bradbury.

"I'M NOT DRUNK"

A drunken man being supported by two other drunken men ambled by the editorial room window to-day at noon. The two tried to carry the third, who was helpless. They fell in a heap, and from beneath came the smothered cry, "Lesh up; I'm not drunk."

It's a problem to know just when a man is full.

A hotel man was once charged with being drunk on his premises.

As soon as the police left, the proprietor of the hotel made his way to a certain Dr. Blackled and asked to be examined as to his condition.

"Walk that crack," ordered the doctor.

The man walked the crack.

"Stand on one leg."

The fellow put up one leg very much like a rooster on a cold day.

The doctor pulled out his watch and timed the man, till three-quarters of a minute elapsed.

"Set down your leg."

The hotelkeeper let it down.

"Now say 'hippopotamus' distinctly and quickly."

The man barked it out quickly and correctly.

As a last test the doctor showed the hotelman his watch and asked him to tell the time, which he did to the fraction of a minute.

The case was dismissed.

Perhaps this would save much time and trouble if Chief Thompson would provide his men with a hand book with instructions to make arrests only along the lines indicated.

"Walk the crack" might catch a few.

"One leg up" would be sure to reap a big harvest, while the command, "Say hippopotamus" would make a killing.

However, all jokes aside, the old country doctor was wise and the Justice, who dismissed the case, exhibited much good sense.

JUST LISTEN

Just keep your ears open.

There is always some one to air himself or herself at every evening out.

Take a rest and listen.

When some one tells a good story don't try to rob him of the credit of being the first to spring it in this quarter. Don't tell him you heard it before. Laugh.

Don't try to go him one better. Let him get away with the idea that he is the whole cheese.

Just listen.

This homely young woman has a great many secrets in her mind, and has many warm friends that we know of, just because she is a good listener.

Some of us are all mouth and have got to be heard.

We not only borrow sugar and butter from our neighbors, but tell them our secrets, much to their delight—how much our husband makes, how we are connected, and who we associated with in the last town or block we lived in.

A good listener soon acquires an acute hearing, not the kind that drops down to keyholes, but one that is attuned to life's songs, that hears the countless sweet sounds on every side.

The person who is always talking tires himself and his company, but the person who, with eyes and ears, is an eloquent listener is daily adding much treasure to the storehouse, and making for himself new friends.

THE POINT OF VIEW

FALSE OR TRUE.

Helen Taylor in the London.

Oh, love of mine, long lost to me,
You've wandered far away;
But, false or true, I send to you
A message every day.
Oh, if you ever think of me
Forbear to grieve or sigh;
Remember yet the day we met,
And not our last good-bye!

Remember roses all in bloom,
Forget the roses dead.
My smiles are all you must recall,
Forget the tears I shed.
Oh, false or true, I beg of you
Forbear to grieve or sigh.
The day we met remember yet,
Forget our last good-bye!

FOR OTHERS—AND HIS WIFE

Griselda, in St. Thomas Times.

He took of his hat to the woman next door,
But he wouldn't do that for his wife.
He picked up the handkerchief dropped on the floor,
But he wouldn't do that for his wife.
He ran for a chair when a fair maiden stood,
Did every polite thing a gentleman should,
When leaving he helped her get into her hood,
But he wouldn't do that for his wife.

He offered his arm to the fair Mrs. Brown,
But he wouldn't do that for his wife.
He gallantly carried her parcels from down town,
But he wouldn't do that for his wife.
He helped her alight from the trolley car then,
Didn't stand on the platform to smoke with the men,
But sat down beside her. I'll say it again
That he wouldn't do that for his wife.

If it's proper these little attentions to pay,
Then he ought to pay them to his wife.
No man is polite, let me venture to say,
If he isn't polite to his wife.
Fair women deserve all our courtesies—true,
And enough for her no man is able to do,
But the man who's a gentleman right through and through
Is a gentleman first to his wife.

Ottawa Exhibition

The gorgeous night show is one of the most expensive and elaborate attractions that has ever been secured for the Canadian public. It is one of the grand specialties, too, that a Canadian company is able to produce. The T. W. Hand Firework Co., of Hamilton, has signed a contract with the Exhibition to reproduce "The Siege of Kandahar," with a great wealth of scenery and pyrotechnics. The spectacle will be made all the more realistic by the participation of hundreds of the city militia men. A battle scene in which Lord Roberts and staff figure prominently, in the capture of an Afgan citadel, will be depicted with thrilling effect. The war scenes will be followed by a dazzlingly beautiful fireworks display.

The Cure.

He—There is a certain young lady deeply interested in me, and while I like her, you know, still I never could love her. I want to put an end to it without breaking the poor girl's heart. Can you suggest any plan?

She—Do you call there often?

He—No, indeed; not any oftener than I can possibly help.

She—Call oftener.

What Did He Mean?

HYGIENIC LAUNDERING

How to Prevent Grip From Going Through the House.

THE CHANTICLEER CRAZE.

Barnyard Influences Pervade Whole Realm of Fashion—Roosters For Hair Ornaments—Individual Touches on Suits to Lift Them Out of Ready Made Class.

Dear Elsa—I'm going to wash all my pocket handkerchiefs hereafter myself. Why? I'll tell you. But before I begin my story I should like to ease my mind about the difference small things make in the success of household management. The amount of irritation, for instance, arising from the misplacement of a box of matches is out of all proportion to the cause of it, and I think some special genius presides over the fortunes of handkerchiefs.

Why has a little Jap housewife so serene a brow and such tranquil eyes? At this moment, when all my best handkerchiefs have gone astray at the "Sunshine" laundry, I should say that it is because people in Japan use paper handkerchiefs and burn them when they are done with them.

And whoever heard of "grippy" colds "going through the house" in the mikado's country as they do with us? To wash handkerchiefs at home is a real economy, and, as I stated at the beginning of this letter, it's the course I'm going to pursue. And I'm going to boil them with a piece of orris root in the water, so they'll have a delicious, elusive fragrance of the violet clinging to them.

But, to come back to the handkerchief as a grip distributer, a friend of mine who is a trained nurse recently told me that if mouchoirs used by members of the family suffering from colds were at once plunged into cold water plentifully supplied with salt there would be less danger of the disease spreading. You must put them into the water immediately and not wait for the regular wash day. Into this pail should be placed the pillowslips used by the sufferer, for if these things used so intimately are allowed to be put aside in the clothesbasket they dry and the microbes are released to go wandering off in search of pastures new. The salt water, the nurse said, cleanses and disinfects at the same time. On wash day take the handkerchiefs out of soak and rub over with castile soap, then boil. To do this place in cold water, add a little powdered dry soap or soap jelly and let them come to a boil slowly. Rinse and blue in water slightly colored with liquid blue. Roll up for ironing while still wet and iron after a good shaking and they will be exactly the right stiffness.

While on the laundering subject let me give you another tip. Never use a hot iron on silk handkerchiefs or those decorated with colored borders or embroidery. Salt water "stays" colors, and embroidery first dipped in salt water keeps its color intact through the rest of the process of washing. And it is well to know that faded colors revive in a final rinsing of vinegar and water—one-third vinegar and two-thirds water.

A Place For Microbes.

Don't think I'm a faddist on the germ subject. I'm not in the same class with the old lady at the pure food lecture who when the speaker of the afternoon opened her talk with the quotation, "The quality of mercy is not strained," called out in a shrill voice, "Well, if it ain't strained it ain't sanitary, and we don't want nothing to do with it." Still, I do agree that a wholesome horror of microbes is a good thing for a house keeper to possess, and few of them have any too great an aversion to these dread invaders of our hearth. Some people, though, make themselves unnecessarily nervous about these microscopic enemies. It is just as well to remember sometimes that even microbes have their place and use in the economy of nature.

To change the subject abruptly, I am running on rather low fashion speed this spring and am economizing on my cloth suit. In fact, I've bought a plain hopsacking model in one of the new dark blue shades and am braiding the collar, cuffs, pockets and belt at my leisure. It is these accessories that "make" a costume of anything like dressy character. The ornamental work put on inexpensive tailor mades is of necessity cheap, while often the material and workmanship of the suit are very good. Just a handmade touch on the collar, cuffs, pockets and belt and the suit rises to the plane of the expensive model.

One would have expected that soutache, so abundantly used these many months and years, would decline in vogue this season. But here it is as much used as ever. My suit, which you will see reproduced in the drawing, owes all its distinctiveness to the work of my own fair fingers. The coat is of the new prescribed length and is a shape that is familiar among spring models. The belt crosses in the back and front, while the sides of the coat are plain. The tunic is also of the cross over order, and the hem of the skirt is trimmed with braid.

Chanticleer's Day.

And speaking of the shops reminds me that there is scarcely a counter in the New York department shops that does not display some article named for the noblest of birds, the chanticleer. In fact, in all the fabrics, from heavy linen to the finest of silks, the vivid chanticleer color which is derived from the comb and wattles of the lord of the barnyard has already found its place. The authentic shade is a bright watermelon pink, bordering on the cerise, but one finds any startling red, from a vermilion to a scarlet, posing as such, and the color is introduced in the most unexpected places, blue coats, shepherd's plaid dresses, dotted foulards, hats, wraps and hair ribbons being livened up with a piping or an edge of it. The cock and the hen pheasant have their portraits done in silk and water colors on parasols and hand bags, and on cushion tops and trimming bands the noble bird also appears. Stockings have chanticleer lace insets, and there are little roosters to be worn in the hair if there is to be found a woman with sufficient nerve to carry out the style seriously.

There is, dear, no such thing as a chanticleer hat, for any hat trimmed with a whole bird or even wings or quills of the golden pheasant colorings is called a chanticleer. And, let me whisper in your ear, we Americans are the only people making a fuss about the rooster anyhow. In Paris the craze was a nine days' wonder and is now safely passed. Dorothy D., who has just come over from the French capital, tells me that as a vogue fashion the chanticleer is a thing of ancient history. Devotedly,

MABEL.

Good Icing.

Boiled Frosting.—One cupful of granulated sugar, ten tablespoonfuls of boiling water and the white of one egg. Boil the sugar and water together without stirring till it hardens when dropped in cold water. Try it as soon as the bubbles become large. Have ready the white of an egg well beaten. Pour the hot sugar on it and beat till stiff enough to ice the cake. Enough for one large loaf.

Orange Frosting.—Beat the white of an egg and add gradually one cupful of pulverized sugar. Beat till stiff and then stir in the juice of one large orange.

Cocoanut Frosting.—Same as orange frosting, substituting three tablespoonfuls of grated cocoanut in place of the orange juice. The white of an egg and one cup of sugar, with any flavoring you may desire, will make enough frosting for one loaf.

Water Icing.—To two tablespoonfuls of boiling water add enough confectioner's sugar to make thick enough to spread. Any flavor.

Chocolate Frosting. — Melt two squares of chocolate and add three-quarters of a cupful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of milk. Cook in double boiler till smooth. Add the yolk of one egg and let cook one minute. Spread immediately.

Opera Caramel Frosting.—Cook in a double boiler one and one-half cupfuls of brown sugar, three-quarters of a cupful of thin cream and one-half tablespoonful of butter. When a ball is formed by dropping mixture in cold water remove from the fire. Beat until ready to spread.

Exercises For Children.

Exercise is absolutely necessary for children. Without it is impossible to keep the little one's muscles and organs in a sound and healthy condition.

Outdoor games are really the best form of exercise, as the children's interest is held, while their muscles are being used, but brisk walks are good too. But let them also do a few simple calisthenics to strengthen the chest, as games do not provide for this.

Simply stretching the arms out in front and then slowly moving them from front to back and back again and then above the head and down to the sides a few times is quite enough. Teach them to breathe deeply at the same time.

Growing Potatoes.

In Ireland, in the best potato growing localities, a yield of 400 bushels to the acre is nothing unusual. It is obtained by the use of about thirty loads of barnyard manure to the acre, supplemented by 500 pounds of commercial fertilizers, proportioned as follows: One hundred pounds of muriate of potash and 400 pounds of superphosphate. In England the best results are obtained by the use of twenty to twenty-five loads of barnyard manure to the acre, supplemented with 100 pounds of sulphate of ammonia, 350 pounds of superphosphate and 50 pounds of sulphate of potash. The popular fertilizer for growing potatoes in Maine, when planted where a two-year-old crop of clover or grass has been grown, is made up on the farm of 135 pounds of nitrate of soda, 600 pounds of tankage, 200 pounds of acid phosphate and 400 pounds of sulphate of potash, making in all 1,335 pounds. One-half this amount is used in the planter or mixed in the furrow and the other half at the first harrowing, when the plants begin to appear.

Insects and Alfalfa.

It has been discovered that the honeybee is of even more importance to the alfalfa than the alfalfa is to the bee. The wonderful strength and speed of the bees take them long distances for their food, and they have recourse to a great variety of plants. But the peculiar construction of the alfalfa blossom renders it unable to fertilize itself, and its shape makes cross fertilization very difficult.

At the Kansas experiment station a small plot of vigorous alfalfa was covered just before coming up into bloom with mosquito netting supported on sticks. It was therefore known that no bees or other insects could come into contact with the blossoms. Later a careful examination disclosed that the pods which had formed were entirely without seeds.—Coburn's "The Book of Alfalfa."

A man named Doherty was killed in a row at Philipsburg, Que.

THE BOOM IN IRELAND.

Industrials In the North Are Making Plenty of Money Just Now.

The industrial north of Ireland is enjoying a cycle of great prosperity, says Charles E. Hands in The London Daily Mail.

After a period of severe depression the Irish linen industry is booming like the rubber market. The difficulties of the cotton trade in Lancashire have their compensation in Ulster. It will comfort Manchester's free exchange convictions to know that the falling-off in exports of manufactured cotton is made good by the swelling exports of manufactured linen from Belfast. At all events, the Ulster Free Traders find encouragement in the conditions and the the Ulster Tariff Reformers are not complaining that they are not compelled to enforce their argument by the example of their own industry ruined.

It is not only that the competition of cotton cloth is lessened. In the markets of the world the different kinds of linens manufactured in other countries have fallen out of fashion from various causes, and Irish linens have all the vogue. So, although the home trade is poor, the mills and factories of Belfast, Lisburn, Portadown, Londonderry, and all the industrial towns and villages of Ulster are working at high pressure in the endeavor to make the most of the favorable conditions while they last.

There are Tariff Reformers and Free Traders in the Ulster linen industry. Sometimes there is a division of opinion on the subject among the members of the same firm or the members of the same family. At a cheerful luncheon party in a hospitable country house in Antrim the host was a Free Trader, while his brother was a Tariff Reformer. But both were Unionists. Among the guests were two of the most prominent men in Ulster. One was a Free Trader and the other was a Tariff Reformer. Indeed, they differed in a friendly way upon almost every subject, but both were Unionists.

The great fiscal problem appears to have no more to do with politics in the Belfast region than the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy. Montague and Capulet, if they had lived in Ulster, might have carried on their unrelenting family feud, but being Ulstermen and Protestants both would have been Unionists. Probably they would have fought one another ferociously in the party organization, but once either of them had been selected as the Unionist candidate the other would have voted for him. In Ulster there are Liberals—old-fashioned Liberals and advanced Radicals, as well as Conservatives; but so long as they are Protestants they are all Unionists. Religion is the dividing line in politics still, and land purchase has not operated either in the Catholic church or the Presbyterian chapel.

I was talking with a distinguished Ulsterman of great knowledge and experience, of generous enthusiasms, wide sympathies, and notable achievements in commerce and public life. He was unstinted in his acknowledgment of the good that has been wrought throughout Ireland by the transference of the property in the land to the farmers.

Champion Lady Bell-Ringer.

Bell-ringing records have previously all been held by teams of sturdy men, but Miss Lilian A. Wilson, a young lady of only sixteen years of age, has just performed an extraordinary feat, which entitles her to the honor of being the world's champion lady bell-ringer.

The other day she entered the steeple of Gilmorton Church and assisted in "opening" the bells by ringing the first peal. This unique peal numbered 5,040 changes, and meant continual ringing for over three hours, without a moment's pause for food or rest! This is Lilian's third long performance, but every week she rings the royal memorial bells of St. John the Divine, Leicester.

The physical endurance involved in bell-ringing of this character, let alone the necessary skill, is prodigious.

Miss Wilson received her training under the guidance of her father, who, five years ago, conducted the then world's record peal of 17,104 changes, which occupied nearly eleven hours. Heredity may therefore have something to do with this, as other matters.

Bee Notes.

One must be deliberate and not perspire when hiving bees. The bees do not like the smell of excited persons.

Always have an empty box hive about the apiary properly set on a floor board. This will often catch a swarm that might otherwise be lost.

It is never good business policy to sell a customer bad honey or honey with an undesirable flavor. This will injure future sales.

It is well to keep all vegetation down around the hives, so that it will not interfere with the flight of the working bees between their hive and the feeding ground.

The number of colonies which any locality will support depends on the flora of the vicinity. There are but few places, however, that will not support from ten to twenty-five colonies to the square mile, and many localities will support a greater number than this. Bees fly long distances for forage, averaging at least two miles.

Smoke is the best agent known among beekeepers that can be used to make bees submit to their wishes. All sorts of material may be burned in a smoker, such as cotton rags, rotten wood, etc. There is a great difference in the disposition of bees, however, some requiring more smoking than others.—Farm and Ranch.

ARE GAMBLERS GETTING BUSY IN PETERBORO?

Dear Sir,—I have been informed, on good authority, that gambling is on the increase among the men in our city. I had not thought it existed in Peterborough to any extent and that the few who engaged in it were from among the drunken, sporting element of the community, but I learn that the chief offenders are from among those who are regarded as our better class of citizens, and that there is a clique of these men who may be regarded as nothing better than "professional gamblers." If the evil is as widespread as reported to me, then it is high time that both press and pulpit united in denouncing it and in creating such a body of sentiment against this cowardly and degrading vice as will drive it from our midst and make it a thing impossible in a decent and self-respecting society. It has gone to such an extent that even members of our Christian churches have been recently known to lose large sums of money. Traps are laid by these "professionals" to ensnare our young men and those who have never before been known to gamble.

This is not the place for me to discuss at length the ethics of gambling. It is sufficient to say that the vice is absolutely indefensible; that it is a violation of the law of God; that it contravenes the whole teaching of Jesus and the New Testament, and that there is only one word to properly characterize the gambler from the standpoint of the law of God, and that is that he is a thief and a robber. A man who accepts money from another without giving a suitable return is dead to all self-respect. And how any man can accept money from another—and that other possibly his neighbor—without giving him an adequate equivalent, and not feel as he looks him in the face, a sense of shame—well, he is lost to all shame—he is a parasite; he is a wolf at heart, no matter how he may disguise himself by the fine clothes which he wears.

May I ask in this connection if the laws against the sale of liquor are being enforced on our boats? What right has any man or body of men to take liquor on board an excursion boat, presumably for personal use, and then sell it to those patrons of the gambling table?

ROBERT POGUE.

EXCURSION A BIG SUCCESS IN SPITE OF MOONLESS NIGHT

Although the moon did not shed its shimmering rays upon the pleasant waters of the river Otonabee last evening, it did not in the least affect the enjoyment or detract from the success of the moonlight excursion held under the auspices of the Men's Association of "All Saints" church last evening.

As the hour of departure drew nigh some trepidation was felt by those in charge, as to whether enough people would turn out to ensure the financial success of the trip, but by eight o'clock the steamer "Stony Lake" was comfortably loaded with pleasure-seekers.

The steamer sailed down the river about six miles and the return trip commenced about 9.30. Splendid music was furnished by the S.A. band.

The refreshment booth was well patronized and was nearly sold out at the end of the trip.

For the success which was attached to the trip all credit must be given to the committee of the Young Men's Association and to the Young Men's Club. The committee was as follows: James Runnet, Herbert Campbell, John Edgar, Andrew Graham, Edgar LeBar, Fred. Allen.

The party reached home at 11.15.

FINAL DECREES OF LICENSE BOARD

Meeting To-morrow Night to Deal With Three Licenses Which Were Extended for Three Months—Time Expires Saturday.

The liquor license commissioners meet to-morrow night to deal with three licenses, which were extended for three months, at the time the reduction was made.

The hotels interested are the American hotel, on Hunter street; the Little Windsor, on Brock street, and the Munroe House, at the corner of Hunter and Water streets.

The three months expires Saturday night. Repairs were ordered at Long's hotel, but these have not been made, but the proprietor of the Munroe House has gone to great expense, and the repairs stipulated by the License Board are nearly completed. The extension of the license of the Little Windsor was made with no further comment.

The license of the Snowden House, which was also extended for the same length of time, has been transferred to Mr. R. Gollip, and he is now in possession, and Mr. J. B. Larocque, who secured the license of the New Oxford hotel, on Simcoe street, has remodelled and improved the premises.

Mr. Arthur Rountree, whose store license was not renewed, but who was given three months to dispose of his stock, must close his place of business on Water street Saturday.

THE POULTRYMEN WANT A COMMISSIONER APPOINTED

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Ont., July 28.—Mr. H. C. Duff, Peterborough, formed one of a large deputation that yesterday waited on the Minister of Agriculture.

The poultrymen of the Dominion saw Hon. Sidney Fisher, to make recommendations in their behalf for the improvement of their lines. They asked for a poultry commissioner, to be appointed for Canada. They characterized the Experimental Farm poultry department as inadequate and out-of-date.

They were well received by the Minister. They outlined what they want in a lengthy statement submitted to the Minister, namely, a department of scientific research along the line of poultry diseases, financial assistance in certain improvements, and that A. G. Gilbert, Ottawa, be appointed chief poultry lecturer for the Dominion. The requests will be carefully looked into.

POLLUTION OF WATER HOW IT MAY BE STOPPED

Toronto, July 27, 1910.

A gentleman who is interested in the prevention of the pollution of the vicinity of Peterborough, wrote to the Provincial Board of Health and received the following reply:

Dear Sir.—I have just found your letter of July 23rd, on my return home this morning, re the pollution of water around and about Peterborough. You ask the question, "has not the Provincial Board authority to act in this until the local Board of Health and country notify them?" Now, how is this Department to know that such is taking place unless somebody notifies us? However, I may further say that you do not state definitely enough where the pollution is taking place. Do you refer to anything above the city of Peterborough or below, or who are supposed to be the guilty parties?

A complaint should be first made to the local Board of Health of the municipality wherein the trouble occurs, and if they neglect or refuse to take action then the matter might be submitted to this board.

If it is possible you refer to the pollution caused by the sewage of the city, which, I infer, may possibly be the case from your remark asking "how are farmers to get recourse?" I would then suggest that a direct complaint be made from those in the municipality affected further down the stream, to this board, pointing out the direct injurious effects of the pollution, and I am sure the Board will be quite willing to deal with the matter.

Yours truly,
R. W. BELL,
Acting Chief Health Officer, of Ont.

STATION BURNED

Special to the Review.

Bridgeburg, Ont., July 28.—Following the burning of a caboose and two or three freight cars belonging to the Grand Trunk in the yards here last night, the fire alarm was sounded again at 2 o'clock this morning, when it was found the Grand Trunk station at Amigara was on fire. The building was totally destroyed. It is supposed sympathizers are accountable for the fire.

THREE COWS KILLED IN STORM AT YOUNG'S POINT

The Worst in Forty Years Says Proprietor of Lakeview Hotel—Lightning Was Terrific.

Mr. James Carney, proprietor of the Lakeview hotel, Young's Point, was in the city this morning, and stated that yesterday afternoon's storm was the worst that has visited that place for the past forty years.

The lightning, he says, was indescribable. One bolt made a clear passage way through the cemetery, destroying everything in its path, and he was sincere, when he stated that some of the hailstones were not melted this morning.

At the stable, in the hotel yard, the lightning cut a cedar post as clean as though a saw had been used, and the rain came down in such quantities that it would have been possible to use a canoe on the street.

Three cows were struck during the storm and instantly killed, but none of the residents at the Point were injured.

Mr. Pat Hogan, of Ennismore, reports the storm to have been a bad one in that locality.

PETERBORO' CATHOLICS HAD ENJOYABLE EXCURSION

The parishes of St. Peter's and the Church of the Sacred Heart held an outing yesterday to Idyl Wyld, which was patronized very largely. Two hundred and fifty availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a days' pleasure and were well repaid for going.

The steamer "Stony Lake" was chartered, and the courteous treatment given all on board by the crew of the boat was an agreeable feature.

A few races were run off, mainly for the children, for which suitable prizes were awarded.

Music was supplied by the choirs of the two churches.

The party left for home about four o'clock, and reached home at 7.30.

GOVERNMENT ANALYIST REPORTS ON SAMPLES OF BEER

Taken From Three Local Dry Hotels by Inspector Stewart —Percentage of Alcohol is Below That Allowed by Law.

Yesterday afternoon Liquor License Inspector Stewart received the report of Government Analyist Roscoe R. Graham, at Toronto, on the samples of local option beer, which he secured from three local "dry" hotels on Sunday, July 17.

The provisions of the liquor law allow of not more than two per cent. of alcohol in the beer, but the analysis show the percentage in the samples to have been much lower than that.

THE ANALYSIS.

Robert H. Jackson, Crown Hotel, one sample of draught beer, 15-100 per cent.; one sample of sealed, 64-100 per cent.

James Head, formerly Montreal House, one sample draught, 42-100 per cent.; one sample sealed, 1-100 per cent.

George Lipsett, Maple Leaf Hotel, one sample sealed, 8-100 per cent.

The inspector took the samples as a result of the evidence of a black listed man in the police court, who swore that the only liquor he drank was purchased by him at the Crown Hotel.

The analysis shows, however, that the proprietors of the hotels in question are abiding by the law, and that the manufacturers of the beer are behind in their proportion of alcohol, but the latter is no offence.

SOME LIVE DETAIL TO THIS ALLEYWAY PERFORMANCE

(Special wire from the ringside.)

A many sided mix-up this morning in the alleyway off Chambers street entertained an unusually large crowd of spectators, who flocked from all directions in a remarkably short time.

The excitement was preceded by the very tame preliminaries of two men trying to get home a companion who had utterly lost his powers of locomotion through an undue intimacy the enemy, John Barleycorn. He did more loose limbed stunts than any professional contortionist would get away with in a solid season, and every time his friends would try to shift him he would pull off a disconcerting collapse. At length one of his companions, who himself was none too sure footed, got a flat fall on the double jointed one, and the latter's fighting blood was aroused in spite of his helpless condition.

He was accommodated with an opponent in the shape of hCief of Chief Thompson, who won with lots to spare and provided him with recuperating quarters at the Hotel de Cops.

After the chief had gone there were more pugilistic developments when one of the tipsy friends of the tumbler was going to clean up several who attempted to take him home also.

After much struggling and blue language the better half of the Johnson-like one, appeared on the scene, and he was led awya as docile as a lamb.

CHIMES FUND IS SWELLING; OVER $4,000 SUBSCRIBED

Encouraging interest still continues to be shown in the chimes fund movement.

The liberality of former residents is remarkable, and the names of some of those who have been glad to help along this movement in their home city are:

Mrs. James Morris, Collingwood; Mrs. George Cluxton, Grimsby; Mrs. Swinerton, Victoria, B.C., and Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams Taylor, of the Bank of Montreal, London, Eng.

OVER $4,000.

Many subscriptions have been handed in to the treasurer, Mr. J. C. Wainwright, of the Bank of Ottawa, during the past few weeks. The subscription list is now a little over $4,000, of which $1,850 has been received.

Correspondence has been going on with firms in the United States, England and Germany, with a view to getting the best possible sort of chimes.

It is to be hoped that the amount will soon be raised to $5,000, that an order may be given for the chimes to whatever manufacturer it is decided from which to buy.

APSLEY NEWS

Special to the Review.

Apsley, July 25.—The weather has been very dry and hot for the past few weeks, but has changed to cooler with some showers. Crops are looking good and grain is looking splendid.

Mrs. Wm. Hales, of Apsley, has returned home from a visit to her friends at Lindsay.

Mr. Charles E. Dingman, of Apsley, has sold out his grocery and moved to Coe Hill, where he will take a situation there in a store.

Lewis Stone, a fourteen-year-old boy, and his dog, made a gallant, but vain attempt to save George Harfield from drowning in the Elbow River, Calgary, on Sunday.

Doesn't Like the Holiday

The Thursday half-holiday is generally favored in Peterborough, it may be presumed, but to-day a protest was lodged against it by a farmer who stated to the Review that he thought it was a nuisance.

His trouble was that he came to town to buy a straw hat for his little boy and found the stores all closed.

The Door Was Locked

The half holiday brought some inconvenience to County Magistrate Edmison this afternoon. He went home at noon leaving his key of the office door in his desk, all forgetful of the vacation that comes with Thursday. On his return to the office the door was locked and he was unable to find Mr. Ruddy, Mr. Burnham or any of the office staff.

LOCAL OFFICERS ARE PROMOTED

The following promotions of local interest are included in the list of appointments, promotions and retirements given in the Canada Gazette of July 16th;

The Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons,—To be provisional lieutenants, Richard William Fisher Jones, 2nd May, 1910; William Earl Hillhouse, 6th June, 1910.

57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.—To be provisional lieutenant, Sergeant Keith, Gustave Lech, vice T. J. Wallace, who is transferred to the corps reserve, 1st May, 1910.

BELMONT DANCE

The second dance of the season, under the auspices of the Belmont Club, was given last evening in their spacious and popular club house on the banks of the Otonabee.

The pavilion was tastefully decorated for the occasion and in the glow of the electric lights presented a brilliant and attractive scene.

The Grand Opera House orchestra rendered splendid music for the affair and were the recipients of great praise from those who danced.

Dancing commenced at 8.30 and over one hundred participated during the evening. Intermission at 11 o'clock was given during which dainty refreshments were served.

The dancing was resumed and continued until about one o'clock, after which all dispersed to their homes. Special car service was arranged to convey all up from the club house.

These dances which have proved such decided successes are to be a monthly event at the club house until the closing of the summer season, when a grand closing function will be held.

The steamer "Stony Lake" will leave the Wolfe Street wharf at 12.45 on Friday for Stony Lake points. On Saturday July 30th the steamer "Islanda" will leave at the same hour for Stony Lake points.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Peterborough, July 27.

Dear Sir,—In last night's Review I saw an editorial in which you made a covert defence of the bartender in my opinion. You wrote to the effect that many of them were not as black as they were painted and would encourage men not to drink if the unfortunate "booze fighters" expressed a desire to reform.

Bartending and any connection with the business of the bar is disgraceful and unjustifiable from the standpoint of decent and honest living and it is not to be wondered that those in the business are looked down upon and ostracized from good society.

Trusting that you will not in the future defend or sympathize with either bartenders or liquor sellers.

Yours for sobriety,
AVERAGE CITIZEN.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

SPORTING NEWS

OUTSIDE UMPIRE TO HAVE CHARGE OF MEETING

In all probability, Jack Rosvear, of Port Hope, the old Midland League umpire, will handle the indicator in the game between the West Ends and T. A. S. at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon. He has been asked to officiate.

The game will be called at 2.30 o'clock, and at this distance it looks like a great struggle for the honors. It is understood that a purse by no means small, will go with the manager of the winning team.

The teams certainly will have a large following of rooters, and with Gus. Rose in working order, the West Ends will make the T.A.S. travel as never before. The greys can hit and field and will be backed up with a whole lot of confidence as a result of their 6—2 win.

Supposing both twirlers are in the best of shape, what then? Well, one weak corner will do it all. The West Ends look a trifle stronger on the cushions.

SPORTING COMMENT

Billy Burke, the sensational four old colt, won the $3,000 stake for 2.15 trotters at Kalamazoo, winning the last heat in 2.06 3-4 which ties the world's record for a fourth heat held jointly by Binsetta and Bob Douglass.

Right Fielder Welter, of the Yankees, suffered with a broken finger when he tried to stop a home run drive by Ty Cobb in the game with Detroit yesterday afternoon. The accident happened in the first innings.

The moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight have been barred from Liverpool. The magistrates formally resolved that they were undesirable, and so notified picture theatre proprietors.

Dorando Pietri is still on the job doing distance running stunts. The following is from the Standard, issued in far-off Buenos Apres in the Argentine Republic, June 28th, last;

Runner vs. Trotter.—Dorando Victorious.—An excellent, though seemingly unequal, contest was witnessed at the Plaza Jewell, in Rosario, yesterday, when Dorando Pietri matched his staying powers against one of the best trotting horses in Argentina. The distance was five and one-half miles, and Dorando succeeded in defeating his equine opponent by three and a half laps, in 27.43. A stake of $5,000 depended on the match, which was largely attended, over 3,000 spectators turning out.

Brighton Beach, July 23.—C. S. Bragg, the amateur driver, who has defeated Barney Oldfield, took by sheer grit, this afternoon, one of the most daring auto races ever seen at Brighton Beach. In the sixth event of the programme, a five mile event open to amateurs only, Bragg driving his own Fiat, skidded on the turn into the home stretch, slewed broadside into the fence, crashed through it into the green, turned on his power when he found himself still on four wheels broke his way through the fence onto the track again, and then, by furious driving, regained all his lost distance and finished first in the phenomenal time of four minutes 46 3-5 seconds. He was cheered to the echo every time time he passed the grand stand.

$50,000 FOR A VIOLIN.

Late George Haddock's Sale Will Reveal Some Beautiful Instruments.

The announcement that the collection of violins which belonged to the late Mr. George Haddock, the famous musician, is to be sold has aroused the keenest interest amongst dealers and collectors. The Haddock fiddles are reputed to be the finest private collection in existence, the gem being the "Emperor Stradivarius," pronounced by Joachim to be the finest violin he had ever seen, and which is stated to be worth $50,000. It is nearly two hundred years old, and notwithstanding its great age looks as fresh as if it had but yesterday left the hands of Antonio Stradivari, the famed violin maker of Cremona.

This is a somewhat exceptional value to be placed on a violin, the price of each of the 600 Strads which are known to be in existence ranging from $2,500 to $6,500. Perhaps the only violin which can be compared with the "Emperor Stradivarius" of the Haddock collection is the one which Paganini left to the city of Genoa, for which as much as $50,000 has been offered. The Strad presented to the late Dr. Joachim on the occasion of his jubilee cost $6,000, while that presented to Lady Halle by the Duke of Edinburgh, the late Earl of Dudley, and the late Lord Hardwicke cost $5,000.

When Sarasate's will was proved two years ago it was found that he had bequeathed $20,000 and a Strad each to the Conservatoires of Paris and Madrid, the money being for the purpose of founding prizes bearing his name. Each of the violins was valued at about $10,000, one of the instruments having been discovered in a very romantic manner. At one time it was the property of a Genevan blacksmith, to whom it had been given by a traveler who could not pay for the shoeing of his horse. For years it hung on the wall of the blacksmith's house, until after many years another horseman, M. Boissier, who was also a violinist and a collector of violins, came along. The blacksmith asked M. Boissier to buy the violin from him at his own price, or else to find him a purchaser. M. Boissier carried it away, cleaned off the smoke, discovered the Strad mark—and did not defraud the blacksmith.

Twice at least $10,000 has been paid by private treaty for Strads, and $7,000 was paid for a "Betts' Strad," the title which it gained from the following incident. Betts was a music-seller in London some sixty years ago, and one day a stranger entered his shop offering a violin for sale at the low sum of one guinea. The dealer at once jumped at the bargain, put down his guinea, and secured the instrument. He retained it in his family for a number of years, and, after changing hands several times, it was bought at the figure named by a foreign nobleman.

Five years ago $3,500 was paid for a Strad which for years was played upon by a strolling musician in the Notting Hill and Marylebone districts of London; while some time ago $8,000 was paid for a fiddle which had previously been knocked down at an auction sale to a laborer for $1.50. Fortunately for him, the laborer knew something of the value of fiddles, and a few days later sold his treasure to a dealer in curios for $3,000. Ultimately the latter sold it for $8,000—truly a record bargain.

Asking Too Much.

"See here, young man," said the irate father, "your college principal says he doesn't know of anything that you would be likely to make a success of. Now, sir, I'd like to know what you intend to make of yourself."

"Give it up, father," replied the young man. "How do you expect me to answer a question that even a college professor can't answer?"—Chicago News.

For the Children

Queer Cradle That Was Used Long Ago.

If you children had lived in mediaeval times—that is, hundreds of years ago—you would have been put to sleep in a cradle like the queer one shown in the picture.

The Bey's Wisdom.

A certain ruler of Tunis, Mohammed Bey, was dethroned by his subjects. He was a wise man, and he had a great reputation throughout the country and in the neighboring states. It was generally believed that he had magical powers and that he was acquainted with the secret of the philosopher's stone, by the aid of which he could turn any common metal into gold. The dey of Algiers had heard rumors of this, and, like most other people, he envied Mohammed Bey the possession of a stone so wonderful and so precious. When, therefore, he heard of the bey's downfall he plotted to obtain this stone and sent word to the dethroned ruler that he would restore him to his throne on condition that the latter should reveal to him the secret by which base things, the common earth and stones and metals, could be turned to gold.

The offer was accepted, and in due course Mohammed Bey was reinstated on the throne of Tunis. He was not forgetful of his promise. In a little while the dey of Algiers received from him a solemn deputation bearing the precious object which was to give the power of creating unlimited wealth. Imagine the dey's astonishment when he found that it was only a common plow.

Nevertheless there was great wisdom in the hint that was thus conveyed, since it is only by a well directed industry of hand and brain that man extracts the wealth which lies in common things.

Even or Odd?

This game is the most ancient, perhaps, that we know. The children who played in the streets of Athens and in the Roman Forum in early ages knew and loved it, and little children find amusement in it still. It is played in this manner: One child hides in her hand a few beans, nuts, almonds or just bits of paper and asks her companion to guess if they are odd or even.

If the playfellow guesses odd and on opening her hand the other displays an odd number she forfeits the articles to the guesser, who hides them in her turn, but if the guess is odd and the number even the guesser pays a forfeit and the first hider retains the beans, etc. The guess must be right to win.

Puzzles and Answers.

When and where are the ladies unhappy? At the opera when they are in tiers.

Why is a minister nearly always truthful? Because he is generally accurate (a curate).

What should always be looked into? A mirror.

Why is the map of European Turkey like a frying pan? Because it has Greece on the bottom.

I partake alike in your joys and in your sorrows, and no home is complete without me. What am I? The letter O.

How many young ladies would it take to reach from Philadelphia to New York? About a hundred, because a miss is as good as a mile.

Cinderella's Slippers.

How did it happen that Cinderella wore glass slippers to the prince's ball? She didn't. She wore slippers, but they were not of glass, according to people that have been digging into old French libraries. The story of Cinderella as we now know it is a translation made long ago from a French fairy tale. In this story the slippers that the fairy godmother gave to Cinderella were made of sable, the fur once used only by royal persons. The French word for sable is "vair," and the word for glass is "verre." The translator made a mistake, that is all. At least that is what people say.—Chicago News.

The Purple Mist.

There once was a fairy, as old folk tell,
Long and long ago,
That lived in the heart of a bright bluebell,
Long and long ago.
They say she only crept out at night,
Long and long ago,
And combed her hair by the firefly's light.
The old folk say it is so.
She wove her a veil of purple mist,
Long and long ago,
That melted away when the sun king kissed
That fairy of long ago.
And if you steal out at early dawn,
They say—but who can tell?—
That the selfsame fairy may not be gone
To the heart of the bright bluebell.
You may find her weaving the purple mist
As she did in that long ago,
Weaving and waiting there to be kissed
With the kiss of long ago.

Concerning Shipments of Goods

THERE is no better way of locating goods, keeping track of things, and getting rid of mountains of detail than by the Bell telephone.

No other way is so far-reaching, so quick, so inexpensive, so satisfactory, and so necessary, to the progressive business man. It is the modern way and takes the place of a personal visit.

If your inquiry must extend to distant points, the Bell Long Distance service is indispensable.

STORMS WERE BUSINESSLIKE

Rain Helped Some and Lightning Played Havoc With the Nervous On s

The lightning played its usual pranks about the city yesterday afternoon ,but no serious damage resulted. Both the electric bolts and the claps of thunder were particularly fierce. Both were hard on the nerves.

The two storms brought a good downfall of rain of rain, and incidentally smiles on the faces of the farmers, as crops were benefitted to the extent of many thousands of dollars.

Fuse blocks on power lines were blown out and the juice shut off at some points, but it was only for a few moments.

About one hundred dollars damage was done to the home of Mr. John Green barrister, Hunter street, by the rain as the result of the overflowing of the eave-troughs.

The Gordian Knot

MIDDLETON—McKEE.

The residence of Mr. James Middleton, 663 Water street, was last evening at 7 o'clock, the scene of a very interesting function, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Edna. to Mr. Bert McKee, of Fort William.

To the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Vina Gilgore, the bride entered the parlor, leaning on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away.

Both parties were unattended. Little Jean and Helen Middleton, nieces of the bride, looked very pretty as flower girls.

After the tying of the nuptial knot, which was performed by the Rev. Mr. Couch, of George St. Church, Mrs. (Dr.) Middleton sang very sweetly "Love's Coronation."

About sixty guests were present, several being from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee will have an extensive wedding trip. They left on the midnight C.P.R. last night for Montreal, sailing from there down the St. Lawrence to Quebec, and on their return will reside in Fort William.

WILL BE REPAIRED THIS EVENING

The lift lock will be in working order to-night the Review was informed this afternoon at the office of the canal superintendent.

The boat service from the wharf over the lock will be carried on to-morrow as usual.

The Claim of the Railroad

The man who knocks on the railroads belongs to the Lobsteria. As roads prosper we all prosper. When the shops shut down, orders for iron are cancelled, and the empties line the sidings, we are all up against it, and the bread-line forms.

Always in times of stress a vast number of people look to the Government for relief. But what shall we say of a Government which makes war on those who are now giving work to millions, and thereby assure us peace and prosperity! If the men in charge of our Government insist on being Business-Baiters, the hoarse roar of the mob, demanding work or bread, will again be heard and women and children will be pushed defenseless into the storm. Business in this country gives work, and wage to everyone who wants to work. Let business alone.

Ex-Parte actions against the railroads should be forbidden by the statute. Burglary ,hold-ups, strong-arm tricks, rape, are all ex-parte proceedings. And what think you ; of the dignity of a President who resorts to an ex-parte action in order to gain a heap and transient legal victory over a very important part of the people, whom he has sworn to protect in their legal rights!

The Railroads have only one thing to sell, and that is transportation, and the people of this country are willing and anxious to pay for the transportation all it is worth. We are not mendicants, and we ask for nothing at less than its value.

He who tries to incite class-hatred and makes it appear that there is war on between the railroads and the people is a wicker-sham. The railroads thrive only as the people thrive, and every railroad manager knows it.—ELBERT HUBBARD.

Breeze Dana, aged 64, who was killed by an automobile in Detroit on Sunday, is said to have a sister residing in Toronto.

SESSION OF COUNCIL OF NORTH MONAGHAN

The Township Council met in the county committee room in Peterborough on Saturday, the 23rd inst., at 2 p.m., all members being present.

Accounts were handed in as follows: Ernest A. McDonald, material for culverts, $25.44. On motion of Messrs. May and Foster, this account was ordered to be paid.

Mr. Morrow, for the committee, re Cavan boundary, reported that at a meeting of a joint committee from the both townships it was agreed to expend the sum of $100 jointly upon the improvement of the boundary on the 13th con., the township of Cavan to contribute $50 and North Monaghan $50, one half of North Monaghan's share to be taken from the commutation tax of Road Division No. 1, the other to be from a supplementary grant from the general township account.

It was moved by Messrs. Robson and Foster that the report be received and adopted, and that an order be issued to the township treasurer to pay the sum of $25 to the road commissioner of Road Division No. 1, he to fyle pay sheets, etc., accounting for the full expenditure of $50 on the boundary road. This was carried.

Mr. May, for the committee re inspection of several roads, bridges, etc., reported that the committee met at the following places, and made recommendations as follows:

The road between 9 and 10 at lot 4, that the sum of $100 be granted from the general township account to improve the road by gravelling, etc.

The bridge at the corner of Park and Braidwork streets. That the bridge be rebuilt of cedar. The gravel road near Mr. Hatton. That no action be taken until further consideration be given to the application for a ditch by Mr. J. Brown.

Moved by Messrs. May and Morrow that the report be received and adopted, and that an order be issued to the township treasurer to pay the sum of $100 to the road commissioner of Road Division No. 4, he to fyle pay sheets, etc., accounting for the expenditure thereof upon the gravelling of the road between 9 and 10 cons., at lots 4 and 5. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Morrow, that a committee consisting of Messrs. Foster and Robson, are hereby appointed to investigate and report upon the desirability of closing the side line at "Nurses" on the 11th con. and in the meantime to post up notices that this road is not a public thoroughfare.

The clerk reported having received four regular tenders for sidewalks. These tenders were then ordered to be opened and the tenders and prices were shown to be as follows:

James O'Keefe, 11 1-2 cents per foot.

D. Mahoney and A. J. Rose, 10 97-100 cents per foot.

H. Shuter, 12 1-2 cents per foot.

James Bogue, 9 7-8 cents per foot.

It was moved by Messrs. Forster and May, that the tender of James Bogue for the construction of concrete sidewalk as a local improvement, upon Morrow and Sherburne streets at the price of 9 7-8 cents per foot, top surface measurement, be accepted, provided that Mr. Bogue will give a contract satisfactory to Mr. W. G. Howden, who has been appointed the inspector for the township on the work. This was carried.

It was moved by Messrs. Forster and Morrow, that the clerk is hereby instructed to communicate with the Councils and Boards of Health of the townships of South Monaghan and Otonabee, with the purpose of uniting and taking such joint action as may be necessary to bring before Provincial Board of Health the desirbility of prohibiting the pollution of the Otonabee River by the emptying of the sewage of the city of Peterborough there, and that a committee consisting of the Reeve and Clerk, with Messrs. Forster and Morrow and the Medical Health Officer of the township are hereby appointed to represent North Monaghan in the matter. This was carried.

The matter of constructing a culvert on the gravel road near Mr. Lillico's was left in the hands of Messrs. Forster and Robson.

Council then adjourned to meet in the town hall on Aug, 15th next at 4 o'clock p.m.

NEW BRIDGE.

A new cement bridge has been put in on the 10th line, and is a credit to the energetic enterprise of Mr. J. N. McGill, councillor, who was instrumental in procuring the erection of the new structure. The old bridge was a source of annoyance to the people of the vicinity for some time past, having repeatedly been washed out. The new bridge is built of cement all through, finished off with a cement arch. Mr. Wm. Elliott and Harry Braithwaite had charge of the work.

The Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, who recently had a call to Beechwood, has decided to stay in Springville, a decision which will be received with great satisfaction by the people of the circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cunningham, of Fraserville, were presented with a young daughter on July 18th.

Mrs. George Johnston, of Burketon, was visiting at her home, Mr. Tom Foster, of Cavan.

Pigeons—Halfpenny Each.

Castle Wemyss, situated on the Firth of Clyde, where Lord and Lady Inverclyde have been spending a few weeks, is a handsome and imposing house, which was built by the late Sir John Burns. Lord Inverclyde is one of best-known sportsmen of the North, and besides being a good shot, is an expert at hockey and curling. With one whose fortunes are bound up with the sea, it is but natural that he should include yachting in his list of recreations. His lordship tells many good stories, one of his best being connected with a pigeon-shooting match.—A party of amateur pigeon-shooters some time ago arranged for a match, and ordered thirty pigeons from a dealer in a neighboring town. The shooting was of a really wonderful character; but the actual performances need not be described in detail. The net results will be gathered readily from the following note, which was subsequently received from the dealer. It ran: "Gentlemen,—I beg sincerely to thank you for your order, and to intimate that I shall be only too happy to supply you with any number of birds on future occasions of this sort. The whole of the thirty birds, for which you paid me at the rate of eightpence per head, returned home in safety, and, moreover, brought with them a stray pigeon. My price to your party henceforth will be sixpence a dozen."

WHITSUNTIDE CUSTOMS.

Remarkable Observances Are Found In Rural England.

It would be idle to inquire the origin of some of the extraordinary customs which still obtain at Whitsuntide, for the beginning of many of them is lost in obscurity.

All the history that can be gathered of them is that they have been observed from time immemorial, and that local sentiment will not permit them to die out.

Not the least remarkable is one that is dear to the hearts of the good people of Birdlip, a usually quiet village in the Cheltenham district. Down a hill which the neighborhood boasts a substantial round cheese is set rolling, with the younger and more active of the population in hot pursuit.

Before it can be captured many of the pursuers are rolling, too, but none so fast as the cheese, which generally falls to one of the crowd who is able to keep his feet. It would be interesting to know the why and wherefore of this cheese-rolling, but there is nothing to show this.

The County of Northampton has a Whitsuntide observance which is only kept up once in twenty years, the next year for it being 1923. It dates from the reign of "Good Queen Bess," and the scene of it is the village of Corby.

Its object is to commemorate a charter granted to the inhabitants by Queen Elizabeth which freed the knights of the shire from certain military duties, and other folk from serving on juries at Northampton.

In the small hours of Whit-Monday morning the roads and byways of the parish are stopped up, and toll is demanded of all who would pass thereby. Should this demand not be complied with, the pedestrian is seized and hoisted on to a stout pole, upon which he is carried through the village, escorted by the jeering populace, whose lung-power is given full scope for the occasion.

Whitsuntide is essentially a religious season, and perhaps one of the most remarkable celebrations of it is that which takes place in Cornwall. It is held in what is known as the Gwennap Pit, and in commemoration of the years gone by when John Wesley conducted religious gatherings there.

The service is of a most impressive character, and on occasion it has attracted more than 10,000 devout Wesleyans to the spot. No distance is to great for them to travel, and some have been known to come from such distant parts of the country as Lancashire and Yorkshire.

The mention of Cornwall recalls the fact that in the year 1540 a church there was struck by lightning during the course of the service on Whit-Sunday morning. Many of the worshipers were injured, the storm being described as "awful" and as a "fearful judgment" upon the church.

Superstition is not quite so rife in these enlightened days, but there are still people in this country who get up unusually early on Whit-Sunday morning in order to see the sun rise.

They firmly believe that whatsoever is asked of the Almighty at the instant the sun rises on Whit-Sunday morning is sure to be granted. In years gone by this was a widely accepted superstition, in which there are still believers to be met with in the hills and valleys of Derbyshire and elsewhere. They declare, too, that their requests have been granted.

A veracious chronicler rejoicing in the appropriate name of "Arise Evans" has it on record that he "went up a hill to see the sun rise betimes on Whit-Sunday morning and saw it at its rising skip, play, dance, and turn about like a wheel."

In those days many marriages used to result from the mingling of the sexes in the various games and amusements peculiar to Whitsuntide. The young men and maidens came more together at that season than at any other of the year.

It was looked upon as the first "blush" of summer, and as lending itself to outdoor pastimes retarded by the cold winds of the earlier days of Eastertide and spring.

Did Not Trust Council.

Under a somewhat curious will left by Mr. Patrick Murphy, whose estate totalled $517,000, the town of Newry, County Down, Ireland, has been bequeathed a large portion of the property to pay off the local municipal debt. Mr. Murphy states in his will that as the bequest may be insufficient for the purpose, and "as I have no confidence either in the ability or good sense of the present urban councillors, it is my will that my residuary personal estate shall not be handed over to the board for a period of 21 years from the date of my death," the interest and dividends to be invested. Mr. Murphy directs that certain houses are not to be sold, but the rents are to be applied in perpetuity for the reduction of the rates.

"Spooks" Terrorize Family.

A curious story comes from Dunfermline. The recent occurrence of four fires in rapid succession in the household of Thomas Watson, has had the effect of terrorizing the family. These outbreaks have each had their origin in a cause which is inscrutable to the occupants of the house, and Mrs. Watson, who hails from the Highlands, imagines that a supernatural agent has been at work. She, with others in the domicile, have lately been living in dread. Afraid to go to bed o' nights, members of the family have sat up to watch for further manifestations of the strange, uncanny, "unseen power."

Employs 30,000 Hands.

Sir Weetman Pearson, who has had much to do with the development of the oil-fields of Mexico, and is likely to be a principal figure in the forthcoming "oil war," is head of the great firm of contractors bearing his name, which employs something like 30,000 hands. Engineer, dock, tunnel, railway, and bridge builder, Sir Weetman has carried out some gigantic contracts. It was the construction of the Blackwell Tunnel that brought him his title, and other works standing to his credit are the Southampton Docks, the Milford Haven Docks, and the Pennsylvanian Railroad tunnels.

A laborer named Doherty was killed by a fellow workman at Philipsburg, Que., during a drunken brawl.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

STRIKES LEADERS CONFER WITH MINISTER OF LABOR

Ontario Towns and Cities Send Messages to President Hays Urging Him to Consider Ontario's Plight and Submit the Case to Arbitration.

Montreal, July 29.—Hon. Mackenzie King is in the city, but will say nothing as to what is up in strike circles.

About the time, however, the Minister arrived telegrams from all over Ontario began to pour in upon Mr. Hays, asking for the Grand Trunk to arbitrate, which the president of the Grand Trunk will decline to do. He wants to know why his good friends from the west did not shower these wires upon the strikers when they refused to arbitrate.

Apart from this, Mr. Hays will say absolutely nothing one way or the other.

Mr. King says he knows nothing of the Ontario telegrams, which have also been sent to Mr. Murdock.

Vice-President Murdock of the Brotherhood said last night: "Hurried by telegraph this date, numerous questions have been received from mayors of principal cities and towns and chairmen of Boards of Trade, deprecating a continuance of the existing conditions and intimating that in their opinion negotiations should be reopened, or arbitration resorted to. We have replied that the representatives of the men on strike are prepared, as they always have been, to settle the points of difference by arbitration or other equitable methods.

"If the other principal party to the controversy should ignore the concentrated estimate of the situation as summed up in the telegrams sent to us, we trust that the public will place the onus of responsibility upon the party at fault.

"The Grand Trunk trainmen are on strike and prepared to remain on strike for the wage rates and conditions that were conceded to the trainmen on more than fifty other roads in the same territory without the necessity of an issue being tested."

It was stated by the Grand Trunk that the position was that they were handling their passenger business normally and making excellent progress with their freight business; that having been forced into the fight they were winning it, and did not need arbitration now. In proof of this it was stated that the company yesterday conducted their passenger business normally, and also moved 143 freight trains, comprising 3,149 cars. It was also stated that 56 cars of freight had been unloaded in the Montreal yards last week. On the whole system it was said that the locomotives sent out during the past week were equal to fifty per cent. of the normal service for the same week of last year. It was also positively stated for the company that there was no possibility of the locomotive engineers entering the dispute, and that although no definite propositions had as yet been made by the engineers, their demands would be fairly met by the company and when their present contract ran out at the end of this month their relations would be continued undisturbed.

Fatalities In Strike Riot.

New York, July 29.—Two men were shot and killed, four dangerously wounded and a score more or less seriously injured in a riot of strike sympathizers yesterday at the plant of the American Sugar Refining Co. in Williamsburg, where a strike has been in progress for a month.

A Large Pilgrimage.

Tecumseh, July 29.—About 3,000 devoted Catholics from different parts of Essex County, including twenty priests, visited Ste. Anne's Church on the annual pilgrimage to the shrine of the saint. The assemblage was one of the largest that ever gathered at the shrine.

WHAT STRIKE IS COSTING G. T. R.

G. T. R. weekly traffic returns indicates that strike is costing company $78,836 per day in gross receipts.

G.T.R. earnings week before fore the strike;—		G.T.R. earnings for week, including three days of strike;—
1909	$789,746	1909	$765,672
1910	921,045	1910	660,452
Increase	$131,299	Decrease	$105,220

Seeing that the strike was called at 9.30 p.m. July 18th, the last reported week's earnings of the G.T.R include virtually four complete days' business before the strike was called. The effects of the strike on three days' earnings, as illustrated in the figures, seem to be;—

G.T.R. last increase over same week in 1909, which on basis of increase for week preceding would have been	$131,299
G.T.R. lost in earnings actually decreased	105,220
Total G.T.R. gross loss on week that included only three days of strike	$236,519

These figures applied to the three days of the strike show that the G.T.R. is losing in gross receipts $78,839 daily, or $551,873 for a seven-day week, if the situation does not improve. This calculation means that the G.T.R. has to do better than it did during the first three days of the strike, or the average daily loss of $78,839 would reduce the company's gross earnings to about $200,000 per week.

EARNINGS OF C.P.R FOR JUNE

Montreal, July 29.—For June, 1910, the gross earnings of the C.P.R. were $8,807,817; working expenses, $6,089,902; net profit, $2,717,913. In June, 1909, the net profits were $1,888,424, and for 12 months ended June 30, 1910, the figures are as follows: Gross earnings, $94,989,490; working expenses, $61,140,584; net profits, $33,889,956. For the 12 months ended June 30, 1909, there was a net profit of $38,955,875. The increase in net profits over the same period last year is therefore, for June, $829,491 and for 12 months ended June 30 there was an increase of $10,834,325.

All Up With Suffrage Bill.

London, July 29.—The doom of the woman suffrage bill was announced by the Government yesterday, when David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, stated that the bill would not be allowed to come up in the Commons.

Conflict as to Duties.

Kingston, July 29.—Stonemasons and stonecutters are off work, having a small strike among themselves as to the work each should do. The cutters claim that the masons are doing work that rightly belongs to them.

MACKENZIE NEEDS I.C.R.

To Complete C.N.R.—Three Years Will See a Line From Superior to Pacific.

Montreal, July 29.—William Mackenzie announced yesterday evening, probably the first time for publication, that the Canadian Northern Railway wanted to get possession of the Intercolonial Railway from Montreal to Halifax and Sydney.

The president of the C.N.R. stated that they had laid 261 miles of track already this year in the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. Besides the sixty-mile contract from the Pacific coast eastward, he stated that they had also given a contract for the construction of 140 miles of road east of Edmonton, and that they would now push the main line vigorously from both ends, till the tracklayers, say three years hence, meet somewhere in the mountains, thus completing their connection between the waters of the Pacific Ocean and Lake Superior, if not the St. Lawrence.

During four and a half years, Mr. Mackenzie said, the Canadian Northern had done nothing on the main line, but during that time they have built no less than 1,200 miles of branches, and from this policy of keeping the branch lines well along, comes the success attending the Canadian Northern as a freight carrier on the plains and from Lake Superior westward.

Being asked what his company intended doing in the east Mr. Mackenzie said: "We want the Intercolonial, which will be the natural extension of the Canadian Northern from here to the Atlantic seaboard."

"Are you not afraid some of the other fellows will get it away from you?" the president of the Canadian Northern was asked.

"There is not the slightest danger of that," said President Mackenzie as he left to catch the Toronto train.

THE RAILWAY IS CENSURED

Beaverton, July 29.—Censure was meted out to the Canadian Northern Railway by the coroner's jury in the inquest on John McDevitt and John Hunter, killed in the collision of an engine and a passenger train on July 23, for sending out an entire train crew of inexperienced men. The jury found that the victims were riding on a tender, contrary to the regulations of the railway, and against the orders of the train crew, and consequently at their own risk.

TWINS INTRODUCED

Pittsburg, July 26.—Amos and Cyrus Lape, born together in Black Lick, Indiana County, thirty-nine years ago, are acquainted for the first time. On account of the mother's death, the twins were separated at birth to live with different families, and never knew each other. The reunion, which is now being celebrated, was brought about by an accident. A stranger met Amos at work in Export, and exclaimed, 'Hello, Cy; what are you doing in Export?' Amos demurred: 'But I'm not Cy. I am Amos Lape. I have heard I had a twin brother named Cyru, but never saw him. Do you know him?'

'Well, rather,' said the stranger. He's a neighbor of mine at Dunbar, Fayette County. I'll lead you to him, and he did.

WILL MEET IN STRATFORD

Berlin, July 29.—The 21st annual convention of the Canadian Association of Stationary Engineers concluded its sessions yesterday afternoon. The following officers were elected: President, J. J. Heeg, Guelph; vice-president, W. Norris, London; treasurer, A. M. Wickens, Toronto; conductor, J. A. Robertson, Stratford; doorkeeper, H. R. Clarke, Hamilton; secretary, W. A. Crockett, Mount Hamilton. The retiring president, Charles Kelly, Chatham, who has held the office for the past two years, was presented with a gold badge, suitably engraved.

Stratford was the unanimous choice for the next annual convention in 1911.

PROMOTION IN CIVIL SERVICE

Ottawa, July 29.—A big agitation is on in the civil service here to obtain a change in the new civil service act, having reference to the question of promotion.

The civil servants want the promotion examination to have reference to their departmental work. There are many who passed for promotion under the old act, but have never got it and never will while the present regulations obtain.

Peace Reigns Again.

New Orleans, July 29.—Cable messages from Port Cortez received last night announce that the embargo on bananas imported into the United States has been removed, and that the regular service has been resumed on the Honduran Railway running into the interior. This is taken as an indication that peace again reigns in the little republic.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD GIRL KILLED

Little Hamilton Child Accidently Shot by Her Cousin.

Hamilton, July 29.—There was a sensational shooting accident yesterday afternoon, in which Harriett Tabb, five years old, who lives at 287 Emerald street, was killed. The revolver was in the hands of her cousin, James Leslie Sibbald, 12 years of age, of 116 Shaw street, Toronto, who was on a visit to his aunt, at whose home the fatality occurred. It was another case of not knowing that the weapon was loaded, and the little girl was killed almost instantly. Three doctors were on the scene shortly after the accident happened, but the bullet had entered the child's head, and they were unable to help her. The police investigated the affair and found that it was purely accidental.

The children had been playing, and upon their return between 2 and 3 o'clock, were told to go up to the bathroom and wash their feet. When they arrived there, there was no soap, and young Sibbald climbed up to the shelf above a medicine chest, to get some. On the top of the chest he came across an old revolver, and, taking it down, began to examine it. The little girl was sitting on the edge of the bath with her feet in the water and Sibbald pulled the hammer back. It slipped from his fingers and discharged an old cartridge. As the weapon was pointed directly at the girl, the bullet entered her head behind the right ear, and she died almost instantly.

A DEER MAKES DASH FOR LIBERTY

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 29.—Yesterday morning a deer jumped the high fence around the property of the Lake Superior Corporation and entered the river above the rapids. It went over the rapids and was captured by means of a launch and lasso. The deer was placed in the old warehouse and some hours later made its escape by jumping through a window, breaking a couple of strong iron bars, and again entered the river. When last seen it was swimming towards the American ship canal.

BOURKE WILL NOT BE PROSECUTED

Toronto, July 29.—James Bourke will not be prosecuted in connection with the death of George Matthews, who died Wednesday in the General Hospital, after having been struck by Bourke in a row at North Bay two weeks ago. The post-mortem examination will show that Matthews did not die as a result of the blow, but from a long-standing organic affection.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Germany has decline to interfere between the United States and Nicaragua.

The Duke of Norfolk, it is said, will come to Quebec for the Knights of Columbus celebration next week.

Over sixteen thousand deaths have been caused by cholera in Russia since the beginning of the present outbreak in May last.

Forest fires have broken out again, and two or three cottages at Keewatin Beach have been burned, while the rest of the camp is threatened.

A severe storm did great damage in Huron County, the hail beating the crops into the earth and breaking windows. The hail was also destructive about Woodbridge.

The United States will not permit the importation of cattle from England until the extent of the foot and mouth disease, which has appeared in Yorkshire, can be made clear.

Great damage was done by hailstones in many parts of Ontario Wednesday night, including Kent, Frontenac, Huron, York and Parry Sound Counties. Stock was killed and buildings struck by lightning. A domestic at Minnicoganashene had her clothes burned and was temporarily paralyzed.

RELATIONS ARE BROKEN OFF

Paris, July 29.—A special to The Temps from Madrid says that the Spanish Government has now received from the Vatican a categorical refusal to proceed with the negotiations for a revision of the Concordat unless the imperial decree of June 10, which authorized non-religious societies to display the insignia for public worship, is withdrawn.

The correspondent adds that Premier Canalejas is resolved not to yield this point and will advise King Alfonso to recall Senor de Ojeda, the Spanish ambassador to the Vatican, and suspend diplomatic relations with the Holy See.

Madrid, July 29.—Diplomatic relations between Spain and the Vatican were broken off yesterday.

Sir Henry Tichborne Dead.

London, July 29.—Sir Henry Tichborne, who as a child was defendant in Arthur Orton's historic attempt to possess himself of the Tichborne estate, is dead.

Honors For "The Colonel."

London, July 29.—Col. George T. Denison of Toronto has been elected vice-president of the Royal Colonial Institute.

WIRELESS FROM MONTROSE SAYS DR. CRIPPEN IS ABOARD

Anxious Watchers at Father Point Get Message Which Expresses the Utmost Confidence in the Identity of Suspicious Persons on the Boat.

Quebec, July 29.—On board steamer Montrose, by Marconi wireless, via Father Point, July 28.—Suspected persons answering police description of Crippen and Miss Leneve on board. No arrests made. Other passengers, who are all continentals, in ignorance of the situation. Montrose at 4 p.m. Thursday, 150 miles east of Belle Isle; weather foggy.

Llewellyn Jones, Marconi operator.

The foregoing message from Llewellyn Jones, the Marconi operator on the steamer Montrose, was received in New York late last night, in response to an enquiry sent by wireless earlier in the night.

It confirms apparently the belief of Scotland Yard that Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and his stenographer are aboard the vessel.

London, July 29.—At a late hour last night Scotland Yard had not received official confirmation that Crippen is aboard the steamer Montrose.

Is Off Belle Isle.

Montreal, July 29.—A marconigram was received by the Canadian Pacific Co., yesterday afternoon, stating that at 12.30 the Montrose, on which Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve are supposed to be trying to escape to Canada, was reported 200 miles east of Belle Isle. This means that with fair weather and good progress the steamer cannot reach Father Point until early on Sunday morning, and Quebec the same evening. Thus, although there are thirty special correspondents at Father Point, representing most of the leading papers of Canada, the United States and Great Britain, it will probably be Sunday morning before definite news is secured as to the whereabouts of the couple, or, at least, whether they are on board the Montrose. The lack of wireless information from the ship has led C.P.R. officials to the conclusion that Capt. Kendall has been requested by Scotland Yard authorities to stop any such information being sent.

The Laurentic, on which Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard is supposed to be in pursuit of the fugitive, was reported at Belle Isle at five yesterday morning. At that rate it is calculated by the White Star Co. that she should be due at Father Point at noon on Friday, at Quebec that night, and at Montreal on Saturday morning. It was stated at the White Star offices yesterday that the company had no official knowledge that Inspector Dew was on board, and that he did not appear on the passenger list.

COLLEGE FOR NORTHERN ONTARIO

Montreal, July 29.—Rev. Father Paradis, whose name was on everyone's lips at the time of the Mercier regime in this province, in connection with the colonization movement, but who has transferred his field of labor to Northern Ontario, was here yesterday and told of a project to give the boys of that district a great college, where 500 will get a strong, scientific education.

Father Paradis brought one thousand families from the New England manufacturing centres.

The reverend gentleman says he has other fish to fry than to waste time to think of whether Canadians are to be English or French, so is going to get half a million out of the Porcupine mining district to build the college in question.

The British cruiser Scylla has left for Nicaragua to protect British interests.

INSURGENTS VICTORIOUS

Bluefields, Nicaragua, July 29.—According to advices made public at the insurgent headquarters yesterday, Gen. Moncado Wednesday defeated a Government force, under Gen. Lara, which was attempting to form a junction with the troops of Gen. Chamorro Castill, north of Acoyapa. Forty prisoners and guns, ammunition and camp equipment were taken by the insurgents, according to their reports.

Grand Falls Power Development.

St. John, N.B., July 29.—As a result of the conference between rival interests here Wednesday, it is stated that substantial progress was made in the negotiations for control of the Grand Falls power development by Sir William Van Horne's company. It is stated that the latter company desire soon to begin construction of a hydro-electric plant and pulp and paper mills at the falls.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

NOT THAT KIND OF A COW

Fort Plain, N.Y., July 27.—Because he mistook a young bull for a peaceful cow James E. Wendell, of Albany, a deputy state controller, has a damage suit on his hands, while his auto is out of commission. He was driving along the road with some friends when he discovered the animal in the road. He kept on at a high rate of speed, expecting to see the "cow" take to the bushes. Instead the bull charged madly at the auto and met it "head-on." The front of the car was badly smashed and the bull's neck broken. The irate owner demanded that Wendell pay for the animal, claiming it would have not interfered with the auto if it had been running slowly. Wendell refused and is now threatened with a lawsuit.

AUTHORITIES ARE BLAMED

St. Thomas, July 29.—The local Board of Health at its monthly session decided that serious neglect on the part of the authorities of the Belleville Institute for the Deaf and Dumb was responsible for the death of the child of one St. Thomas citizen. The child contracted scarlet fever from a sister who had been sent home from the institute and was allowed to bring home dolls, books, etc., that had not been disinfected after an outbreak of the fever in the institute.

Appointment When House Meets.

Ottawa, July 29.—It had been expected, after the appointment of G. H. Perley, M.P., as chief Conservative whip, that the other new whips would be appointed during the Parliamentary recess. However, the information is now given that no other appointments will be made until Parliament meets.

Appointed Wreck Commissioner.

Ottawa, July 29.—Capt. Demers, who since the resignation of Commander Spain, has been acting wreck commissioner, has been confirmed in that position. He is succeeded as examiner of masters and mates by Captain H. St. G. Lindsay of Montreal.

Acquitted on Both Charges.

Belleville, July 29.—Ernest Little, who was charged with marrying Ethel Povey, a girl of 16, without the consent of her parents, and of obtaining a marriage license by perjury, was yesterday acquitted on both charges by Magistrate Masson.

The Daily Review

FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1910.

HE WAS A MAN

John A. Ewan, associate editor of the Globe is dead. In the going of Mr. Ewan it has been well said journalism loses one of her brighter ornaments. He was a man. However deep as the loss sustained, the world will move along as ever. Let a king die, time does not stop its ticking for a single second. No one is necessary to our well-being. The mightiest of us are very weak. The wisest of us are very foolish. This is a great world in a great universe. We are merely specks on the surface of it.

IS IT ANY WONDER?

"Buried like a dog" has lost its meaning. A dog was buried in New York the other day and honors were accorded it that would shame the obsequies of many a good man. There was a band and an oration over the grave. A memorial shaft of St. Bernard granite was erected then and there. And in New York that night thousands slept homeless in the parks, and thousands rose hungry to eat scanty meals and go to a hard day's work in a sweat shop. Yes, and that very hour in New York the body of a worthy old man was buried in a cheap coffin, quietly, with no mourner save the widow. Is it any wonder that there are anarchists?

GAMBLING

That was a strong letter of Mr. Pogue's in the Review yesterday in which he denounced gambling. However, that is a vice that is common with the race, and, like intoxicating liquor, will exist as long as the race. It is in the blood of some people to gamble, and gambling fascinates the victim. Drunkards may be fixed up by the gold cure, but gamblers can only be aided by the grace of God. A drunkard can be sent to jail to sober up, but a gambler needs a different kind of a reformation. A drunkard gets mussy and noisy and a nuisance, but the gambler wears good clothes and is quiet, and, to all outward appearance, a good citizen. The drunkard staggers home singing and swearing. The gambler walks softly and tip toes his way upstairs to bed. Of the two evils the gambler is the worst. When a drunken man runs out of money he usually has to sober up. When a man gambles and runs out of money he has the usual recourse—steal some more. Then there is the scandal and the public much surprised, for he was such a fine fellow.

LOOSEN UP

There are those who grouch and who make every cent a prisoner. They deny themselves all the luxuries of life and many necessities as well. They grow grey, wrinkled and narrow. They do not believe in civic advancement. It would mean extra taxes. They believe in beating down the school teachers' salaries, and think the parson isn't earning his money. They are not living. They only exist. They are the fellows who never hand their wives any money without a detailed explanation. It is strange, but money is never easier than in a land where everyone is spending it, where there is midnight revelry and a saloon on every corner. One day Dame Decency wakes up, the red lights go out, the hotels close, and there is no midnight music, and money becomes tighter. One may not visit the house of the red light, or join the midnight chorus, but we can all keep our money moving.

It is the city or country where the money is kept moving that is the busy city, for after all this whole world is only one great department store. Loosen up, spend your money. You will get it back again. Don't leave it for the heirs to get jealous over and go to law about. Spend it to-day, to-morrow and the next day, and you'll get it again. Spend it; there are no pockets in a shroud.

THEN AND NOW

The minister said, "I now pronounce you man and wife." The organ rumbled, the choir sang, the wedding breakfast was served and the rice was thrown as they boarded the train for Montreal, where they now reside.

Lovers, eh? And now they are applying for a separation.

Lovers then, and why not now?

Let's see, old man. On that wedding day he took her arm with an air most gracious, and assisted her into the carriage as he left the church. He helped her to mount the car step in the same courteous fashion. He was mighty anxious for her comfort, wasn't he? Did she need refreshment, was she thirsty, would she like a book, was there anything she desired. Yes, and when she spoke he listened. When she nestled up against his shoulder, he thought there was no one else in the world to compare. He gave her his best attention, didn't he? She received his choicest thoughts.

He went out with her then. Would she stop and look in the door window, they weren't in any hurry.

They were one.

Yes, yes, one; and now they are two.

Did she want to go to the concert, opera, or other entertainment, he felt it a pleasure to take her.

They were one then.

Did she want him to remain in the house, then the club had no charms, and the poker game was not a mark to the joys of home.

Lovers then, and why not now?

"Ah," you reply, "this was years ago."

Yes, it was years ago, and now the courts may separate them.

And you, my friend; you, the bride of the used to be, you gave him your love with the recklessness of a woman who loves with her whole being. You had no eyes for others then.

They were one then.

Did he come home tired; did he talk on business, on losses or disappointments, you cheered him up, you read to him, you ran your fingers through his hair, soothed him, and drew the curtain down. You planned surprises for him. You dressed to please him. You met him at the door and wore your hair as you would wear it for a king.

He was then king, and ruled by love.

They were one then.

Yes, and you, too, reply that this was long ago.

And why not feather the nest again? Why not commence afresh and be the sweethearts of the bygone days?

They were one once; they are two now.

Become as one again.

THE POINT OF VIEW

THE DULL SICKENING THUD.
Hamilton Times.

The height from which Herr Erbsloch and his four assistant aviators fell to death the other day stated at from 800 metres (2,624 2-3 feet) to 5,000 feet. If we suppose the unfortunate men to have fallen only 2,500 feet, we find that they would have attained a velocity of 400 feet per second. Then the momentum or motal force with which a body of 150 lbs. would strike the earth would be 60,000, or 30 tons.

RED TAPE AGAIN.
Toronto Star.

Away back in early February, when the rabies scare was at its height, the Dominion Government issued a dog muzzling order which included a proviso that no dogs were to be shipped out of the infested area, which included the section of Ontario west of the eastern boundaries of York and Simcoe. The Ontario Government promptly decided to co-operate, and its inspectors were notified to see that the law was enforced.

Since that time the rabies epidemic has reached its height and dwindled away into nothingness, and it is with surprise that the public learns that the proprietor of the Haag Shows has been fined $100 and $16 costs for taking his five performing dogs across the boundary line in question. The show, it appears, has been touring Western Ontario. At Brampton Mr. Haag was warned that it would be illegal for him to take his dogs into the eastern section of the province, but as no one objected to him taking them from Orillia to Peterborough when the time to make the trip actually arrived, he concluded that there would be no trouble, and the dogs crossed the Simcoe boundary line with the rest of the show.

Then the inspectors became active, and Mr. Haag was arrested at Sudbury, bailed to Peterborough, and fined one hundred dollars for taking dogs out of the "infected" district. It seems to have been a piece of red tape, and both Governments apparently joined hands in winding it around the unfortunate Mr. Haag. Unquestionably he was to blame for violating the law after he had been explicitly warned, but the regulation has outworn its usefulness and in any event should hardly apply to circus dogs, which are as well looked after as most babies, and which do not, as a rule, run loose. It is difficult to see where they could have either contracted or transmitted rabies, even were the disease prevalent in Ontario at the present time.

FARMER ROOSEVELT.
Star, Montreal.

"No," said he, and there was a note of sadness in his voice. "That is a thing I never do. I can't milk a cow."

"Many years ago I tried to milk a cow on a ranch in North Dakota," he continued. "We had condensed milk morning and night, and so one day I went out and chased a cow lickety-split for two miles over everything we came to. Finally I roped the cow, threw her and turned her upside down. I tried to milk her, but the result was not as good as I expected. I got precious little milk."

The speaker was ex-President Roosevelt.

TURNED DOWN.

"Dear Minnie, get your rats fixed smooth,
  And put your glad rags on,
But kindly douse that hat of yours,
  We'll help the teams along.

Let's wander o'er to yonder green
  And mingle with the throng."
So said the gallant West End youth,
  But he had got in wrong.

Dear Minnie knew just how 'twould go,
  Said she, "I guess I'll stay."
For Prunes had called the night before
  And chased her doubts away.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Little Trading Done at American Markets—Hogs Steady.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, July 28.—The total receipts of live stock for Wednesday and Thursday at the City Market, as reported by the the railways, were 125 carloads, comprising 1809 cattle, 2348 hogs, 2112 sheep, 397 calves and one horse.

Fat Cattle Prices.

George Rowntree, who bought 780 cattle during the week for the Harris Abattoir Co., quoted prices as follows: Best butchers' steers and heifers, $5 to $5.90; cows, $2.50 to $5.25; bulls, $3 to $5 per cwt.

Stockers and Feeders.

Farmers being busy harvesting hindered many who need feeders from being on the market, which caused a poor demand for stockers and feeders, was the statement of Harry Murby. Mr. Murby bought 150 cattle, butchers' and feeders. Steers, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, are worth $5 to $5.50; steers, 800 lbs., $4.50 to $5; light stockers, $3.75 to $4.25.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair supply of milkers and springers, which met a good market all week. Prices ranged from $35 to $70 each, but there were few sold at either price, one being reported at $35 and four at $70. The bulk of the cows sold from $45 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was steady to strong at $3 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Over 2000 sheep and lambs were too many in two days for prices to keep at the high levels being paid all season up to the present. Lambs have taken a slump of fully $1 per cwt. in less than a week's time, and are about that much still too high, in comparison with American markets. Prices for lambs are due to go still lower, at least all signs point that way. Sheep, ewes, sold at $4 to $4.25; rams, $3 to $3.25; lambs, sold at $6 to $7.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris quoted prices unchanged for hogs, at $9.75 for selects, fed and watered, and $9.40 to drovers, for hogs, f.o.b., cars, at country points. Dealers are expecting a drop of at least 40c per cwt. for hogs, especially if the strike ceases on the Grand Trunk Railway.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, July 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 300 head; quiet; prices, unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 150 head; active and steady.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 1200 head; steady; sheep, active; lambs, slow; lambs, $5.50 to $7.75; yearlings, $5.75 to $6.25; wethers, $4.75 to $5.40; ewes, $4 to $4.60; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.75.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Beeves—Receipts, 1734; no trading; dressed beef, slow, 9c to 11½c for native; Texas beef, 7½c to 9½c.

Calves—Receipts, 317; choice veals, scarce, and a trifle firm; others dull and unchanged; common to choice veals, $7 to $10; grassers and buttermilks, $5.25 to $5.50; culls, $5.50 to $6.50; city dressed veals, slow, 13c to 15c; a few choice, 15½c to 16c; country dressed calves, 9c to 13c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 5664; lambs, lower; sheep, sold at $3 to $4.50; culls, $2 to $2.50; lambs, $6.75 to $8; culls, $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 1193; steady to firm; prime state hogs, 185 lbs., average $9.60.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, July 28.—Cattle—Receipts 5000; market dull and weak; beeves, $4.70 to $8.25; Texas steers, $3.50 to $5.50; western steers, $4.75 to $6.60; stockers and feeders, $4 to $6.25; cows and heifers, $2.50 to $6.40; calves, $6.50 to $8.75.

Hogs—Receipts 19,000; market weak; light, $8.55 to $8.86; mixed, $8.25 to $8.80; heavy, $7.90 to $8.70; roughs, $7.90 to $8.20; good to choice, $8.20 to $8.70; pigs, $8.55 to $9; bulk of sales, $8.50 to $8.70.

AS TO YOUR HUSBAND

Don't Be a Complaining, Unappreciative Wife.

A TALK OVER OFFICE AFFAIRS

The Out of Doors Sleeping Room. How an Old House Was Brought Up to Date—Precocious Children of the Day.

Dear Elsa—"I'm sick of Henry's shoppy talk," said a young married woman to me recently. And without the least encouragement she continued: "How can I possibly care to hear every night about his uninteresting doings in the office? I want to forget that such a horrid place exists."

Now, do you know I really believe that this is the mental attitude of quite a number of wives, although, Dick and myself being such chums, it's hard to credit divided interests. Well, lots of husbands, I suppose, come home full of the incidents of the day. The doctor has seen a wonderful cure at the hospital. The merchant has made a good deal. The clerk has views about his chief or wishes to lead up to a few remarks upon his own astuteness during business hours. Each man feels the need of a certain amount of appreciation and consolation by the time he reaches home at the end of the day.

And this complaining wife—what is she dying to hear and to say? Certainly she would like to hear that she is looking very sweet and pretty and that the dinner is excellent, that they will take a pleasant little trip one of these spring Saturday afternoons, and doesn't she need a new spring frock?

She would like to reply suitably to all these things, make some remarks about her neighbors, give her views on sisters-in-law in general and one in particular and offer her opinion perhaps on the suffrage question and modern domestics, all of which pronouncements could come as well from his stenographer or the woman who sits next to him in the car. There is nothing "wifey" about them.

And it is the intimate talk which the husband really values, the ready sympathy for his difficulties and the quick appreciation of his tactics. He wants from his wife that which the world cannot give. And it's a pretty poor story when she complains, as did my visitor, that her husband's affairs bored her.

During a chat over office affairs a wife may by a happy inspiration solve a problem or suggest a way out of the difficulty which has been worrying the husband for days. Trust him to discover, no matter how deftly she does it, whether she changes the conversation because she is sick of the subject or from a genuine desire to turn his thoughts into channels which will rest his mind after a hard day's work.

The Outdoor Sleeping Room.

To change the subject, you remember, dear, how I took up the craze last summer of sleeping on the porch in a Gloucester hammock and how the chickens roosted on my head and crowed me away from my early morning slumbers. The porch being downstairs, the maid wanted to sweep the floor before breakfast! Well, things were so impossible that I gave up sleeping in the open and returned to my own bedroom. When remodeling the house recently our architect suggested to me the possibility of making several outdoor sleeping rooms from an ordinary upstairs apartment, and as we thought the plan a good one we let him go ahead with the work. A mighty good work it has proved. These outdoor sleeping rooms consist of a suit of three apartments. The corner room is furnished in hospital style in a strictly sanitary manner. Large windows are provided, which give an unlimited amount of fresh air. Off this room is the dressing room, which is heated, and I have all my pretty furnishings for the toilet that I had in my other dressing room. The third room is the bath.

But really, dear, even if one did not want to go to the expense of having a suit like ours it is at least possible to treat the bedroom in a sensible and hygienic way.

One mistake our architect pointed out to us to be found in sleeping rooms is the placing of the bed, which often occupies a corner. Study any room where the bed is so placed and note the chance that the air has to reach the person who sleeps in the bed. Particularly is the position of the bed a matter of comfort in summer. But here endeth my lecture upon hygienic household arrangement.

What She Had Heard.

I have just thought of a good story apropos of furnishings that I read recently in the Success Magazine:

A certain professor possesses a full share of the artist's sensitiveness in regard to the inartistic. Some years ago he had for next door neighbors a family among whose charms good taste was lacking.

One morning the professor's little daughter made an unexpected call at the house of this family. "Show me the rug in your room," she demanded, with childish imperiousness.

The lady of the house suppressed her wonder and took her little visitor upstairs. Inside the door the child stood and stared at the rug for a couple of minutes. "H'm," she said and sat herself firmly in the chair, her eyes glued to the rug. Finally she confided to her wondering hostess, "Well, it doesn't make me sick." So much for the modern child.

Ain't the "mummy" skirts funny, or, rather, ain't the women caricatures who wear them? The sketch will give you an idea of how absurd some of the guests at a tea looked in them the other afternoon. Ever your devoted

WOMEN DETECTIVES.

Good Pay and Steady Work For the Right Sort.

Of the lines of work open to women there is perhaps none more interesting than that of detective. The woman detective is well paid for good work, and she is in demand, particularly in a large city.

"What first made its impression upon me in the line of detective work," said a woman detective in one of the large department stores, "was something I saw ten or twelve years ago. I was riding in one of the street cars in the 6 o'clock rush, when the people were packed, as usual, like sardines. I was at the time thrown on my own resources and had just finished a course in stenography and that very day was going home from an unsuccessful day of job hunting, tired out and discouraged.

"As I stood wedged among people in the center of the car the conductor came along collecting fares. As he squeezed through he was followed by a boy about fourteen, and just as they passed me where the crowd was thickest I saw this boy reach in that conductor's pocket and take out a handful of change. Not only once did he do it, but as the conductor reached the rear door I saw the boy help himself again, all the while the conductor being utterly oblivious.

"Of course it was none of my business, but I soon reached the door. As the boy was making ready to swing off the car a policeman happened to swing on. 'Grab him!' I cried. He was grabbed tight enough, but they held me as a witness, and I had to go to police court the next day. Searching the boy, they had found several dollars in small change, whereas he had only taken 75 cents or so from this conductor.

"As I was leaving court one of the railroad officials said to me, 'Look here, why don't you be a detective?' He offered me a small position, and I let the typewriting job go. Since then I have done work on the street car service in New York, on railroads, for banks and in various fields, and I have been for several years working in the department stores, where perhaps I have had the widest field."

Wall Paper's Effect on Germs.

The physical and physiological effects of wall paper on human beings have aroused the interest of English and French scientists. It is asserted on authority that wall paper of a certain kind is extremely injurious to the health, while paper of certain colors aids in destroying disease germs. Elisabeth Hyatt-Woolf in an English magazine discusses the subject at length. She says some wall paper of an inferior quality is made from pulp obtained from gutters, and it is injurious. She asserts that in a recent coroner's inquest Dr. Charles Smythe of London testified that death of a man was due to arsenical poisoning from a bedroom wall paper. The doctor said that the body of the patient had absorbed the poisoning from the paper. On the other hand, French scientists say that wall paper of certain kinds acts on harmful disease germs by driving them from a sickroom. The tuberculosis germ, Dr. de Bosco and Dr. Lydia Rabinovitch assert, has disappeared under the influence of enameling colors in a bedroom. In a like way such colors are reported to have driven typhoid, cholera and diphtheria from a house. Yellow is regarded by these experts as a tonic. Red is helpful in killing disease germs and also as a cure for the blues.

Hot Cheese Sandwich.

For this dish baker's bread, being more porous, is better than homemade bread. Cut in slices three-eighths of an inch thick and trim off the crusts. On half the slices spread very thin slices of moist common factory cheese or spread with a generous layer of grated cheese. If the cheese be grated any dry cheese may be used. Cover with a second slice of bread. Have ready in a frying pan two or three tablespoonfuls of olive oil or melted butter. In this saute the sandwiches to a golden brown on one side, then turn and cook the other side. Serve for luncheon or supper with a green vegetable salad or stewed fruit.

HOT SANDWICH WITH LETTUCE SALAD.

Missing Child Found.

Belleville, July 29.—Six-year-old Myrtle Elliott of Thurlow, about three miles from this city, strayed away from her home on the morning of Tuesday last and was not found till yesterday morning, about four miles from her home. The child is not much the worse for her experience.

Smoked Out Pirates.

Hong Kong, July 29.—The authorities have captured several more of the Colowan pirates. The latest batch includes fifteen men and thirteen women. Three more kidnapped boys have been rescued. The pirates were smoked out of their caves by fires of straw and sulphur.

HIS ACCOMPLICE.

The Obliging Old Lady Who Helped the Struggling Boy.

When a kind old lady in walking along a north side residence street beheld a small boy struggling vainly to reach something between the gratings of a tall iron fence surrounding a palatial residence she paused to watch his operations. The object of his quest she discovered to be a handsome mechanical toy, an automobile that would run when wound up. The boy had a stick with which he was trying to pull the machine toward him, but as he could scarcely reach it the struggle was well nigh hopeless.

"Let me try it," said the old lady. "My arm is longer than yours."

"All right," replied the youngster, relinquishing the stick.

Getting down on her knees, the old lady, by dint of much stretching and careful manipulation, gradually worked the machine toward the fence and at last had the satisfaction of seeing the little boy grasp it with eager fingers.

"Now," she said, "you must be more careful and not let it get away from you again."

"Gee," said the boy, "it never got away from me, an' it ain't goin' to neither."

"Wh-wh-why," faltered the old lady, with the dawning of a horrible suspicion, "isn't it yours?"

"You bet it's mine now," said the kid, and away he scampered, leaving the good old lady alone with her conscience.—Atlanta Constitution.

DODGED THE DUELS.

Voltaire's Disastrous Attempts to Make De Rohan Fight.

Literary men in dueling times and countries have always been rather prone to get into trouble from which only a passage at arms could extricate them. Voltaire had at various turns a number of duels on his hands, but counted among them two which did not reach the expected climax.

One of these was his affair with the Chevalier de Rohan Chabot, who goaded him to the point of fighting and then, instead of giving him the satisfaction demanded, had him lured into a coach and soundly whipped with switches by some hirelings concealed there.

Voltaire, after trying in vain to induce one of his noble friends to back him in his further pursuit of his enemy, appealed to the municipal authorities in these phrases: "I humbly represent that I have been brutally assaulted by the courageous Chevalier de Rohan, aided by six cutthroats, behind whom he was bravely posted. Ever since that time I have sought to restore not my honor, but his, a task too difficult."

As this public affront failed to produce any effect, Voltaire hunted out the chevalier one evening at the theater and flung insults in his face there. Rohan at last consented to meet him, but contrived to let the news reach other members of the Rohan family, who had Voltaire arrested and thrown into the Bastille.—New York Post.

THE CHOIR HAD YEARLY OUTING TO IDYL WYLD

The anthem singers of George street Methodist church held their annual summer outing yesterday afternoon. The steamer "Rainbow" carried about 75 of the choir of the church and their friends down to Idyl Wyld, arriving there about 4 o'clock.

A splendid meal served at the hotel followed by a scrub baseball game, completed the programme of Idyl Wyld.

Gore's Landing was then visited and a brief stay made. The trip home was commenced about 7 o'clock, the boat reaching Peterborough about 10.30.

26 POUNDER GETS THE HOOK; THIS WAS SOME LUNGE

Notable Catch at "Islinda" by Mr. Fred H. Wood of New York—A High Average for Three Bass—Guests Flocking to "Islinda'

"Islinda," Buckhorn Lake, July 27.—"Islinda," the popular fishing resort Perry Alexander's, on Buckhorn Lake, has been crowded with guests until the S.R.O. sign had to be gotten out, "It has been an exceptionally good season for fishing in that section, and many large lunge and bass are being taken home by American guests.

A FINNY GOLIATH.

Among the notable catches of lunge was one weighing 26 lbs., caught by Fred H. Wood, of New York. This fish is undoubtedly one of the finest specimens of lunge caught in that section It gave Mr. Wood a mighty interesting time for nearly three-quarters of an hour before it was finally landed.

This fish has been mounted and is on exhibition in the Canadian Pacific Railway office, Main street, Buffalo, N.Y.

GREAT BASS FISHING.

The bass have been unusually large Mr. Horace Judge, of South Bend, Ind., getting three in one afternoon, that weighed 13 3-4 lbs.

A large number of Cincinnati and Cleveland guests arrived this week and "Islinda" will be crowded all August.

TWO PRESENTATIONS MADE BY L. O. L. NO. 50

At the regular meeting of L.O.L. No. 50, held last evening, Bros. N. Hopkins and P. Johnston were entertained. Each member was presented with an address and a suit case, and when they leave for Vancouver in a week, each will carry the best wishes from the members of No. 50, for a bright future in their new home.

The attendance was large, and several visitors gave addresses. Refreshments were served, and the evening proved to be an enjoyable one for all present.

The addresses to the departing members were as follows:—

Peterborough, July 29, 1910.
Mr. P. Johnson, city:

Dear Friend and Bro.—We, the members of Duke of Manchester L.O.L. No. 50, regret very greatly to hear of your departure for the west, but only hope you will prove yourself still further to the benefit of some other branch of this society.

We beg leave to present you with this suit case as a small token of remembrance, and for you to think of the pleasant time we spent together.

Wishing you good luck, health and prosperity in the golden west.

Signed on behalf of the members of L.O.L. No. 50.

N. Barrie, W.M.; E. Curry, Treasurer; A. Chrowe, Rec.-Sec.; W. Stewart, Sec.; S. Adlam, Fin.-Sec.; H. Dodds, D. of C.

Peterborough, July 29, 1910.
To R. N. Hopkins, Esq., W.M. of L.O.L. No. 50:

Dear Sir and Bro.—We, the officers and members of L.O.L. No. 50, Duke of Manchester Lodge, feel that we cannot let you depart from our midst without a slight token of remembrance for the valuable services and good work you have done in connection with our association as presiding officer of our lodge.

You have always fulfilled the duty of your office, showing no partality to any, but governed yourself and ruled the lodge strictly as laid down in our constitution of laws.

On severing your connection from us we trust you will still carry on the good work you have done amongst us, knowing that our loss will be others' gain.

We beg you to accept the Past Master's jewel as a slight token of the appreciation of our work. May it always remind you of the pleasant hours spent with the brethren in Eastern Ontario.

We wish you all kinds of Cobalt luck, the best of health and prosperity in the Far, Far West.

Signed on behalf of L.O.L. No. 50.

N. Barrie, W.M.; E. Curry, Treasurer; A. Chrowe, Rec.-Sec.; W. Stewart, Sec.; S. Adlam, Fin.-Sec.; H. Dodds, D. of C.

DEMONSTRATION WAS INTERESTING

Crowds Watch the Lion Brand Demonstration at Cressman's Toggery Shop

The police had to move them on to avoid complete blocking of the sidewalk last night in front of Cressman's semi-ready window. The admiration of the crowd of men was apparent as they watched Mr. Victor Gilbert demonstrating the famous Lion brand collars with the easy tie slide space. There was no pulling and tearing ties, he put on two ties as easy as one.

Mr. Silbert represents the United Shirt and Collar Co., of Troy, N.Y., and is giving an exhibition in Cressman's window of their collars, which that firm has secured the exclusive agency for in Peterborough. The demonstration will be continued to-night and to-morrow, (Saturday.)

LINEUPS FOR THE BATTLE TO-MORROW

West Ends.—Smith, c; Rose, p; Hefferlan, 1b; Logan, 2b; Minorgan, ss; Konold, 3b; Dickie, Campbell, Brydie, Gibson, Crane, Gerner, outfield; Creswell, Kirn, p.

T.A.S.—McFadden or Overend, c; Quinlan, p: M. O'Brien, 1b; Ohearn, 2b; Giroux, ss; Callaghan, 3b; V. Corkery, W. O'Brien, J. Corkery, Haley, Cahill, Doherty, outfield.

The above are the lineups given out by the managers of the two clubs who will battle at Riverside to-morrow afternoon with the start off at three o'clock. Jack Rosevear will be on deck to hand out the decisions, and if you want to place a safe bet, put your money behind the statement that the players won't deliver any orations when a strike or an out is called.

There has been a lot of tall guessing on the result, and the T.A.S. will be the favorite, but that doesn't say the team will win.

A big crowd should witness the contest. The result means considerable.

Frank La Porte, the second baseman of the New York American League Baseball Club, is at present doing some sensational playing around the middle section of the diamond. The little Frenchman is a good wielder of the stick, and with timely hitting with his famous little black bat he is winning many a game for the New York "Highlanders." La Porte is deserving of all the credit that the "fans" can bestow upon him, for he is a player who is always working hard to try and keep his team up amongst the top notchers.

BRIEF AND BREEZY

The West Ends and T.A.S. held a joint practice last nihgt at Riverside Park.

In forty-three games in the National Lacrosse Union 26 hours and 56 minutes have been lost to the seven clubs through penalties. Toronto leads with a penalty list of 355 minutes.

It is reported that the Nationals are $20,000 to the good on the year's finances.

Johnny Evers, of the Cubs, has been chosen by Detroit men for a place on the all-American baseball team, which will visit Cincinnati this fall and play a game with the Cincinnati Reds. Ed. Walsh, of the White Sox, has been picked to pitch with Matthewson. Mike Mitchell has been selected as the Cincinnati man for the team.

Just figure the number of balls that the great pitcher, Cy Young, has had to throw to the plate during his 21 years on the diamond. He has pitched 802 games, not counting exhibition and training trip contests. A fair average is 124 balls to a game, a total of 100,250 during his championship contests. For a few years of his big league career the pitcher's box was only fifty feet from the plate, being placed where it is now later on. Further computation shows that Cy has thrown the ball a total of 1,100 miles. If his efforts in warming up prior to games were also considered these figures would be almost doubled.

The moving pictures of the Henley regatta, in which the Winnipeg crew carried off the Steward cup, will be shown at the Dreamland Theatre, Winnipeg, next week.

Speaking about betting, what about taking a chance on the expected arrest of Crippen, who is supposed to be aboard the Montrose. It is not known as a fact that he is on the boat, and it looks like an opportunity of getting big odds?

ON ICE

Who'll call the game?
"I," says Rosevear,
"And I'll call loud and clear,
I'll take the blame."

Who'll twirl the Greys?
"I," says the Rose,
"Just watch how I pose,
I'll sling the pills."

Who'll cheer the crowd?
"I," says the Fish,
For it's all I could wish,
I'll serve the joy."

Who'll take the fray?
"I," says the Duke,
And it won't be no fluke,
I'll win the day."

SPORTING COMMENT

Hans Wagner owes his start in baseball to his brother, Al Wagner. Al was a good ball player, but everybody thought Hans was too awkward to ever amount to anything. Al was with Steubenville, owned by George Moreland at that time, and Moreland wanted a pitcher.

"Get my brother," said Al.

"Can he pitch?" Moreland wanted to know.

"Well, he can throw a ball mighty fast," Al replied, and Hans was wired at Carnegie to report. His salary was to be $35 per month. Wagner beat his way from Pittsburg to Steubenville on a freight train.

Frank Bowerman was catching for Steubenville, and Claude Ritchey, also was a member of the team. Wagner pitched the first game, but after that they put him in the outfield. His feet were so big it was impossible to get a pair of baseball shoes in Steubeenville to fit him, and the greatest ball player of all times played his first league engagement in his bare feet.

Boxing circles in Brussels are highly indignant over the discovery that a negro who was passing himself off as Jack Johnson is really Battling Jim Johnson. His managers were obliged to flee from the indignant ones.

Johnson was haled before a magistrate to explain his deception. He candidly stated:

"I am Johnson. I am a negro. It was all the fault of my managers."

Nelson, one of the most remarkable and best known trotting and breeding stallions in the country, who once held the old-fashioned high-wheel sulky record, and later the bicycle sulky record, has died at Sunnyside Farm, Waterville, the stock farm of his owner, C. Horace Nelson. He trotted all over the country and went many fast miles in his twenty-seven years.

Nelson was foaled in June, 1882. His sire was Nelson Rolfe, 2:21, by Tom Rolfe, 2:33, and his dam, Gretchen, by Gideon, 2:45. He was bred by C. H. Nelson, who trained and drove him himself in all his important races and exhibitions.

WANTED

From hill and dale goes up a cry,
A mournful groan, a hopeless sigh,
That quavers through the rustling trees
And swells the bosom of the breeze;
That carries in its sad refrain—
The white man's hope—a gasp of pain;
That hoarsened voice, in despair,
Set floating on the torrid air—
"Who'll whip Jack Johnson?"

Men meet with face set and stern,
And ask the question they would spurn,
That tingles to their finger tips,
And hiss it through their tight drawn lips;
From out what ranks will come the man
Who'll down the black—or thinks he can?
What gladiator, now unknown,
Will pull the king from off his throne?—
"Who'll whip Jack Johnson?"

Who'll whip Jack Johnson?' men unsheath
Their tightly clenched or gnashing teeth
And put the problem, white with rage,
Where is the man who can engage
This Ethiopian and stand
Before the crunching of the hand
That felled the best of them? O who Can play the game and play it through?—
"Who'll whip Jack Johnson?"

CRICKET

The Peterborough Cricket Club will play the C.G.E. eleven at the Oval tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The members are requested to be on hand in good time.

An interesting cricket match between the Football Club of the Canadian General Electric Works and the Peterborough Cricket Club will take place at the Oval to-morrow at 2.30 p.m. The C.G.E. have the opinion that they are as good at cricket as at football, and already talk of the downfall of the Peterborough boys, but that remains to be proved, as another tale might be told at the finish of the match.

Big Liner Lost.

Belfast, July 29.—The big Holt liner Agamemnon, with 150 passengers, aboard, has run ashore in a fog near Cloughey, and is reported to be probably a total loss.

The passengers are safe, but the panic when the liner struck was only quelled by the heroism of the officers and crew.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

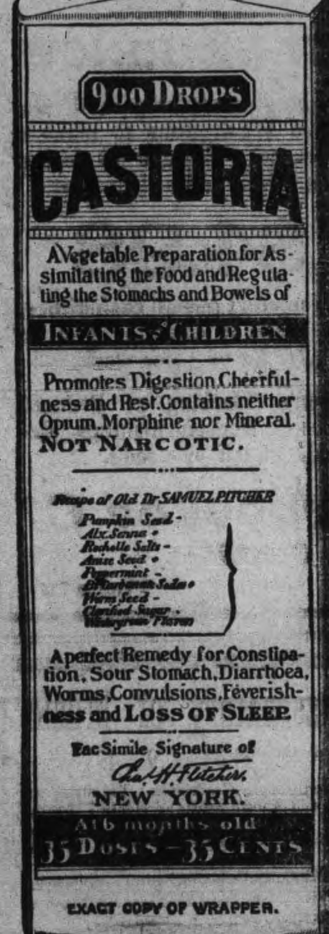
What is Castoria.

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.



Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. F. Gerald Blattner, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "Your Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, always obtaining the desired results."

Dr. Gustave A. Eisengraeber, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Eskildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Pardee, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

BACK FROM A MONTH'S TRIP TO WESTERN CITIES

R. E. Harding, Bethune street, has returned from a month's trip to the west. He visited the northern and southern districts and brought back with him some splendid samples of wheat, oats and barley taken from the farm of Mr. Jos. Redmond, near Calgary, and who before leaving for the west, resided in Cavan.

Mr. Harding says the crops, in the north are up to the usual mark, but in the south they are away below, owing to the hot weather and scarcity of rain. He was greatly interested with the order of things in the grain country, but expressed himself as being glad to get back to "the old burg."

Mr. Harding met many Peterborough old boys, amongst them being Mr. E. A. Row, "Bill" Crowley and George Crowe.

On the return trip to Winnipeg he made a presentation of a well filled purse to a trained nurse, on behalf of the passengers of the train, in recognition of her services towards a young lady who was taken ill on the train.

A REAL LIVE TEDDY BEAR

Mr. J. H. Prosser, the teacher at Chemong Indian Village, is in the city, accompanied by his pet bear, "Teddy."

The bear, which is three months old, was purchased by Mr. Prosser from one of the Indians of the village, and the little black fellow is tame and friendly.

According to Mr. Prosser, the cub is quite a performer, and does several stunts, which he learned very quickly. While the affection of the family is shared between the bear and a terrier dog, there is no jealousy between the two, and they are both very companionable and are mutual friends.

Mr. Prosser takes "Teddy" along with him on a leash, and it follows him everywhere as docile as a lamb.

Mr. Prosser is on his way to visit his brother, Rev. Mr. Prosser, Morganston.

AFTERNOON WIRES

Crippen and His Sweetheart Are Closely Watched So Says Wireless

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., July 29.—The announcement that Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve are aboard the C.P.R. steamer Montrose was confirmed this morning, when the following message was received by wireless from the Montrose:—"Crippen and girl closely watched night and day. Apparently have no suspicion. Passengers still in ignorance. Crippen nervous nearing port." This message would indicate that the couple have not been formally arrested, but that the steamer's captain is satisfied as to their identity.

Torpedo on Track Explodes and Injures a Lady in the Ottawa Station

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Ont., July 28.—A torpedo was placed on the Grand Trunk tracks in Central depot here yesterday afternoon and was exploded by an incoming passenger train, with the result that a lady waiting for the arrival of a train was slightly injured. The Grand Trunk agent at Valleyfield reports that a Grand Trunk box car was burned in the yard there last night. A passenger train being shunted at the deep cut near Ottawa last night backed into a freight standing on the siding, four cars on the freight being telescoped.

Indications are That There Will be Something Doing in the Strike Affair

Montreal, Que., July 29.—Important developments in connection with the Grand Trunk strike are reported to be impending, and it would not be a surprise if the whole thing is ended inside of twenty-four hours. It is difficult to trace this impression to any definite source, but that it prevails is beyond doubt. One report has it that Hon. MacKenzie King, Minister of Labor, is in the city, but is keeping his whereabouts very quet. The labor leaders are reticent, but seem confident that something is going to happen very soon.

Baker is Fined for Selling Light Weight Bread—A Test Case

Special to the Review.

Toronto, July 29.—Magistrate Kingsford this morning convicted the Nasmith Baking Company on a charge of selling light weight bread, and fined them $5 and costs. The case was a test case to decide whether the bakers can lawfully sell a twenty or forty ounce loaf composed of two or four separate pieces of dough baked together under the clause which says "Small Bread" weighing less than twelve ounces can be sold. An appeal to the high court was entered.

STONEY LAKE REGATTA ON AUGUST NINTH

The Stony Lake regatta this year will be held at Juniper on Civic Hogiday, Monday, August 8th. The committee is preparing an attractive programme of races.

The 57th Regimental Band and Halpany's orchestra have been engaged in connection with the regatta.

NEW PASTOR OF GEORGE ST. HERE

Rev. Isaac Couch, M.A., B.D., the new pastor of George street Methodist church, arrived in the city Wednesday at noon, and will preach to the congregation on Sunday, both morning and evening. He is at the Parsonage.

Rev. Mr. Couch has not altogether recovered from his attack of appendicitis, but is gradually renewing his strength. Mrs. Couch is not here yet, she being on a visit to her mother.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Statement Desired

Peterborough, July 29.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I think it would be generally appreciated by the citizens of Peterborough if a detailed financial statement were published in connection with the benefit concert given Miss Lavina Hallihan a short time ago.

It sems to me that in an event in which such general public interest was shown and one which depended so largely for its success on the public's appreciation of Miss Hallihan's ability, a statement should be made in the local papers by the committee.

In my experience such a course has always been taken in similar concerts.

Yours very truly,
CITIZEN.

277 Park Street,
Peterboro, July 28, 1910.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Through the medium of your paper I wish to convey my sincere and heartfelt thanks to all the friends who so kindly sympathized with my family and myself in our recent bereavement, and wish especially to express my gratitude to the employees of the Canadian General Porcelain Works for their kind sympathy and generous gift. I am,

Yours faithfully,
AGNES KENNEDY.

OBITUARY

The Late Mr. Kennedy

All that was mortal of the late Mr. John Kennedy was laid to rest at the Little Lake cemetery Thursday afternoon.

Prior to the funeral cortage leaving his mother's house for the cemetery, a service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Pogue, of St. Paul's church, who kindly oficiated in the absence of the Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox church.

The attendance at the funeral, as well as the numerous beautiful wreaths and flowers sent by friends, testified to the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held by all who knew him.

Mr. Kennedy was closely associated with the Knox Presbyterian church, and was a quiet Christian young man greatly respected by all who had any dealings with him, and he will be sadly missed by the various guilds to which he belonged.

The pallbearers were composed of six young men belonging to the Guild of Knox church.

Mr. Kennedy leaves behind him to mourn his loss, a widowed mother, as well as two brothers and four sisters.

Wreaths and flowers were sent by the following friends—Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox church; A.S.K. Class Knox church; Boys' Club, Knox church; Young People's Guild, Knox church; Go Forth Class, Knox church; members of Knox church choir, members of Knox church Sunday school, Miss Jennie Kidd, Miss Kate Fleming, Mr. Charles Green, Mrs. Hudson, Mr and Mrs. Brodie, Mrs. Galbraith, Mrs Webster, Mrs. Dickson, Mrs. Gillespie, Mrs Shaw, Mr. A. Elliott, Mr. R. Elliott, Mr. W. Elliott, Mr. L. Elliott, Mr. Ogilvie, Mr. E. Wise, Mr. and Mrs Shook, Mr. Archie Shook.

A GIFT AND AN ADDRESS

Last night the W.A. of St. Luke's presented Mrs. Henry Butcher, treasurer of the society, who is leaving for Fort William, where she will reside, with a set of dishes and an address.

The address was read by Mrs. Wm Gibbs, and the presentation made by Mrs. S. Gaskins, president of the society.

The address was as follows —

St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham,
Peterborough, July 28th, 1910.

Dear Mrs. Butcher,—We have learned with great regret of your forthcoming separation from us, occasioned by your removal from the city. Before you leave, we wish to express to you our appreciation of the loyal and faithful work you have done as a member of the church in all her activities, and we ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a token of our heartfelt friendship.

E. A. LANGFELDT,
Rector.
MRS. S. GASKINS,
President, W.A.

Mrs. Butcher made a grateful reply.

ENNISMORE

A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. W. J. Clark, Ennismore, last week when his brother, Mr. Fred G. Clark, Mrs. Clark and Master Orion and Miss Sadie Clarke his sister, all of Detroit, were his guests. They intend spending next week at the lakes.

TO THE RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS

Globe.

The Salada Tea Company has written to the Dominion Railway Commission, complaining that the Grand Trunk System persistently refuses to accept the freight offered to it by the company. This action of the railway, the letter points out, is causing great loss and injury to the company. It is also pointed out that the Commission has it in its power, and its power only, to compel the railway to act up to its charter, and accept and carry the freight offered. The Salada Tea Company concludes by asking that the attention of the Commission be immediately called to the matter.

The usual conflicting statements regarding the handling of local freight by the company were made last night by the management of the road and the leaders of the men. The latter also reiterated their readiness to meet Mr. Hays on the conditions stated by Messrs. Lee and Garretson in their interview with Mr. Hays at Montreal.

DEAD ON ROAD

Special to the Review.

Oshawa, July 28.—James Conlin was found dead by the road side within the corporation limits early this morning by a farmer driving into town. Investigation shows death was due to acute heart disease. Conlin who lives on a farm about four miles out, was in town and started for home some time in the evening, and is supposed to have fallen out of the rig when taken with the seizure. His horse went home and the rig bore evidence of being damaged.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

THE FALL SHIPMENTS WILL BE AFFECTED

Say Peterboro Dry Goods Men If Strike Continues Till the Middle of August—Strikers Keep in Close Touch With Each Other—No Freight Moving in This Division.

The local merchants state they are not much inconvenienced by the strike either in the way of wholesale or retail dealings. Some inconvenience and loss have resulted, however.

"The strike will be a serious drawback to the drygoods men however," it was stated to the Review to-day, "if it drags along until the middle of August. About that time fall shipments will be arriving and a great many of these are consigned G.T.R. In the rush of fall goods the delay is likely to be serious if the strike is still on."

STRIKERS KEEP IN CLOSE TOUCH.

The local freight is still summed up to the point in the two words 'nothing moving." Not a freight wheel has turned with the limits of the northern division since the first day of the strike.

There is some freight activity in Port and Belleville however.

The men all over the country are keeping in close touch with each other and the different brotherhoods have telephones in their rooms and the long distance phones are freely employed in fraternal discussions.

Some representative of the strikers in Peterborough visits Toronto nearly every day and gets ideas and suggestions at the meetings there which are of interest and benefit to the local men.

A deputation of fifteen attended a meeting in Lindsay last night.

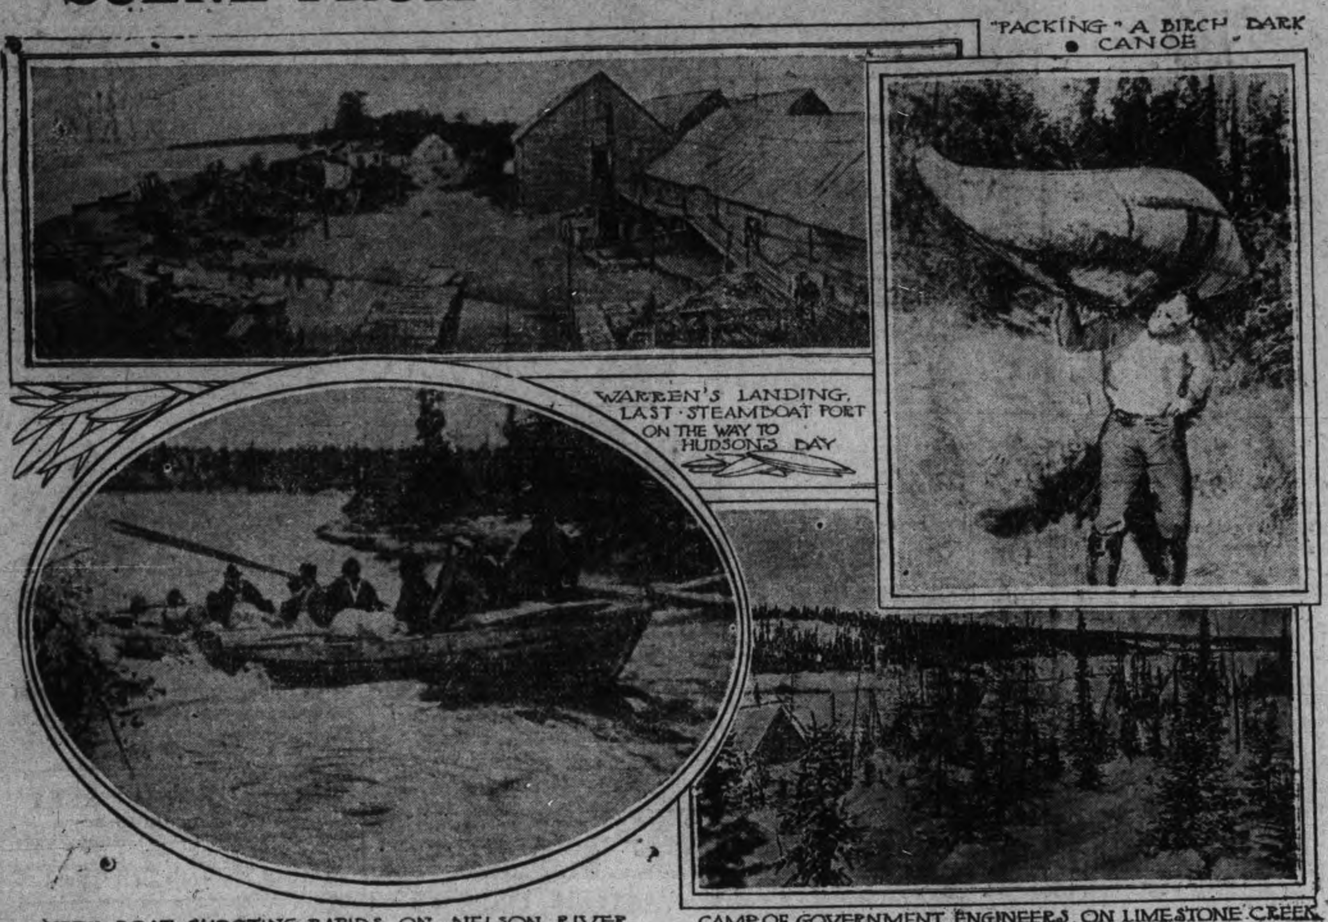
SCENE FROM HUDSON BAY COUNTRY



YORK BOAT SHOOTING RAPIDS ON NELSON RIVER.

CAMP OF GOVERNMENT ENGINEERS ON LIMESTONE CREEK.

Winnipeg, Man., July 28.—A northern outlet for western grain is a project which has loomed before the great Northwest for many years. The Canadian Government is preparing to open up and develop such a route in the immediate future. Parties of engineers have invaded a territory sacred for generations to the traders of the Hudson Bay Company, and the government is now calling for tenders for the first section of a railway which will bring the Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana and the Canadian prairie provinces as near tidewater as Michigan.

Not only have the engineers invaded this territory, but tourists have found in it a new stamping ground, and this season they will have an opportunity of traversing for themselves a country now given over to the Indians, but which in a decade will be cut by one of the grain shipping arteries of America. The few who have heretofore travelled between Manitoba and Hudson Bay have been either missionaries, traders or employees of the government connected with the Department of Indian Affairs. They have not told of what they encountered except to a limited circle, so that the impression remains that the trip is one of great danger and difficulty. That this is not the case is shown by the proposal of Earl Grey, vice-regal representative in Canada, to make the trip this summer.

Earl Grey proposes to travel over the greater part of the route to be taken by the new government railway from the Pas Mission, on the Saskatchewan, to the mouth of the Nelson or Churchill River. The trip will take the party over some of the finest canoe routes to be found on the continent, for the Nelson River is second in volume only to Mississippi, while its current is much more rapid. York boats and canoes are the only means of transportation at present in the country, with Indian or metis paddlers. The country abounds in game and fish, so that fresh meat supplies are obtained en route, while equipment must be reduced to a minimum of weight.

DETECTIVES AND REPORTERS POPULATE FATHER POINT

Anxious Bevy Await the Arrival of the Montrose With the Man and Woman Believed to be Dr. Crippen and Miss Leneve.

Father Point, July 30.—An important development in the Crippen case yesterday afternoon was the arrival of Chief Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, who, following up the clue furnished from the steamer Montrose, sailing from Antwerp to Montreal, left Liverpool last Saturday on the White Star liner Laurentic in order to intercept the Montrose, and to ascertain if the suspected passenger and his boy companion were Dr. Crippen and the Leneve woman.

The Laurentic arrived at this place shortly after three o'clock, and Inspector Dew came ashore on the Government tender to await the arrival of the Montrose, which is due here during Sunday afternoon.

In an interview, the inspector said that he had come here to carry out instructions. He, of course, declined to make any statement respecting the case, and professed that he had not received any information as to whether the individual he came to see had been identified as Dr. Crippen or not.

He knew the man personally, and was certain he would recognize Crippen if he really was on the Montrose.

He is stopping at a private boarding house, along with the provincial police officers, who have come armed with the necessary warrant for the arrest of the suspected parties.

Besides being extremely reticent, Inspector Dew was visibly annoyed when having to face the cameras of the pressmen, and endeavored to remain as much as possible in ungetable positions.

Directly the Montrose reaches Father Point Sunday, Inspector Dew and the two local officers will board the vessel, and the inspector desires to do this very quietly in order to guard against suicide.

If the identity is established, Dr. Crippen and his companion will be immediately placed under arrest by the Canadian police. They will be landed at Quebec and held there until the arrival of the first steamer from Montreal. They will then be handed over to Inspector Dew, who will take them on the steamer, which will probably be the Royal George, sailing for England next Thursday.

Meanwhile the only authority for the presence of Dr. Crippen and his disguised girl companion is Capt. Kendall of the Montrose, and his own wireless messages to the authorities admit that no one else on board suspects the identity of the pair. Crippen is shaved, with moustache and false whiskers. Capt. Kendall says there is no doubt as to their identity. He got suspicious a few hours after he had been at sea and watched closely. He has watched his man ever since he came on the boat and is surer every day that he is Crippen. He had read of the case on his former voyage, and when he was in England he saw pictures of both of the fugitives in the London papers and when in Antwerp. He did not send his message till he had closely watched the man and was sure that he was the man wanted.

Meanwhile, Dominion Commisioner Sherwood has telegraphed his man at Father Point, "Be sure that they do not commit suicide." He is also told to make sure of their identity before arresting them.

Already there are half a hundred newspaper correspondent and artists on the job from many parts of Canada and the United States, and even from England. As there is only one telegraph wire out of Rimouski, there is bound to be some keen work to-morrow—if it is Crippen. Throughout the surrounding country word of the great mystery has spread and the prospect of Crippen's capture here has drawn a curious throng from farms and fishing villages in a radius of many miles.

RECALLING HIS PAST; SIR WILFRID ASKED TO SECURE FREE TRADE

One Speaker at Saskatoon Oversteps the Mark in His Address on the Occasion of the Saskatoon Reception—Wants Protection Killed in Canada.

Saskatoon, Sask., July 30.—The grain-growers of this district overstepped the work of their conference with Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday, and got a sharp rebuke from the Premier.

John Evans, president of the association, a self-declared Liberal of the Gladstone type, but also an unsuccessful candidate for the Conservative nomination, allowed his tongue to run away with his discretion. From their attitude lately the grain-growers, who have adopted an organized campaign, apparently assume that the members of the Government will stand for any kind of talk.

Mr. Evans started out by defining protection as "organized robbery" and as the mother of trusts, as you, Sir Wilfrid, said sixteen years ago.

In connection with the iron and steel bounties he spoke of "that mushroom aristocracy, monsters of graft, that has been swollen since 1896, or since you came into power," and said "the Liberal Government has departed from all principles of Liberalism and to-day is the most conservative government on the face of the civilized world. You said you would skin the bear of protection; but we would like to know what you have done with the hide."

E. M. Macdonald, M.P. of Pictou, here interrupted with "You are making a political speech."

"No," was the reply, "I am speaking from the standpoint of the farmers"—(cheers)—I voted for Sir Wilfrid in 1896."

Dealing with the Hudson Bay Railroad, Thomas Lawrence, formerly of Penetanguishene, Ont., declared that Sir John A. Macdonald had made a football of the Hudson Bay project, and he added to Sir Wilfrid, "Don't promise more than once."

W. Rowlands of Aberdeen, a former American, advocated Government ownership. If the railway company had a line, he claimed they would route freight over long lines to the east in order to earn higher freight.

The Premier, after saying goodhumoredly that there was "more Tory politics than grain-growing in one of the speeches," went on to answer Evans' charges. He denied that he had preached free trade. He had promised only "freer trade." He said it would be impossible to raise revenue by direct taxation in Canada. Conservatives, not Liberals, had introduced protection, and Liberals had reduced it.

"We have reduced taxation and, as I hope, we shall reduce it again," he declared. "It is not fair to say that we have been an easy mark. Steel bounties were introduced by the Conservatives. If any one has been an easy mark, it is not the Laurier Government.

"I admit that we have not given tariff reduction as fast as the producers of the west would desire. It is not our policy to tinker with the tariff. We revised the tariff in 1897 and again in 1907. When time comes for a new revision, it will be my aim to meet the wishes of producers in this and all parts of the country."

Hon. G. P. Graham, in reply to Mr. Rowlands, said that the farmer would have control of the route by which he would ship.

Yesterday afternoon Sir Wilfrid laid the corner-stone of the first building of Saskatchewan University.

Notwithstanding the apparently hostile attitude of the grain growers earlier in the day, which was later repudiated by influential members of the deputation, there was no lack of cordiality in the reception given Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the members of his party at a big meeting in the hall at night.

PASTES LETTERS FROM SWEETHEART ON THE WALLS OF HER RESIDENCE

Geneva, July 21.—A young couple at Daves, were to have been married shortly, but the girl jilted her lover because he had shaved off his little beard. Though he pleaded for several weeks she refused to see him or to reply to his letters.

The jilted lover took a novel revenge. During the night he pasted all the love letters he had received from his fiancee on the walls of her residence.

Next morning a crowd collected before the house and was busily engaged in reading the letters when the fiancee discovered the affair. While a gendarme kept back the crowd, the servants, armed with brushes, soap and water, scrubbed off the love letters from the walls.

"Heartless girl, I return you your letters," was written in large letters above the correspondence.

The girl, who is very indignant, says she intends to take a similar revenge.

Traveling In England Safe.

London, July 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Board of Trade report on railway accidents in the United Kingdom shows that of 1,264,800,000 passengers, only one passenger lost life in accident on a train in which he was traveling, the first case for a period of 20 months. The injured number 290, a low figure, as compared with former years.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE SEEMS TO BE IN SIGHT

President Hays Replying to Mayor Geary, of Toronto Shows an Evident Desire to Bring Tie-up to a Close—Strike Leaders Leave for Montreal.

Toronto, July 30.—While there was nothing to be learned that was in anyway definite, a strong peace atmosphere seemed prevalent in the G.T.R. strike headquarters, both in Toronto and Montreal yesterday.

At Montreal Hon. W. L. M. King, Minister of Labor, was in conference with Vice-President Murdock of the B. R. T., at the Windsor Hotel, where he had also previously conferred with Sir Fred. Borden, Minister of Militia. Thursday night the Labor Minister was in conference with Messrs. Hay and Fitzhugh.

Locally, the chief development was the departure for Montreal to meet Mr. King of the heads of the Order of Railway Conductors, and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. At the same time, there is still unexplained the reason for the coming here of the chiefs of the two powerful allied organizations, the firemen and the engineers.

A message last night to Mayor Geary from President Hays is also in a more pacific strain than the remarks attributed to the G.T.R. president the day before. It reads:

"Message received. Concur with you in wishing early settlement of existing difficulty, and everything possible will be done to bring about such result.

"In the meantime, combined effort will be made to give you service desired."

Vice-President James Murdock of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in his reply early in the day, said:

"We hasten to assure you that we second your motion that nothing should be left undone to bring about a settlement. We are ready now, as we have been, to renew negotiations looking to a settlement, and we trust that the other principal in the controversy may accept the same view. If, however, the Grand Trunk Co. declines to accept an equitable and unprejudiced settlement of the questions in dispute, we trust that the public and the business interests of this country will think of and deal kindly with the contention of the Grand Trunk trainmen, who are only asking for the wages and conditions that have been conceded the men on more than fifty other railroads in the past few months without the necessity of a strike."

"We are leaving to-night by the C.P.R. at 10.15 for Montreal," said President Garretson of the O.R.C., speaking for himself and President Lee. "We will be accompanied by Vice-President S. N. Berry of Toronto.

"I am not prepared to say anything about our mission to Montreal," proceeded Mr. Garretson, but he left it to be inferred that he expected a decided change one way or another in the situation.

And while they would not be drawn out as regards what he thought of the future, a despatch from Cleveland, Ohio, said:

"President W. G. Lee of the B.R.T., telegraphed officials of the brotherhood at the national headquarters here yesterday, that he expects important developments in the Grand Trunk Railway strike situation in the next forty-eight hours. He is still in Toronto.

"It is rumored at headquarters that the switchmen at Chicago may go out. This move, it is said, would tie up the Grand Trunk's terminal business in Illinois."

Meanwhile, yesterday's freight movement report on the G.T.R. last night by Supt. W. H. Farrell was the best yet. In all 17 trains were said to have moved in and out of Toronto, and according to Mr Farrell, six trains were scheduled to leave Toronto today for different points.

Vice-President Berry, major-general of the local strikers, had reports yesterday from along the line at various points, showing that strike-breakers in large numbers were being persuaded out of the company's service in sympathy with the men. In Port Huron, Mich., he reports that thirty strikebreakers left the company's service to participate in breaking a street railway strike in Columbus, Ohio, because the Grand Trunk were "too cheap and did not pay enough."

"Professional strike-breakers!" commented Mr. Berry, "and these are a sample of the men that the company are inducing to take the positions of honorable citizens."

MUST BATHE ONCE A WEEK

Aurora, Ill., July 27.—Aurora residents are ordered by the health department to take a bath once a week. The order is one in a list of rules and regulations issued by the health officers. The rule as to cleanliness of body is No. 8, and according to the health officers any one who violates the rule will be arrested, and prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT BY AN AUTO

Halifax, July 30.—Granville street, one of the principal thoroughfares of the city, was the scene of a serious automobile accident yesterday afternoon, as a result of which an unknown woman is dying at the hospital.

Two ladies were driving their car along the street towards the north end of the city when they ran down the woman who was in the act of boarding a street car. The woman's skull was fractured and she cannot recover.

COMPROMISE ON VETO QUESTION MORE HOPEFUL

Conference Producing Results—Asquith Makes Statement in the Commons.

London, July 30.—The conference of the two dominant parties who are trying to compose the constitutional differences of the House of Lords and the House of Commons already have succeeded in bringing several gulfs that have separated them, and a statement made by Premier Asquith in the lower chamber yesterday afternoon indicates that the outlook for a compromise is more hopeful than had been anticipated.

Unless a rupture occurs during the recess little further of an official character is likely to be heard regarding the negotiations until Parliament reassembles on Nov. 15.

Mr. Asquith, after stating that the conferees in the course of twelve meetings had surveyed the field of controversy carefully, said:

"The result is that our discussions made such progress — although we have not so far reached an agreement —as to render it in the opinion of all of us not only desirable, but necessary that they should continue. We would think it wrong at this stage to break them off."

The Premier added that if further deliberations showed no prospects of an agreement that could be announced in Parliament at the present session, the conference would be closed.

The bill modifying the declaration on religion required of the King upon accession passed the House of Commons upon third reading yesterday by a vote of 225 to 52. In its final form the bill not only eliminates the phrases offensive to the Roman Catholic subjects of His Majesty, but it also makes it acceptable to the nonconformists by striking out the proposed statement of adherence to the established church. King George is now required to declare merely that he is a "faithful Protestant."

TWO VICTIMS OF NIAGARA

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 30.—At the Canadian landing of the Maid of the Mist, two bodies were taken from the river yesterday.

The torse of a man, with the legs missing, was discovered yesterday by William Thomas, mate of the steamer, who discovered the leg of a man at the landing Thursday. It is believed that the leg was a portion of the body found yesterday. The body is that of a man with dark brown hair, brown eyes, sandy moustache, upper teeth gone, with large gold filling in one of the lower teeth.

Late in the afternoon the body of Mme. Marie Clever, a prominent local woman, who committed suicide by going over the Falls on Monday, was found. Mme. Clever made two attempts to take her life Monday, first by turning the gas on in her handsome apartment in Third street.

Davies Sentenced to One Year.

Woodstock, July 30.—Rev. James A. Davies, a colored minister, was yesterday sentenced to one year in the Central Prison for seduction. The complaint was a 16-year-old colored girl. He is 52 and has a wife and children. He was arrested in Toronto.

WILD DUCK IN THE CHIMNEY

Penetang Herald.—One day last week Mrs. P. Payette thought she heard peculiar sounds coming from the chimney but could not make out what it was. When Mr. Payette came home she informed him and he at once began to investigate. He opened the grates in the fire place in his bedroom but could see nothing. He left the grates open and had just moved back a short distance when he heard a ruffle and out flew a wild duck.

The duck, in some way, had come down the chimney and could not get back again.

CANADIANS DID NOT SUFFER

New York, July 30.—According to Dr. F. S. Pearson, London and Paris, but not Canadian interests were active in the so-called Pearson syndicate, whose operations in American railroad stocks were so sensationally disclosed when Kuhn, Loeb & Co. took over the bulk of its holdings recently, it being later intimated that features of the syndicate's ambitious transcontinental railroad scheme might yet be carried through.

Mr. Pearson, head of the syndicate, discussed yesterday the parts which he himself, his associate, Percival Farquhar, played in the syndicate and the operations of the syndicate as a whole.

"I do not see that any harm can come from my telling you that London and Paris were the financial centres chiefly interested in the purchases of the syndicate," said he. "Some of my Paris associated with Mr. Farquhar, banker, and financiers connected with the Banque de Paris and the Societe General, were interested in the syndicate and further that they are still interested in the syndicate."

"Then the Transcontinental Railroad project is not dead?" was asked.

"There never was any such purpose as a transcontinental railroad in our minds," said Dr. Pearson. "Our purpose was solely to take an interest in such railroads as had a good future. We hoped to build them up and develop them."

BOY DEFENDS HIS PLAYMATE

New York, July 30.—Lying wounded to death in St. John's Hospital, Yonkers, George Pelham, jr., only six years old, has sturdily insisted that the injury which brough him there was self-inflicted. He was in great pain, but he bore it like a stoic.

Physicians made an examination and afterward announced that the bullet had taken such a course it was impossible the boy could have shot himself. He was closely questioned and, little by little, the story was got from him. He had been accidentally shot by his playmate, Mildred Baxter, seven years old, and rather than get her into trouble, as he thought, he had determined to take the blame on himself.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

BEFORE TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

A NEW WAY

If a negro murderer is lynched in the United States, the affair is dismissed with about a half dozen lines. If he is burned it takes a dozen lines. Now, on Friday, two negroes attempted to swim with white people at Coney Island and the whites attempted to drown them. This took half a column to explain. It was a new way.

EGGS BY WEIGHT

The Hamilton Herald very wisely suggests that eggs should be sold by weight. It is a hold up to have to pay the same price for eggs (the size of marbles as one would for a dozen large ones. If eggs were sold by weight, then the poultrymen would pay more attention to breeding hens that would lay large eggs. Now a dozen eggs any old flavor, any size, have just the same price tacked on them as the large and prime quality of hen fruit.

THE WOMAN WHO WORKS AT HOME

She receives her morning uplift from the steam from the washtub, and her inspiration from a clothes line full of flapping clothes. You may take a night and slip into lodge at will. She stops at home, for the babe is cross. You may easily go where there is the calcium light and the music of the orchestra. Her calcium is the flicker of the stove, her orchestral music is the rattle of the supper dishes. Is she cross sometimes? Can you blame her? You view a hundred changing scenes a day to and from your work, and meet your mates. She views the breakfast plates and the same old dishpan stares her in the face. She has a close acquaintance with the potato to be peeled or boiled, with the stocking with the hole in the heel, with the bed that should be made at once, with the carpet crying for a broom. So, forgive her if she is a little cross.

LAST NIGHT'S STORM

The day wsa warm. Men cursed and women complained. God Almighty spoke. He gathered the winds of heaven and marshalled the clouds. He spoke again and the lightning answered. The storm came, the rain and a golden sunset, and the man cooled, man refreshed, man the atom, went about his way unthinking of the mighty miracle that had been performed.

THE BATH OR JAIL

"Good morning, madame, have you had your weekly bath?"

This will likely be the salutation in Aurora, Ill., for the health department, as recorded in another column of this paper has ordered that any one neglecting to bathe once a week is liable to arrest.

"I have bathed, sir."

Now how can they tell?

STINK ON

Meanwhile the garbage pile waxes fatter and the smell delights the fly. But then, can you blame the little fellow? He lives on filth, is born in filth and creates filth. But that doesn't make any difference. We do nto blame the pig because he wallows in the mire. Don't curse the fly, its not to blame, its the authorities. Stink on ye garbage piles, breed on ye flies. You are protected by the kind hand of the Council and the Board of Health.

LOST, STRAYED OR STOLEN

What of that committee that was appointed by the City Council, to look into the question of the building of a railway to tap the northern country? Have they done anything? Or, have they passed peacefully into sleep? The city of Guelph built a railway to tap the C.P.R. and Sir William Van Horne says that the road will some day pay enough in profits to pay the taxes of the Royal City. As it is now, the Guelph Junction Railway pays thousands of dollars yearly into the city treasury.

OUR CHANCE

Enter into possession. It is all yours. Moses only saw the promised land, but here we have it in all its possibilities. The best things in the world are ours. There is no J. P. Morgan to control the birds. He may direct a fleet of ships, a dozen banks and a half dozen railroads, but he can't stop those birds from singing. He may make Wall street shake at will, but he can't stop that robin from giving its evening carol from the house top. Enter into possession. Get near to Nature, for she is a fine friend. When we feel envy creeping into our lives, when we see that other chap the owner of a fine house, when we have none why just walk a while in the open and you will see that the home designed by man is ridiculous beside some of the work drawn up by the Master Builder. The best things are free and the most inspiring sights are not under canvas. The most uplifting thoughts do not come from the book or lip. Get back to the original. A friend has paid $500 for an oil showing a sun set over a hill top that is clothed in trees. Well, that is nice, and the work is worthy. Envy him? Hardly. We, too, have our picture, for we can see the Master hand paint the evening sky Himself. Beneath is the carpet the grass. The painting is good enough, but say, to the observing eye the original is indescribable and we may feast at the real thing for a copy of which he has paid half a thousand. And we may be rich in friendships. No one has a cinch in this. Our loves, who ever heard of a syndicate controlling the master passion. And what matter is it if some reap a few more dollars than we. Let them have it in peace. And again what matter it if a fellow secures an office we had craved. Let him ascend the ladder if he wishes. What is the difference if some rival owns a great factory store or business. A few dollars, what of them? An office of honor, what of it? Let us get nearer to Nature and learn of her the lessons that we may receive, and she will show us that there is something worth while that will last when there is no use for money or office, and when the wheels of the greatest factory have long since ceased their turning.

LAURIER'S FREE TRADE

"I am a free trader," said Mr. Edward Anderson, in interviewing Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Lanigan.

"So am I," said the Premier.

So Sir Wilfrid Laurier still is a free trader? Well, well. Let us look at the bounties. During the eighteen years prior to June 30th, 1896, a Conservative Government distributed $779,882 in iron and steel bounties. In the fourteen years since that date the Laurier Ministry has paid out $15,073,421 in the same way.

The Conservatives spent on bounties $42,000 a year.

The Liberals have spent on bounties $1,000,000 a year.

This was a mere device to get around their oft-repeated Opposition pledges of lower customs duties and of a tariff for revenue only.

The Laurier Government came into office on promises that it would introduce a fiscal policy wholly divested of protectionist features. It was to be a consumer's government, and the tariff was to be employed solely for the purpose of raising revenue. On attaining office they failed to implement their pledges. The old tariff wall was not torn down. Instead, they surrounded the industries controlled by their political allies with new safeguards in the shape of anti-dumping regulations. In addition to this, as already indicated, they subsidized the iron and steel manufacturers out of the public treasury on an enormously increased scale. Meantime their organs essayed to hold the free traders and low tariff men in line by periodically publishing free trade arguments which, under the circumstances, were the very refinement of dishonesty.

That is how much of a free-trader Sir Wilfrid Laurier is.

THE POINT OF VIEW

HE KNEW HIM.
New York Herald.

One of Chauncey Depew's best stories is against himself. He attracted the attention, at a friend's house, of a small boy of eight. After he had left the boy's father said to his son, "That was Chauncey Depew, the worlds greatest story-teller." A day or two later the Senator happened to be at the same house, and the boy, running up to him, said, "I know you." "Really, my little man, and who am I?" "Why," replied the lad, "my poppa says you're the biggest liar on earth."

REPEATERS.

The vital statistics of Ontario show that Windsor has the largest percentage of marriages in the Dominion, 362 per thousand. This is attributed to its contiguity to Detroit, the overflow from Michigan being an important source of revenue to pastors and issuers of licenses. Not a few of the applicants are "repeaters," who, after complying with a few formalities across the line, return to the place where they have been accustomed to do their matrimonial trading.

IN SWITZERLAND.
Vancouver Province.

A passenger can travel for fifteen days on the government railway in Switzerland for the trifling sum of $8.60. This is the third-class fare, but the cars are clean and comfortable. When tickets are issued your photograph is attached to the ticket for purposes of identification. $8.60 would not last many days on the street car lines in this country with transferprivileges included.

THE ONE TO BE PITIED.
Harper's Weekly.

A tender-hearted little girl was looking at a picture of Daniel in the lion's den. She suddenly began to cry, whereupon her mother said;

"Are you crying for the poor man, dearie?"

"No, I am crying for that little lion over there in the corner. He isn't going to get any at all."

WHERE THEY GOT DONE.
Mail and Empire.

"Among the gambling stories that the late Pat Sheedy used to tell in his art shop," said a New York reporter, according to the Detroit Free Press, "was one about a jackpot."

"A beautiful young bride, the story ran, entered a corner grocery one morning and said;—

"'Have you got any jackpots, Mr. Sands?'

"'No, ma'am,' Sands answered, and he hid a smile behind his hand. "I've got teapots and coffeepots, but jackpots I don't stock.'

"'Oh, dear,' said the bride. A frown wrinkled her smooth and beautiful brow. 'I'm so sorry! You see, Mr. Sands, my husband's mother used to cook for him, and nearly every night he talks in his sleep about a jackpot. So I thought I'd get one, for, since he mentions it so often, he must be used it. Could you tell me, Mr. Sands, what what they cook in jackpots?"

"'Greens, ma'am,' was the quick answer.

J. McD. Mowat of Kingston has been appointed by the Dominion Government to accompany Hon. Mr. St. Just on his tour of Canada.

O. Smith, a farmer living about four miles from Comber, in the Township of Rochester, dropped dead yesterday while entering his home for dinner.

Erwin Wider, who is accused of robbing the Russo-Chinese Bank of securities worth half a million dollars, was arrested in New York last night.

The coroner's jury at Chicago empanelled to enquire into the death of Ira G. Rawn, late president of the Mono Railway, found that he died by his own hand.

Capt. Donelly has adjusted the loss on behalf of the marine underwriters, caused by the steamer Phoenix of the George Hall Co., smashing the gates of the Cornwall Canal last week. The total loss was fixed at $12,000.

Earl and Countess Grey were taken on a tour of Georgian Bay Islands on J. C. Eaton's yacht from Parry Sound.

Railway contractors in the west say they will have employment for all farmers and teams who may be idle on account of the harvest failure.

While working on the Belleville wharf last Saturday, Joseph Desbane, hurt his thumb with a rope. No notice was taken of the slight wound. Yesterday his arm and leg swelled twice their size and his life is now despaired of as a result of blood poisoning.

Frightened by Burglars.

Ashbury Park, N.J., July 29.—As the result of a visit of negro burglars who operated in this vicinity Wednesday night and secured considerable plunder, Mrs. M. E. Allendorf, 83 years old, is dying at her cottage in Ocean Grove. One of the burglars thrust a dark lantern in her face as she was lying in bed and so shocked the aged woman that she was seized with a nasal hemorrhage her physicians have been unable to check.

Body of Missing Lad Found.

Elkhorn, Man., July 29.—The climax of the sensation surrounding the disappearance of Norman, the two-year-old son of Thomas France, occurred Wednesday, when the little corpse was discovered by Herb Larmer in a slough two and a half miles from the child's home and two miles from where he was last seen alive in May. The body was in a badly decomposed condition.

Mrs. Patterson Dead.

Ottawa, July 29.—The death of a prominent lady occurred Wednesday night, when Katharine Dorothea Elliott, wife of Hon. J. C. Patterson, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, succumbed to a lengthy illness. She had been a sufferer since last Christmas from heart trouble.

Hon. Mr. Patterson has gone north in the Arctic with Capt. Bernier.

Union Station for Calgary.

Calgary, July 29.—M. H. MacLeod, manager of the Canadian Northern Railway, says that the Grand Trunk Pacific will probably enter Calgary along the right of way of the C.N.R. There will be a big joint station. Mr. MacLeod says his company is prepared to spend about $1,500,000 on the station, right of way and construction in Calgary.

Charged With Serious Offence.

Woodstock, Ont., July 29.—William Walt, a young man employed at a local factory, was yesterday charged in the Police Court with a serious offence against a girl under 16. He was remanded until Saturday.

No Snobs Along.

London, July 29.—Baden-Powell's troop of Boy Scouts accompanying him to Canada to-day includes all classes from the guttersnipe to the Eton swell. There is no snobbishness among boys.

Humorist Dying.

Atlantic City, N.J., July 29.—Marshall P. Wilder, the humorist, is dying of acute indigestion, and although two doctors are doing everything in their power, it is feared he cannot recover.

Hearing Postponed.

Lindsay, July 29.—The charges of conspiracy against A. B. McGill, J. J. Fleury and J. L. Coulter of Lindsay, were not proceeded with yesterday, the defence securing an adjournment till next week.

Postal Facilities Poor.

Calgary, July 29.—The Board of Trade is renewing its complaints about the lack of postal facilities at the city office.

The Asparagus Beetle.

The asparagus beetle is a troublesome pest and hard to fight. Clean cutting, especially in ridge culture, keeps them well under control in spring, but considerable harm is done later on by slugs or larvae. Poultry are very fond of these beetles, and a few fowls will soon capture the matured insects if allowed in a garden bed.

Another Boy Victim.

Perth, July 30.—A young lad, eight years of age, and grandson of Mrs. Rev. Dr. Campbell of this town, was drowned at Rideau ferry yesterday morning. He and his mother, Mrs. Wilson of Renfrew, were camping with his grandmother at the ferry. The young lad was missing, and on a search being made for him his body was found in about four or five feet of water.

Welland Canal Campaign.

St. Catharines, July 30.—A. W. Wright, a special delegate of the Toronto Board of Trade, opened a campaign here Thursday night in an address before the local board of trade to arouse public opinion in favor of an enlarged Welland Canal.

Mr. Wright will address mass meetings in Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Windsor and other points at early dates.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS OF INTEREST

Ontario West Storm Swept.

London, Ont., July 30.—A rain and wind storm swept over London and the district west of here yesterday afternoon.

Last night not a telephone line west of London was working, and the telegraph lines are in trouble as well.

Trees by dozens were blown down about the city, and broken trolley wires tied up some of the street railway lines.

The top of a fir tree blew down on top of a team of horses in a funeral at Woodland cemetery, but the driver was able to control them.

Lightning struck a house on the Hamilton road and did $600 damage.

Farmer's Sudden Death.

Oshawa, July 30.—James Conlin was found dead by the roadside early yesterday morning. The doctor found death due to acute heart disease.

Conlin, who lived on a farm about four miles out, was in town and started home some time in the evening. He is supposed to have fallen from the rig when taken with the seizure. His horse went home.

Rescued Four of the Crew.

Lorain, Ohio, July 29.—A telegram stating that the four members of the crew of the tug H. R. Bues had been picked up by a freighter, was received by Capt. George Pickard, of the tug James Edwards, when he reached here yesterday. The tug came from Leamington, Ont., to which point the rescued men were taken.

Suspect Incendiarism.

Crossfield, Alta., July 29.—Three fires within twenty-four hours in this neighborhood have given rise to strong suspicion that an incendiary is at work. The elevator owned by the Imperial Elevator Co. was burned down Wednesday night, with 10,000 bushels of grain.

Boy Killed by Lightning.

Brighton, July 29.—Stephen Taylor, son of John Taylor of Hilton, Ont., was struck by lightning Thursday evening while standing in the doorway of his home and instantly killed.

C.P.R. Repair Shops Burned.

St. John, N.B., July 29.—The C.P.R. repair shops and some other buildings were burned at Brownville Junction yesterday.

Drank Poison by Mistake.

Stratford, July 30.—All three bylaws voted on by the ratepayers yesterday carried with handsome majorities. The measure to guarantee the bonds of Duftons, Limited, for $12,000, met with substantial approval. Large votes were also polled for the bylaw providing for the entrance of an electric railway and that providing for the purchase of the electric light plant.

Angus McDermid, a teamster, who drank rat poison, mistaking it for water, died yesterday after terrible suffering. He had gone home on Tuesday feeling indisposed. That same night in the dark he made the fatal mistake. There was nobody home but himself, and for a day and night he lay helpless. Thursday night his condition was discovered by neighbors.

Lightning Storm In Chatham.

Chatham, July 30.—A severe electrical storm passed over this vicinity yesterday afternoon. Lightning struck the barns of Wood Smith of Chatham Township, Kent Bridge. Mr. Smith was threshing his wheat. The building took fire, and a gang of men attending the threshing removed the stock. Considerable difficulty was experienced in removing the threshing machine, which was in the barn. Most of the grain was also saved. Smith's barns are insured, but the grain destroyed will be a total loss.

Drowned at Port Colborne.

Port Colborne, Ont., July 30.—Henry Brennan, a young lad of 11 years of age, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brennan of Riley street, Buffalo, N.Y., spending his vacation here, was drowned yesterday afternoon off the Government railway spur line to the Government elevator.

He was learning to swim with a number of companions the same age and waded out beyond his depth.

Freight Train Broke Loose.

Galt, June 29.—A serious pitch-in occurred at the local C.P.R. yards yesterday afternoon. A way freight left a train of cars standing, when in some unaccountable way the brakes loosened and allowed the train to get away. Standing near the switch was a box car, into which the end car of the runaway train crashed. The platform was wrecked for twenty feet.

Oldest Resident Dead.

Brantford, July 29.—Mary Willits, a life-long resident, of Brant County, born Aug. 4, 1810, died here yesterday at the residence of her son, David Willits. She was the oldest resident of the city and the last of a family of thirteen children of John Stenebaugh, Jerseyville, all of whom attained over eighty years.

Found a Severed Leg.

Niagara Falls, July 29.—Shortly before noon yesterday the left leg of a man was found in the river at the landing of the Maid of the Mist. The leg was severed from the body at the hip. Its only covering was a black sock with white feet, and a black Blucher-cut shoe, evidently size 7 or 8.

Hit by Falling Plank.

Niagara Falls, July 29.—Roy Brown and Clifford Pennington, small boys, were struck by a plank falling from the deck of the Michigan Central bridge yesterday. Both were seriously injured, but are not thought to be in danger of death. Each boy is suffering from a bad wound on the head.

Ran Away From Home.

Niagara Falls, July 29.—Wilfrid Fletcher, a 15-year-old Toronto boy, is held by the police, after telling them that he ran away from home because he had trouble with his mother. His parents have been notified and are expected here to-day.

Conference on International Rates.

Ottawa, July 29.—Chairman Mabee of the Railway Commission has gone to Nova Scotia to inspect the railways under the jurisdiction of the board there. Towards the end of August he will go to Vancouver.

READ THE REVIEW'S NEW SERIAL STORY

It Is Entitled "The Lure of the Mask" by Harold MacGrath, and Will Commence on Monday

What humans are chiefly hunting for nowadays is inspiration in one form or another. This story cannot fail to give its reader inspiration, and therefore its value can hardly be overestimated. The magic of the love of man for woman, that, aroused simply by the sound of a voice, causes a young millionaire to cross oceans and traverse foreign lands to find his fate was never better pictured. The story is intensely romantic and alluringly mysterious. The insidious evils of unwise marriage with foreign "noblemen" are cleverly shown, and the familiar Italian brand of intrigue is laid bare. The author shows that the reward of patience and purity is happiness and that the wages of sin is death. He makes you laugh when he pictures the adventures of an American comic opera troupe stranded in foreign lands. He makes you thrill with the wanderlust when he describes La Bella Napoli and the vine covered slopes that rim the Mediterranean.

Making Time Profitable.

"See here," cried the busy merchant, "don't you know my time is valuable?"

"Well," replied the book agent, "I'm sure it might be valuable to me. If you'll give me five minutes of it I believe I can sell you a set of these books."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Finding Issues.

"We've got to buy a paper if we wish to go in politics."

"Sure. Then we'll have a lot of issues to offer the people."—St. Louis Star.

SUMMER MONTHS FATAL TO SMALL CHILDREN

Every mother must know how fatal the summer months are to small children. Cholera Infantum, diarrhoea, dysentry and stomach troubles are all common at this time and many a precious life is snuffed out after only a few hours' illness. As a safeguard mothers should keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes on suddenly, will bring the little one through safely. Mrs. R. E. Sanford, Inverary, Ont., writes:—"My baby was sickly for over a week with stomach and bowel troubles and cried night and day. Nothing helped her till I began giving her Baby's Own Tablets, but they helped her right away and now she is a big healthy child with fine rosy cheeks. The Tablets are certainly a wonderful medicine and I recommend them to all my friends who have little children." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Dr. F. C. Graves died at Bridgeport, Conn., by taking an overdose of morphine by mistake.

TWO YEARS LESS ONE DAY IN CENTRAL PRISON

Wesley Crouter and Frank Hamilton, Pleaded Guilty to Forging Cheque for $8.00—Two Young Men Fined $5.00 for Using Profane Language—Englishman to be Deported.

The arm of the law fell heavily on Wesley Crouter and Frank Hamilton at the police court this morning, when each was sentenced to the Central Prison for a term of two years less one day, the terms to run concurrently.

County Crown Attorney Wood prosecuted.

The two young men pleaded guilty to forging the name of Patrick Hogan to a cheque on the Canadian Bank of Commerce for $8. Another cheque for the same amount, with the signature of Ed. Conroy forged thereon, was found in their possession, but only the one charge was preferred.

The offence was committed on July 20th, and the two were arrested last Saturday in East City.

Neither had anything to say before the sentence of the court was given.

Both having a police record. In October, 1908, Crouter was charged with stealing a qualtity of fruit, and some time later faced a "trespass" charge.

Hamilton was allowed out on suspended sentence, by County Magistrate Edmison, for raising a wages cheque and also served three months for vagrancy.

Both have given the authorities much trouble.

In sentencing the prisoners, his Worship said: "Your record is not good, and you have been in court on many occasions. There is a conviction against one of you, and while you are young, both of you are familiar with evil ways. You are not willing to earn an honest living. One of you is out on suspended sentence, for a similar offence. You have had warning, but instead have chosen to lead an evil life. But you won't be allowed to live by crime. Leniency has been tried, but you have abused it. You must now take the result of what you have deliberately done.

TO BE DEPORTED.

Wm. Mather, who pleaded guilty to having stolen one gold ring, one silver watch and two brooches, the property of Mrs. Sarah Page, on July 21st, was sentenced to three months in the county jail at hard labor.

The Dominion authorities at Ottawa will be communicated with in regard to this deportation.

Mather was a boarder at Mrs. Page's home and in her absence, he committed the thefts.

MORE TROUBLE.

Alfred Meakins, who got a suit of clothes from Abram Shwartz on the instalment plan, paid $5 down and forgot to call again. Shortly afterwards he parted with the suit, at a local second-hand store for $2. The original price of the clothes was $15.

His Worship ordered a further remand of one week, for judgment, and to have the accused in safe keeping. He is mixed up in another matter.

Mr. Shwartz was advised to conduct his business in his store, "This court isn't going to be a collecting agency," was the Magistrate's comment.

LOOKS LIKE BUSINESS

"There is no excuse for any person using profane language on the street and we are not going to have the ears of people polluted." This from Magistrate Dumble, as he fined two young men $5 each.

Chief Thompson heard them last night, and advised them to use more wholesome conversation, but of course they knew better.

REINSTATED.

The name of another booze fighter was added to the License Inspector's Temperance Band. He is a former member and P. C. Meharry was called to give the necessary particulars for his reinstatement.

The Coming of Ita

What is known as one of the strongest attractions on the road this season has been secured to appear at the Grand Opera House for six nights only beginning Monday, Aug. 1, in the person of Ita, the 16 year old California girl mentalist with her own company. Wherever she has appeared Ita has proven to be a decided sensation and to-day is recognized and endorsed by the press and public as being one of the cleverest exponents of mentalism, or what is commonly known as mental Telepathy. She is able in some mysterious way to fathom the past, present and future of strangers, giving sound advice on business, speculation, education, sports, lost articles, marriage trouble, changes, etc.

More than a hundred New York city teachers have been married this summer.

FIRST G.T.R. FREIGHT SINCE STRIKE CAME TO THE CITY LAST NIGHT

Six freight cars bumped into Peterborough last night—the first that have moved over the local G. T. R. tracks since the declaration of hostilities between the striking trainmen and the company.

WHO THE GOODS WERE FOR.

They contained perishable goods to quite an extent. The shipments were consigned to the Quaker Oats Co., Peterborough Cereial Co., Lane & Eano, E. B. Clegg & Co., S. W. Shively, John Kerr, Peterborough Lumber Co., Canadian General Electric Co., and S. H. Knox & Co., and consisted of grain, lumber, furniture, tea, sugar, drugs and other articles.

EVERYTHING QUIET.

Trainmaster Dan McMillan, who was in the city, makes the conventional report of "everything quiet" on the northern division. He left for Lindsay this morning on the flyer.

IN CONFERENCE AT TORONTO

Conductor George Jobbitt, who was in charge of the Lakefield train at the time of the strike, is in Toronto today in conference with the striking trainmen there.

THE LAKEFIELD SERVICE

The boat service arrangements of the local trains for Lakefield will be carried on to-day the same as usual. It was stated from the station that it was not expected that the early morning train from the lakes would be run on Monday, however.

Special to the Review.

Father Point, Que., July 30.—The C. P.R. steamer 'Montrose' passed Heath Point at seven o'clock this morning, with Crippen aboard, it is thought, which will bring her here about six o'clock to-morrow morning, and she would reach Quebec about 7 o'clock to-morrow night.

A delegation of pressmen spoke to Inspector Dew last night to make him state whether or not he is going to interfere in the matter of the press boarding the 'Montrose.'

"I cannot give any definite answer," replied the inspector. "It depends on developments. I may come back off her on the tender myself."

This may mean that Dew is going to take his prisoners off her and put them on the first large ship going out.

HAY'S CONDITIONAL ANSWER

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., July 30.—President Hays, of the Grand Trunk has agreed to submit the strike to arbitration, following a conference with Hon. Mackenzie King, provided the strikers will modify some of their demands, chief of which is the dismisal of all strike breakers.

Why Should You Buy Imported Lager When You Can Get O'Keefe's?

Imported lagers cost more than O'Keefe's "Pilsener"—NOT because they are as good, but because of the duty paid on them.

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" is brewed of the finest barley malt, hops and pure water.

The Canadian laws are very strict in this respect, although O'KEEFE'S was brewed of these choice materials long before the pure food laws were passed.

The same thing cannot be said of American lagers.

"No folks like home folks".

No lager like O'Keefe's "Pilsener"—brewed at home, under home laws, for home use.

Why should you pay more for imported lager—when less money buys such a pure, old, delicious lager as O'Keefe's?

BRIEF AND BREEZY

Jack Johnson, the colored pugilist, is to get a twenty-five thousand dollar diamond studded belt emblematic of the heavyweight championship of hte world from the colored people of the United States.

One of the best things about the new Order of turf affairs is the extermination of the pestiferous gentleman who would make you rich by imparting 'information' on sure things at prices varying from $2 down to a quarter. One of the tribe, who refused to take warning, was sent to jail in Windsor for six months.

T. H. Murnane, of Boston, famous baseball writer, picks "Mooney" Gibson, of London, Canada, as the catcher in the all-star baseball team. Here is Murnane's line-up:

Catcher—Gibson, Pittsburg.
Pitcher—Mathewson, New York Giants.
First base—Hal Chase, New York Highlanders.
Second base—Lajoie, Cleveland.
Third base—Harry Ford, Boston Red Sox.
Short Stop—Hans Wagner, Pittsburg.
Left field—Magee, Philadelphia.
Centre field—Speaker, Boston Red Sox.
Right field—Ty Cobb, Detroit.

William Rothwell, better known as Young Corbett, the pugilist, pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in the west side court and was fined $5. He was paroled for a day, as he did not have the money with him.

Rothwell was having a warm argument with some negroes about the comparative merits of Johnson and the white fighters. When told to move on by a policeman, Corbett declined to budge and was locked up.

"Jack" Johnson, who brought the heavyweight championship and a fortune from Reno, says he will invest the money in Government bonds, whose security and stable market value he is sensible enough to prefer to the chances of the stock market. It was certainly not by people who live up to that rule of thrift that Johnson's ring earnings were contributed.

Once again Joe Gans is about to pass in his checks for his final knockout. Gans has been going to live "only a short while" ever since his defeat at the hands of Battling Nelson, but he still manages to stick.

Judge Craig Biddle, of the Common Pleas Courts, is dead at his country home at Andalusia, Pa., after a week's illness. He was 87 years old.

ON ICE

With Apologies to the Composer of "My Mother."

Who brought that catcher into town,
With all intent to do things brown?
Ab Quinlan.

Who met the strange youth at the train,
And tried to get him, all in vain?

Stanley Ketchell claims to have made $10,000 on the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

Sam Hildreth is the leading winner this year on the American turf.

Left $22,000 to Church.

St. Mary's, July 30.—By the will of the late Joseph Osman Hutton of Westover Park here, St. James' Church (Anglican) is endowed with the sum of $22,000.

Mr. Hutton also bequeathed $500 to foreign missions, $500 to the missions of Huron diocese, $500 to the Bible Society and $1,000 to the rector, Rev. Rural Dean Taylor.

Tomato as a Vegetable.

Ottawa, July 30.—For the benefit of the Board of Control, Taylor McVeity, city solicitor, has decided after much research, that tomatoes should be classed as vegetables and not fruit, a question that has been agitating fruit dealers and Ottawa generally for the past week or so.

British Cruiser to Interfere.

Teguicalpo, Honduras, July 30.—The Government here was informed yesterday that England has sent a cruiser from Belige to intercept an expedition which left British Honduras to aid former President Bonila in his effort to recover control of this country.

Assaulted by Caretaker.

Toronto, July 30.—Charles R. Pepper, caretaker of the Peterkin Building, 152 Bay street, was remanded a week in the Police Court yesterday, where he was charged with assaulting James Sherman, who is in a serious condition at St. Michael's Hospital. He was arrested earlier in the morning after Sherman had been found on the sidewalk outside the building in convulsions. Pepper says he saw the man picking up a coil of copper wire in the building, and he says he got the man down and choked him until he signified a willingness to go out, and did go out. Sherman had been given an order for the wire, but should have waited till someone turned up to give it to him.

READ this OPINION Of the Largest Jack Manufacturer in the Whole World About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost."

"I WILLINGLY GIVE THIS TESTIMONIAL

In Favor of "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

FOR THE BENEFIT OF OTHER SUFFERERS"

Spoken like a man! Mr. Paul Jones of Sarnia is proud to acknowledge the great debt he owes to this wonderful fruit medicine. He wants every sufferer in Canada to know what "Fruit-a-tives" did for him. His reward comes in the gratitude of those who take his advice, use "Fruit-a-tives", and cure themselves.

SARNIA, ONT., Feb. 5th. 1910.

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors, but derived no benefit whatever. Finally, I read an advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives", in which Hon. John Costigan stated that he had been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". I decided to give "Fruit-a-tives" a trial and found they did exactly what was claimed for them. I have now taken them for some time and find they are the only remedy that does me good. I have recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to a great many of my friends and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly, as they have done me good.

I claim "Fruit-a-tives" are invaluable in every respect, and I willingly give this testimonial for the benefit of other sufferers."

PAUL J. JONES.

Mr. Jones is favorably known all over the district of Sarnia. He was in business there for years, and is now enjoying the fruits of a long and successful mercantile career. Every reader of this paper is at liberty to write Mr. Jones and find out for themselves that the above letter is genuine and was written to "Fruit-a-tives" voluntarily and solely with the idea of helping the sick.

The financial and social standing of those who have written letters in favor of "Fruit-a-tives" is the best guarantee that this famous fruit medicine is all that is claimed for it.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only true liver stimulant in the world because it is the only medicine made of fruit juices. By its use, the amount of bile is increased while the muscles are made stronger and more capable of emptying the bowels naturally. Salts of every kind, senna and cheap purgative pills have no action on the liver. They do not increase the secretion of bile by the liver, but their action is entirely due to irritating the delicate lining of the bowels. "Fruit-a-tives"—and "Fruit-a-tives" alone—can and will positively cure Constipation, Biliousness and Torpid Liver. In the case of Mr. Jones, the long standing Constipation had affected his digestion, causing catarrh of the stomach. As his bowels became more regular, the digestion improved. When the Constipation was cured the Indigestion, which was caused by the Constipation, was cured also.

"Fruit-a-tives" has proved its value and has made its way solely on merit. "Fruit-a-tives" is probably the best known, and most highly appreciated medicine in Canada. The sales of "Fruit-a-tives" are enormous and are increasing every day. The people realize that at last they have one remedy that will positively do all that is claimed for it—and they show their appreciation of this honest, reliable fruit medicine by using it themselves and recommending it to their friends.

"Fruit-a-tives" is one of the few medicines that may be taken day after day with only benefit to the health. If necessary, "Fruit-a-tives" could be taken for twenty years, because it contains only fruit juices and tonics—nature's natural remedies for all Stomach, Liver, Bowel, Kidney and Skin Troubles. "Fruit-a-tives" is especially suited to women and children because of the pleasant taste and mild, gentle action of the fruit tablets.

If you are suffering as Mr. Jones did, take his advice and try "Fruit-a-tives". 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. or trial box, 25c. At all dealers or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa

MILLION DOLLAR DEAL TO GIVE WEST CANADA FRESH DAINTIES

Outright Purchase of Big Winnipeg Organization by W. J. Mooney Will Result in Dominion-Wide Improvement in Baking and Candy Industry.

Tremendous influx of settlers into Canada, extraordinary demands from distant sections for fresh bakery and candy dainties of high grade, and the necessity for a revision of trade conditions have brought about a big industrial deal, involving an outlay of $1,000,000, which has just been consummated by W. J. Mooney, of Stratford, Ont., in the outright purchase of Foley Brothers, Larson & Company's entire organization, the largest in Western Canada, for the purpose of merging it with the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company.

Announcement of the purchase and impending consolidation were made today by officials of the newly formed organization. The merger will take efect immediately, the Winnipeg plant of Foley Brothers being placed completely under the supervision of W. C. Mooney, who formerly superintended the operations of the Stratford plant of the Mooney Biscuit and Candy Company.

The organization will be under the supervision of W. J. Mooney and W. C. Mooney, the former assuming complete managerial duties of the Stratford plant.

Under conditions previous to the consolidation from two to three weeks time was necessary to reach some of the outlaying districts within the large trade circle over which control was exercised by the organization. With the plant at Winnipeg running in full blast, it is now possible for the organization to supply with ease large demands for goods at less than a day's notice, so that the demands of Western and Northwestern Canada for fresh dainties from the famous Mooney plants will be complied with in a gratifying manner.

With the announcement of the merger comes the news that the new organization will make an extensive trade invasion into Western Canada, where the many alluring features of the famous Mooney products will be prominently set forth by an advertising campaign, said to be the largest campaign ever promulgated by a like industry. The idea of this advertising campaign will be to acquaint the public of that section with the deliciousness and freshness of the delicacies which the name Mooney has made famous in Canada. The western invasion means that the entire Dominion will be blanketed by the trade development of the new organization in the same manner that the organization has gone into other territories with a view to intelligently telling Canadian homes of the goodness of Mooney products.

W. J. Mooney, in an interview, said: "This consolidation of the largest concern in Western Canada with the Mooney Company, I believe, is a long step in the work of Canadian development and the benefits to the parts of the Dominion in which the new organization does business will be felt in no uncertain manner. It means quicker deliveries of the Mooney products to all points within a wide circle and means, eventually, a far-reaching stride in the development of the industry, generally. The placing of W. C. Mooney in charge of the Winnipeg plant is evidence of the earnestness of our intention to greatly improve industrial conditions in the section into which we have just gone. As to the invasion of Western Canada, a large advertising campaign will be the initial move, undoubtedly, although plans have, as yet, not been materially shaped so that we can foretell just what will result. With a meritable product that is constantly in demand wherever introduced, there is little opportunity for any other than steps forward by earnest men working together."

BRIGHT AND NEWSY NEWS FROM HAVELOCK

Special to the Review.

Havelock, July 30.—The storm on Wednesday last was pretty rough in this vicinity, and considerable damage done by the lightning. The barn of Mr. Dave Rutherford near Healey Falls was struck early in the storm and burnt to the ground with a large quantity of hay. Mr. Shaw, a farmer near Cordova, had his barn struck also, and quickly consumed, with about forty loads of hay and nine pigs. A new barn of Mr. M. English, near Norwood, was also a victim of the lightning, with a large amount of hay and grain.

The house of Mr. Jonathan Sexsmith four miles east of here, was also struck, the chimney on the house demolished and Mr. Sexsmith affected by the electric shock.

Word comes from the huckleberry plains to the north that a man from near the vicinity of Brighton had his horse instantly killed by lightning and his son, who was holding the animal at the time, paralyzed by the shock.

PICNIC.

The Methodist Sunday school held their annual picnic to Sanders' Landing, Belmont Lake, on Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance, but the rain interfered somewhat with the afternoons' enjoyment.

TRENT BRIDGE REGATTA.

On Wednesday, August 3rd, a big regatta will be held at Trent Bridge, when a large number of contests, including canoe races, tub races, single and double skiff races, etc., will be held. It will be concluded by an illuminated pageant parade of canoes, skiffs and launches, with a big display of fireworks. It promises to be a banner day in the history of Havelock's summer resort, and the fact that affairs are under the management of W. J. Sheldon, manager of the canal operations, will brand it as a success from the very start.

ASSAULT ACSE.

Mr. T. Pace, of Cordova, had Mr. Frank Sopha, of that place, summoned on Monday on a charge of assault but he was allowed off with paying the costs of the action, about $3.00.

AT REST.

The funeral of Mr. Herbert Youmans, of Cordova, who passed out of this life on Monday of last week at the early age of 22 years, took place on the following Wednesday to the Rockdale cemetery.

PAT'S BIG HAILSTONE

Toronto News.

A hailstone as big as an ordinary hen's egg was picked up by Pat Crean, superintendent of St. Michael's cemetery on the grounds after the storm yesterday afternoon. "Sure, I tried to keep it as a souvenir, but the blamed thing melted," declared Pat mournfully, in relating the story of his find.

THERE'S SOMETHING IN THE ENGLISH AFTER ALL

I've been meditating lately that, when everything is told,
There's something in the English after all.
They may be too bent on conquest and too eager after gold,
But there's something in the English after all;
Though their sins and faults are many, and I won't exhaust my breath
By endeavoring to tell you of them all.
Yet they have a sense of duty, and they'll face it to the death,
So there's something in the English after all.

If you're wounded by a savage foe and bugles sound "Retire,"
There's something in the English after all;
You may bet your life they'll carry you beyond the zone of fire,
For there's something in the English after all,
Yes, although their guns be empty, and their blood be ebbing fast,
And to stay by wounded comrades be to fall,
Yet they'll set their teeth like bulldogs and protect you to the last,
Or they'll die—like English soldiers—after all.

When a British ship is lost at sea, oh, then I know you'll find
That there's something in the English after all;
There's no panic rush for sefety, where the weak are left behind,
For there's something in the English after all.
But the women and the children are the first to leave the wreck,
With the crew in hand as steady as a wall,
And the captain is the last to stand upon the reeling deck,
So there's something in the English after all.

Though the half of Europe hates them and would joy in their decline,
Yet there's something in the English after all;
They may scorn the scanty numbers of the thin red British line,
Yet they fear its lean battalions after all.
For they know that, from the colonel to the drummer in the band,
There is not a single soldier in them all
But would go to blind desruction, were their country to command,
And call it simply "DUTY"—after all.

BERTRAND SHADWELL.

Easterners Are Easy.

St. John, N.B., July 30.—When asked what he thought of the railways in the eastern provinces, Chairman Mabee of the Railway Commission, said they had improved to a very considerable degree, but expressed the opinion that the people of the east must be very easily satisfied.

"Why," he remarked, "I saw things on the railways in the Maritime Provinces that would not be tolerated a minute in the west."

Auto Fatalities In Germany.

Washington, July 30.—One hundred and ninety-four persons were killed and 2,945 injured by automobiles in Germany during the year which ended Sept. 30, 1909, according to U. S. Consul W. J. Pike of Kehl, Germany, in a report to the State Department. In the city district of Berlin there were 843 injuries and 36 deaths.

Hotelman's Wife Suicides.

Leamington, July 30.—The wife of Henry Dring, a local hotelkeeper, shot and killed herself yesterday afternoon at 3.30, while in a fit of despondency.

Mrs. Dring was about middle aged, had long been associated with the hotel business in South Essex and will be greatly missed by the traveling public.

Two Drowned.

Savannah, Ga., July 30.—At least two persons were drowned and several others had narrow escapes from death, when a launch owned by the Government and used by the soldiers at Fort Screven was sunk in Tazaretto Creek, near the fort late yesterday.

Fears For Missing Tug.

Leamington, July 30.—There is still no word concerning the fate of the missing tug James Edward and the dredge Utah. Much anxiety is felt over its non-appearance.

The food for all folks

For old and young, in any season, in any clime, Shredded Wheat is the one perfect food. It contains all the rich, body-building nutriment of the whole wheat, made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking. In the summer is a healthful and satisfying substitute for heavy meats and soggy pastries. It costs much less, tastes good, and is far more nourishing. Its continued daily use keeps the system in perfect trim and the brain clear and active.

SHREDDED WHEAT BISCUIT

Because of its porous shreds and its biscuit form, Shredded Wheat makes delicious combinations with berries, grated pineapple, sliced peaches, bananas, baked apples or other fruit, fresh or preserved. For breakfast heat the biscuit in the oven to restore crispness and serve with milk or cream, adding salt or sugar to taste. It is far better than mushy porridges or ordinary breakfast foods.

OBITUARY

MRS. PATRICK BRICK.

The death occurred on Friday at the home of her father, Mr. Patrick Flaherty, on the boundary road of Emily and Ennismore, of his daughter, Agnes Flaherty, wife of Mr. Patrick Brick, at the age of 26 years.

The deceased and her husband had resided at Netherhill, Sask., for some time, but was taken ill and brought here to the home of her father, about two weeks ago.

Three small children are left to mourn her death, besides her parents and one brother.

The funeral will take place to St. Martin's cemetery at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

Death of Mrs. Kenner

Word was received late this afternoon that the mother of Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute, had passed away. No further particulars could be ascertained before going to press.

HEAVY DAMAGE BY HAILSTONES

Reports of damage to the crops in the north country by the downfall of hailstones, which accompanied the storm of Wednesday afternoon, continue to come in, and from all accounts the farmers suffered severely. In some instances crops are almost entirely destroyed.

The steamer "Stony Lake" will leave the Wolfe Street wharf at 12.45 on Friday for Stony Lake points. On Saturday July 30th the steamer "Islanda" will leave at the same hour for Stony Lake points.

COMMISSIONERS DID NOT MEET

No business was transacted by the License Commissioners last night. All of the members were not present. The meeting is expected to take place this evening, when they will make a final disposition of the hotel licenses hanging in the balance.

HEAVY MARKET THIS MORNING

A plentiful supply of almost every kind of farm produce was for sale at the market square this morning.

The market was probably the largest this summer despite the threatening weather outlook. The product of the berry bush, fruit tree and garden were all spread out in tempting array, and at reasonable prices.

Hay was about the only article not very plentiful or of good appearance. Twelve dollars a ton was the price asked.

The following produce and prices were on deck to-day:

Eggs—21 cents.
Butter—25 cents.
Gooseberries—10 cents a quart.
Raspberries—2 boxes for 25 cents.
Peas—5 cents a quart.
Potatoes (new)—35 cents a peck.
Beets—5 cents a bunch.
Beans—5 cents a quart.
Cabbage—5 to 7 cents.
Chickens—60 cents and 75 cents a piece.
A few piglets sold at $12 to $14 a pair.
Green apples—10 cents a peck.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

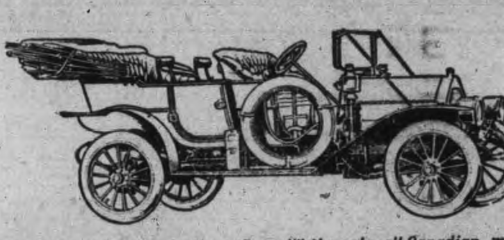
IT'S AUTOMOBILE SEASON



We direct your attention to the "Russell" the only all Canadian made car You never thought of it being the only car made in Canada, all others having their motors and many other parts shipped in from the United States and elsewhere. It's appearance, comfort and running qualities cannot be improved. It can be supplied with either knight 00 valve type motor at prices from $2,200 to $6,000, with large wheels, long wheel base and 30 to 00 horse power moter

We also handle the "Ford" which is recognized the world over as the best proposition for the money. The Ford will do anything that any other car will do. It is run entirely by magnets, no battery to run down, will make from 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline and 10,000 to 15,000 miles on a set of tires. This car combines comfort, pleasure, business and economy. You can buy a five passenger Touring Car including full equipment for $1,150. *F. O. B. Walkerville. TEACHERS OF THE FUTURE

Those Who Were Successful in Model School Entrance Examination.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The results of the examination for entrance to the model schools are given below. The certificates of successful candidates and the statements of marks of those who failed will be mailed to principals or inspectors in the course of a few days.

The successful candidates are reminded that the model schools at Cornwall, Durham, Kingston, Orillia, Renfrew and North Bay will open on Sept. 1 next, and that those who wish to attend, in order to qualify for limited third class certificates should make application before Aug. 15, to the Deputy Minister of Education, on a form to be supplied by him. Applications will not be accepted from those who will not be 18 years of age on or before Dec. 31, 1910. Candidates for admission to the North Bay Normal and Model School may ascertain from the Deputy Minister the terms on which they will be admitted.

Candidates marked * have passed the examination for entrance into the English-French model schools. The others have passed for entrance into the model schools mentioned above.

POVERTY CAUSED TRAGEDY

Lisbon, July 30.—An old woman and her three daughters, living in Lisbon, despite strenuous efforts to earn an honest living, were unable to pay their rent, and so decided to commit suicide. They chose a spot near Estoril, where a great perpendicular rock stands high above the ocean, forming a terrible abyss called Hell's Mouth.

The four women kissed one another good-bye and placed themselves in Indian file on the edge of the precipice. Making the sign of the cross, the mother plunged first. Then the two elder daughters followed.

The youngest, however, seeing her mother and sisters wildly struggling in the waves and hearing their screams of agony, hesitated. As she lifted her hands in a prayer for courage she was seen by fishermen. They rushed to the spot and were in time to seize her by the skirts and thus save her.

The poor girl, who is named Adelina, is twenty-two years of age. It is feared that she has become insane. The three girls were all good-looking, the youngest being indeed remarkably beautiful.

TO KEEP UP THE STANDARD SAYS SIR JAMES WHITNEY

Premier Joins in Controversy Over Entrance Examination—"It is the Intention of the Department," He Says, "To Exact a Real Working Knowledge of the Elementary Subjects."

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Sir James Whitney, in the course of an interview on Saturday made the following observations on the subject of the entrance examinations and examinations generally:

"The Government carefully considered the representations made regarding the entrance examination this year, and the modification already announced and sent out to the entrance boards goes as far, I think, as we ought to go in altering for the present year the standard now set.

"I want to speak quite frankly about this whole question of examinations. The danger of overdoing this phase of school work is great. Some parents seem more anxious to push the children on to the high schools than to see that their preparatory training is thorough and complete. Some teachers boast of the number of pupils who pass the entrance as if this test were the sole aim of the public school course.

"Originally intended as a test of the fitness of pupils to enter upon high school work, this examination has become a sort of fetish, and devotion to it has interfered in a very considerable degree with the efficiency of the public schools. The result has been bad all around. The thoroughness of the public school training has been impaired, and many ill-prepared pupils have been forced into the high schools.

"I see no reason to change the views I expressed several years ago regarding the importance of public school education to the great mass of the people. The percentage of children who go on to the high schools is a mere fraction of the whole. This being so, our public schools should be improved in every way possible. The Government has taken several steps to attain this end. We have established enough normal schools to provide better trained teachers, and we have now better and cheaper text books. The course of study for the public schools is being revised, and I am satisfied that a marked improvement will soon be observable in the efficiency of the training.

"But the co-operation of school boards is necessary if we are to keep efficient teachers in the profession, and the tendency to exaggerate the value of examinations, as the chief object of education, should be minimized. The high schools, I am glad to know, are generally in a good condition, but our educational system will not produce the results it should if the public schools continue to put their best efforts into the preparation of pupils to pass the entrance, rather than to strive to raise the general standard in those subjects which are essential to the child in after life.

"The complaint is often made—and the evidence shows that it is justly made—that pupils who leave school at 13 or 14 do not read, write or spell properly, cannot add up columns of figures correctly, and are imperfectly trained for ordinary business careers. Surely these are evils which will not be cured by a system of cramming for examinations, but by making public school instruction more thorough. Some people advocate keeping children out of the high school until they are over 14, but I doubt if public opinion would justify so drastic a measure, and besides, I believe we can accomplish the reform needed by concentrating attention on the public school course of study as an end in itself. The Minister of Education hopes to make such changes in the regulations as will in time secure this result.

"When the schools open again teachers and pupils should act upon the idea that it is the intention of the Department to exact a real working knowledge of the elementary subjects, and not to keep the entrance standard low for the mere purpose of exhibiting a false show of efficiency by allowing large numbers to pass."

ARRESTED AFTER A LONG CHASE

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 1.—Dragged from beneath a sink in a Third street lodging house, where he had been hiding for twenty-four hours, Joseph A. Wendling, accused of the murder of little Alma Kellner, in Louisville, Ky., was arrested on Saturday. Wendling admitted his identity, but protested his innocence of the crime.

A few hours after the arrest, Detective Captain Carney of Louisville, arrived to learn that his 11,000 miles search for Wendling had been crowned with success. It was the telegraphed tip from the Kentucky detective which led to the arrest.

Two Negroes Lynched.

Boniface, Fla., Aug. 1.—After having confessed to the murder of Bessie Morrison, 3 1-2-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Morrison, near Dady, in the northwestern part of Holmes County, two negroes were taken from the officers and lynched by a mob on Saturday.

IS G.T.P. STRIKE OVER? CONFERENCES DO NOT SEEM TO HAVE BEEN EFFECTIVE

Mackenzie King Leaves Montreal and Looks Very Satisfied—Strikers Who Are in Close Touch With Their Leaders Expect to Return to Work Soon.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—The Dove of Peace has not been caged yet, and although there were a number of conferences Saturday between the Grand Trunk and the brotherhood officials, and prolonged conferences of the strike leaders among themselves yesterday, there was nothing satisfactory to be learned last night as to the actual situation between the parties. Vice-Presidents Murdock and Berry were quite reticent, and declined to say what had been transpiring. But both were quite certain that no settlement had been reached, and neither would hold out any hope for anything doing to-day to relieve the situation. Mr. Berry will remain in Montreal to-day.

Still, the Grand Trunk conductors and trainmen living at Point St. Charles, who are on strike, and who are in touch with their leaders, have been expecting to go to work since late Saturday afternoon. Hon. Mackenzie King, too, paid his bill at the Windsor, although he will say absolutely nothing, the Minister does not appear like a man who has failed.

The company, however, so far, even at the conferences yesterday between Presidents Garretson and Lee, and Vice-President Fitzhugh, refused to treat the strikers otherwise than on the assumption that they will abandon their demand to get back their former status.

Vice-President Fitzhugh claims that the suburban trains are all running, and that the position of the freights is improving every hour.

Troops at Fort Erie.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Acting on a request from a magistrate at Niagara Falls, Gen. Cotton, D.O.C., yesterday despatched 27 men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, at Stanley Barracks, and 23 men of the R.R.C.I., at London, to Fort Erie. Major Elmsley is in command of the detachment, with Lieut. Bell of the Dragoons, and Lieut. Chrysler of the R.R.C.I. assisting.

It is understood that the call for troops was due to the fear of the Grand Trunk that 500 racetrack followers hanging around the Fort Erie track may try to damage the G.T.R. property because of the postponement of the race meet, due to the inability of the company to provide special trains.

Supt. Cunningham of the G.T.R. was in Fort Erie Saturday, but was afraid to remain over night, and returned to Niagara Falls.

Bringing Strike-Breakers.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 1.—Immigration Officer George Thomas was inspecting a train which came across the G.T.R. bridge about 7.30 last night, and asked one of the passengers how much money he had.

The man replied that he had $25.

"Where did you get it?" asked the officer.

"From that man there," replied the passenger, pointing to Supt. Cunningham of the G.T.R.

At this point Cunningham is said to have butted into the conversation, and refused to let the immigration officer ask any more questions of the passenger, as the requirements of the act had been complied with. He then took the man into his office and took the $25 away from him.

This is the second case of the kind that is reported to have occurred at Niagara Falls.

ARE CHARGED WITH MURDER

Orillia, Aug. 1.—Thomas McNulty of Orillia, and Miss May Dolan of Uptergrove, were arrested and placed in the jail here on Saturday, charged with child murder. McNulty is married and has four children.

On the evening of Friday, July 22, Frank Utley of Orillia was fishing in Lake Couchiching when he found the body of a baby in an advanced state of decomposition.

The pair were indicted for murder before Police Magistrate George H. Clark. No witnesses were examined. The preliminary hearing will be continued on Thursday. The Dolan girl confessed to Chief of Police John R. Reid and Crown Attorney J. R. Cotter of Barrie that she had a letter from McNulty advising her to commit the deed.

Octogenarian Missing.

Cornwall, Aug. 1.—John Baily, aged 80 years, is missing. He lived with his son and was last, as far as can be learned, on the street about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He was in his shirt sleeves and bare head. His cane, a few trinkets, and a note addressed to his daughter were found on the step of a relative. He had been in poor health, and had remarked Saturday that yesterday was the ninth anniversary of his wife's death.

UNIFORM FOR WAR SECRETARY

London, Aug. 1.—Lord Dundonald suggested that Mr. Haldane should wear uniform and be liable to court-martial when he spoke Saturday at a meeting of the Council of the Imperial Mission at St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park, the residence of the Earl of Londesborough. He said:

"Great changes have recently taken place in the management of the armed forces of the crown, not only in the Mother Country, but in the colonies. Some of these changes have been for good, but others, I think, might be harmful in the future.

"The power hitherto held by the military commander in conjunction with the Secretary of State for War has, apparently, been absorbed entirely by the latter, and I have hopes that this Minister, besides absorbing the powers, will also take unto himself some of the penalties.

"I have hopes that he will assume uniform and rank and render himself amenable to court-martial and to the inevitable bullet if it is found, when the country goes to war, that it is deficient in rifles, in ammunition, or in anything that renders defeat not unlikely."

IT WAS DR. CRIPPEN; FLEEING MAN ARRESTED WHEN MONTROSE ARRIVED

Inspector Dew and Two Canadian Officers Went Out to the Boat in a Tender—Were Disguised as Pilots—Locked in Stateroom.

Father Point, Que., Aug. 1.—Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and Ethel Clare Leneve, his stenographer, who fled from London after the disappearance of Belle Elmore, the doctor's wife, were arrested here yesterday aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose, at the command of Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard.

The identification of the fugitives by the English detective marked the culmination of one of the most sensational flights in recent criminal records.

Accompanied by two Canadian officers he boarded the vessel at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning, and fifteen minutes later both man and girl were locked in their state rooms, Crippen broken in spirit, but mentally relieved by the relaxed tension; the girl, garbed in boy's clothing, sobbing hysterically. They were no longer the "Rev. John Robinson and son," as booked from Antwerp on July 20.

After a brief delay, the Montrose continued her 160-mile journey up the river towards Quebec, where jail awaited the pair. Crippen is charged with the murder of an unknown woman. The girl is held as an accessory. They will be taken back to England on the steamship Royal George, leaving Quebec on Thursday.

The scene enacted near this little settlement was dramatic. Inspector Dew had spent a sleepless night at the Marconi operator's side, communicating through the fog with the Montrose.

At 4.30 a.m. the approaching ship's whistle was heard. It awakened the villagers and the newspaper men, who dressed hastily and waited in a drizzling rain for the liner's arrival.

Shortly after 7.30 o'clock the Montrose pushed her nose through the fog, and at 8.15 the pilot boat Eureka set out from shore. She carried a host of newspaper men and photographers, and as many townspeople as could crowd aboard. The inspector was not among them; he had embarked on the Eureka's small tender, accompanied by Chief McCarthy of the Quebec police and ex-Chief Denis of the same city.

All wore the garb of pilots, and over his florid face, Inspector Dew had pulled a pilot's visored cap. He did not wish Crippen to recognize him before he could approach and take advantage of the only avenue of escape—suicide. Four sailors quickly rowed the tender alongside the Montrose and Dew and his companions stepped aboard.

Crippen was standing near the rail talking with Dr. Stuart, the ship's surgeon. That he was nervous was indicative by his furtive glances and his remark to Dr. Stuart. "There are three pilots coming aboard," he said, nervously. "Is that not unusual?" The physician did not reply, but kept his eyes on the strangers, who walked rapidly toward them.

On hearing the Montrose Dew had spotted Crippen walking the deck and chatting to the ship's doctor, though the suspect had shaven. This was enough for the inspector, who, on boarding the Montrose, went straight for the deck on which his quarry was parading. He touched him on the shoulder with an invitation to visit the captain's cabin.

"Crippen, I want you," said Dew quietly. The dentist recoiled involuntarily as he recognized the man who addressed him, then the blood left his face, his breath came short and fast and he gurgled incoherently.

As he was being led away to the captain's cabin, from which he was transferred later to his own stateroom, he said gratefully, "Thank God, the suspense is over, and I am glad."

Crippen's arrest accomplished, Dew hurried to Miss Leneve's stateroom, where he found her, still dressed as "John Robinson, jr.," on the verge of nervous breakdown. Her appearance when told that she was under arrest was pitiable. All control that she had fought so hard to retain throughout the voyage left her. She cried out hysterically and became so faint that restoratives were administered.

Shut in her room, and restored to woman's dress, she was closely guarded as the vessel continued its journey for fear that she would take her life or collapse utterly.

Crippen was attired in a traveling suit of blue serge and tweed overcoat. Gold-rimmed eyeglasses rested on his nose, and from them his eyes looked out dully. His face was pale and drawn.

With both under arrest the Montrose's whistle sounded a signal to the waiting Eureka that Dew's search was at an end. Immediately the pilot boat came alongside and the newspapermen and photographers swarmed aboard. Crippen they found handcuffed in his stateroom and Miss Leneve under the care of a physician in her room.

The news by this time had spread among the passengers, who had been duped throughout the voyage by the bogus clergyman and his effeminate son. Capt. Kendall had kept from them the identity of the two mysterious passengres, and although the recent bombardment of wireless messages had aroused their suspicions, none on board, besides Llewellyn Jones, the wireless operator, knew that the two were Dr. Crippen and his girl companion.

DOCTORS TALK ABOUT CANCER

New York, Aug. 1.—The British Medical Association's annual congress is in session. The usual deep interest is manifested in the addreses regarding the treatment of cancer. H. Gilbert Barling, professor of surgery at the University of Birmingham, and Prof. Louis Wickham, one of the greatest authorities on radium, were the chief speakers. Dr. Barling maintained that at present surgery alone could be relied on as the great remedy. He said that only one real opportunity to cure exists, viz., at the first operation, which should be pressed to the fullest extent.

He believed that if all the malignant growths could be excised at a certain stage of development all could be cured. He recognized the infrequency of recurrence after three years' freedom following an operation, but he assigned five years as a safer period. He dismissed treatment by serum and drugs as futile. Regarding radium he said there was much that is promising but little that is conclusive. A profound impression was often produced. Malignant tumors of large extent might disappear or diminish, but improvement and apparent recovery were apt to be deceptive. Radium could give relief in inoperable cases, but he refused to take the responsibility of advancing its use as a substitute for excision in operable cases.

Prof. Wickham spoke more hopefully regarding radium, but he admitted that a complete cure could only be looked for in the case of small accessible cancers. He was emphatic in declaring that radium had a beneficent action, not merely caustic. The rays, apart from their caustic action, were particularly deadly to cancer cells, immediately picking them out by selective action.

HIS INJURIES WERE FATAL

Former Pastor of St Andrew's, Toronto, Died in Belfast.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—News was received early last evening by the Canadian Associated Press cable of the death of Rev. William John McCaughan, who was terribly injured last Tuesday in the Kelvin Hotel fire, in Belfast, Ireland.

On receipt of the cable, a reporter conveyed the sad intelligence to Mr. McCaughan's former church, New St. Andrew's, West King street, where evening service was in progress. Rev. Dr. Lyle, who was about to open prayer, was much shocked, and in his prayer referred very feelingly to the self-sacrificing life of one who had died far from his former home. He then announced a most appropriate hymn, Ellerton's beautiful, "Now the Laborer's Task Is O'er."

The formal announcement of Mr. McCaughan's death was made by the acting minister, Rev. J. C. McConachie, at the end of the sermon, after which the Dead March was played by the organist, the congregation standing.

Though Mr. McCaughan had not been connected with St. Andrew's for about ten years, his memory is still beloved by most of the church members, who feel a sense of personal loss and horror at his shocking death. A message of sympathy from all the congregation was cabled last night to Mrs. McCaughan in Belfast.

Mr. McCaughan, who was a native of Belfast, was at New St. Andrew's from 1897 to 1900, when he accepted a call to Chicago. In 1907, he returned to his native city of Belfast. His wife was Miss Sara Cooper of Philadelphia.

In the fatal fire of Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. McCaughan delayed their departure so long, in their efforts to inform other inmates of the danger, that their retreat was cut off, and they were obliged to jump from a third storey window, fracturing their skulls. Mrs. McCaughan is on the road to recovery.

Mr. McCaughan was a well-known Mason, Orangeman and Forester.

THE H. B. RAILWAY

At Port Arthur Sir Wilfrid Laurier was certain that all the grain grown in Western Canada would go out by the eastern route. To quote from the Toronto Globe's report of his speech there;

"Last year the west produced one hundred millions of bushels, yet the Minister of Agriculture, who possesses a careful, conservative mind in matters of trade, last month told the people of the great metropolis of the British Empire and the commercial world, that within a few years the annual output of wheat would probably be over one billion bushels, and I believe him. THE GEOGRAPHICAL POSITION NECESSITATES ALL THE WHEAT PASSING HERE! IT ALL MAKES A BEE-LINE IN THIS DIRECTION."

But what about the Premier's faith in the Hudson Bay Railway?

WANTED

Give us men who believe themselves men, and who live up to their belief, men who demand consideration, who won't shut up, who won't sit down until they have had their say.

Trot us out a few men who do not court praise, and on whom taffy does not fizz.

We want men who are not hidebound partizans, and who will acknowledge and condemn the crooked deal in their own ranks as quick as they would in the other camp.

We do not want handsome men or beautiful women. They are crowding over each other in every walk of life. There are plenty of dudes and dudines.

We want rugged men, men with set jaws, women without rouge or gegaus, to give the devil a taste of his own hell every time he shows himself be it in the pew, lodge or bar.

Give us rational men and women, with good common sense, who can recognize good no matter where they see it, who have learned that every bartender, every hotel man is not a fiend, or every preacher a saint—they who look for good in everything, who know that Old Nick plays no favorites, and that he kneels in the pew as well as boozes in the bar.

We are looking for men who don't doff their hats to the other fellow simply because he lives in a big house.

We are looking for chaps who believe in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, no matter whether he is a negro, or white, or a Jew, or a Polock, or a tank, or an ex-tank, no matter whether he is in his carriage or plods the King's highway in rags.

We want men who never forget that some day six feet or earth will make us all of one size.

Let us be charitable, and let only those who have never erred disdain.

If a man plays the part of a man we ask no more.

Yes, give us men and women who are human, who feel, who fall, who rise again, who are battling their way through life. From ladies and gentlemen who are dolls, parlor ornaments, whose most learned talk is twaddle, from all these, good Lord deliver us.

THE TORONTO EXPOSITION

In our Great Canada the greatest fixture is our great Toronto Exposition, and it will soon be here, and hundreds of thousands will look and admire, look and admire and forget, and the thousands of details will be painted by Time's great brush into one great fact—it was a great Exposition.

Ah! Time's great brush.

What a painter!

The artist of the ages, the measure of all things.

The steam engine invented, and the canvas of the world unspread. Time adorns it a nine days' wonder.

Electricity here, and Time wrote out the steam engine and told of electricity.

The telephone. Again the hand of Time obliterating one wonder with the most recent wonder—the voice on the wire.

And then came wireless telegraphy, and for nine days the world wondered as Time held up sounds without wires —the words on the wings of the wind.

And now the flying machine.

Ah, friend, do not be discouraged if your town does not salute you; do not be dismayed if you have failed to hold your little circle charmed by your wit, for who are you, and who are we all, and who are the wisest of us? Should Time's great brush write us in glowing characters soon it would turn out little deeds to the wall, Soon it would obliterate our names by some great discovery.

So let us be glad, that we live, although few of us are great and none of us immortals; this is not for us, yet is it not a great, glad world we live in? We may bask in the sunshine of it all.

So greet the coming and the passing of each day as but one of the many, many days that will be available for most of us, available for us to fredeem past errors and make good the foolishness that we foolish ones have committed, each in our little tle way, and may the days make us all wiser and happier, kindlier and more charitable, and if it be the good fortune of some to mount may they in their flight remember how very weak the very wise, how very small the very great.

CENSUS OF FOREST PRODUCTS

The census of forest products of Canada, to be taken on 1st June, 1911, will embrace square, waney or flat timber, logs for lumber and miscellaneous products.

In the first class are included ash, birch, elm, maple, oak, pine and all other timber cut as square, waney or flat, and in the enumeration will be reported for cubic feet and value.

Logs for lumber which are included in the second class, are in such woods as elm, hickory, hemlock, oak, pine and spruce. They will be enumerated in the census by quantities of 1,000 feet board measure, with value in the same unit.

Miscellaneous products of the forest include bark for tanning, fence posts, firewood, hoop and hop poles, masts and spars, piling, pot and pearl ashes, railroad ties, staves, stavebolts and heading, telegraph poles (including telephone and other poles for electric wires), wood for pulp, and the furs and skins of forest animals undressed, and they will be enumerated by number or quantity and value.

The census of forest products will be taken chiefly from farmers and the lessees of timber limits.

THE POINT OF VIEW

A CHINESE PARABLE.

Lord's Day Advocate.

In urging the sacredness of the Lord's Day, a native Chinese preacher related this story;—"I came to pass that a man went to market, having on his shoulder a string of seven large copper coins (Chinese coins are strung on strings and carried on the shoulder). Seeing a beggar crying for alms he gave the poor creature six of his seven coins. Then the beggar, instead of being grateful, crept up behind the kind man and stole the seventh coin also. What an abominable wretch! Yes; but in saying this you condemn yourselves. You receive from the hand of the gracious God six days, yet you are not content. The seventh you also steal!"

WHERE IS HE?

Vancouver Province.

The man is born, and somewhere today, on the face of the earth, is unknowingly undergoing the necessary training, who will lay Jack Johnson low. He will come from the woods, from the sea, from the fields, or from the factory. The Johnson who to-day seems invincible will fall before him, and the unknown will rise to greatness; his name will be in every mouth. Who is he? Where is he? Time will tell. It is the fighter's fate to be doomed to defeat; even in his brightest moments this doom hangs over him.

MEN WHO KNOW

"I find the keeping of individual cow records very useful indeed, and would not go back again to the guessing method," writes a farmer who has tried both ways.

The men who just guess and who do not know what each cow in the herd gives during the year, often guess too much on the weight of milk and fat, and too little on the cost of feed. They guess that "Polly" is the best cow in the herd, but they do not know, because they have not weighed or tested the milk on any system. Probably "Buttercup" is far ahead of "Polly" as a producer.

The men who know the best cows in the herd, those who know which cows produce a large quantity at a low cost are the men who not only get good satisfaction out of keeping good cows, but they are the men who get good money when they sell, because they have records to augment the value. The men who know the poor cows by their records sell them off for beef and save time, and labor, and feed, and stable room, and bad language. The men who know enough to select good cows on their records of production are the successful dairymen to-day. The Dairy Division, Ottawa, supplies record forms for milk and feed so that men can soon know what profit each cow pays. The question is not, "What does the herd average this month or next, but what does each cow give during the year?" Each cow should be a "long distance" milker.

FOR LOADING ANIMALS.

A Handy, Easily Made Contrivance Is Sometimes of Great Use.

Perhaps every farmer has occasion to load some animal into a wagon, and many farmers prepare for this by building a stock chute. Frequently these chutes are built as permanent fixtures in connection with the feed

STOCK CHUTE.
[From the Kansas Farmer.]

lots, but they are often made so that they can be transported from one part of the farm to another. When a chute of this kind is built heavy and strong enough to support the weight of a mature hog or a large calf it becomes a clumsy thing to move. R. J. Linscott of Holton, Kan., has solved this problem of inconvenience in a very happy way, according to the Kansas Farmer. The wheels and axle used are parts of old machinery found on the farm, the wheels being taken from an old mower. The upper end of the chute is provided with two strong iron hooks, which are sharpened so as to engage the bottom of the wagon bed and prevent slipping after the animal starts upward. With such an arrangement there is no difficulty in building a chute of ample strength, because the question of weight has relatively little importance. The chute can be hooked on behind the wagon and hauled to any part of the farm, and it is a comparatively easy matter to put it in position by hand.

Whole Crew Unconscious.

New York, Aug. 1.—Two days after leaving Barbados on July 28, the British steamer Ikalis sighted a sinking sloop flying signals of distress, and in a few minutes had come upon one of those mute histories that make the terror and the romance of the sea.

The sloop was the little Sunlight, a wandering cargo carrier between small ports of the Islands of Antigua and Barbados. Her master and crew of five on board, after on hour's work were revived. Then came the explanation. Capt. J. Frank, owner of the Sunlight, said that he had run into a fog a few hours out of Antigua, had lost his bearings, and for thirteen days he and his crew had been living on vinegar and sugar. How long they had been unconscious, before the Ikalis bore down on them, he did not know.

CHAPTER I.

THE VOICE IN THE FOG.

OUT of the unromantic night out of the somber blurring January fog, came a voice lifted in song, a soprano, rich, full and round, young, yet matured, sweet and mysterious as a night-bird's, haunting and elusive as the murmur of the sea in a shell—a lilt from "La Fille de Mme. Angot," a light opera long since forgotten in New York. Hillard, genuinely astonished, lowered his pipe and listened.

The voice rose and sank and soared again, drawing nearer and nearer. It was joyous and unrestrained, and there was youth in it, the touch of spring and the breath of flowers. The music was Lecocq's—that is to say, French—but the tongue was of a country which Hillard knew to be the garden of the world. Presently he observed a shadow emerge from the yellow mist, to come within the circle of light, which, faint as it was, limned in against the nothingness beyond the form of a woman. She walked directly under his window.

As the invisible comes suddenly out of the future to assume distinct proportions which either make or mar us, so did this unknown cantatrice come out of the fog that night and enter into Hillard's life, to readjust its ambitions, to divert its aimless course, to give impetus to it and a directness which hitherto it had not known.

"Ah!"

He leaned over the sill at a perilous angle, the bright coal of his pipe spilling comet-wise to the areaway below. He was only subconscious of having spoken, but this syllable was sufficient to spoil the enchantment. The voice ceased abruptly, with an odd break. The singer looked up. Possibly her astonishment surpassed even that of her audience. For a few minutes she had forgotten that she was in New York; she had forgotten the pain in her heart; there had been only an irresistible longing to sing.

Though she raised her face, he could distinguish no feature, for the light was behind. However, he was a man who made up his mind quickly. Brunette or blond, beautiful or otherwise, it needed but a moment to find out. Even as this decision was made he was in the upper hall, taking the stairs two at a bound. He ran out into the night bareheaded. Up the street he saw a flying shadow. Plainly she had anticipated his impulse. She was gone. He cupped his ear with his hand in vain. There was nothing but fog and silence.

"Well, if this doesn't beat the Dutch!" he murmured.

He laughed disappointedly. It did not matter that he was three and thirty. He still retained youth enough to feel chagrined at such a trivial defeat. Here had been something like a genuine adventure, and it had slipped like water through his clumsy fingers.

"Deuce take the fog! But for that I'd have caught her."

But reason promptly asked him what he should have done had he caught the singer. Yes, supposing he had, what excuse would he have had to offer? Who could she be? What peculiar whimsical freak had sent her singing past his window at 1 o'clock of the morning? A grand opera singer returning home from a late supper? But he dismissed this opinion even as he advanced it. He knew something about grand opera singers. They attend late suppers, it is true, but they ride home in luxurious carriages and never risk their golden voices in this careless if romantic fashion. As for being a comic opera star, he refused to admit the possibility, and he relegated this well satisfied constellation to the darks of limbo. He had heard a voice.

Out of the somber fog came a voice lifted in song.

A policeman came lumbering over to add or subtract his quota of interest in the affair. Hillard wisely stopped and waited for him.

"I heard a woman singin'," the guardian of the law said roughly.

"So did I."

"Huh! See her?"

"For a moment," Hillard admitted.

"Well, we can't have none o' this in the streets. It's disorderly."

"My friend," said Hillard, rather annoyed at the policeman's tone, "you don't think for an instant that I was directing this operetta?"

"Think? Where's your hat?"

Hillard ran his hand over his head. The policeman had him here. "I did not bring it out."

"Too warm and summery, huh? It don't look good. I've been watchin' these parts fer a leddy. They call her Leddy Lightfinger, an' she has some o' the gents done to a pulp when it comes to liftin' jools an' trinkets. Somebody fergits to lock the front door, an' she finds it out. Why did you come out without yer lid?"

"Just forgot it, that's all."

"Which way'd she go?"

"You'll need a map and a searchlight. I started to run after her myself. I heard a voice from my window; I saw a woman; I made for the street; niente!"

"Huh?"

"Niente, nothing!"

"Oh, I see—dago. Seems to me now that this woman was singin' I-taly-an too." They were nearing the light, and the policeman gazed intently at the hatless young man. "Why, it's Mr. Hillard! I'm surprised. Well, well! Some day I'll run in a bunch o' these chorus leddies, jes' fer a lesson. They git lively at the restaurants over on Broadway, an' thin they raise the dead with their singin', which often as not is anything but singin'. An' here it is after 1."

"But this was not a chorus lady," replied Hillard, thoughtfully reaching into his vest for a cigar. "The lady had a singing voice."

"Huh! They all think alike about that. But mebbe she wasn't bad at the business. Annyhow"—

"It was rather out of time and place, eh?" helpfully.

"That's about the size of it. This Leddy Lightfinger is a case. She has us all thinkin' on our nights off. Clever an' edjicated an' jabbers in half a dozen tongues. It's a thousan' to the man who jugs her. But she don't sing; at least they ain't any report to that effect. Perhaps your leddy was jes' larkin' a bit. But it's got to be stopped."

Hillard passed over the cigar, and the policeman bit off the end, nodding with approval at such foresight. "Didn't get a peep at her face?"

"Not a single feature. The light was behind her."

"An' how was she dressed?"

"In fog, for all I could see."

"On the level now, didn't you know who she was?" The policeman gave Hillard a sly dig in the ribs with his club.

"On my word!"

"Some swell, mebbe."

"Undoubtedly a lady. That's why it looks odd—why it brought me into the street. She sang in classic Italian. And, what's more, for the privilege of hearing that voice again I should not mind sitting on this cold curb till the milkman comes around in the morning."

"That wouldn't be fer long," laughed the policeman, taking out his watch and holding it close to the end of his cigar. "Twenty minutes after 1. Well, I must be gittin' back to me beat. Been to Italy?"

"I was born there," patiently.

"No! Why, you're no dago!"

"Not so much as an eyelash. The stork happened to drop the basket there, that's all."

"Ha, I see! Well, Ameriky is good enough fer me an' mine," complacently.

"I dare say!"

"An' if this stogy continues to behave we'll say no more about the vanishin' leddy." The policeman strolled off, his suspicions in nowise removed. He knew many rich young bachelors like Hillard. If it wasn't a chorus lady it was a prima donna, which was not far from being the same thing.

Hillard regained his room and leaned with his back to the radiator. He had an idea. It was rather green and salad, but as soon as his hands were warm he determined to put this idea into immediate use. The voice had stirred him deeply, stirred him with the longing to hear it again, to learn what extraordinary impulse had loosed the song.

Never the winter came with its weary round of rain and fog and snow that his heart and mind did not fly over the tideless southern sea to the land of his birth if not of his blood—Sorrento, that jewel of the sun bathed cliffs!

With a quick gesture of both hands—Latin, always Latin—he crossed the room to a small writing desk, turned on the lights and sat down. After several attempts he realized that the letter he had in mind was not the simplest to compose. There were a dozen futile efforts before he produced anything like satisfaction. Then he filled out a small check. A little later he stole downstairs, around the corner to the local branch of the postoffice and returned. It was only a blind throw, such as dicers sometimes make in the dark. But chance loves her true gamester, and to him she makes a faithful servant.

He picked up a novel. "I should be sorely tempted to call any other man a silly ass. Leddy Lightfinger—it would be a fine joke if my singer turned out to be that irregular person."

He fell to reading, but soon yawned. He shied the book into a corner, drew off his boots and cast them into the hall. A moment after his valet appeared, gathered up the boots and waited.

"I want nothing, Giovanni. I have only been around to the postoffice."

"I heard the door open and close four times, signor."

"It was I. If this fog does not change I shall want my riding breeches to morrow morning."

"It always rains here," Giovanni remarked.

"Not always. There are pleasant days in the spring and summer. It is because this is not Italy. The Hollander wonders how any reasonable being can dwell in a country where they do not drink gin. It's home, Giovanni. Rain pelts you from a different angle here. There is nothing more. You may go. It is 2 o'clock, and you are dead for sleep."

But Giovanni only bowed. He did not stir.

"It is seven years now, signor."

"So it is—seven this coming April."

"I am now an American citizen and may return to my good Italia without danger."

"That depends. If you do not run across any official who recognizes you."

Giovanni spread his hands. "Official memory seldom lasts so long as seven years. The signor has crossed four times in this period."

"I would gladly have taken you each time, as you know."

"Oh, yes! But in two or three years the police do not forget. In seven it is different."

"Ah!" Hillard was beginning to understand the trend of this conversation. "So, then, you wish to return?"

"Yes, signor. I have saved a little money," modestly.

"A little?" Hillard laughed. "For seven years you have received fifty American dollars every month, and out of it you do not spend as many copper centesimi. I am certain that you have 20,000 lire tucked away in your stocking—a fortune!"

"I buy the blacking for the signor's boots," gravely.

Hillard saw the twinkle in the black eyes. "I have never," he said truthfully, "asked you to black my boots."

"Penance, signor, penance for my sins, and I am not without gratitude. There was a time when I had rather cut off a hand than black a boot. But all that is changed. We of the Sabine hills are proud, as the signor knows. We are Romans out there. We despise the cities, and we do not hold out our palms for the traveler's pennies. I am a peasant, but always remember the blood of the Caesars. Who can say? Besides, I have held a sword for the church. I owe no allegiance to the puny house of Savoy!" There was no twinkle in the black eyes now. There was a ferocious gleam. "Pardon, signor. I grow boastful. I am old and should know better. But does the signor return to Italy in the spring?"

"I don't know, Giovanni; I don't know. But what's on your mind?"

"Nothing new, signor," with eyes cast down to hide the returning lights.

"You are a bloodthirsty ruffian!" said Hillard shortly.

"I am as the good God made me. Besides, the holy father will do something for one who fought for the cause."

"He will certainly not countenance bloodshed, Giovanni."

"He can absolve it."

"I was in hopes you had forgotten."

"Forgotten! The signor will never understand. She was so pretty and youthful and innocent! She sang like the nightingale. Up with the dawn, to sleep with the stars. We were alone, she and I. The sheep supported me, and she sold her roses and dried lavender. It was all so beautiful—till he came. Ah, had he loved her! But a plaything, a pastime! The signor never had a daughter. What is she now? A nameless thing in the streets!" Giovanni raised his arms tragically. The boots clattered to the floor. "Seven years! It is a long time for one of my blood to wait."

"Seven years! It is a long time to wait."

"Enough!" cried Hillard, but there was a hardness in his throat at the sight of the old man's tears. Where was the proud and stately man, the black bearded shepherd in faded blue linen, in picturesque garters, with his reedlike pipe, that he, Hillard, had known in his boyhood days? "I can give you only my sympathy for your loss," said Hillard, "but I abhor the spirit of revenge which cannot find satisfaction in anything save murder."

Giovanni bowed gravely and made off with his boots. Hillard remained staring thoughtfully at the many colored squares in the rug under his feet. It would be lonesome with Giovanni gone. The old man had evidently made up his mind. But the woman with the voice, would she see the notice in the paper? And if she did would she reply to it? What a foundation for a romance! Bah! He prepared for bed.

To those who reckon earthly treasures as the only thing worth having John Hillard was a fortunate young man. That he was without kith or kin was considered by many as an additional piece of good fortune. Born in Sorrento, in one of the charming villas which sweep down to the very brow of the cliffs, educated in Rome up to his fifteenth year, taken at that age from the dreamy, drifting land and thrust into the noisy, bustling life which was his inheritance; fatherless and motherless at twenty, a college youth who was forever mixing his Italian with his English and being laughed at, hating tumult and loving quiet, warm hearted and impulsive, yet meeting only habitual reserve from his compatriots whichever way he turned, it is not to be wondered at that he preferred the land of his birth to that of his blood.

The old house in which he lived was not in the fashionable quarter of the town, but that did not matter. Nor did it vary externally from any of its unpretentious neighbors. A cook, a butler and a valet were his retinue.

EVERY DOLLAR OF THE FAMILY INCOME OWES YOU ONE HUNDRED CENTS IN VALUE

"You work hard for your money," said a business philosopher. "Make it work hard for you."

Make it return to you a full hundred cents worth in value at least when you spend it.

Read the store advertisements carefully and regularly. Among the many steady advertisers someone is sure to be offering the very articles you need.

And when they are advertised you may be sure they are all right.

For a merchant must stand behind his advertised goods. He stakes his reputation on the statements he makes.

And so this "store news" in The Daily Review can be depended upon. If you follow it you will arrive at the place where the goods you need can be found and, in nine cases out of ten, at the most reasonable prices.

And so you will get most value for your dollars if you are a constant ad. reader.

The human eye is the most valuable organ in the body. It is delicate, easily injured and deceptive, too, for it often seems "all right" when very much wrong. The result is neglect at very critical periods, with the inevitable result of injury.

WHAT THE SPECIAL WIRES SAY TO-DAY

CLAIM THE BODY FOUND WAS THAT OF CRIPPIN'S WIFE

Special to the Review.

London, Aug. 1.—Hope of the conviction of Dr. H. H. Crippen on the charge of murdering his wife, was greatly strengthened to-day by a report that Scotland yard detectives have secured new evidence that the mutilated and lime-eaten body found in the cellar of the Decter's home, was that of his wife. This evidence, it is said, to have been obtained within the last few days and is such as to materially strengthen the prosecution.

DETECTIVES RETICENT.

The detectives are maintaining their usual secrecy as to the nature of new evidence. Arrangements are being made for a speedy trial of Crippen and this fact alone is considered proof that the prosecution believes it will have no difficulty in proving the identity of the body. As without such proof there could not be a conviction and consequently there would be no reason for a trial.

COMMITTED SUICIDE

Special to the Review.

Belleville, Aug. 1.—Mrs. King Maybee, who was visiting a relative, Philip Denyes, on the front of Sidney, got hold of some paris green Saturday evening and committed suicide. She was 60 years old and a little peculiar.

TROOPS IN TRAIN

Special to the Review.

Bridgeburg, Aug. 1.—A train consisting of five coaches carrying troops from London and Toronto to guard Grand Trunk property from strikers or their sympathizers, arrived here over the G.T.R. at 10.15 a.m. No freight trains have moved over the G. T.R. here as yet. No disturbance has occurred here to-day.

WATCHMAN DROWNED

Special to the Review.

Kingston, Aug. 1.—The steamer North King on arrival here reported the drowning of William Dunn, watchman on the steamer for 20 years in the Murray canal, while the boat was coming east during the night. The body was recovered. It is not known how the accident happened. Dunn belonged to Kingston.

A MESSAGE TO LICENSED LIQUOR DEALERS OF CITY

At a meeting of the Board of License Commissioners held in the Inspector's office this morning at seven o'clock a resolution was passed deploring the amount of drunkenness in the hotels and on our streets and further resolved that hotelkeepers or their employees who give liquor to men who have been on the black list or to men who have been in the habit of getting drunk, will henceforth be considered unfavorable applicants for a license.

The board met for the sole purpose of passing the above resolution, and the message to hotelmen is straight and to the point. Nothing further need be said.

$192.50 CASH BALANCE FROM COMPLIMENTARY CONCERT

Was Given Miss Lavina Hallighan by Committee in Charge—Treasurer's Statement—Miss Hallighan's Letter of Acknowledgement.

The committee which had charge of the complimentary concert tendered to Miss Lavina Hallighan at the Grand Opera House met this morning in Mr. F. D. Kerr's office. The receipts and expenditures were gone over, and the treasurer's statement found correct.

It was decided to hand over the cash balance of $192.50 to Miss Hallighan, and this was done this morning.

Mr. W. McIlroy, treasurer of the committee, stated to the Review today that the committee wished to publicly thank the newspapers of Peterborough for the generous free advertising which they gave the concert.

WM. McILROY,
Treasurer.

GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

Peterborough, Aug. 1, 1910.

W. McIlroy, Treasurer Concert Committee

Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge the receipt of $192.50, being the proceeds of the complimentary concert so kindly tendered me.

Will you please convey my sincere thanks to the committee who worked so hard to make the concert such a success financially and otherwise. To Miss Davies, Miss Reesor, Miss McGill, Miss Doherty, Mr. Kilmer, Mr Crane, Mr. Hughes, Mr. Gliddon, Mr. Devey, the Opera House orchestra, and the 57th Band, for the generous assistance; to the Examiner, Review and Times for their very liberal free advertising they gave the concert, and the many nice things they said about it; and last, but not least, the citizens of Peterborough for their kindly interest in my behalf, and to assure them that I shall try very hard to justify their confidence in my voice. Again thanking the committee, believe me,

Yours sincerely,
LAVINA L. HALLIGHAN

STONEY LAKE HAS REACHED ITS ANNUAL MID-SEASON POPULATION OF VISITORS

Record Influx to the Hotels--Registrations at Viamede McCracken's and Mount Julian--The Recent News From Kawartha Regions

"There are more people in the hotels at the lakes at the present time than there have been at any time since I have been on the Empress," said Mr. Fred Holland, purser of that boat, to the Review this morning. And a glance over the hotel registers is sufficient to confirm Mr. Holland's statement. At every hotel on the lakes the daily text of the proprietors is "standing room only." The tourist season has reached the state of thriving maturity and the resorts are alive with people. As a result there is more gayety and activity and dances, there are card parties, fishing, shore teas and many other spokes in the big wheel of summer amusement.

A HAPPY INOVATION.

An impromptu vaudeville was held on Tuesday, July 26th, when Harry Lauder and Eva Tanguay and the other bright lights of the vaudeville boards, were completely obscured by a brilliant array of amateur professionals.

The bill was a big and highly interesting one and would have made either Morris' or Hammersteins' mouths water like Jack Johnson's in anticipation of a watermelon banquet.

The programme was:

Descriptive characters in family album—Mrs. Emery, Rochester.
Recitation—Mrs. Charles Tyler, Syracuse.
Comic song—Mr. James Whalen, Rochester.
Mandolin solo, with piano accompaniment—Mr. Albert Emery, Rochester, and Miss Margaret Lancaster, Syracuse.
Song—Miss Elsie Morrison, Toronto.
Monologue, "Imitation of Charley Case,"—Mr. Albert Emery.
Character song and dance sketch—Miss Jennie Mollenhauer, Cleveland.
Recitation—Miss Spencer, Toronto.

"MAGNET" IN STORM.

On Wednesday a launch party to Eel's Creek in the Viamede pleasure launch "The Magnet," were overtaken by a storm. There was an exciting time, but no damage resulted. The Messrs. Hall brothers assisted the party in making a safe landing.

FOR SWEET CHARITY.

On Friday evening a benefit was given in aid of the mission in charge of Rev. Christopher Lord, who, with his assistant, Mr. Crewes, has been in charge of the services at Viamede.

The substantial sum of $25 was realized.

One of the features of the entertainment was a breach of promise suit, which had a flavor of the real proceedings about it as the presiding judge, was Judge Nash. The prosecution and defence were also in the hands of visiting lawyers. Mrs. Wilson, of Ottawa, was the plaintiff and Mrs. Fred Sours, of Rochester, was the defendant. The verdict was given against the defendant, who was assessed the crushing damages of twenty-three cents.

Several police cases of an original character were also tried.

THE ROUND OF ENTERTAINMENT.

Dancing and card parties are the chief sources of entertainment these evenings. On Saturday evening a large number of the guests attended the week end dance at Juniper Island.

Mr. Claude Rogers entertained a number of friends at his cottage at a big bonfire gathering on Saturday evening. The guests were conveyed from Kawartha Park in Mr. Roger's lightning launch "Black Arrow."

Mr. Charles Lacheur, of the Postoffice staff, returned to the city this morning after a week's holiday at Young's Point.

SHOULD DEVELOP OUR TALENTS TO HIGHEST DEGREE

A skilful and interesting interpretation of the parable of the "talents" was given in St. Luke's church last evening by the rector, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt. He referred to the great proportions and extensive power to which the talents entrusted to us may assume if we will only develop them to the highest degree. "It is of immense consequence," he said, "that we should know how to deal with what God has given us in order to augment it. Every person has received something from God which is fitted for him.

We should and must double what we receive; what God gives us has a tendency to grow. This law is so strong that our talents cannot help but increase if we will but use them.

In order to conduct our spiritual business that it may expand we should trust God and make the best use of what we have. Make wise investments and look well to our securities. Whenever a good thought comes to us let us carry it out. Love is a very strong talent as evidenced by the fact that when a person dies he is spoken of elaborately and his memory made much of. We can increase and double love by doing small acts of kindness. Love trades and by trading swells its store.

The power of speech is another great trust, and conversation is a critical part in the power of life. It is an important part and we shall all some day have to give an account of our talk.

"Money," said Dr. Langfeldt, "used for God, is a perpetually accumulating talent of which a fraction is never lost. It is a talent we shall all use, according to God's instructions. Teaching is another strong talent. We do not spread the truth or extend the kingdom. If such is the case surely we have not traded well. The only way to trade well is first to have much commerce with God himself.

In concluding his sermon the rector urged all present to spend much time in prayer, "For," he said, "he who prays most will receive the largest profits. It will repay us to have a goodly treasure to lay at the feet of Jesus."

DIDN'T KNOW FRIEND HAD BEEN MURDERED

When J. H. Scholey returned to the city Saturday he was very much surprised to learn from acquaintances that a friend of his, who had left here about four months ago for Temiskaming had been murdered. This was the man whom Percy Vickers killed in Northern Ontario, and for which deed he is under sentence to be hanged. The dead man gave his name when here as Wm. Irwin, and he stopped at Noble's Temperance House. He left for Temiskaming in company with Mr. Scholey and a number of others to work at that place, but on their arrival went to another part of the country, and that was the last seen of him. Mr. Scholey has some of the dead man's proeprty, which he would like to return to his relatives, if they can be found. Curious enough, too, he carries a watch which he purchased from Robt. Henderson, who was hanged at the county jail on June 23rd. He bought the watch from the youth when he was in the city before going to Norwood.

FUNERAL WAS TWO MILES LONG

The largest funeral cortege witnessed in this part of the country was that which took place yesterday afternoon, when the remains of Mrs. Patrick Brick were placed in their last resting place.

The funeral took place from the residence of her father, Mr. Patrick Flaherty, on the boundary line of Emily and Ennismore, at 3 o'clock. The pallbearers were Mr. Martin McAuliffe, Mr. Chas. Holland, Mr. Patrick Garvey, Mr. Vernon Barrett, Mr. Brick and Mr. Chas. Travis.

The line of carriages extended over a distance of two miles, the large number of people who turned out testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held in the community.

The deceased's ten months' old child, who died on Saturday, after a couple of days' illness, was also laid to rest at the same time.

The services at the house, and also at St. Martin's cemetery, were very impressive and solemn and were conducted by Father Fitzpatrick.

VACATION FOR CANON DAVIDSON

At yesterday morning's service at St. John's church, the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, announced that he will leave on his annual vacation today. The reverend gentleman will probably spend some time at Haliburton, recruiting his strength.

For the first three Sundays Rev. Mr. Gay, of East Toronto, will conduct the services, and on the fourth Sunday Rev. Canon Montgomery, of Port Hope, will officiate. Rev. Mr. Gay will reside at Chemong Park, and can be easily reached by 'phone if required.

Rev. Mr. Seward very kindly offered to do any of the parochial work of St. John's parish during the rector's absence. Residence, 191 Perry street.

Within a few miles of the village of Greene, N.Y., 10 barns were burned by lightning.

SPORTING NEWS

MELVIN W. SHEPPARD

New York, July 29.—In the wake of the recent succession of record-breaking athletic performances for odd distances and freak events came an accomplishment for a genuine standard championship distance which in the last twenty-nine years had withstood all efforts of the fleetest runners on both sides of the Atlantic to achieve.

At Celtic Park, at the games of the Clan-Na-Gael of Brooklyn and Queens, the record for 1,000 yards fell before the prowess of Melvin W. Sheppard, the middle distance title holder of the Irish-American Athletic Club. The champion covered the distance in 1m. 12 2-5s., which time batters the record by three-fifths of a second. The old figures, 2m. 13s., were set by the famous "Lon" Myers, at Travers Island on October 8th, 1881.

The performance is one of the greatest achievements of Sheppard's eventful athletic career, for the 1,000 yard record has been the goal which the best men have striven for in vain. "Charlie" Kilpatrick, whose record for 880 yards stood for almost a score of years, went out time and again for the mark, but never with success, and on one occasion almost to his death from over exertion. Sheppard also had attempted frequently to lower the figures and his ultimate success yesterday stamps him as the best runner in a decade.

TOBACCO CURING BY HEAT.

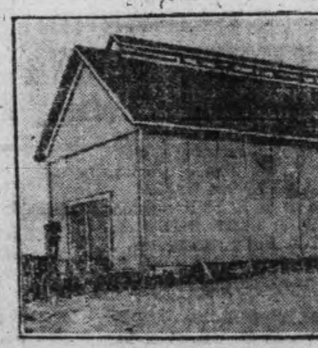
New Type of Closed Barn Used by a Connecticut Grower.

Tobacco growing is counted among the hazardous lines of agriculture in that a crop may be totally destroyed within a very short time by hail or by pole sweat in the curing shed. Danger of hail damage is eliminated in the growing of shade tobacco, but the menace of pole sweat is as great as ever. Last season, however, the first scientific experiment on a large scale to guard against pole sweat in cigar leaf tobacco was made on the farm of William Pinney at Suffield, Conn. The result may ultimately place the farmer in absolute control of the curing process, shortening the time and determining the shade the tobacco shall be when it has been cured.

The experiment was simply the utilization of artificial heat during the curing process. Some kinds of heavy leaf tobacco are cured in tight barns and with fire, and it has long been a common practice to build charcoal fires in the barns when tobacco was in grave danger of being ruined by pole sweat. But until the experiment on the Pinney farm no effort had been made to control the curing and coloring of cigar leaf.

A special type of barn is required for this work. A ventilator along the entire ridge which may be readily opened or closed tight is an important feature. Instead of the crude charcoal burners placed on the ground, creating a fire menace, specially constructed furnaces, five in number, were placed in the ground. The feed doors are on the outside of the building, so that smoke and vapors from the fire cannot enter the barn and affect the flavor of the tobacco. The smoke pipe of each furnace runs across the entire width of the building and returns on a parallel ten feet away and at a slight pitch. The vents are in the side of the barn. The smoke pipe forms the only heat radiating service.

Immediately after the crop was put into the barn the fires were started and the barn closed tightly. The temperature was run up to 80 degrees and the fires permitted to die down after the first day. The curing by this method was hastened at least five days. Very excellent natural atmospheric conditions for curing prompted Mr. Pinney to abandon further application of artificial heat. It was noted during the first two days when the barn was closed that the tobacco turned a rich yellow. The final result was a large percentage of excellent wrappers.



NEW TYPE OF TOBACCO BARN.

The furnaces were installed under the supervision of a representative of the United States department of agriculture, and the curing was followed by John B. Stewart, United States tobacco expert in the Connecticut valley, who acted in an advisory capacity to Mr. Pinney. The entire crop was prime tobacco and has since been sold at a little less than 25 cents per pound. Next year this method will have a more thorough test. The value of a barn full of tobacco is no small item, and any experiment which might destroy such a valuable product is naturally conducted with greatest caution.

Tobacco men are confident that the barn curing process will eventually be as easily controlled as the sweating process by means of steam heat.

Winter Care of Cabbage.

How deeply should cabbage plants be covered where the ground sometimes freezes three and four feet? Does it hurt cabbage to freeze? Should plants be taken up before freezing in the autumn? How early in the spring should they be set out? These questions are answered by Linnaeus Allen of Nassau county, N. Y., as follows:

Where the ground freezes three and four feet deep it will be necessary to plow up the cabbage after trenching so that the heads will be covered with at least a foot of soil. On top of this should be a heavy mulch of cornstalks or other suitable material. It does not hurt cabbage to be frozen in the trenches provided it remains frozen for a long time. What hurts it is to be thawed and then frozen several times.

The plants should be taken up and put in the trenches before the soil becomes frozen too hard to work easily. Two or three heavy frosts will not hurt the plants, nor would a reasonable amount of freezing, except that the heads will bruise easily when frozen, and this will cause rot.

If you wish to put the cabbage away for seed growing next spring the heads should be set out as soon as the ground can be put in good condition after the frost is out.

Big Liner Lost.

Belfast, July 29.—The big Holt liner Agamemnon, with 150 passengers, aboard, has run ashore in a fog near Cloughey, and is reported to be probably a total loss.

The passengers are safe, but the panic when the liner struck was only quelled by the heroism of the officers and crew.

More than a hundred New York city teachers have been married this summer.

SELF-INFLICTED INJURIES FATAL

Wm. Fortune Passed Away at Nicholls Hospital—Funeral on Tuesday

William Fortune, aged 57 years, and a resident of Villiers, in Asphodel township, died yesterday at Nicholls Hospital, as a result of self-inflicted injuries.

The deceased was a well-known farmer in Asphodel, and was unmarried. The events leading to his death were published in the Review about a week ago. He attempted to take his life by cutting his throat with a razor.

The body was taken to the residence of his brother, lot 19, concession 3, in Otonabee, from which place the funeral will take place on Tuesday morning at [illegible] o'clock to Westwood cemetery.

LICENSES RENEWED

The liquor licenses of the Little Windsor Hotel, the Munro House, and the American Hotel were renewed by the license commissioners at the meeting held in the inspector's office Saturday night.

Representations were made by the solicitor for the licensee of the American hotel, to the effect that the business would be sold as soon as a purchaser could be secured. When a new proprietor takes charge the premises must be altered and improved to the satisfaction of the board, before the license is granted.

The licenses of the New Oxford and the Snowden House were also renewed to the new proprietors.

Blueboards the Latest.

Will blue boards succeed blackboards in the public school? This is a question soon to come before the Toronto trustees. Inspector Hughes has always claimed the former are much easier for the eyes than the latter, and lately numerous complaints have been received by the trustees from parents that the sight of their children is impaired. This is substantiated to a large extent by the number of children who wear glasses. Some time ago slates came under the ban of the inspector, owing to the bad effects of the eyes from the striking contrast of white on black. White scribbling books were also changed to grey to avoid the same trouble, while numerous minor alterations were made to ease the eyes. So it now appears it is up to the blackboard to vacate in favor of blue.

Made 295 Mile Trip.

Bayreuth, Aug. 1.—After a devious course in stormy weather the dirigible Parseval VI. landed safely here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Parseval ascended at midnight at Bitterfield to make the voyage to Munich, her commander hoping to cover the stretch of 295 miles without interruption. Owing to motor trouble, however, it became necessary to descend at Lobstadt, where repairs occupied nearly three hours. From here the Parseval will continue on to Munich in the morning.

Hamilton Man's Suicide.

Hamilton, Aug. 1.—In a fit of despondency, George Upsdell, 472 North Ferguson avenue, committed suicide yesterday by taking carbolic acid. It is said that he had been drinking of late, and that shortly before noon he swallowed some acid in his own home.

Coroner Balfe decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The deceased was 40 years of age.

Toronto Graduate Gets Position.

Kingston, Aug. 1.—R. M. Chase, B. A., of Cobourg, has been appointed assistant classical teacher in the Collegiate Institute here. Mr. Chase is a graduate of Toronto University.

New Height Record.

Brussels, Aug. 1.—M. Olieslagers, the Belgian aviator, Saturday made a monoplane flight to a height of 4,712 feet, a new world's record for monoplanes.

Napanee Booming.

Napanee, Aug. 1.—Napanee is experiencing a building boom this summer. Already about $60,000 has been expended, or is under way.

Laura Jean Libbey, the author of more than 50 novels, is going on the stage in New York.

Government statistics furnish ample evidence that local option and reduction of licenses does not curtail drunkenness. Why not advocate the drinking of Regal Lager and promote true temperance.

A DELIGHTFUL HAIR DRESSING THAT MAKES HAIR GROW

Favorite With Men and Women the Country Over

There is reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in the Dominion since it was first introduced into Canada.

And the reason is plain to all. Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do.

Ask Wm. Madill about it. He will tell you that he rigidly guarantees is to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

But one thing that has made Parisian Sage so famous is its peculiar power to turn the harsh, unattractive hair that many women possess into luxuriant and radiant hair in a short time. Women of refinement the country over are using it and it never disappoints. Read this letter:

"I procured Parisian Sage and found that it was a great hair tonic and cleanser. I have used other preparations, but Parisian Sage cleaned the salp, stopped all irritation, made my hair fluffy, silky, and left no trace of stickiness as some other hair tonics had." Mrs. Sarah Sanderhoff, 1403 N. Washington St., Owosso, Mich., June 22, 1909.

Sold by leading druggists everywhere, and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, for 50 cents a large bottle. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package; mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

"I find Parisian Sage a good hair remedy. My brother has also used Parisian Sage and says it is fine."—Yours sincerely, Julia Corbin, Huntingdon, Pa., Oct. 29, 1909.

THE SITUATION IN LINDSAY

Lindsay Warder.

The only change in the strike situation in Lindsay to-day was that the flyer made her first trip from Peterborough to Lindsay and through to Toronto in charge of Conductor O'Neil, who is unknown in this division.

C.P.R. BUSY.

As a result of the strike the C.P.R. have two express wagons in town, extra men in the freight sheds and extra coaches on the passenger trains. They had such a freight rush yesterday that an extra had to be sent to Lindsay. Not a car of freight has left Lindsay on the Grand Trunk since the strike commenced.

NO FREIGHT ARRIVED.

Yesterday afternoon it was rumored around town that a freight train had reached Lindsay from Toronto, but this report has been denied by both the railway strikers and other officials. "A report in the Toronto papers to the effect that the G.T.R. despatched a train of nine cars to Lindsay may be true," said a G.T.R. man this morning, "but it has not arrived here yet."

POINT OF DIFFERENCE.

The chief point of difference on which the negotiations for arbitration now hang is the question of the retention of the men hired since the strike began. It was on this point that the union leaders and the officials of the company split up in the first approaches towards arbitration. President Hays repeated this morning that he would on no account displace the men taken on since the strike, and Vice-President Murdock again said the union would consider no proposition which did not include the taking on of all the strikers.

STRIKE PAY COMING.

The strikers are not at all discouraged, but confident of victory. It was stated that every day a certain number of men receive a notice asking them to return to their work. This the strikers regard as an effort to get at the men individually and thus undermine the strength of the organization. So far, the men say, no attention has been paid to these notices. Next week, probably Monday—the expiration of two weeks—strike pay begins, $50 being paid to conductors and $35 to others, whether members of the union or not. "We have millions behind us," said one of the committee, "and we can fight for months. The company has already lost as much as the extra pay would cost them. We are every whit as capable as C.P.R. men and we should get the same pay."

VERY ORDERLY STRIKERS.

Another week has passed and the strikers on this division are still hopeful, confident and in good humor. They have been very orderly in Lindsay, not one disturbance being reported. All the men were given some time ago strict instructions that there must be no rowdyism of any kind, that the fight as far as the men are concerned must be conducted in a fair and orderly manner.

SENSELESS CHARGES

Mr. James Murdock is quoted in a contemporary as saying in reference to the Grand Trunk strike—"I can cite cases of absolutely green men being placed in charge of trains; I know of instances where the trains have run past signals hung out to indicate that there were orders there for them through the ignorance of the train crew, and other instances where trains ran for miles against each other."

There is something radically wrong here. Either the newspaper makes a fool of Mr. Murdock or the latter is making a fool of the newspaper. In either case the result is the same, stupidity being employed to fool the public and create a feeling that travel on the Grand Trunk is not safe. That trains are running past displayed order boards simply because they happened to have a non-union conductor and brakeman on board is such a ridiculous assertion that it can only excite laughter among people who know. It is, however, calculated to cause apprehension amongst the travelling public, and for their enlightenment it may be mentioned that the conductor, the brakeman and the baggageman have nothing to do with the train order board until the train has stopped. The board is there for the guidance of the engineer, and he is the man responsible. If a train runs past a displayed order board he is to blame. When he stops for an order board he is not expected to move his train again until he secures his release in the shape of the orders the board was hung out for. Surely it is not intended to convey to the public the idea that the Grand Trunk engineers are a careless lot of men not to be trusted with a train unless they have a brotherhood conductor on board to see that they do not run past displayed order boards. Again, there is the charge that trains have been running for miles against each other. How did that happen? A train cannot run against another train unless it is running against an order. It surely is not charged that the Grand Trunk Engineers have been running contrary to orders. It certainly is the duty of the engineers to enter a protest against this charge of criminal carelessness on their part, no matter whether the fault lies with Mr. Murdock or the newspapers.—Montreal Gazette, July 27th, 1910.

GO SLOW ON BROOM CORN.

High Price of Crop Tempting Many Farmers Into Untried Field.

The extremely high price of broom corn has aroused a widespread interest in the crop, says O. D. Center of the University of Illinois. Broom corn belongs to the same family as sorghum, Kaffir corn, milo maize and Jerusalem corn, all of which are classed botanically as Andropogon sorghum. It differs from the other members of this group in having the seed beads with much longer, straighter, stronger straws or branches. These form the brush, which is the valuable portion of the plant.

Broom corn growing now is and will always remain a small industry because the demand for the brush is not only limited, but small. This crop, then, is not a profitable one to include in a system of general farming. According to the best authorities, the world's consumption of brush is less than 50,000 tons, and as this brush is used but for one purpose there can be no sudden increase in the amount required. The total world's supply could be produced on 130,000 acres, and the territory and men equipped for and engaged in broom corn growing already could easily double the present production if the demand warranted.

Broom corn is marketed wholly in the bale. Throughout central Illinois there are numerous jobbers and commission men who do nothing but handle this crop. Because of dishonest practices in baling, large dealers and factory operators are cautious about buying except from established and reputable jobbers.

Because broom corn is selling for as high as $200 per ton many novices who are attracted by the high prices will plant extensively this season. Without a working knowledge of the requirements of the crop and without the special equipment necessary for its successful handling the result of this extensive planting will be an enormous overproduction of brush, much of which will be of very inferior quality.

It is seldom the man who undertakes a new line of business because of abnormally high prices who makes the money. It is the man who thoroughly learns a business and then sticks to it through high prices and low who comes out with the dollar. This being true, we must say that this is not a favorable time to embark in the business of broom corn production.

Plowing Twice For Crop.

Sod land is very good for almost all crops if the season is seasonably wet and other conditions are favorable. One of the worst troubles with corn in sod land is that the cutworms living in the sod destroy much of the young corn. By plowing sod land for corn in late fall or early winter many of the cutworms will be destroyed; also when the land is plowed at this time the sod will have more time to settle and decay, and the corn next season will stand dry weather better. If the sod must be plowed again next spring no harm, but much good, will be done. Plowing any land twice for a crop or disking well after plowing is labor well spent.

Beautify the Home Grounds.

Properly planting the right kind of trees, shrubs and plants on the home grounds means much more than mere beauty—it has a decidedly practical side. It is cheaper to beautify the home grounds than to allow them to go bare and uninviting. Decorating the home grounds transforms a house into a home. It makes the house a part of a beautiful picture and surrounds it with such evidence of loving care that it immediately impresses the beholder with the feeling that people live in the house—that they do not merely exist there.—Journal of Agriculture.

BREVITIES.

Scandal is a very effective soiling crop.

Ten to one there is a surplus of lawyers, doctors and clerks in your county and a shortage of farm help.

The suggestion was made at a local English farmers' meeting that all moles should be killed at public expense. Next!

A Pennsylvania woman burned her husband's wooden leg as the only way to prevent him from going to a saloon. The judge upheld her.

Well, sir, if people cannot get beef, pork or mutton at fair prices they will eat more eggs and chickens. Mrs. Hen is coming to the front.

The figures show that 182,000 persons attended the various farmers' institute meetings in New York last winter. Of course many of these attended several sessions.

In England the trade in wornout or "sore" city horses has become so bad that parliament is asked for a law authorizing inspectors to kill all such animals that are found "doctored" or badly lame or diseased.—Rural New Yorker.

Two hundred and fifty thousand trees are to be supplied to public school pupils of Brooklyn next year.

HER MUSICAL TASTE.

[Professor Louis Wilson says that each color harmonizes with a corresponding note in music.]

I cannot wear the old songs
  I wore a year ago.
My last year's hat was in B flat
  And sounds like "Old Black Joe."
My husband says to change it
  And pitch it now in F.
I tell him that a last year's hat
  Appeals but to the deaf.

I cannot wear the old tunes,
  Although they're not worn out.
My dinner gown would make you frown
  Without the slightest doubt.
It's too accelerando.
  The higher notes are slurred.
The scherzo skirt I used to flirt
  No longer can be heard.

I dote on modern music.
  To me it is sublime.
In last year's waist there can be traced
  "The Good Old Summer Time."
And so I will not wear it,
  Though it's as good as new.
I know you'd mock a ragtime frock
  If one dawned on your view.

My new hat's a cadenza
  Of wondrous tones and trills.
My husband swears in minor airs
  When he looks at the bills.
There is a charm in music
  To soothe the savage breast,
But men have hearts which music's darts
  Find armor plate at best.

Still, I've made out my program
  From overture to end.
For sleeve duets I've made some debts,
  But all the chords must blend.
I cannot wear the old songs
  I wore a year gone by.
They're now as old as "Threads of Gold"
  Or "Comin' Thro' the Rye."
—Chicago Post.

It's Playing Ball That Counts.

"Young men," said the college coach to the assembling team, "culture counts in the national game."

"What ye givin' us?" shrieked an old timer. "Old Pete Bunker of our town thot Henry James was a tavern clerk, but he played all the ball there wuz."

Escaped Convict Caught.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—Col. A. P. Sherwood, head of the Dominion police, was yesterday notified of an important arrest at Winnipeg by Chief E. J. Elliott, one of the Dominion force officers. He took in charge Pierre Vinckier, who is wanted by the Belgian Government, and who, in 1907, was sentenced to six years on a charge of indecent assault on children under 11 years of age. Vinckier, while held at or near Flandro, Orientale, Belgium, escaped without serving any of the sentence.

Sunk In Collision.

Amherstburg, Aug. 1.—The Grace Whitney, a coal barge in tow of the steamer Maine, upward bound, was sunk three miles south and southeast of Bar Point light early yesterday morning. The steamer Ogdensburg collided with her, and she went down immediately. Two of the crew were drowned.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The thieves who broke into Sanderson's jewellery store and looted the premises for diamond rings would not have made the attempt, in all probability, had his back premises been strewn with garbage like some others, for it would be risky to one's life to tramp through such stuff in the dark. The moral is, keep plenty of garbage at your back door and you will be encouraged by the laxity of our Council and Board of Health.

Yours,

Sir,—I see by your paper of Saturday that one of the orders on the list of rules and regulations of the Board of Health for Aurora, Ill., requires its residents to take a bath once a week.

Can you inform me whether there is such an order on the list of rules and regulations of our Board of Health, and would you kindly publish such list for the guidance of our citizens, so that no one may be arrested for a violation of its terms?

NEW PASTOR AT GEORGE ST. CHURCH

Rev. Isaac Couch Occupied the Pulpit for the First Time—Large Congregations Present

Services of unusual interest were held at the George street Methodist church yesterday, Rev. Isaac Couch occupying the pulpit for the first time. He made a very favorable impression with the congregation, which was a large one, both morning and evening. For the morning discourse Rev. Mr. Couch took for his subject, "The Love of God," and for the evening, "How to become a Christian."

Mr. Frank Weaver, organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Berlin, presided at the organ, and at the conclusion of the evening service gave an organ recital, which was highly appreciated.

SHORTAGE OF BREAD

Many citizens who failed to get enough bread from their baker on Saturday went breadless on Sunday.

The reason was that there was a large demand for bread on Saturday, principally by the farmers. In conversation with a couple of grocery stores to-day, the Review was informed that such a happening is quite frequent in the city.

Many peolpe, after visiting all the grocery stores in their vicinity Saturday evening in quest of the staff of life, became quite worried over their non-success in securing it.

WEST ENDERS EASY PICKING FOR THE T.A.S. ALL THE WAY

Abstainers Wafted Safely on Fifteen Occasions and Assisted by Seventeen Errors by the Greys, Piled up Seventeen Runs--A Weird Exhibition of Ball

Beneath these rugged elms, that yew trees shade,
Where heaves the turf, in many a smoldering heap,
Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The members of the West End ball team sleep.

The curtain had descended and they are gone. Some of us whose acquaintance, with them, goes back to Saturday, July 16, were very much touched. The particulars of their passing are depressing. It was a sad sight and such a one we never wish to witness again. We have seen others pass into the shaded regions of "Hasbeenville," but they slipped away from our midst, with their boots on. 'Twas not so in this case. The final moments were awful, but those left behind may perhaps find consolation in the only thing left to say. It is this: They left behind a warning which goes something like:

NEVER CHEW OFF MORE THAN YOU CAN COMFORTABLY MASTICATE.

Excuse us from being present at such another. While it started off fairly well, the middle part was worse than watching a bunch of local amateurs attempting to put on our old favorite, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and while the feeling in the air told us that something was coming, we were hardly prepared for what really did come. However, there is some satisfaction in knowing that there won't be another meeting. The deed was well done, in fact a little more so. From the moment that $1.50 bundle of leather went gliding over the eastern boundary of the park, never to return, the vasaline jar, opened for good, and it was ever after, just as easy as sliding along with the assistance of a forty mile breeze. Many times on past occasions, we attended much better performances at a trifle over half the price, and then had some rich comedy served up at intervals. It was twenty-five cents this time and a ducking thrown in. To the defeated ones our sympathy refuses to go out. Even were we to join hands with others, it would fail completely to have the desired effect. No good could possibly be done. By far the better course will be pursued in dropping it and live in hopes that the lesson so ably taught, will serve the intended purpose and be a beacon light for all others, affected by an abnormal swelling of that part of the anatomy, where the top covering is not always natural. Much more might be said, but the following statements and figures explain the catastrophe in full:

First Innings.

Pete Campbell for the West Ends couldn't do better than send a roller to M. O'Brien. Logan waited for a complimentary and stole second. He went to third when Konald grounded out, Corkery to first, but Crane got over anxious and bit at the wrong kind.

Jimme Callaghan led off for the T.A.S., and contributed the first strikeout. Smith dropped the third, but threw the runner out at first. Jimmie O'Hearn started a big day for himself by calmly waiting for four wide ones. He stole second. Mike O'Brien connected for a safe one, and Dickie's error allowed O'Hearn to tally the first run. Quinlan made three mighty swipes and retired to the lemonade. With Wylder batting, Rose sent a wild heave and O'Brien sent the score into double figures. Wylder grounded and was safe on Heffernan's drop. McFadden ended by flying to Heffernan. Two runs.

Second Innings.

Dicke was passed and went to second when Heffernan grounded out, O'Hearn to O'Brien. Smith hit the third one on the end of the bat, but O'Brien by fast work beat him out at the bag. Dickie went to third on the play and remained there, for as in the first innings, with a man on third, the necessary waft wasn't forthcoming, Minorgan fanning.

Haney ran out the third strike, but was collared at first. Bill O'Brien singled and Konold's bungle made it smooth sailing for a trip home. Corkery went out at first, and Callaghan made the third, Minorgan to Heffernan. One run.

Third Innings.

Rose and Campbell fanned. Logan doubled and counted when Konold sent a hot one through short. Konold was out taking second, Wylder to O'Hearn. One run.

The T.A.S. only got seven runs in this spasm. O'Hearn started with a single, and Mike O'Brien used all his avoirdupois, on one of Gussie's low ones, and there was a connection with the brook on the other side of the fence, immediately in the rear of the locality where Fish Haney warbles. It was the first homer of the season, and thus a brace of runs were added. The team at bat almost took a fit and the smile flitted from the face of the opposing leader. Quinlan sent a gentle one at Konold, and just by way of continuing the fireworks he sent the ball over Heff's highest reach, and the runner kept on running till he reached third. Wylder sent him in with a hit, and then by a presentation on the part of Logan, he crossed safely. McFadden skied to Minorgan and Haney missed three again. On five errors and a wild pitch the next three batters, O'Brien, Corkery and Callahan, scored. O'Hearn hit, and stole second, but was out taking third, Rose to Konold, when he got in wrong on a supposed balk. Seven runs.

Dickie Might Have Pulled Down That Homer Had He Been Thus Provided

Fourth Innings.

Crane was safe at first when O'Hearn fumbled his grounder. Dickie struck out, and Heffernan followed him. Brydie, batting for Smith, hit safely and Crane came in. Minorgan laid down a grass cutter, which M. O'Brien glued and was a close winner at the pillow. One run.

Crane catching for West Ends. In this innings the T.A.S. showed decidedly poor judgment. Instead of playing the game, the players stood up at the plate with the evident intention of being put out as soon as possible. The umpire, however, said a few words that had a magical effect, and the players tightened up just a little. M. O'Brien fanned, and Quinlan was another victim. Wylder was safe on another loose contribution from Konold. McFadden biffed in vain.

Fifth Innings.

Gibson, batting for Rose, grounded out, Quinlan to O'Brien. The game was called for a short time on account of rain. When play started again Haney dropped Campbell's fly. Logan got life on Quinlan's fumble. Konold walked and the corners were all populated. Crane hit to O'Hearn, who ran over and touched second, forcing Konold, and then threw the runner out at first.

Manager Oldham sent Creswell to the mound, but he fared no better than Rose. He passed Haney and O'Brien hit safely. Corkery flew out to Minorgan who tried to double Haney, but Logan dropped the throw and "Fish" got third. Callaghan laid one down but Haney beat the throw to the plate. O'Hearn got his third safety of the afternoon, scoring O'Brien and Callaghan. M. O'Brien struck out. O'Hearn was out trying to steal third, Creswell to Konold.

Sixth Innings.

The West End went out in order in this innings.

The cold water bunch added another counter on a pass to Wilder and singles by McFadden and Haney.

Seventh Innings.

Both sider were retired runless in this innings.

Eighth Innings.

The West Ends were again presented with a goose egg.

The Abstainers added three more to their string on a double by Haney, followed with singles by W. O'Brien, Corkery, and Callaghan, assisted in their efforts by misplays on the part of Messrs. Konold and Gibson.

Ninth Innings.

The West Ends grabbed another tally on singles by Hefernan and Gibson, aided by Corkery's fumble.

FREE PASSES.

The attendance was large, and it is regrettable that the contest was so onesided.

But the West Ends can and have played much better ball. The T.A.S lost the previous game in pretty much the same manner. The question of which is the better team has not been settled. In both contests it was a case of the losing team having a day off.

Quinlan and Rose had each seven strikeouts to their credit, but, oh, what a difference in the other statistics.

The exhibition was without doubt a rank one, but the rain helped considerably to put things on the bias.

This man Wylder from Wellington handles himself well. He looked as though he would be able to produce the goods in a tight argument.

Jimmie O'Hearn had a noisy day. Three hits, two runs, one miss out of eight chances, and he figured in two double plays.

Minorgan displayed a lack of headwork that was surprising when he interfered with Konold, who went after a grounder.

Seventeen errors. That's a record for the season, and it looks like an attempt on the part of the Westerners to put it over the P.A.C. and Strathconas, who in a previous performance handed out fifteen each.

Too bad, Mike. That homer should have arrived some weeks ago.

Besides having another position, Bill Gibson is some tumbler.

It's hard to say what Johnny Rosevear thought about it, and there won't be any prize hung up for the one who guesses the correct thing.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

MISS KATHERINE REYNARD

New York, Aug. 1.—Announcement has just been made of an interesting engagement, that of Miss Katherine Reynard, of No. 340 West Eighty-sixth street, to Mr. Adolph C. Schwartz, of this city.

Miss Reynard was educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Manhattanville, and later she perfected herself in languages in Venice and and Vienna. She returned home last October in February she made her debut. She is very pretty and popular among a large circle of friends. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Emma Josephine Schwartz, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Schwartz, is now the wife of Mr. Geo. E. Rupert, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz will leave on board the George Washington to-morrow for an extended tour of Germany, Austria and Italy.

SETTLEMENT REPORTED; BUT STRIKERS DENY IT

Conflicting Statements Made by Officials and Men Point to Fact That a Deadlock Exists in Conference at Montreal—Toronto Men Protest.

Montreal, Aug. 2.—As the result of the further conference between the representatives of the Grand Trunk trainmen and conductors and the Grand Trunk management, and Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, it is believed that an agreement has been reached and that the strike will likely be called off to-day.

Grand Trunk officials stated last night that it was understood that a basis of agreement had been reached, but that the details were not ready.

The union officials, however, say that a settlement has not yet been reached, and that they will not call the strike off unless there is some definite announcement from the company.

However, one of the strike leaders in the negotiations at midnight was absolutely non-communicative, except in denying that any settlement had so far been arrived at. He would neither affirm nor deny that prospects were bright for an agreement during the next few hours.

Protest to Ottawa.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—The strikers yesterday decided to send notification to Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, complaining of breaches of the alien labor law by the G.T.R.; and to Chairman Mabee of the Dominion Railway Board, complaining of alleged inefficient train crews.

While the company officials insist that freight and passenger traffic is being satisfactorily handled, the fact remains that advices from outside towns shows no relief in the way of freight movement, while dozens of passengers say that they are riding free on the trains, there being no attempt at collection of tickets.

There are 135 militiamen and regulars on strike duty at Bridgeburg, with everything quiet.

Mustn't Bleach Flour.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 2.—Millers must stop bleaching flour, pending adjudication by the higher courts, or stand criminal prosecution for each shipment made in interstate commerce, according to a decision reached here yesterday at a conference between officials of the Departments of Agriculture and Justice.

Alfonso Off to England.

San Sebastian, Spain, Aug. 2.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria left yesterday to pay a visit to the royal family in England. They will stop at Rembouillet, France, to visit President Fallieres of the French Republic, on the way.

TWO SUICIDES IN TORONTO

Hearts Broken; Took Acid, Because of Unrequitted Love.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Women were the cause of two suicides yesterday, both by carbolic acid. One, a youth, took acid because he could not get the girl's mother's consent to marriage, the other, a man with a prison record and no home, because the women he had lived with previous to his last term, refused to take him back.

Melancholia was the motive for the suicide of William Carlton, aged 20, of Parry Sound, in his room at 152 Victoria street, at about 7 o'clock last night.

The youth was smitten by the charms of a girl 16 years old. He wrote to her mother at Dwight, Ont., near Huntsville, asking permission to marry the girl and the refusal plunged him into a state of despondency.

Sunday night he attempted to take his life by drinking wood alcohol. After taking the poison, his heart failed him and he went to a doctor who administered an antidote.

Last night his landlady found Carlton in his room on the third floor with a vial which had contained acid beside him. Carlton was gasping for breath and shortly afterwards he expired.

Carlton did not mingle with the other residents of the house. They noticed that he was melancholy, but did not think it was serious. Coroner Pickering investigated the case last night, and will hold an inquest. The body is now at the morgue.

Jack Lyons, between 30 and 35 years of age, took acid in the presence of May Fitzsimmons at her house, 215 West Richmond street, late yesterday afternoon. When he got out of the Central Prison several weeks ago, he tried to persuade her to reinstate him in her affections. She refused. He called on her a number of times, but each time she repulsed him. About two weeks ago he tried to drink carbolic acid directly after she had refused him, but she interfered, spilling the fluid. Her arms were badly burned at the time. She did not inform on him or even take steps to have him kept away.

Yesterday he visited her for the last time. Almost immediately after she against refused he drank the acid, dying in a few minutes.

WILLIAM J. CALHOUN.

PEKIN, AUG. 1.—Mr. William J. Calhoun, American minister to China, has returned from Pei-Tai-Ho, the diplomatic summer capital, his presence here being necessary during the Chinese-American exchanges relative to the new Russo-Japanese convention.

The conviction prevails among diplomatists here that the convention puts an entirely new aspect on the Far Eastern situation and involves far reaching possibilities.

From a diplomatic viewpoint the most important feature is the manifest repudiation of the "open door" and "equal opportunity" pledges of the Russo-Japanese agreement of 1907, which it ostensibly supplements and amends.

The open abandonment of the "equal opportunity" principle by the two Powers banded together in Manchuria creates, in the opinion of diplomatists, a new status, and one wholly different from that which the other Powers have endorsed.

Great Britain's approval is construed as another illustration of the present government's sacrifice of principle and the higher British interests upon the alter of an Anglo-Japanese alliance, and through an eagerness to cater to Russia, inspired by "Germanphobia."

CRIPPEN, LONDON MURDER SUSPECT, WILLING TO RETURN

Fugitives Caught on S.S. Montrose Are Arraigned in Court Simply to Make Sure of Their Identity---Crippen Has His First Break-Down and Admits Using Drugs.

Quebec, Aug. 2.—Scotland Yard, represented by Inspector Dew, and the provincial police of Quebec, piloted the London murder suspect, Dr. Hawley Crippen, through a mass of excited humanity in staid old Quebec City yesterday morning, and arraigned him before Judges Angers and Langelier for preliminary examination in connection with the charge against him of having caused the death of an unknown woman in London.

Ultimately it was decided to proceed under the Fugitive Offenders Act, which entails considerable delay. Crippen was asked a few questions, and an adjournment was taken for eight days. As a matter of fact it will be fifteen days before legal technicalities will have worked their course. Dew was plainly disappointed at the delay.

Crippen showed the first sign of weakness last evening, when he practically collapsed in his cell, necessitating a hurried call for medical attendance. He admitted to the physician when he had revived that he was addicted to drugs.

The little doctor has been apparently entirely at his ease since he came into the charge of the officers. He was reading a novel when the Montrose poked her nose around the Isle of Orleans at one o'clock yesterday morning, and steamed into Quebec harbor. Later in the morning he took up the thread of the tale. While policemen, lawyers and pressmen tramped through the corridors of the lock-up, in the east wing of the Parliament Buildings, previous to the court hearing, he continued his reading. He slept soundly during the night, with two guards watching over him, and he had eaten a hearty breakfast. To the enquiry of the sergeant, Crippen said he felt all right, except that his head was aching a little.

"I guess it is the air in here. You see, I have never been in jail before," he replied.

Ethel Leneve, who purports to be Crippen's wife, was too ill to appear in court, and will be questioned by the judge at the residence of Chief Constable McCarthy, where she is in charge of a nurse. A story is being circulated that she attempted to commit suicide after the arrest Sunday, and this has been partly confirmed by Dr. Stewart of the Montrose. Interviewed yesterday morning, Dr. Stewart said that, as the officers entered the girl's cabin Sunday, after arresting Crippen, they found her with a powder in her hand, which she threw out of the port hole before they could intercept her. It is only surmised that the powder was a poison.

At 11 o'clock all was ready for the drive to the court house, and the murder suspect emerged from his cell between two officers, and wearing handcuffs. His face was as clean as a rough and ready shave could make it, plus 24 hours' growth, and he wore no spectacles. He was dressed in the night sack suit in which he made the sea trip, and he wore a wide-leafed fedora hat and white collar. The skin of his face is almost a dirty yellow and anything but prepossessing. A large crowd blocked the passage, but were pressed back by Detective Thorne, while Crippen hurried nimbly along towards the waiting rig.

In the court room sat a dozen reporters, while every foot of floor about was jammed with people. Crippen was taken into the court room. Judge Angers informed the prisoner that it was only for the purpose of identification that the proceedings were being taken. Crippen said he did not intend to fight against being taken back, but was willing to return to England with the inspector. As under the Fugitive Offenders' Act, 15 days are necessary before they can be taken back, the remand gives the prisoners an opportunity, if they so desire, to take out a writ of habeas corpus, or institute any other proceedings.

The authorities at Quebec consider this case one of the most complicated that has come within their ken. Crippen, an American citizen, is charged with murder in England, and escapes to a semi-independent state in the Empire, and he is caught while on the sea, but in the waters of that state, which makes its own laws. Now the question arises should Crippen, as an American citizen, claim extradition to the States, and it is understood, should he claim such protection, the American consul is bound to help him. There is a possibility, therefore, that the prisoner will yet decide to avail himself of the law's provisions in that respect.

The Montrose was curiously viewed yesterday by hundreds of persons. Though the steamer did not reach port until 1.30 yesterday morning, quite a large crowd was waiting to catch a glimpse of the notorious fugitives. The first to be brought from his cabin was Crippen. He was handcuffed and looked very dejected. When he was brought opposite Ethel Leneve's cabin he looked around with the expectation of being recognized by her, but the girl was too dejected to see anything or anybody, for a more forlorn-looking creature never dropped off the vessel. She was dressed in clothes belonging to the stewardess, and they were too big, and with hair cropped and her sobbing, it was a heart-rending sight. Captain Kendall, taking pity on her, took hold of one arm to help her down the gangway to the rig that was in waiting. They were taken to the provincial jail.

Dr. Stewart, the ship's doctor, who was speaking to Crippen at the time of his arrest, stated that though he strongly suspected the pair, he had no idea that the arrest would take place on board, and he was himself a surprised man when he saw what appeared to be four pilots coming in a small boat on the starboard side, instead of the regulation pilot boat. When he saw the captain go to meet them, he instinctively took Crippen over to the port side so as to allay his suspicions, and to be on hand in case the man attempted suicide.

The fourth officer said he suspected the pair almost from the first and he tells a little story of how Ethel gave her sex away. One stormy morning, while on his way to the wheel-house, he met her on deck. The officer commented on the weather. "Oh, it's simply awful!" answered the supposed boy, using her hands in a ladylike manner, and then, suddenly remembering her guise, she hardened her voice, saying, "Yes, it's damned rotten weather!"

When Crippen was told he was to be taken to England after an arraignment at Quebec, he made no objection, but said he was agreeable to get back as early as possible. He asked for a book to read and was supplied with brandy and cigars.

Captain Kendall had nothing to say, he being advised by Inspector Dew that, as he would be called as a witness, it was better to say nothing. The captain, who is only 35 years old, is popular amongst his officers and men, and when they heard that "the old man" would be able to claim the $1,250 offered by Scotland Yard, they all said that no man deserved it more. Kendall, indeed, is one of the youngest and smartest officers in the C.P.R. service. He is clean-shaven, with blonde hair, is a well-set-up man and certainly a bright man to meet. The Montrose is a continental boat, carrying freight and only second and third-class passengers on this trip. She carried 22 second and 216 third-class passengers, mostly foreigner. There were only five women, including Ethel Leneve, among the cabin passengers.

FIREMAN'S AWFUL REVENGE SLAYS FOUR TO VENT SPITE

Bert S. Durham Rings in a False Alarm, Kills Driver of Fire Wagon, Mortally Wounds a Second, Then Goes Home and Slays His Wife and Child.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 2.—Bert S. Durham, a former fireman, after shooting and killing one city fireman, mortally wounding a second and seriously wounding a third, near a firebox from which he had sent in a false alarm, in an effort for revenge, early yesterday, went to his home and with a bludgeon beat his wife and little children to death. He made his escape, but afterwards shot himself.

Nursing an old grudge against Fire Captain Sampsell, under whom he had worked as engine driver, and on whose complaint he had been discharged from the services for insubordination, Durham early yesterday sent in a false alarm from the outskirts of the city. When Capt. Sampsell and his crew come up, Durham opened fire on his former workmates with a revolver.

At the first shot, Driver Don Grant fell from his seat dead with a bullet in his head. At his second shot, Hoseman Guy Elliott pitched to the ground with a bullet through his stomach.

Durham then leveled his revolver at Sampsell and fired twice, both bullets percing Sampsell's lungs. Two more shots fired at the other members of the crew went wild.

Durham drew another revolver and covered his retreat as he started to run. As he disappeared in the darkness, Durham shouted back to the chief: "Tell my wife I am going to kill myself."

The victims of the shooting were rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital in one of the nose wagons. Operations were performed on Sampsell and Elliott.

Within half an hour after the shooting a score of police officers and deputy sheriffs were on the scene in autos and had begun a man hunt. Owing to the darkness, Durham reached home and slew his family and then fled again.

Durham, who was hunted relentlessly for hours, dodged his pursuers, leaving them without a clue, boarded a car in the residential district, and rode quickly to the plaza in the centre of the business section, where he put a bullet into his brain. He recovered consciousness later, but the coroner says he will die.

Mrs. Durham and her child were beaten to death with a steel bar, while they lay asleep in their rooms in a downtown lodging house.

Arrested For Lynching.

Columbus, O., Aug. 2.—L. J. Bolton, aged 32, Newark, Ohio, saloonkeeper, is held here under a charge of first degree murder in connection with the lynching July 8, at Newark, of Carl M. Etherington, an anti-saloon league special officer.

He is alleged to have placed the noose around Etherington's neck. The arrest was made Sunday night at Delaware, Ohio.

Detectives operating under Attorney-General Denman have been searching for Bolton since July 1. He was traced to West Baden, Ind., Hot Springs, Ark., Atlantic City, N.J., and Megnetic Springs, near Delaware.

FATALITIES OF A DAY

Drowned In Muskoka.

Gravenhurst, Aug. 2.—A very sad drowning accident occurred here Saturday afternoon about three o'clock on Muskoka Bay, in which two young ladies lost their lives. J. E. Mark, formerly a patient at the Free Sanitarium, took two young ladies of Toronto, the Misses Jewesson, out for a sail in a canoe. The lake was very rough, and, while passing the Muskoka Navigation Co.'s steamer Nipissing, the swells from the steamer, combined with the strong waves, upset the canoe.

Mr. Mark and one of the Misses Jewesson were picked up, but although every effort was made by the doctors, the girl could not be restored to consciousness. Mr. Mark soon came around and is not much the worse from the effects of the accident. The body of the other Miss Jewesson was not recovered until Sunday afternoon.

N.Y.C. Engineer Killed.

Rome, N.Y., Aug. 2.—At 2.20 a.m. yesterday a westbound light engine on the New York Central Railway, running on track two, about half a mile west of Oriskany, became disabled and the engineer, Bertram L. West of Rovenna, N.P., stopped to make repairs.

The fireman went back with a lantern to warn approaching trains. He had gone only a short distance when a fast passenger train westbound, running on track two, came along. The engineer was unable to check his speed in time to avoid a collision with the light engine. Engineer West, who was evidently under his engine making repairs, was killed.

The accident occurred about 1,000 feet west of a signal tower. Not much damage was done to either engine.

Drowned In the Canal.

Kingston, Aug. 2.—The steamer North King on arrival here reported the drowning of William Dunn, watchman on the steamer for twenty years, in the Murray Canal, while the boat was coming east during the night. The body was recovered. It is not known how the accident happened. Dunn belonged to Kingston.

Mother Drowns Four Babies.

Antioch, Cal., Aug. 2.—One after another four little children were drowned in a tub near here by their mother. The woman, Mrs. Joseph Mello, walked away from her dead babies quietly and calmly submitted to arrest. She had become suddenly demented. The eldest child was four years old.

Quarryman Killed.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 2.—Dominic Piemond was struck by a falling stone, while working at the Queenston Quarry Co.'s quarry yesterday, and instantly killed. The stone struck his leg, bowling him over, and his neck was broken by the fall.

Deaf Mute Run Down.

Kingston, Aug. 2.—The Bay of Quinte express, which leaves here at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, ran over Henry D. Watts, a deaf mute, of Portsmouth, at the Cataraqui street crossing. Both of the young man's legs were fearfully crushed above the knees. He was conveyed to the General Hospital, but the doctors did not amputate the mangled limbs, as there is no hope of the unfortunate man surviving many hours. Watts was about 25 years of age, and was a laborer.

Found Floating In River.

Prescott, Aug 2.—About 6.30 yesterday morning, when returning from his summer cottage at Blakey's Point in his motor boat, G. K. Henderson found a dead body floating in the St. Lawrence River about two miles above Prescott. The body was brought to Prescott, and identified as the body of Mr. Hunt, who was drowned near Brockville about a week ago while trying out a new motor boat, in company with an employe of the Gilbert Boat Works of Brockville.

Death by Drowning.

Glens Falls, N.Y., Aug. 2.—The death of seven-year-old Bertha Reneaud, whose headless, armless and feetless body was taken from Lake Champlain on Saturday last, was due to drowning, Coroner Belegarde of Whitehall, decided yesterday. The coroner's theory was that contact with the paddle wheels of an excursion steamer which came into the harbor last Friday, had doubtless mutilated the body.

Found Girl's Mutilated Body.

California, Pa., Aug. 2.—The body of a 12-year-old girl, horribly mutilated, was found Sunday evening in a berry patch near here, and the authorities yesterday threw out a dragnet for possible suspects. Two Italians picking berries reported the finding of the child's body, with the face battered shapeless. Torn clothing, broken twigs and trampled grass evidenced a terrible struggle.

Ditched by Wreckers.

Schenectady, N.Y., Aug. 2.—A delaware & Hudson passenger train containing between 300 and 400 persons, was ditched at about 9.30 p.m., about twelve miles north of this city by wreckers. The entire train consisting of four coaches and baggage left the tracks. The fireman was badly hurt.

Eight-Year-Old Drowned.

Carleton Place, Aug. 2.—A sad fatality occurred here yesterday afternoon, when Albert, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell, was drowned while bathing in the river in front of the canoe club house.

A Western Suicide.

Medicine Hat, Aug. 2.—Constable Smith of the N.W.M.P., discovered the body of a man in the bushes near the C.P.R. bridge over Seven Persons Creek, Sunday night. A discharged revolver by his side told the tale. There were no marks of identification on the clothing, but a note saying he was tired of life and signed "J.C.," was found.

First Sample of 1910 Crop.

Winnipeg, Aug. 2.—A sample of the first delivery of wheat from the 1910 crop in Manitoba has been received. It was marketed at Rosenfeld on Saturday, graded No. 1 northern and sold at $1.01 per bushel. This is believed to be a record date for delivery of new spring wheat in Western Canada.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, AUG. 2, 1910.

"THESE BE PEACEFUL DAYS"

"THE BLOW FLY CAUSED A SENSATION THE OTHER AFTERNOON," SAID THE HOUSE FLY, AS HE SAT ON A PILE OF MANURE.

"WHAT WAS IT?" ASKED THE MAGGOT IN THE FILTHY GARBAGE.

"HE HAS WRITTEN AN OPERETTA, 'THESE BE PEACEFUL DAYS IN PETERBOROUGH.'"

"SPLENDID," REPLIED PROF. BLUEBOTTLE, "THERE WILL BE A FULL CHORUS, I SUPPOSE?"

"YES," ANSWERED THE BLOW FLY, "AND THE THING IS DEDICATED TO THE BOARD OF HEALTH AND CITY COUNCIL. IT RUNS SOMETHING LIKE THIS," CONTINUED THE BLOW FLY—

"THAT THE COUNCIL LOVE A SMELL, LOVE A SMELL,
WE DO KNOW IT VERY WELL,
VERY WELL.
AND WE'RE HAPPY IN OUR FILTH,
IN OUR FILTH,
AND WE THANK THE BOARD OF HEALTH," ETC., ETC.

"THAT'S FINE," SAID THE BLOW FLY, AND A HUNDRED EGGS WERE LAID IN THE GARBAGE PILE THEN AND THERE.

ANCIENT, YET NEW

The remains of a woman who lived nine thousand years ago in Egypt are being set up in England and will be much wondered at in a museum. The discovery was made through Prof. Naville's recent excavations in connection with the Egypt Exploration Fund. Of the remarkable findings taken from a tomb five thousand years old, beautiful necklaces and hair combs of exactly the same model as those used at the present day, show us that woman, lovely woman, was, even in the days of Pharoah, vain of her appearance.

THE OATH

The amended accession oath passed the British Commons on Friday by a big majority. We were so much taken up with the strike that the thing went through without much notice. King George now is only required to declare himself a faithful Protestant. This should satisfy everybody. The day of the inquisition are passed. So are the days of hanging a man for theft and burning witches, so called.

WE ARE LOYAL; BUT—

King George's civil list of $2,350,000 has been passed by parliament after some debate. A reasonable man could be mighty civil on such a list as that.—Toronto Star.

We are loyal, but that is quite a large sum to pay even a king, for it comes to something like six thousand four hundred and thirty seven dollars a day, counting Sundays. We are loyal, but we don't think that the king should be paid for working Sundays. That six thousand four hundred and thirty-seven dollars would be welcomed to help keep alive the poor who huddle within rifle shot of the royal buildings. It would buy shoes for thousands of feet that have never worn new shoes in their existence; it would give new trousers instead of rags, that ragged father wore. It would give clothes instead of tatters for the girl. It would do a whole lot more good than going to keep up a retinue of useless "lobsters" around the palaces, many of whom do not do as much even as some of the chaps at Ottawa, who draw fine salaries for fancy labor. Yes, we are loyal, but when one stops to think it costs more than a cheer to be loyal. Look at that magnificent plot of ground in Toronto where the well known former Liberal politician, Lieutenant-Governor Gibson, lives, where receptions are held, and the elect are entertained at the people's expense. Then look to Ottawa, it costs at first estimate $50,000 or $137 a day to pay our fine friend, the Governor-General his bare salary. Does he wish to travel it is a private car or a special train. Who pays the shot for the trip to Hudson's Bay? Who pays for all the shines in Rideau Hall? The people. We are loyal to the core, but say, with so many poor, with the dollar born in toil and labor, it seems as if the figures could stand a little pruning.

THE FATE OF GENIUS

The Hamilton Spectator says that George Westinghouse, the inventor of the air brake bearing his name, has been deposed from the presidency of the tremendous corporation that he, through his genius, made possible. Westinghouse was once a poor soldier in a Pennsylvania regiment during the civil war. He served till peace came, and then went at his life work. How he succeeded everyone who knows common history is aware. The factory in Hamilton is one of the great monuments. Most inventors are poor, like most poets of passion. However, this man Westinghouse succeeded in getting capital, and millions came to make his inventions famous. But he is no longer at the head of the company, and the Spectator says that it was on account of the extreme liberality with which he treated his men. The millionaire directors, so the same paper adds, did not approve of this, having the idea that they owned the workmen, body and soul.

CARELESSNESS

Belleville, Aug. 1.—Joseph Demarsh, of this city, who was suffering from blood poisoning, caused by a small hurt on his thumb, made by a rope, is dead. The deceased neglected to treat the injury at first.

Newark, O., Aug. 1.—A gasoline explosion resulting from cleaning gloves in a closed room last night caused the death of Mrs. Grace Fuller, wife of a photographer, and Miss Gertie Anderson, a young society girl, is lying at the point of death in a hospital, burned beyond recognition. The gasoline was held too near a light.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—Ptomaine poisoning nearly wiped out a family of seven yesterday when Dr. Cyphiot discovered Mr. and Mrs. Champagne and five children suffering severely at their home, 228 Vallee lane, Maisonneuve.

The poisoning is attributed to a tin of canned corn that the family had for supper last night. The corn was left standing in the can.

Stratford, Ont., Aug. 1.—Mr. R. Angus McDermid, 242 Erie street, died here yesterday afternoon after taking a dose of paris green last Tuesday evening. Mr. McDermid, late on that evening, arose from bed, drank from an open bowl in the pantry. The family being away, he lay in agony alone until Wednesday evening, when his mother, who lives close by, found him at the point of death. The poison had been left exposed where it might have been easily taken for something else in mistake.

The reason why the undertakers are so busy is very often simply because we do not think. A few years ago a man didn't think and fifty lives were lost at Wanstead on the Grand Trunk Railway. A week seldom passes but that the man who didn't think rightly shoots and kills a friend or some innocent victim. Poor Craig over in Welland is nearly insane because he shot one of his best friends through the heart.

The tragedies enumerated above above from Belleville, Newark and Stratford were caused by lack of thought. The parents do not think because they are in a hurry, and the children emulate them.

"The fault of the age is a mad endeavor,
To leap to heights that were made to climb,
By a burst of strength or a thought most clear,
We plan to forestall and outwit time."

We scorn to wait for the thing worth having,
We want high noon at the day's dim dawn,
We find no pleasure in toiling and saving,
As our forefathers did in the old times gone.

We force our roses before the season,
To bloom and blossom for us to wear,
And then we wonder and ask the reason,
Why perfect buds are so few and rare.

We rave the gain, but despise the getting,
We want wealth—not as reward, but dower,
And the strength that is wasted in useless fretting,
Would fell a forest or build a tower."

Wilcox has in the above four verses expressed the sentiment that is responsible for premature deaths, grey hairs, wrinkles and crepe. We are not content to wait, forgetting, that to learn how to wait, is to possess one of life's greatest assets.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 72 carloads, consisting of 1368 cattle, 274 hogs, 364 sheep and lambs, and 79 calves.

Exporters.

Export cattle were in fairly good demand at about last Monday's quotations. Export steers sold from $5.75 to $6.80, but only two or three loads reached the latter figure, the next highest price being $6.75; export bulls $5 to $5.75; export heifers, $6.10.

Butchers.

Butchers' cattle were steady at last Monday's prices, as follows: Prime picked lots, $6.25 to $6.50; loads of good, $5.75 to $6; medium, $5.25 to $5.50; common, $4.75 to $5; cows, $3 to $4.75 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number of milkers and springers sold at $40 to $60 and one cow was reported at $85.

Veal Calves.

Seventy-nine calves sold at firm prices ranging from $6 to $7.75 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

There were 364 sheep and lambs sold as follows: Sheep, ewes, at $4 to $4.25 for light, and $3.75 to $4 for heavy, rams $3 to $3.25; lambs, at $6 to $6.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, were quoted at $9.35 and $9 to drovers, f.o.b., cars, at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the offerings of live stock this morning amounted to 900 cattle, 750 sheep and lambs, [illegible] hogs and 50 calves. There was no important change in the condition of the market for cattle since last Wednesday, except that probably the feeling was a trifle firmer for the best grades, owing to the fact that the supply of such was somewhat limited, but the lower grades were plentiful and values showed no improvement. The gathering of buyers was fairly large, and, as the weather was more favorable for keeping stock than it has been of late, the demand showed some improvement, and a rather more active trade was done, which resulted in a good clearance being made.

Choice steers sold at 6c to 6¼c; good at 5½c to 5¾c; fairly good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 3¾c to 4¼c per lb. Among the offerings there were no good bulls on the market, and in consequence the prices realized for the quality offered were low, sales being made at from 3c to 4c per lb.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, on account of the fact that supplies were ample to fill all immediate requirements, and prices in consequence showed no actual change as compared with those paid last Wednesday. The demand from packers was good, and a fairly active trade was done, sales of selected lots being made at $10.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

Supplies of small meats were fair, for which the demand was good, and the undertone to the market was steady, with no change in prices. A feature of this trade was the demand for sheep for export account, and quite a few were picked up at 3½c to 3¾c, while the culls sold at 3c to 3¼c per lb. Lambs brought from $3.50 to $5 each, and calves from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending July 30 were 2700 cattle, 2245 sheep and lambs, 2574 hogs, and 738 calves, besides 4197 cattle for export account, of which 737 went by way of Boston. The offerings on the market this morning consisted of 1900 cattle, 600 sheep and lambs, 1241 hogs and 375 calves.

A feature of the trade was the stronger feeling in this market for steers, and prices show an advance of ¼c to ½c per lb. over what were realized last Wednesday, which was due to the fact that the supply of this class of cattle was rather limited, as the bulk of the offerings consisted of cows, heifers and bulls. The demand was good for local consumption, and some were also picked up for export account, and, if it had not been for the scarcity of ocean freight space from here this week, more would have been done in this direction than there was. However, on the whole, trade was active, and the market was cleaned up, with the exception of about 200 head. Choice steers sold at 6¼c to 6½c; good at 5¾c to 6c; fairly good at 5¼c to 5½c; fair at 4¾c to 5c, and common at 4c to 4½c per lb. Good to choice cows brought from 3c to 5c, and bulls from 3c to 5c per lb.

There were no new developments in the live hog situation, prices being steady at the recent decline, owing to the more liberal supplies coming forward. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $10.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, and mixed lots went at $9.75 to $10.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Aug. 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 4500 head; slow and 15c to 40c lower; prime steers, $7.25 to $7.75; shipping, $5.75 to $7; butchers, $4.50 to $6.75; heifers, $2.75 to $6.25; cows, $2.50 to $5.25; bulls, $3.50 to $5; stockers and feeders, $4 to $4.85; stock heifers, $3.25 to $3.50; fresh cows and springers active and $2 to $3 higher, $28 to $68.

Hogs—Receipts, 12,000 head; slow and 25c lower; heavy, $8.50 to $8.65; mixed, $8.65 to $8.85; yorkers, $8.80 to $9.25; pigs, $9.15 to $9.25; roughs, $7 to $7.35; stags, $8 to $8.50; dairies, $8.25 to $9.10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7000 head; sheep active and lambs slow; lambs, $5 to $7; yearlings, $5.75 to $6; wethers, $5.25 to $5.40; ewes, $4 to $4.50; sheep, mixed, $2.50 to $4.75.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Beeves—Receipts, 3458; market slow and lower; steers, $4.65 to $7.25; bulls, $3.60 to $4.25; cows, $2 to $4.75; dressed beef dull and lower; native sides, 8½c to 11c per lb.; Texas beef, 7c to 9c.

Calves—Receipts, 3056; veals higher; grassers and buttermilks lower; veals, $7.50 to $10; few selected, $10.50; culls, $5 to $7; grassers and buttermilks, $4 to $5; westerns, $3.87½; city dressed veals slow at 12c to 15c; country dressed calves, 8c to 12½c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 15,118; sheep steady; prime and choice lambs 15c to 25c higher; others steady; sheep, $2.75 to $4.50; lambs, $5.50 to $7.25; culls, $5.00.

Hogs—Receipts, 8264; market lower; prime state hogs sold at $9 to $9.25.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

Giovanni sought his own room at the end of the hall, squatted on a low stool and solemnly began the business of blacking his master's boots. He was still as lean and tall as a Lombardy poplar, this handsome old Roman. His hair was white; there was now no black beard on his face, which was as brown and creased as Spanish levant, and some of the fullness was gone from his chest and arms, but for all that he carried his fifty odd years lightly. He worked swiftly tonight, but his mind was far away from his task.

There was a pitiful story, commonplace enough—a daughter, a loose living officer, a knife flung from a dark alley, the sudden flight to the south. Hillard had found him wandering through the streets of Naples, hiding from the carabinieri as best he could. Hillard contrived to smuggle him on the private yacht of a friend. He found a peasant who was reconsidering the advisability of digging sewers and laying railroad ties in the Eldorado of the west. A few pieces of silver and the passport changed hands. With this Giovanni blandly lied his way into the United States. After due time he applied for citizenship, and through Hillard's influence it was accorded him. He solemnly voted when elections came round and hoarded his wages, like the thrifty man he was. Some day he would return to Rome or Naples or Venice or Florence, as the case might be, and then!

When the boots shone flawlessly he carried them to Hillard's door and softly tiptoed back. He put his face against the cold window. He, too, had heard the voice. How his heart hurt him with its wild hope! But only for a moment. It was not the voice he hungered for. The words were Italian, but he knew that the woman who sang them was not.

CHAPTER II.

OBJECT, MATRIMONY.

WINTER fogs in New York are never quite so intolerable as their counterparts in London, and while their frequency is a matter of complaint, their duration is seldom of any length. So by the morrow a strong wind from the west had winnowed the skies and cleared the sun. There were an exhilarating tingle of frost in the air and a visible rime on the windows. Hillard, having breakfasted lightly, was standing with his back to the grate in the cozy breakfast room. He was in boots and breeches and otherwise warmly clad and freshly shaven. He rocked on his heels and toes and ran his palm over his blue white chin in search of a possible slip of the razor.

Giovanni came in to announce that he had telephoned and that the signor's brown mare would be at the park entrance precisely at half after 8. Giovanni still marveled over this wonderful voice which came out of nowhere, but he was no longer afraid of it. The curiosity which is innate and childlike in all Latins soon overcame his dark superstitions. He was an ardent Catholic and believed that a few miracles should be left in the hands of God. The telephone had now become a kind of plaything, and Hillard often found him in front of it patiently waiting for the bell to ring.

The facility with which Giovanni had mastered English amazed his teacher and master. But now he needed no more lessons. The two when alone together spoke Giovanni's tongue, Hillard because he loved it and Giovanni because the cook spoke it badly and the English butler not at all.

"You have made up your mind to go, then, amico?" said Hillard.

"Yes, signor."

"Well, I shall miss you. To whom shall I talk the tongue I love so well when Giovanni is gone?" with a lightness which he did not feel. Hillard had grown very fond of the old Roman in these seven years.

"Whenever the signor goes to Italia he shall find me. It needs but a word to bring me to him. The signor will pardon me, but he is like—like a son."

"Thanks, Giovanni. By the way, did you hear a woman singing in the street last night?"

"Yes. At first"— Giovanni hesitated.

"Ah, but that could not be, Giovanni; that could not be."

"No; it could not be. But she sang well," the old servant ventured.

"So thought I. I even ran out into the street to find out who she was, but she vanished like the lady in the conjurer's trick. But it seemed to me that, while she sang in Italian, she herself was not wholly of that race."

"Buonissima!" Giovanni struck a noiseless brava with his hands. "Have I not always said that the signor's ears are as sharp as my own? No; the voice was very beautiful, but it was not truly Roman. It was more like they talk in Venice. And yet the sound of the voice decided me. The hills have always been calling to me, and I must answer."

"And the unforgetting carabinieri?"

"Oh, I must take my chance," with the air of a fatalist.

"What shall you do?"

"I have my two hands, signor. Besides, the signor has said it—I am rich." Giovanni permitted a smile to stir his thin lips. "Yes, I must go back. Your people have been good to me and have legally made me one of them, but my heart is never here. It is always so cold, and every one moves so quickly. You cannot lie down in the sun. Your police, bah! They beat you on the feet. You remember when I fell asleep on the steps of the cathedral? They thought I was drunk and would have arrested me!"

"Everybody must keep moving here. It is the penalty of being rich."

"And I am lonesome for my kind. I have nothing in common with these herds of Sicilians and Neapolitans who pour into the streets from the wharfs." Giovanni spoke scornfully.

"Yet in wartime the Neapolitans sheltered your pope."

"Vanity! They wished to make an impression on the rest of the world. It is dull here besides. There is no joy in the shops. I am lost in these great palaces. The festa is lacking. Nobody bargains; nobody sees the proprietor. You find your way to the streets alone. The butcher says that his meat is so and so, and you pay. The grocer marks his tins such and such, and you do not question, and the baker says that, and you pay, pay, pay! What? I need a collar; it is quindici—fifteen you say! I offer quattordici. I would give interest to the sale. But, no! The collar goes back into the box. I pay quindici or I go without. It is the same everywhere—very dull, dead, lifeless."

Hillard was moved to laughter. He very well understood the old man's lament. In Italy if there is one thing more than another that pleases the native it is to make believe to himself that he has got the better of a bargain. A shrewd purchase enlivens the whole day. It is talked about, laughed over and becomes the history of the day.

Hillard presently left the house and hailed a Fifth avenue omnibus. He looked with negative interest at the advertisements, at the people in the streets, at his fellow travelers. One of these was hidden behind his morning paper. Personals! Hillard squirmed a little. The world never holds very much romance in the sober morning. What a stupid piece of folly! The idea of his sending that personal inquiry to the paper! Tomorrow he would see it sandwiched in between samples of shopgirl romance, questionable intrigues and divers search warrants. Ye gods! "Will the blond who smiled at gentleman in blue serge, elevated train, Tuesday, meet same in park? Object, matrimony." Hillard fidgeted. "Young man known as Adonis would adore stout elderly lady independently situated. Object, matrimony." Pish! "Girlie. Can't keep appointment tonight. Willie." Tush! "A French widow of eighteen, unincumbered," and so forth and so on. Rot, bally rot, and here he was on the way to join them! "Will the lady who sang from 'Mme. Angot' communicate with gentleman who leaned out of the window? J. H., Burgomaster Club." Positively asinine!

There was scarce one chance in a thousand of the mysterious singer's seeing the inquiry, not one in ten thousand of her answering it. And the folly of giving his club address! That would look very dignified in yonder agony column. He would cancel the thing.

He dropped from the omnibus at the park entrance, where he found his restive mare. He gave her a lump of sugar and climbed into the saddle. He directed the groom to return for the horse at 10 o'clock, then headed for the bridle path. It was heavy, but the air was so keen and bracing that neither the man nor the horse worried about the going. Only one party attracted him, a riding master and a trio of brokers who were verging on embonpoint and were desperate and looked it. Hillard went on. The park was not lovely; the trees were barren, the grass yellow and sodden.

"She is so innocent, so youthful!"

He found himself humming the refrain over and over. She had sung it with abandon, tenderness, lightness. For one glimpse of her face! He took the rise and dip that followed. Yards ahead a solitary woman cantered easily along. Hillard had not seen her before. He spurred forward, faintly curious. There was nothing familiar to his eye in her charming figure. She rode well. As he drew nearer he saw that she wore a heavy gray veil. And this veil hid everything but the single flash of a pair of eyes the color of which defied him. Then he looked at her mount. Ha! There was only one rangy black with a white throat—from the Sandford stables, he was positive. But the Sandfords were at this moment in Cairo, so it signified nothing. There is always some one ready to exercise your horses. He looked again at the rider. The flash of the eyes was not repeated, so his interest vanished, and he urged the mare into a sharp run.

So he went back to his tentative romance. She had passed his window and disappeared into the fog, and there was a reasonable doubt of her ever returning from it. The singer in the fog—thus he would write it down in his book of memories and sensibly turn the page. At length he came back to the entrance and surrendered the mare. He was about to cross the square when he was hailed.

The flash of a pair of eyes.

Hillard wheeled and saw Merrihew. He, too, was in riding breeches.

"Why, Dan, glad to see you. Were you in the park?"

"Riverside. Beastly cold too. Come join me in a cup of good coffee."

The two entered the cafe.

"How are you behaving yourself these days?" asked Merrihew.

"My habits are always exemplary," answered Hillard. "But yours?"

Merrihew gulped his coffee.

"Kitty Killigrew leaves in two weeks for Europe."

"And who the deuce is Kitty Killigrew?" demanded Hillard.

"What!" reproachfully. "You haven't heard of Kitty Killigrew in 'The Modern Maid?' Where have you been? Pippin! Prettiest soubrette that's hit the town in a dog's age."

"I say, Dan, don't you ever tire of that sort? I can't recall when there wasn't a Kitty Killigrew. What's the attraction?" Hillard waved aside the big black cigar. "What's the attraction?"

"The truth is, Jack, I'm a jackass half the time. I can't get away from the glamour of the footlights. I'm no Johnny. You know that. No hanging around stage entrances and buying wine and diamonds. I might be reckless enough to buy a bunch of roses when I'm not broke. But I like 'em—the bright ones. They keep a fellow amused. Most of 'em speak good English and come from better families than you would suppose. Just good fellowship, you know. Maybe a rabbit and a bottle of beer after the performance or a little quarter limit at the apartment, singing and good stories. What you've in mind is the chorus lady. Not for mine!"

Hillard laughed, recalling his conversation with the policeman.

"Go on," he said. "Get it all out of your system now that you're started."

"And then it tickles a fellow's vanity to be seen with them at the restaurants. That's the way it begins, you know. I'll be perfectly frank with you. If it wasn't for what the other fellows say most of the chorus ladies would go hungry. And the girls that you and I know think I'm a devil of a fellow—wicked, but interesting, and all that."

Hillard's laughter broke forth again, and he leaned back. Merrihew would always be twenty-six; he would always be youthful.

"And this Kitty Killigrew? I believe I've seen posters of her in the windows now that you speak of it."

"Well, Jack, I've got it bad this trip. I offered to marry her last night and was refused."

"It seems to me that your Kitty is not half bad. What would you have done had she accepted you?"

"Married her within twenty-four hours."

"Come, Dan; be sensible. You are not such an ass as all that."

"Yes, I am," moodily. "I told you that I was a jackass half the time. This is the half."

"But she won't have you?"

"Not for love or money."

"Are you sure about the money?" asked Hillard shrewdly.

"Seven hundred or seven thousand, it wouldn't matter to Kitty if she made up her mind to marry a fellow. What's the matter with me anyhow? I'm not so badly set up. I can whip any man in the club at my weight. I can tell a story well, and I'm not afraid of anything."

"Not even of the future!" added Hillard.

"Do you really think it's my money?" pathetically.

"Well, seven thousand doesn't go far, and that's all you have. If it were seventy, now, I'm sure Kitty wouldn't reconsider. What's she like?" asked Hillard, with more sympathy than curiosity.

EVERY DOLLAR OF THE FAMILY INCOME OWES YOU ONE HUNDRED CENTS IN VALUE

"You work hard for your money," said a business philosopher. "Make it work hard for you."

Make it return to you a full hundred cents worth in value at least when you spend it.

Read the store advertisements carefully and regularly. Among the many steady advertisers someone is sure to be offering the very articles you need.

And when they are advertised you may be sure they are all right.

For a merchant must stand behind his advertised goods. He stakes his reputation on the statements he makes.

And so this "store news" in The Daily Review can be depended upon. If you follow it you will arrive at the place where the goods you need can be found and, in nine cases out of ten, at the most reasonable prices.

And so you will get most value for your dollars if you are a constant ad. reader.

Miss Reid's Success

An issue of the Vancouver World, just received, notes that Miss M. Reid won first-class honors in first year harmony and first year history, at the annual examinations of the Toronto College of Music. Miss Reid is a daughter of Mr. G. A. Reid, formerly a resident of this city, and her many young friends will be pleased to hear of her success. The standing for the Dominion of Canada shows Miss Reid to rank seventh.

CONGREGATION LIKE FR. MEAGHER

The following is taken from the Despatch and Tribune, North Bay—The Rev. W. P. Meagher, of Peterborough, has been appointed curate to Rev. A. F. Kelley, Trout Creek, to replace Rev. M. J. O'Leary, who was assigned to the charge of Wooler. The new curate visited Alsace Saturday and celebrated holy mass and delivered an eloquent discourse before a large congregation the following Sunday morning in St. John's church. The reverend gentleman was much impressed with the piety and generosity displayed by the good people. It is rumored that the church authorities intend to assign Father Meagher to the position of resident pastor of Alsace and he will have the enterprising towns of Nipissing and Loring as missions.

Two hundred and fifty thousand trees are to be supplied to public school pupils of Brooklyn next year.

P. C. NEWHALL RECOVERS PROPERTY OF LAUNCH OWNERS

With the arrest of Edward Carpenter at his shop in East City, yesterday afternoon, by P.C. Newhall, the mystery surrounding the thefts which launch owners suffered from last fall seems cleared up.

It will be remembered that in the latter part of last season the owners of launches, and smaller craft, were victimized by some person, unkknwon, who stole parts of the mechanism of the engines.

In one case, an engine valued at $200.00, and the property of Rollie Wilson, was taken from a yacht at the foot of Sherbrooke street and the boat was sent to the bottom.

The engine was recovered at Carpenter's shop, and he was taken into custody on a charge of stealing it. Parts of other boats were also found.

The case was not proceeded with this morning, the accused being remanded.

"SWEET EIGHTEEN" OF TO-DAY

I strolled along the street last eve, but things seemed ill at ease, the presence of a strange "phenom" there lingered in the breeze. A swish of skirts, a little cough, some odor of the rose, Around the corner came a lass, rigged out in splashy clothes. 'Twas nothing new, lots more I'd see, but others hove in sight, and as the fair miss tripped along, they seemed to take afright. No three feet six ,adorned her head, no hat for this young dame, instead a thing shot out behind, 'twould put a barrel to shame. A two inch sash, went round it twice, the bow quite large on top ,was firmly tied, I have no doubt, the rats inside to stop. A garment of three-quarter length, real cute, and neat and tight, of course this helped to draw the eyes, of every one in sight. Her shoes were white, the little bow, again was there quite smooth, but just in passing, let me note, that gold filled one front tooth. Still 'twasn't at Miss sweet eighteen, I took the longer glom, instead twas at the passersby; 'twas them the smiles came from. Each nudged the other, (THESE WERE GIRLS), they stared with all their might ,and this kept on, until the Miss ,had gone beyond their sight.

Now, why young girls will thus rig out themselves ,to make a show, has got me stopped, I fail to see, where they get all the dough.

NAMES OF STUDENTS WHO MAY ENTER NORMAL SCHOOL

The results of the examination for entrance into the Normal Schools, so far as Peterborough is concerned, are given below. In giving the results the Department of Education make the following statement—The certificates of successful candidates and the statements of marks of those who failed will be mailed to principals or inspectors in the course of a few days.

SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS.

M. V. Armstrong, G. C. Brewster, G. M. Clark, B. Crough, A. W. Coon, J. A. Dewart, L. Hickey, J. Humphries, J. Harvey, F. Hinchcliffe, I. H. Keefer (honors). W. P. Maloney, K. Maloney, F. McNamara (honors). M. I. Pacey (honors). E. I. Taylor.

Successful candidates who desire to attend the coming session of the Normal schools are reminded that there applications for admission must be made to the Deputy Minister of Education no later than Tuesday, September 6th. No student will be admitted who will not be at least eighteen years of age before October 1st for the Normal Schools at Hamilton, London, Ottawa, Peterborough, Stratford and Toronto, or before the close of the session for the Normal School at North Bay.

For those applicants who are required to pass the September examinations in the prescribed lower schools subjects the session will begin on Tuesday, September 20th, at 9 a.m. For applicants with the prescribed certificates from approved schools and for applicants belonging to grade A it will begin on Monday, September 26th, at 9 a.m. No applicant who is required to pass the September examination will be admitted without doing so. It would be well, therefore, for applicants to make certain of their status before the first mentioned date.

PASSED TO HER REST

After an illness lasting nearly six months, Mrs. Kenner peacefully passed to her reward on Saturday, July 30th, in her 77th year. She was soundly converted to God, when but a girl 12 years of age. As she grew into womanhood she became an earnest worker in the church, and in 1859 was happily united in marriage to Rev. Wm. Kenner. During these 51 years she was in every way a helpful companion for her husband. In earlier years it was her lot to often occupy the pulpit and preach the gospel. The burden of her heart ever seemed to be for the salvation of souls and the building up of Christian character.

She was an ideal mother and ever manifested anxiety for the spiritual welfare of her children, of whom seven survive, viz.:—William, Howard and Mrs. Forder, of Manitona; Fred of Alberta; Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Foy, British Columbia, and Henry, the esteemed principal of Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

On Monday evening a short service was held at the house, conducted by Rev. Isaac Couch, M.A., B.D., pastor of George street Methodist church, when many friends gathered to show their last token of respect.

Mr. Couch had been acquainted with the deceased for several years. He regarded her as a remarkable woman, paid a beautiful tribute to her memory and testified that one of the sweetest, purest, truest, best of women had gone to be with God. The remains were taken this morning to Prince Albert, their former home, for interment. Mr. Kenner wishes to publicly express thanks for the kindness manifested by the citizens, during the illness and in this bereavement.

SEIZED WITH CONVULSIONS AND FELL ON CROSSING

James Doris, a youth of nineteen residing on Aylmer street, was seized with a fit at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets this morning, and dropped in the middle of the crossing.

He uttered several loud cries and his hands twitched convulsively. Kindly hands assisted him to rise and placed him in a comfortable position. He rapidly recovered and after a few minutes' rest was able to walk away.

HAPPY BRIDE CAME FROM FAR AWAY SCOTLAND

A very charming and pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday afternoon at 576 Sherbrooke street, when Miss Lizzie Johnston, of Scotland, and Mr. George Haddow, of Hamilton were joined in marriage by Rev. Mr. Brown of Toronto. The bride came here recently.

The bride was given away by Mr. Robert Smith and was prettily attired in a gown of cream silk eolienne trimmed with cream lace, and carried a beautiful bridal bouquet of white carnations.

She was assisted by Miss Maud Smith who very satisfactorily performed the duties of bridesmaid.

The groomsman was Mr. Charles Barrie, of Hamilton, and a former resident of Peterborough.

Miss Lottie Smith played the wedding march.

At the conclusion of the ceremony all partook of a very tempting and tastefully arranged luncheon after which the young couple left on the 5.30 train for Beaverton.

Mr. and Mrs. Haddow will reside in Hamilton.

Many guests were present some of whom were Mr. and Mrs. Adams of Hamilton; Miss Grant of Hamilton; Miss Alderson Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, of Hamilton, and Mr and Mrs. and Miss Edwads, of Toronto.

HAD A GOOD TIME ANYWAY

Unfortunately the rain of the afternoon prevented the Charlotte street Epworth League from holding their outing at Jackson Park last evening.

Rather than postpone it, however, those who met at the church enjoyed a very pleasant evening, the supper being served in the Sunday school room. An impromptu musical programme followed in which nearly all took part.

An hour's ride on the street cars followed, which proved to be a very pleasant and exhilarating variation.

PERSONAL

Rev. Mr. Brown, of Toronto, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith ,of Hamilton ,are visiting Mrs. Robt. Smith, 576 Sherbrooke street.

THIS MISS HAD A POOR EYE

An Incident, Which Shows That Some Women Can't Even Handle a Horse

A young man who sells shoes for a living in Lindsay, went out driving with two lady school-teachers in Ennismore last week.

Everything was sailing along very smoothly until one of the ladies started to handle the reins and show her skill in manipulating the leather ribbons.

She endeavored to turn the spirited nag into a laneway leading to a farmhouse, and instead drove into one of the gate posts with the consequence that one wheel was almost wrenched off and the whole party sailed on—but on to the road. Repairs were soon made and the pleasant drive resumed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I attended a service held in the Salvation Army Barracks yesterday (Sunday) afternoon. I noticed in making the announcement of meetings for the coming week, no mention was made of the concert to be held by the Salvation Army brass band Tuesday night in Victoria Park. Why this discrimination? Why urge Salvationists and others to attend all the other meetings and except this one? Some explanation will be acceptable.

INQUIRER.

LAUNCHES VIGOROUS PROTEST

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Is it not about time that the Government of the Dominion make some law to bring to an end strikes which are entered into by the arbitary measures of a high official of a big concern such as the Grand Trunk Railway? And do you not think that the shareholders of the G.T.R., who are losing the proper interests due their investments, should call "a halt" to the arbitary conduct of the manager of the road? Strikes are generally proclaimed when the workingman does not get his dues. Here is a man who receives $25,000 or $35,000 salary per year, trying his best to deprive the trainmen of a fair wage for which they risk their lives daily in the service of the public, and refusing to give them the same standard that other roads gladly pay. The time to make a compromise, I think, has passed, and some law ought to be put into operation, compelling the railway companies to carry out their contracts, serving the commerce of the country as it should be done. Millions of dollars have already been lost through the stubbornness of an individual, who cares more apparently, for furthering the arbitrariness of his self-opiniated make-up than the welfare of those who work harder than he ever did to secure for him a preposterous salary.

Yours truly,
A FRIEND OF THE WORKINGMAN.

The body of Jas. Plain, of Calgary was found dead near the railway tracks.

SPORTING NEWS

BRIEF AND BREEZY

Historians of baseball say that the game is seventy years old. Hughey Jennings, of the Detroit Tigers, has dug up statistics to prove that it is 2500 years old. "It is not generally known," said Jennings, "that Nebuchadnezzar was the first pitcher mentioned in history. The Bible, in the last chapter of the second book of Kings says, 'And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, and in the tenth day of the month that Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, he and all his hosts against Jerusalem and pitched against them.'"

Frank Gotch has determined to wrestle with the problems of a baseball manager. He is said to have purchased the Lake City team, which is a member of an Iowa bush league. Frank may escape some of the ordinary owner's troubles, as it is unlikely that any player he signs will start an argument with him.

Ottawa Free Press.—Blood, sticks and fists flew at 'Varsity Oval last night in the lacrosse match between Shamrocks and Nationals, two teams that apparently have little love for one another. Toward the close of the contest, a free for all took place, in which the police took a part, the grandstand broke loose and flooded the field, and one of the rankest bits of rowdyism exhibited, it has ever been 'Varsity Oval's misfortune to witness. Police court cases will follow as a result, giving the game another uppercut.

If anybody happens to know where a good southpaw pitcher is located, who can make good in fast company, just let him give the information to some American League manager and get a big bonus for his pains. There is a craze for lefthanders among the big league managers just now, but this applies particularly to the men who lead the American League teams.

"Everybody up!"
"All stretch!"
"The lucky seventh!"
"This is when we win!"

Every baseball fan in the country knows what these remarks mean.

For years the seventh inning of a baseball game has been known as the "lucky seventh," and all sorts of mascotic influences are fondly imagined to be foscued right in that particular period. The home club is supposed to be the one on whom the smiles of Dame Fortune fall, but it makes no difference if the home team is shut out in that inning and the visiting players clout the ball for keeps, it is still the same old "lucky seventh" the next day.

Here is a letter sent to Tommy Burns by Jack Jeffries, a brother of the man who fell before the blows of Jack Johnson:—

"Friend Tommy:

"I was glad to hear from you. I have been in Mexico for the past four years; just came back six weeks before the fight. It wasn't a fight, as I know somebody gave Jim something. He couldn't raise his hands after the first rounds, and then it took Johnson fifteen rounds to lick him. It was the worst apology for a fight I ever saw, and I think everything will come out later. Jim could have licked ten negroes like Johnson ten days before the fight.

"I think old ———had something to do with it, because he told a friend of mine he would have Jim licked if it cost him his right arm.

"Well, Tommy, I don't know much news. You see by the papers where they've stopped fighting here. I don't know when they will open the game again. I am going to remain in Los Angeles right along now.

"I don't know if Jim will fight again or not. He hasn't said anything yet. He is over in the Catalina Islands.

"Say, Tommy, who is that O'Kelly you've got?

"JACK JEFFRIES."

THE RAPID RISE OF SAM LANGFORD, THE PUGILIST

Seven years ago in Boston there approached Joe Woodman, a fellow who would do anything in the world for a place to sleep which would accommodate him and his yellow dog. Woodman, ever given to the goodness of the heart, was then running a boxing club, and he gave the stranger permission to sleep in the club with his yellow dog as a bed-fellow.

The stranger thanked him, and Woodman dismissed the matter from his mind. In appreciation of the night's care the owner of the yellow dog assisted in the cleaning of the club house the next morning. He gradually drifted into the graces of Woodman until he was the janitor of the club, but he never forgot the yellow dog, which was, by the way, his first recommendation to Woodman.

One night there was a disappointment at the club, and the janitor asked the chance to participate in the place of the absent boxer. He made his plea to Woodman, but Joe disliked the idea of a good janitor being a bum fighter, so he waved him away and told him to go down to the amateur tourney and get a fair start there, where the game would not be so tough.

On the next Monday morning Joe Woodman nearly keeled over when he saw the janitor of his club wearing a gold watch, the first prize in the tourney. Woodman had staked his janitor to a quarter as entrance fee to the tourney, and had loaned him fighting togs to wear, thinking he would return to the club a sadder boxer but a slicker janitor.

The janitor staked himself to the next tourney fee, and asked Woodman to be present and watch him knock the novices spinning. A series of successes followed the janitor until Woodman gave him his first professional fight, which he won. Seventeen dollars and fifty cents was the share of this fight. For two days after the fight the janitor and Joe Woodman's club was not to be found, and when he did appear he was togged out in raiment which would have made Bert Williams' stage front look as silent as the catacombs in Rome.

It was so distinct in the riot of colors that the wearer narrowly escaped arrest for creating unnecessary noise. The janitor played no favorites in his collection of hues, and no color was neglected, but with all his glad attire he did not forget that he was the janitor of Joe Woodman's club, and he was back on his first job in Boston.

Woodman was more amused at the climb of his janitor than he was serious in the thought that he would ever go higher in the glove game, but when he beat top-notchers Woodman knew he had a wonder and prepared him accordingly. Sandy Ferguson, Jim Flynn, Jim Barry, the "Dixie Kid," and many of the marvels of the ring fell before the fists of Joe Woodman's janitor, and from a lightweight he grew into the middleweight class, and while at this weight he met Jack Johnson and gave that fellow one of the tightest tussles the Texan has tackled since his entry into the game.

The janitor of Joe Woodman's club visited California twice, and he was the sensation of the Pacific coast. Then he went to England and France, where, because of his effervescent smile, he was acclaimed the second Peter Jackson. And that janitor was Sam Langford.

The pride of England, Ian Hague and Tiger Smith, slumbered when he smote them on the jaw, and he returned to America determined to try and capture the middleweight championship.

Langford is ranked as one of the greatest middleweights who ever drew on a glove. He is a puncher and a phantom, as the occasion demands, and he is sure that some day the sun will shine on Sam Langford when he is the middleweight champion of the world.

In Woodman he has a manager who is a favorite with the fistic promoters from Boston back to Frisco. Langford is a wonderful fighter, but he could have no better man behind him than Joe Woodman, and Sam knows it, and he will fight for 50 cents or $50,000, according to Joe Woodman's wishes.

Clubs have tried to go over Woodman's head to secure the services of Sam, but Langford only laughed and said, "You see Woodman before I'll fight."

To-day Langford is rich in the wealth of the world. But no matter what be the turn of the tide, nothing can part Langford from the man who made him, Joe Woodman.

THE PLUMBER.

Beside the leaking bathroom tap
The local plumber stands.
The plumber, lazy man is he,
With large and grimy hands,
And the puzzle is, the less he does
The more his bill expands.

Week in week out, all day to eve,
I can hear each hammer blow.
I can hear him fling his tools about
From my sitting room below.
And he keeps on ringing the bedroom bells
So the floor is up, I know.

He comes each morn to the house
With one or two small boys,
And when his tools are out of reach
One hears his raucous voice
Shouting for what he may require,
And it makes one's heart rejoice.

Spoiling, rejoining, soldering—
Not where the leakage shows—
Each morning sees the job begun,
Each evening—goodness knows!
Something's attempted, nothing's done.
At six o'clock he goes.

Thanks to thee, unworthy friend,
And the mess that thou hast wrought,
They're ruined, our hot water pipes,
And new ones must be bought.
Bother! Confound! I cannot shape
Each burning word and thought!
—Tit-Bits.

It Made a Difference.

Fiddledee (to Miss Willin)—Mr. Holdem asked me to come in and say he wouldn't be able to call this evening, as he broke his arm.

Miss Willin (anxiously)—Gracious! Which arm was it?

An Unfamiliar Alias.

There may be nothing in a name, but the American traveler of whom the Living Church tells found at least confusion therein. He had landed at Liverpool and hastened out of the city to a rural village, where he found a charmingly old fashioned inn which delighted his soul. It was late when he arrived, and when he asked what he could have for supper the buxom landlady suggested minced collops. He agreed with enthusiasm, the dish sounded so romantic, so Robin Hoodsy, so almost mediaeval. And what do you suppose they brought him? Just plain hash!

Bread In Sweden.

In Sweden the bread of the people is for the most part hard, thin as a dinner plate and about the size of one. It is baked without yeast, and the water is practically all extracted in the process of baking; hence, relatively per pound of bread, its cost is much higher than in the common forms of bread as we know them, containing one-half their weight in water that has cost nothing. Loaf bread and rolls in Sweden are a luxury.

ANDREW GUNN DEAD.

President of Big Commission Firm Expires on Train.

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Suddenly yesterday morning, while returning from Port Dover, where he had been spending the week-end with his family, Andrew Gunn, president of the commission firm of Gunn's Limited, dropped dead on the train.

For some time he had not been in the very best of health, but complained little. It is thought that the end, which came when the train was about half-way between Hagersville and Caledonia, was due to heart trouble.

ANDREW GUNN.

Shortly after he had complained of feeling weak, he collapsed in the arms of Mr. Graham, also connected with Gunn's, Limited.

Deceased was 63 years of age, and was born in Beaverton. He was a member of the I.O.O.F., of the Caledonian Society, of the Board of Trade, and an enthusiastic bowler and curler at the Granite Club. For several years he had been a member of St. James square Presbyterian Church. He was also a prominent Liberal and a member of the Ontario Reform Club. He leaves a wife, three boys and one girl. There are also surviving four brothers: Alex., of St. Pauls; Dr. John, of Ailsa Craig; Hector, of Albany avenue, Toronto; and Dr. William, of Clinton, Ont., and one sister, Mrs. (Dr.) John Ross of Glasgow.

It will be remembered that Donald Gunn, a brother of the deceased, was killed in a street car accident on Yonge street, this city, about seven months ago, at which time Andrew Gunn succeeded to the presidency of the firm.

"La Plaque" Ornament For Wear With Simple Costumes.

With the simple costumes for street wear Parisian women are wearing a new piece of jewelry which they call "la plaque." It is a round medallion about the size of a silver dollar and is of platinum or silver, but never of gold. Pearls, brilliants or colored stones are incrusted on the surface, and delightful color combinations are secured by enamels.

This little ornament is worn around the neck suspended on a fine chain or a narrow velvet ribbon with jeweled slides. The simplicity of the costume is relieved by the jeweled disk, and if you are fortunate in the possession of the many little dress accessories there will be a plaque for every costume.

TWO FRENCH DESIGNS.

If the American woman grasps the main idea of the simple lines of dress there can be a safe venture in the addition of a piece of jewelry. Indeed, the little French ornament is extremely successful in producing with the severe dress a distinctive and delightful whole.

The Business Faculty.

It is discouraging, says a writer on domestic subjects, but it is not very surprising, to note how little business faculty the average housekeeper displays. This is not always because she does not possess it, but because she has not learned the value of businesslike methods in the home and so has never developed them. It is lack of development, not lack of capacity. This all belongs to the past—to the time when the men paid all the bills, feeling that their women should not be bothered.

The whole family process is changing. Whether women earn the money outside of the home or whether they are the spenders of their husbands' earnings, the whole trend of the day is to give to them the handling of the household funds. Think of the changes in this regard during the past forty years! Our colleges, through this increasing need, have the important domestic science department, where business methods in the home are taught as thoroughly as ever men were taught. This is a great step in the line of woman's progress.

All this means that a woman should have a stipulated income to work with in her home as surely as though she earned it outside. Of course the young married woman, even though she has studied well, has much to learn, especially if she has never been a wage earner. And this is why she should keep her home on a basis of an allowance. Let her begin her training while her cares are few and learn to manage in as masterly a manner as possible for two.

One is sure to become careless if all she needs to do is to order supplies while the man of the house pays the bills. It is kind of the man to relieve his wife of all that responsibility—very kind, in a way—but it is not the best way. It should be—it really is—woman's province to run the house, and if she is to develop her powers and make a good wife and mother, a practical housekeeper and homemaker, this is the way to do it. All girls should learn business methods; then if they marry they are ready to share the cares and responsibilities of the money part of the partnership.

Expert Advice About Soupmaking.

Careme, a celebrated French cook, says of soup: "The good housewife puts her meat into an earthen stock pot and pours on cold water in the proportion of two quarts of water to three pounds of beef. She sets it on the back of the stove. As the pot becomes gradually hot and as the water heats it dilates the muscular fibers of the flesh by dissolving the gelatinous matter which covers them and allows the albumen to detach itself easily and rise to the surface in light foam or scum, while the osmazone, which is the savory juice of the meat dissolving little by little, adds flavor to the broth. By this simple process of slow boiling or simmering the housewife obtains a savory and nourishing broth and a boiled meat, which latter is tender and of good flavor."

As to the reverse way of boiling Careme says: "If you place the soup pot on too hot a fire it boils too soon. The albumen coagulates and hardens. The water, not having the necessary time to penetrate the meat, hinders the savory juice from disengaging itself, and the sad result is you have only a hard piece of boiled meat and a broth without flavor or goodness. A little fresh water poured into the pot at intervals helps the scum to rise more abundantly."

Ohio Republicans nominated Mr. Warren G. Harding, of Marion, and indorse the administration of Mr. Taft.

Rev. and Mrs. Cree are spending a few weeks at Stony Lake, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. Ackerman, of Norwood.

A very heavy rain storm, accompanied by severe thunder and lightning, passed over this section on Monday afternoon. The rain fell in torrents and the vivid lightning, accompanied with deafening peals of thunder, was enough to strike terror into the stoutest heart, but up to the time of writing we have heard of no damage being done.

During the severe electric storm of last Wednesday Mr. M. English, of Asphodel, had his barn struck by lightning and destroyed, together with about forty loads of hay and some implements.

Mr. John Weese, of Norwood, while picking berries last Wednesday, in North Dummer, during the thunder storm, had the misfortune to have his valuable roadster killed by an overdose of electric fluid.

Huckleberries are coming in quite plentiful from the north country, and fifteen-pound pails full may be had for a dollar bill.

THE SUMMER RESORT

Right in the middle of the summer season the Lindsay Post comes out with an untimely suggestion as to how to prevent sunburn.

Why, dear Post, sunburn and tan are the two most popular features of the summer outing. If you did away with them the business of the summer hotels would fall away by more than half.

Our American cousin in response to "Why, how tanned you are, old man, Where have you been?" delights to answer, "Holidaying in Canada. It's a great country up there. Dangerous, you know, wolves and bears. The 'lunge I caught frequently tipped the scales at 40 or 50 pounds. The sun is as hot as it is at the equator,"—and the other fellow never knows the difference till he himself pays a visit to the primitivee wilds of Canada, where the hotel guests wear starched collars in the morning, and the bill of fare is is just as confusing as the meal programme of the Waldorf Astoria.

ITA'S SKILL ASTOUNDED AUDIENCE

It was a curious audience that attended; it was a mystified audience went away.

Ita, the girl mentalist, and a big and capable vaudeville company, gave their opening programme at the Grand last night to an audience that filled the auditorium. The entire performance was interesting and the crowd was highly appreciative. Many turns of surprising merit were introduced and won cordial approbation.

Of course the outstanding feature was Ita. Ita came here widely heralded and much was expected of her. And she assuredly lived up to expectations. She described articles of jewellery, wearing apparel, etc., owned by people in the audience and answered mental questions with a facility and accuracy that were amazing. All her work was of absorbing interest.

For the last mental test she came down from the stage and made her responses from an aisle of the theatre. This was done, her manager explained, in order that it would not be claimed that she was assisted by any stage apparatus or confederates in the wings.

The entire offering met with marked approval and will no doubt draw large patronage during the week.

OBITUARY

MRS. EUNICE D. EVANS.

Mrs. Eunice D. Evans, seventy-five years of age, a resident of Peterborough nearly all her life, passed peacefully away about midnight last night.

She was born in Scotland and came to this country early in life. Her husband predeceased her about eight years ago.

Her many amiable qualities and her kindly disposition won her the esteem of all who knew her.

Surviving her are six sons and three daughters. They are:—James T., of Queensberry; Walter, Harry, George and Wallace, of Peterborough, and Russell, of Cleveland; Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Young, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Adams, of West Toronto.

The funeral will be private and will take place from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. P. Alexander, 27 Reid street, to All Saints' church, and thence to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

Death of Infant

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, James street, died last evening, aged three days.

The funeral will take place to Little Lake cemetery this afternoon Rev. Mr. Coon will conduct the services.

CAVANVILLE

Special to the Review.

Cavanville, Aug. 1.—Miss Victoria Winslow is home from Winnipeg, where she has been visiting for some tim past. Miss Winslow is a graduate nurse of one of Winnipeg's leading hospitals.

Mr. Went Gray, of Millbrook shipped a fine load of cattle to Mr. H. Giddy, of Port Hope, on Monday, via C.P.R.

Gilbert Kincade, of Manvers, lost and foal on Wednesday during the electrical storm which visited this section, they having been struck by lightning.

Wm. Leith shipped another carload of horses on Monday via the C.P.R.

Mr. C. McNeil has postponed the erection of his new barn until next year, owing to the lateness of the lateness of the season and the rush of work, which the contractor, Went Fry, has to contend with.

What would otherwise have been a very successful barn raising, was marred by the thunder storm on Friday. The raising took place on the farm of Mr. Mr. Percy Stewart, where a barn 105 feet by 35 feet was erected. The raising was finally completed on Saturday.

WORLD'S DEBT TO CANADA

A Wonderful Achievement

Discovery of "Fruit-a-tives" has meant health for all

Canada's fame does not rest solely on her furs and wheat fields. Her rise in the esteem of the world is not due to her Cobalt mines. It is the work of her great men that has made her great. A graduate of McGill University has won lasting renown for his original researches in the realms of Physics.

Everyone knows that fruit is wholesome, when eaten judiciously. Physicians generally recognize the fact that fruit juices have a beneficial effect on the various organs of the body.

It remained for a Canadian physician to discover a process whereby the medicinal action of fruit could be so increased as to make the intensified juices a wonderful cure.

"Fruit-a-tives" is this combination of fruit juices and tonics. Since its introduction to the public, "Fruit-a-tives" has met with a success accorded to no other medicine in the world. The reason is plain. "Fruit-a-tives" is the one remedy that is actually made of fruit, and is the only remedy that naturally cures Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Headaches, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Backache, Kidney and Skin Troubles. At all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c., or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CAVAN

The Cavan Council met on Friday last with the members all present and the reeve presiding. Various items of business were discussed when the Council adjourned to hear Mr. McLean, Minister of Public Works.

Mr. and Mrs. John Leslie, of Fleetwood, was presented with a young daughter recently. We all join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. John Leslie and little daughter a long and prosperous life.

Dr. Lou Thexton, his wife and two little children, of Chicago, were the guests of his brother, Mr. J. D. Thexton, of Mount Pleasant, last week.

J. J. Preston, M.P.P., Geo. Twigg of Bethany, C. Twanley, J. N. McGill and Harry Tinney, Cavan, took part in the annual mid-summer outing of the sports of East Durham down the river on Wedlock's launch on Tuesday last. A very enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Jim Kennedy and Miss Kennedy were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John McIntosh on Sunday.

Mr. Ray Kincade and sister were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keegan on Sunday.

Mr. Hartm school teacher of Franklin, Walter McGee and Miss Gertie McGee, left last week for the Northwest on an extended visit.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Thexton were visitors at the home of Mr. J. W. Gardiner on Sunday.

A severe electrical storm visited this locality on Wednesday last, accompanied by hail. Farmers in the vicinity of Franklin had their crops badly hailed out, one farmer near Yelverton having offered his entire crop for 50c per acre.

The improvements which have been taking place at Cavanville grist mill for the last month or two are very nearly completed. Mr. Ball expects to have the mill in operation by next week.

Threshing has commenced in this locality, Robt. Hooton having threshed a good crop of alsike for Mr. F. Staples.

Mr. Ralph Gardiner, a brother of Mr. Matt Gardiner, of Cavan, passed away in Ridgetown on July 24th. The late Mr. Gardiner was an old Cavan boy and his death will be lamented by a large circle of Cavan friends. Mr. Gardiner moved to Ridgetown some fifteen or twenty years ago and was a man of sterling integrity. The funeral took place at Morphet on Tuesday, 19th.

A man named Doherty was killed in a row at Philipsburg, Que.

G.T.R STRIKE ENDED; TRAINMEN GAIN POINT STANDARD RATES IN 1912

Agreement Reached in Grand Trunk Tie-up is to the Effect That the Men Start To-day at 18 Per Cent. Increase and Get the Full Scale a Year Sooner Than Previously Offered.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—The strike of the Grand Trunk Railway trainmen and conductors, which was launched at 9.30 p.m. on Monday night, July 18, was officially declared off at 6 o'clock last night.

The effect of the G.T.R. strike settlement is a compromise. Whereas the company was willing that the standard rates should go into force in 1913, they have agreed that they shall go into force in 1912. Also, the rules which have gone into force on the C.P.R. have been agreed upon. They are particularly favorable to the men. The terms of the settlement of the difficulties are as follows:

1. The company will put back as soon as possible the men, other than those who have been, or may be found, guilty of acts of violence or disorderly conduct, the understanding being that there is to be no coercion or intimidation used towards the new men.

2. The company will put into effect, from May 1, 1910, the rates named in schedule of rates dated July 18, 1910, those rates to be embodied in the present schedules now in effect on this line, it being understood that those rates shall in no instance effect a reduction in any existing rate.

3. The company will, on Jan. 1, 1912, make effective in train and yard service on the G.T.R. the rates of pay and the rules contained in the schedule or agreement on that date in effect on the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway east of Fort William.

The three above propositions shall apply also to the Central Vermont Railroad Co., the said railroad to be substituted for the Grand Trunk Railway, and the Rutland Railroad to be substituted for the Canadian Pacific Railway, wherever the same are used in the above.

In the case of the Central Vermont, by the "schedule of rates dated July 18, 1910," is meant the schedule issued by the management of that company since July 1.

Signed by Charles M. Hays,
President G.T.R. System.

Attested: A. B. Garretson, pres. O.R.C.; W. G. Lee, pres. B. of R.T.

For the O.R.C.: Robert Kelley, N. Foy, Ed. Z. Sinclair, J. E. Mann. Approved by S. N. Berry, V.P.

For the B.R.T.: John Maloney, J. A. Conner, W. E. Berry, P. A. Hebert. Approved by James Murdock, V.P.

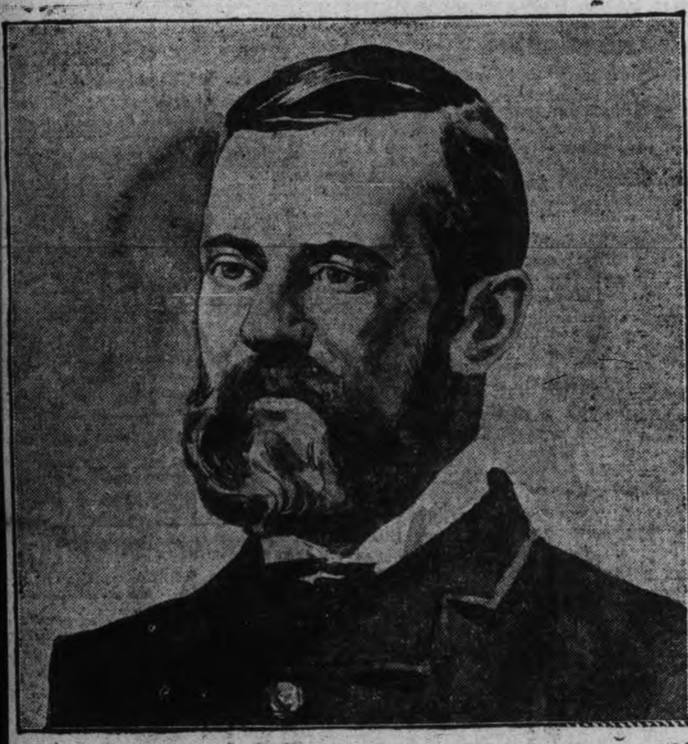
It was stated by President Garretson of the O.R.C., last night, that the company and brotherhood officials parted on the most friendly terms.

The following general order was sent out by Vice-President Jas. Murdock, B.R.T., and Vice-President Sam Berry, O.R.C., to the strikers' committees:

Advise all men to report for duty at once.

Instruct to carefully avoid any mistreatment of strikebreakers until they are all eliminated from the service. All men will be returned to the service as soon as possible.

The printed wage schedule issued by company becomes effective May 1. Canadian Pacific rates and rules become effective Dec. 31, 1911.



CHAS. M. HAYS.
President G.T.R. System.

On the afternoon the strike was called, Mr. Hays offered to standardize the rate of wages on January 1, 1913, and he now makes the date Dec. 31, 1911, or a gain of a year for the men. The wage offer of Mr. Hays now in force, is accepted by the men till the standard rates are adopted.

The increased rates of pay are made retroactive dating from May 1, 1910.

The standardization on the Central Vermont also is made Dec. 31, 1911, but the same to equal the Rutland, rather than the C.P.R., as in the Grand Trunk system.

As to the question of having restored to the strikers the pension privileges lost by the strike, Mr. Murdock said that had not been discussed in the conferences. He explained why.

"We have always taken the position that pensions are an unknown quantity," he said, "that they are placed into effect on many systems only for the purpose of testing the loyalty of the men to their organization in the time of trouble.

"If the men employed in train service get the wage rates and conditions of employment to which they are entitled during the years they are able to give loyal and useful service to their employers, they will probably be able to place themselves in a position whereby they are not of necessity dependent in their advanced years on the pension fund.

"We presume the company is in the same position to do just as it pleases about the question of pensions as it was before the strike. It was not a factor in the negotiating."

The local committee of 42 men from Chicago to Portland, will gather here as soon as possible with Mr. Murdock to frame the conditions, etc., which go with the settlement, and arrange for the payment of the strike benefits to the 3,000 or 4,000 men affected.

Gives Credit to Borden.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—At 7.20 o'clock last night Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, announced that the G.T.R. strike had been settled, as a result of Government intervention.

He stated that the successful issue of the negotiations was due mainly to Sir Frederick Borden.

Indeed, he remarked, that had it not been for the services of the Minister of Militia, he did not believe that the strike would now be ended.

Angry With G.T.R.

North Bay, Aug. 3.—Citizens of North Bay, and members of the Northern Volunteer Firemen's Association, are saying some very uncomplimentary things about the Grand Trunk Railway Co. to-day, as a result of the company's action in cancelling all excursion trains to North Bay for Wednesday, the occasion of the annual tournament of the association, which embraces ten towns, including Penetang, Orillia, Barrie, Parry Sound, Midland, Bracebridge, Huntsville, Burk's Falls, Gravenhurst and North Bay. Excursions had been arranged from all these points, and special trains contracted for.

On account of the strike negotiations were opened with the executive more than a week ago as to the advisability of a postponement, but assurances were received that trains would be furnished. Yesterday word was received that the company had cancelled all excursion trains for the tournament, thus keeping several thousand people away from the celebrations.

Considerable expense was gone to by the North Bay committee for the two days' celebration, including a firemen's tournament, band competition, field sports and horse races, and the cancellation of the Grand Trunk excursion trains at the last moment has aroused intense indignation. The citizens decided to go ahead with the celebration and make the best of a bad situation.

FIGHT AT COUNCIL MEETING

Ald. Kelly and Commissioner Drew of Guelph Came to Blows.

Guelph, Aug. 3.—The most sensational session that the City Council of Guelph ever held was their meeting last night, when Ald. C. W. Kelly and Commissioner J. J. Drew, K.C., came to blows over an animated discussion that arose over the question of whether or not the radial railway commissioners, Drew and Ryan, and their chairman, J. W. Lyon, be permitted to take seats at the board, to discuss with the aldermen a question relative to the People's Railway.

There is a railing about four feet high, dividing the council chamber proper from the space provided for spectators, and over this obstacle the scrap between Commissioner Drew and Ald. Kelly began. It seems the commissioner made some remark to the alderman that caused him to lose his temper, and the latter, reaching over the railing, struck Mr. Drew a resounding smack. Mr. Drew had his hat in one hand and a light walking cane in the other. The aggressive alderman in the next instant received two or three smart raps of the cane over his head and knuckles. Ald. Kelly tried to vault over the railing, but was held back by the aldermen sitting next to him. On the other side, it took several of the commissioners to hold Mr. Drew, who, in a tone of indignation declared, "Let me alone. I must defend myself against this man." Breaking away from his fellows, Ald. Kelly ran around the partition, determined to have it out with his opponent, but just as he had about made his way, Ald. Carter forced him on to a bench and held there, bringing the scrap to an end.

THIS MURDERER MAY GO FREE

No Request From Italian Government for Charlton Extradition

New York, Aug. 3.—The forty days allowed the Italian Government under its treaty with the United States, to make formal demand for the custody of Porter Charlton, held in Jersey City, N.J., jail for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton, at Moltrasio, on Lake Como, expired at midnight last night.

No such request has been received by the State Department in Washington.

The interest of the U. S. Government in the case dies with the expiration of the forty days, and the unusual situation confronts the officials of a confessed murderer being held without legal process.

Three courses are open to the attorneys retained by Judge Charlton, father of the young assassin. The first is simply to demand that the youth be released, there being no legal charge against him. The second is the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus to secure his release, while the third is the institution of insanity proceedings.

MISS LENEVE WILL PROBABLY HELP TO CONVICT DR. CRIPPEN

She Declares That She Thought Belle Elmore Died a Natural Death—Crippen Spends His Time Reading and Walking.

Quebec, Aug. 3.—Miss Leneve, Dr. Crippen's companion in flight from London, yesterday affirmed her innocence to Miss Phillips, the matron of the jail infirmary, in which the girl is incarcerated, protesting that, if murder had been committed, she had no part in it. "I was always under the impression that Belle Elmore had died," she said. "I accepted her jewelry, with the understanding that if Dr. Crippen murdered her, I knew nothing about it."

Knowledge of this statement did not come through Inspector Dew, nor his confreres in charge of the case. "Mum" is still the word in official circles. But the signs point to the fact that something has transpired to give them grounds for hoping that the girl will turn King's evidence. The Scotland Yard man yesterday expressed the opinion that Miss Leneve would give the crown every assistance in her power towards clearing up the mystery. He further affirmed his belief that the Leneve girl had nothing to do with the murder of Mrs. Crippen, or Belle Elmore as she was known in theatrical circles.

Dr. Gosselin, who was called to attend Miss Leneve at Chief McCarthy's house on Monday morning, after her removal from the Montrose, is still visiting her in the jail infirmary, to which she was Monday evening removed, but he will not make any statement as to her condition. It is said, however, at the jail, that she is improving. Miss Phillips, who has charge of the jail hospital, has placed a female "trusty" in the room with the girl, to guard against her attempting to make away with herself in a despondent moment.

Crippen has mentioned the girl only once since his arrest, and then he expressed the hope that she would be well cared for, as she was a very delicate young woman.

The former London doctor has been allotted a large cell in the southern section of the jail, where he spends his time chiefly in reading and walking. When he called for fresh reading matter yesterday morning, he was taken two books, one of them the Bible. The murder suspect chose the Bible and read attentively until meal time. He sleeps and eats well, according to the jail officials, and on the whole is in good health. A telegram arrived for him yesterday from his aged father, C. M. Crippen, who resides in Los Angeles, Cal., but was withheld by Inspector Dew. The message did not mention the case, or express confidence in the son's innocence, but merely that the prisoner could count on all the support that the father could give.

There is no longer any doubt about the length of time which will be required to get Crippen back into England. Judge Langelier of the sessions of the peace, who had a conference yesterday with Premier Sir Lomer Gouin, informed the press last evening that the authorities here would have to await evidence from England that a murder had been committed before they could send Crippen back. At any rate, the law which has been invoked provides fifteen days' grace for the prisoner. The authorities are also awaiting a warrant of extradition from Ottawa.

Will Defend Crippen.

London, Aug. 3.—Arthur Newton, the London solicitor who has cabled to Dr. Crippen his willingness to undertake Crippen's defence, is a well-known and successful criminal advocate. He has been connected with many cases of a sensational character.

GOVERNMENT'S NAVAL POLICY WAS ENDORSED

Regina, Sask., Aug. 3.—At the meeting here Monday night an unusual incident occurred, when 350 German immigrants, under the leadership of Theodore Scmidtz, welcomed Sir Wilfrid. As Scmidtz rose to address the Prime Minister a remarkable demonstration took place, which developed into a provincial welcome. Not only did the young German endorse the Government naval policy, but a gathering of young Hebrews took the same stand, and further, the young Englishmen who have been in the country for less than twelve months gave their expression of approval to the Government's policy. While the west thinks more of box cars than of warships, so far the navy has not been the most popular question before the public.

At Weyburn, Sir Wilfrid and his party were tendered a complimentary banquet on their arrival.

THE HAGUE ARBITRATION

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At The Hague fisheries dispute, Counsel Robson for England entered upon the sixth day of his speech, and continued his argument on the fifth question before the tribunal, and claimed exclusive jurisdiction for Great Britain in the North Atlantic fisheries in all bays and three miles beyond. In support of his claim he quoted largely from official documents, some of which were of much historical interest.

He argued that in the American interpretation of the renunciary clause of the treaty of 1818, the word "bays" became superfluous, because the United States wished to trace the line of demarcation in territorial waters everywhere three miles from the shore. In point of fact, he said, the United States in 1818 had renounced precisely the same right which it received in 1783 to fish in territorial waters three miles from the coasts and in bays, which then were considered the property of the coastal states. This contention was confirmed by the Delaware Bay incident of 1793, he said. If large bays only are to be considered territorial waters, when other nations consented, and the tribunal endorsed this erroneous opinion, Great Britain would withdraw her consent to territoriality in the Delaware and Chesapeake Bays.

EXPAND YOUR MANLY CHEST

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Well-tailored men of the coming fall will be narrow of shoulder and broad of chest, and the present type of wide-shouldered, but anaemic "clothing store athlete," will have vanished from the realm of the elite.

The overcoat of "the man who knows" will be loose and baggy. The latest thing in keep-warm clothing is called a "great-coat." Any size will fit any one fairly well, but is guaranteed not to fit any individual perfectly. The coat will bear the ulster collar of last winter, only more so.

NO CHRISTMAS BOXES IN FUTURE

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State, has written to each of the Cabinet Ministers, suggesting that the custom of making presents of knives, etc., at Christmas time to members of the civil service, shall be stopped. He has had replies from some of the Ministers, and it is understood that these have concurred with his view that the practice should be abolished.

Twice Tried to Die.

Detroit, Aug. 3.—Despondent because he had taken drink for the first time in his life and had been robbed of nearly all his money, Edward Matthews, aged 20, of Toronto, made two attempts late Monday night to commit suicide. He first jumped into an excavation, and was dragged out by the police. He then threw himself on the street car tracks.

DON'T WANT PREFERENCE

London, Aug. 3.—Right Hon. Alexander Ure, Lord Advocate of Scotland, speaking at Great Missenden, said: "Those self-made, muddle-headed people who preached preference wanted to give Canadian farmers an artificially increased price on the produce, but the farmers themselves, the very day this policy was preached in the Commons, repudiated it and said they only wanted fair play in their own market." It is proposed, he said, to give Canada a preference she did not want, and to shut out Australia and South Africa.

Increase In Customs Receipts.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—July customs receipts for the Dominion were $5,724,714.16, as compared with $4,913,156.66 during the corresponding month last year, an increase of $811,557.50. For the four months ending July 31 the receipts were $22,611,810.16, as compared with $18,003,153.87, an increase of $4,608,650.29.

Will Not Commit Political Suicide.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Morning Post protests against the repetition by the free trade press of the report of the "gigantic delegation" to Laurier in favor of abolition of the tariff. It says that Laurier is as likely to commit political suicide as to embark on a fatal free trade policy.

Still In the Ring.

Vancouver, Aug. 3.—Hon. Frank Oliver arrived from Dawson and left for the east. He denies that he had any intention of resigning the portfolio of the Interior.

TRADE WITH AUSTRALIA

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The report of the Canadian Trade Commissioner to Australia, which has just been received by the Department of Trade and Commerce, shows that Australian-Canadian trade for the Australian fiscal year amounted to over $3,800,000. Australian imports from Canada aggregated $400,000 and exports to Canada $400,000. For Australia's previous fiscal year imports from Canada totaled $2,660,000 and exports to Canada $395,000.

Rival Factions Clash.

Vigo, Spain, Aug. 3—The police here intervened yesterday to disperse rival demonstrations, the members of which came to blows over the dispute between Spain and the Vatican. The Capucines were marching in procession, acclaiming the Pope, when they were attacked by the anti-clerical elements of the population.

CORONATION OATH ALTERED PASSES HOUSE OF LORDS

Bill Which Now Awaits the Assent of King George, Simply Says That King Must Declare Himself a True Protestant and Swear to Maintain the Protestant Succession.

London, Aug. 3.—The accession declaration bill, striking out the phrases offensive to the Roman Catholic Church in the declaration made by the King after accession and substituting merely the words, "I am a faithful Protestant," was passed by the House of Lords upon the third reading yesterday. No changes were made in the formula as adopted by the House of Commons.

The bill, having passed the House of Commons, now awaits the royal assent. The oath, as amended, will be in the following terms: "I do solemnly, sincerely, in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare that I am a faithful Protestant, and that I will, according to the true intent of the enactments to secure the Protestant succession to the throne of my realm, uphold and maintain said enactments to the best of my power."

The unanimity with which Parliament has approved of the new form of declaration is in striking contrast with the controversial feeling aroused throughout the country. In Scotland the opposition to the bill was particularly keen, and members of Parliament were deluged with petitions from religious and other bodies protesting against the change. The Nonconformists claimed that there should be no reference to the "Church of England as by law established," and showed strong opposition to the original substituting clause, which read: "and declare that I am a faithful member of the Protestant Church as by law established in England." This amendment was accepted by the Premier.

The first reading of the bill passed the House of Commons on June 28 by a vote of 383 to 42, and the second reading was agreed to on Wednesday last without a division. The reasons for the bill were clearly expressed by Mr. Asquith, who declared that their only object was to relieve the new sovereign from the obligation of making a public declaration which gave legitimate offence to millions of loyal subjects in all parts of his dominions.

DESTROYED THE BOOKS

Montreal, Aug. 3.—Practically the whole day was taken up by the special investigation committee appointed to look into the charges brought against the members of Emancipation Lodge in connection with the alleged plot against the priests attending the International Eucharistic Congress. Three sessions were held, and the most important item adduced came out at the close of the third session late Monday night. It was to the effect that at the end of May all books and records of the lodge had been destroyed, so that there is no existent corroboration in writing of the charges made by the three young men of the alleged plot. The witnesses for the defence declared that the books had been destroyed to safeguard the lodge secrets and business.

Want to Move to Ontario.

Chatham, Aug. 3.—Forty Illinois farmers have sent a deputation to Kent County to see what farms they can buy up at $40 an acre. The American farmers are trying to sell their holdings in Illinois with a view to moving to a more fertile country.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

James Haggerty died at Chatham as a result of the excessive use of liquor.

James Johnson was arraigned at Chatham on a charge of murdering Jacob Enos.

An exploring party reports great finds of asphalt and salt in the Peace River district.

Marion Mitchell, a girl of five, is believed to be suffering from hydrophobia at Hamilton.

William E. Fox, a pioneer farmer of King Township, died on his old homestead yesterday.

The cold-storage and warehousing plant of the Winnipeg Fish Co. at Selkirk, Man., was destroyed by fire.

A coroner's jury at Victoria, B.C., brought in a verdict accusing Gunner Allen of the murder of Capt. Elliston.

Manufacturers in London who are employing children under fourteen years of age in their factories are being prosecuted.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

DEFYING THE AUTHORITIES

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The Transcontinental Railway Commissioners are much concerned over reports from La Tuque, concerning whisky troubles in the vicinity of construction work. The law is that whisky cannot be sold within five miles on either side of the railway, while under construction. Reports to the commissioners state, however, that the whisky sellers are openly defying the authorities, and refuse to remove themselves. The situation is so serious that half a dozen Dominion policemen were sent to La Tuque yesterday, heavily armed, and with the simple order to see that the law is obeyed.

KILLED BY DEADLY ACID

Philadelphia, Aug. 3.—Two children were fatally injured and eight other children and four men were seriously burned as the result of a peculiar accident here yesterday afternoon.

A fire department supply wagon, carrying four 15-gallon carboys of vitriolic acid, and on which ten children were riding, broke an axle as it was turning out of a street car track. The breaking of the axle upset the vehicle, spilling out the children and the carboys. The carboys broke, and in an instant the ten youngsters were covered with the deadly acid. Men trying to rescue the children were also burned.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 3, 1910.

HOLIDAYS

Its passing strange, but we put up with much during our holidays that we wouldn't tolerate at our home.

We drink vile coffee, eat tough meat and sleep in hard beds and fight flies, mosquitos and other things at from $10 to $18 per week, cash payable in advance.

We rise at an outlandish hour and fish, we wade through much underbrush, we get tired and dirty and some times catch fish and sometimes don't, but catch cold instead.

We put up with all sorts of inconveniences, but it's holidays.

WHY IS IT SO?

Notwithstanding repeated appeals which have been made in behalf of the residents of the stricken town of Campbellton, it would seem as if few realized the magnitude of the disaster. Hardly a vestige of the place remains. Not only has the fire left the people homeless, but many of them virtually penniless. In order that the town may be rebuilt, money is urgently needed, and if the aid is to be effective it must be given generously and at once. The wiping out of Campbellton calls in clarion tones for the assistance of the citizens of Toronto and the Province of Ontario at large if the town is to rise from its ashes.—The Toronto Mail and Empire.

What makes people so miserly? When that terrible disaster overtook San Francisco the Government of Canada offered splendid and substantial aid. But here in our own country, under our own flag, is a disaster that has wiped out a town, and winter will soon be knocking at the door, and Canada's purse strings are tight. Why is it? To be charitable in a case like this is real and tangible Christianity Canada poses as a Christian nation, doesn't it?

THE G. T. P. BARGAIN

The Grain Growers' Association throughout the west are demanding of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the Government build and operate the Hudson Bay Railway as a government enterprise. The Laurier Government will find it very difficult to comply with this request.

There is great difficulty, that unless and until a local traffic is built up the Hudson Bay Railway will be a line of intermittent traffic. There will be a rush in the wheat-shipping season, and at other seasons little or nothing. If it is managed as a Government line it will need a lot of rolling stock at one period of the year and other periods the rolling stock will stand idle, deteriorating and losing money. Mr. M. J. Butler, until recently Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, put this case, and argued that the line should be turned over to one of the big systems, which could turn all the cars needed into it at the rush season and use them elsewhere at other times.

This dilemma is a natural result of the Government's G.T.P. bargain. In 1903 the Laurier Government could have put the Intercolonial through to the west. It had only to buy an existing railway which was in the market to be extended to Depot Harbor on the Georgian Bay, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier refused, on the express ground that he did not believe in Government ownership. Apart from this, the Government in 1903, when it planned the Quebec to Winnipeg trunk line could have made that part of the Intercolonial. Even if it had decided to allow the Grand Trunk Pacific to use the trunk line, it could have bargained for running rights for the Intercolonial over it, and so put the I.C.R. trains into Winnipeg. But Sir Wilfrid preferred to spend $200,000,000 in building the eastern division of the G.T.P. and handing it over wholly to a private corporation. Then, it helped the G. T. P. from Winnipeg west by guaranteeing three fourths of the cost; had it arranged to put the Intercolonial into Winnipeg it would have made the G.T.P. pay for the assistance it received by allowing running rights. Then the Hudson Bay Railway could have been run as part of the Intercolonial—exactly what the westerners are asking.

But instead this is what is happening:—

1. The people of Canada are spending $200,000,000 on the Winnipeg to Moncton Railway.
2. When that line is finished the G. T.P. will be given full control of it.
3. The Intercolonial, the People's Railway, will not be allowed to use the road built with the people's money. money.
4. The G.T.P. gets government help in financing three-fourths of its western lines, and yet owns these lines outright.
5. The people's credit has been pledged, the people's railway cannot use the lines so built, and the people's newer railway, the one to Hudson Bay, is crowded into a corner and frozen out.

ITA

There is a girl at the Grand Opera House this week, "Ita." The evening's entertainment provided is good. Ita is a sensitive. There is a great deal of trickery in much of this class of work, but from casual observation this gifted young lady appears to be strictly on the level. There are many who are inclined to scoff at mentalism, clarivoyancy and clariaudency, but they err in this. The seer lives to-day, no less than in the days of the ancient. Joseph of old was a seer. Its a gift, but in every one is something, that indefinable something that may be cultivated. If less attention was paid to money making, house building and getting power or position we would have much wider visions than we do to-day.

OLD WORLD

Yes, and there are in every town a number of shysters and grabbers who make every dollar a prisoner and who rise up and fall down and rise up again in a wild chase for five cents; yes, for five cents, hoarded to make another dollar. They would die for a thousand. Oh, yes; there is commerical war in the world, but the dove of peace has always remained alive.

You cannot kill her. She will not die.

Ah, you money grubbers, quit your grasping and grubbing; come out of that hole that you call your office and listen to the song of the binder in the harvest field; come into the farm house and get a lesson how to eat a good square bite without having to take a pill after each meal.

My friend, this world is beautiful. Size it up—the child, innocent and free from trouble; his father may not know where his next month's rent is coming from, yet that youngster's laugh is free and hearty.

He trusts his dad.

Say, can't you trust your Grand Sire who rides the clouds, who creates the systems, to give you a roof and a meal.

He says if you do the square thing by Him He will, and we believe Him.

What would we know of pleasure if sorrow's finger had never cut us?

What of the dawn, that happy gladsome dawn, if there were no dark nights?

And what of the stars had we not walked in the starless hours? And how of the sun, had we ne'er known the sunless day?

And so each morning rise prepared to meet some mean man, some blabbing woman. Be well fortified for the jealous ones, the ones who are sorry to see you getting on. But as we have just written, how much sweeter are the true friendships for all that? How much more we love those who prevailed for us when we were in distress.

Ah, old world, we love you, yet when the summons comes we will hold out our hand to the One Who reaching down will take us over to the land of undreamed happiness, an unexplainable eternity, the border of which sometimes in ecstacy we have but seen.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE

Dr. Crippen may or may not be guilty. He certainly was not skillful. To avoid detection is always a criminal's first thought, but whenever there is a woman in the case, and the man and woman run away together, the two are almost invariably caught. Three robbers held up Manager Rowley in the Bank fo Nova Scotia in Rainy River, and got $10,000.

The robbers escaped. One committed suicide. The other is in jail doing 10 years. The third is free. A woman who went with the robbers led to their undoing. Innocent or guilty, if Dr. Crippen had only fought shy of the girl he might have been still free.

AN INVITATION

THE MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL AND THE BOARD OF HEALTH ARE INVITED TO READ THE ARTICLE ON ANOTHER PAGE. IT IS FROM THE MONTREAL CHRONICLE AND TELLS OF THINGS THE BOARD OF HEALTH AND AUTHORITIES OF BIRMINGHAM HAVE DONE. MEANWHILE OUR GARBAGE SYSTEM IS AS ROTTEN AS THE GARBAGE, AND THE FLY CONTINUES TO INCREASE.

PROTECTION OF BIRDS

It's bad enough now, but if the birds were killed off we could hardly stand them—the flies and mosquitos, the gnats, the infinite number of pests to bother man and tree. Yet, there are those who think that to shoot a hawk is fine fun, while to kill some lesser bird is also much recreation. Thousands of dollars are spent yearly in fighting moths and bug pests, but the slaughter of birds, the greatest enemy to the bug, continues. Bang! the bird falls dead and a thousand insects take new life.

CRIMINALS

Speaking of murders, Hamilton appears as safe a town from the murderers' standpoint as any, to murder in. The Bannon murder, the Barton mystery and the Kinrade case are three tragedies that are yet unsolved. Two people went up the mountainside. They were seen to walk into a bush. He was seen to come out alone. She was found dead. He disappeared completely. Bannon, a policeman, was shot dead. Miss Kinrade was riddled with bullets. In the last two cases there are strong supsicions, but somewhere there are three murderers free—save conscience.

CHAS. M. HAYS

A letter from "A Friend of the Workingman" appeared in last night's Review, objecting to Manager Hays of the G.T.R., making $25,00 or $35,000 a year. A person who says he is well informed, tells the Review that Chas. M. Hays makes $75,000 per year. He is probably worth it to the company. It seems strange, however, that the large sum should be paid to one man, when the company declared it could not pay a standard wage to the men. But it is always the way, hard heads make soft salaries. Hays is worth the $75,000 from the company's standpoint, and while it is easy to get a yardmaster or an engineer or conductor, it is hard to get a man big enough to be manager of a great railroad system. He is worth any price that he may ask to the company.

AMONG THE INVENTORS

"Among the Inventors" is the name of a strikingly interesting article that appears in August's Busy Man's Magazine. The writer is Mr. F. H. Dobbin, Peterborough. In the article, which is profusely illustrated by Stan. Murray, is an original and racy narrative story of the birth of many of the modern inventions, as well as some of the older ones. There is much humor in it, much information and throughout, it throbs with that touch of naturalness that makes it well worth reading.

And when they are advertised you may be sure they are all right.

For a merchant must stand behind his advertised goods. He stakes his reputation on the statements he makes.

And so this "store news" in The Daily Review can be depended upon. If you follow it you will arrive at the place where the goods you need can be found and, in nine cases out of ten, at the most reasonable prices.

And so you will get most value for your dollars if you are a constant ad. reader.

The Lure of the Mask

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

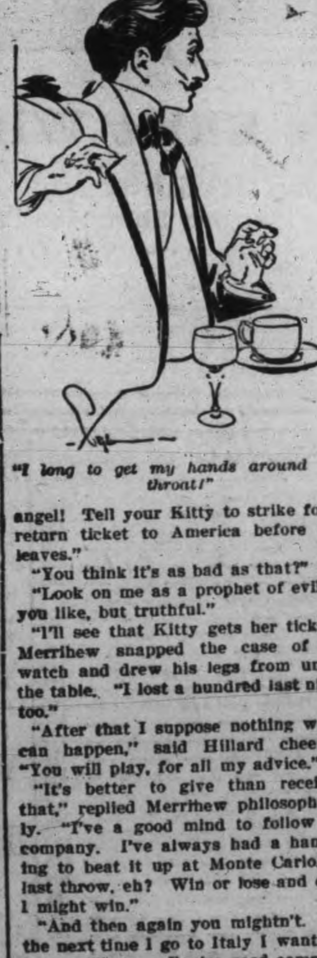
Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

Merrihew drew out his watch and opened the case. It was a pretty face. More than that, it was a refined prettiness. The eyes were merry; the brow was intelligent; the nose and chin were good. Altogether it was the face of a merry, kindly little soul, one such as would be most likely to trap the wandering fancy of a young man like Merrihew.

"And she won't have you?" Hillard repeated, this time with more curiosity than sympathy.

"Oh, she's no fool, I suppose. And now she's going to Europe! Some manager has the idea in his head that there is money to be made in Italy and Germany during the spring and summer. American comic opera in those countries—can you imagine it? He has an angel, and I suppose money is no object."

"This angel, then, has cut out a fine time for his bank account, and he'll never get back to heaven once he gets tangled up in foreign red tape. Every large city in Italy and Germany has practically its own opera troupe. Poor angel! Tell your Kitty to strike for a return ticket to America before she leaves."



"I long to get my hands around her throat!"

"You think it's as bad as that?"

"Look on me as a prophet of evil, if you like, but truthful."

"I'll see that Kitty gets her ticket." Merrihew snapped the case of his watch and drew his legs from under the table. "I lost a hundred last night too."

"After that I suppose nothing worse can happen," said Hillard cheerily. "You will play, for all my advice."

"It's better to give than receive—that," replied Merrihew philosophically. "I've a good mind to follow the company. I've always had a hankering to beat it up at Monte Carlo. A last throw, eh? Win or lose and quit. I might win."

"And then again you mightn't. But the next time I go to Italy I want you to go with me. You're good company, and for the pleasure of listening to your jokes I'll gladly foot the bills, and you may gamble your letter of credit to your heart's content. I must be off. Who is riding the Sandfords' black?"

"Haven't noticed. What do you think of Kitty?"

"Charming."

"And the photo isn't a marker."

"Possibly not."

"Lord, if I could only hibernate for three months like a bear! My capital might then readjust itself if left alone that length of time."

"See you at the club tonight," laughed Hillard.

They nodded pleasantly and took their separate ways. Merrihew stood very high in Hillard's regard. He was a lovable fellow, and there was something kindred in his soul and Hillard's, possibly the spirit of romance. What drew them together perhaps more than anything else was their mutual love of outdoor pleasures. Take two men and put them on good horses, send them forth into the wilds to face all inconveniences, and if they are not fast friends at the end of the journey they never will be.

For all his aversion to cards there was a bit of the gamester in Hillard, as once in his office he decided on the fall of a coin not to withdraw his personal from the paper. He was quite positive that he would never hear that voice again; but, having thrown his dice, he would let them lie.

Now, at 11 o'clock that same morning two distinguished Italians sat down to breakfast in one of the fashionable hotels. The one nor the other had ever heard of Hillard. They did not even know that such a person existed, and yet serenely unconscious one was casting his life line, as the palmist would say, across Hillard's. The knots and tangles were to come later.

"The coffee in this country is abominable!" growled one.

The waiter smiled covertly behind his hand. These Italians and these Germans! Why, there is only one place in the world where both the aroma and the flavor of coffee are preserved, and it is not, decidedly not, in Italy or Germany. And if his tip exceeded 10 cents he would be vastly surprised. The Italian never wastes on necessities a penny which can be applied to the gaming tables. And these two were talking about Monte Carlo and Ostend.

The younger of the two was a very handsome man, tall, slender and nervous, the Venetian type, his black eyes, keen and roving, suggesting a hasty temper. The mouth, partly hidden under a graceful military mustache, was thin lipped, the mouth of a man who was always master of his vices. From his right cheek bone to the corner of his mouth ran a scar, very well healed. And the American imagination might readily have pictured villas, maids in durance vile and sword thrusts under the moonlight. But the waiter, who had served his time in a foreign army, knew no foil or rapier could have made such a scar; more probably the saber.

His companion was equally picturesque. With white head and iron gray beard, he wore in his buttonhole a tiny bow of ribbon, the badge of foreign service.

"I'm afraid, Enrico, that you have brought me to America on a useless adventure," said the diplomat.

"She is here in New York, and I shall find her. I must have money—must! I owe you the incredible amount of 100,000 lire. There are millions under my hand, and I cannot touch a penny."

"Do not let your debt to me worry you."

"You are so very good, Giuseppe!"

"Have we not grown up together? Sometimes I think I am partly to blame for your extravagance. But a friend is a friend or he is not."

"But he who borrows from his friend loses him. Observe how I am placed. It is maddening. I have had a dozen opportunities to marry riches. This millstone is eternally round my neck. I have gone through my part of the fortune which was left us independently. She has all of hers, and that is why she is so strong. I am absolutely helpless."

"Poor friend! These American women! They all believe that a man must have no peccadillos once he has signed the marriage contract. Body of Bacchus! The sacrament does not make a man less human than he was before. But this one is clever. She might be Italian born."

"Her mother was Italian. It is the schooling in this country that has made her so clever. The only thing Italian about her is her hatred. She is my countrywoman there. Without her consent I can touch nothing, and if I divorce her—poufi!—all goes to the state. Sometimes I long to get my two hands round her white throat. One mistake, one little mistake! I am willing to swear that she loved me in the beginning. And I was a fool not to profit by this sentiment. Give me patience, patience. If I say to her, 'So much and you may have your freedom,' there is always that cursed will. The crown of Italy will never withdraw its hand. No. With his wife's family on his hands, especially her brother, the king will never waive his rights."

"And, remember, we have but ten days."

"We shall not find time heavy. I know a few rich butchers and grocers who call themselves the aristocracy. And some of them play bridge and ecarte."

The diplomat smiled in anticipation.

"I have followed her step by step to the boat at Naples. She is here. She will not be hard to find. She has wealthy friends."

"You say she is beautiful?"

"Yes, and a beautiful woman cannot hide. Think of it! Chateaux and villas and splendid rents, all waiting to be gormanized by the state! Let us get out into the air before I become excited and forget where I am."

The waiter stepped forward with the coats and hats.

CHAPTER III.

MME. ANGOT.

THREE nights later, as Hillard and Merrihew were dining together at the club, the steward came into the grill room and swept his placid eye over the groups of diners. Singling out Hillard, he came solemnly down to the corner table and laid a blue letter at the side of Hillard's plate.

"I did not see you when you came in, sir," said the steward, his voice as solemn as his step. "The letter arrived yesterday."

"Thank you, Thomas." With no small difficulty Hillard composed his face and repressed the eagerness in his eyes. She had seen; she had written; the letter lay under his hand! Who said that romance had taken flight? True, the reading of the letter might disillusion him, but always would there be that vision and the voice coming out of the fog. Nonchalantly he turned the letter face downward and went on with the meal.

He sat there staring.

"I did not know that your mail came to the club," said Merrihew.

"It doesn't. Only rarely a letter drifts this way."

"Well, go on and read it. Don't let me keep you from it. Some charmer, I'll wager. Here I pour all my adventures into your ear, and I on my side never so much as get a hint of yours. Go on, read it."

"Adventures, fiddlesticks! The letter can wait. It is probably a bill."

"A bill in a fashionable envelope like that?"

Hillard only smiled, tipped the cradle and refilled Merrihew's glass with some excellent Romanee Conti. "When does Kitty sail?" he asked after awhile of silence.

"A week from this Saturday, Feb. 2. What the deuce did you bring up that for? I've been trying to forget it."

"Where do they land?"

"Naples. They open in Rome the first week in March. All the arrangements are complete." After coffee Merrihew pushed back his chair. "I'll reserve a table in the billiard room while you read your letter."

"I'll be with you shortly," gratefully.

So with the inevitable black cigar between his teeth Merrihew sauntered off toward the billiard room, while Hillard picked up his letter and studied it. His fingers trembled slightly as he tore open the envelope. The handwriting, the paper, the modest size, all these pointed to a woman of culture and refinement. But a subtle spirit of irony pervaded it all. She would never have answered his printed inquiry had she not laughed over it, for pinned to the top of the letter was the clipping, the stupid, banal clipping: "Will the lady who sang from 'Mme. Angot' communicate with gentleman who leaned out of the window? J. H., Burgomaster club." There was neither a formal beginning nor a formal ending, only four crisp lines. But these implied one thing and distinctly—the writer had no desire for further communication "with gentleman who leaned out of the window." He read and reread slowly:

> I am sorry to learn that my singing disturbed you. There was a reason. At that particular moment I was happy.

That was all. It was enough. She had laughed. She was a lady humorously inclined, not to say mischievous. A comic opera star would have sent her press agent round to see what advertising could be got out of the incident; a prima donna would have appealed to her primo tenor for the same purpose. A gentlewoman surely; moreover, she lived within the radius, the official radius, of the Madison square branch of the postoffice, for such was the postmark. Common sense urged him to dismiss the whole affair and laugh over it as "the lady in the fog" had done. But common sense often goes about with a pedant's strut and is something to avoid on occasions. Here was a harmless pastime to pursue, common sense notwithstanding. The vein of romance in him was strong, and all the commercial blood of his father could not subjugate it. He rang for paper and a messenger and wrote: "Mme. Angot—There is a letter for you in the mail department of this office." This time his initials were not necessary. Once the message was on its way he sought Merrihew, whom he found knocking the balls about in a spiritless manner.

"A hundred to seventy-five, Dan."

"For what?"

"For the mere fun of the game, of course."

"Make it cigars, just to add interest."

"Cigars, then."

But they both played a very indifferent game. At 10:30 Merrihew's eyes began to haunt the clock, and Hillard grew merciful for various reasons.

"What time does the performance end?" he asked.

"At 10:50, but it takes about twenty minutes to scrape off the makeup."

Merrihew put his cue in the rack. He made off for the coat room.

Hillard laughed and went up to the writing room to fulfill a part of his destiny. He took the letter out and read it again. He replaced the letter in its blue covering, and then for the first time his eye met the superscription. Like a man entranced he sat there staring. The steward had brought the letter to him, and in his first excitement this had made no impression upon his mind. He had seen nothing peculiar nor strange. And here it was, not his initials, but his name in full.

She knew who he was!

To be continued.

INJURIES RECEIVED FATAL TO SMITH YOUNG MAN

George Wheeler, Smith township, nineteen years of age, was kicked by a vicious cow on Sunday and died as a result of the injuries received early yesterday morning.

The young man, as was his usual custom, went out early Sunday morning to attend to the milking of the cows. On approaching one of them it launched a vicious kick at him, the hoof striking him in the abdomen with the above-mentioned result.

Medical aid was summoned as quickly as possible after the accident, but he was beyond any hope of recovery.

The deceased was widely known throughout Smith township, and also in Peterborough, and to the members of the family and relatives the sympathy of a large number of friends will be extended.

He is survived by his parents and one brother, William, of Belleville, who arrived home to-day, and three sisters and another younger brother residing at home.

Rev. Mr. Gregor, of Lakefield, will officiate at the funeral, which takes place to-morrow afternoon from the residence of Mr. George Wheeler, in Smith, to the Lakefield cemetery.

MOST OF THE FACTORIES SOLD AT $11\frac{1}{16}$ CENTS AT CHEESE BOARD MEETING

There were two prices at the cheese board this morning—11 1-16 and 11 cents—most of the factories getting the former price.

OPENING PRICE 11 1-16 CENTS.

The first selection was made by Buyer Cook at 11 1-16. He took Shearer, Central Smith, Warsaw, Myrtle, King Edward and Trewern.

SAME PRICE FOR FURTHER.

Eleven and one-sixteenth cents was named for further selections by Mr. Morton. He selected Ormonde, Daisy D, Westwood, Villiers, Lang, Keene, Indian River, Fleetwood, Cedardale.

Mr. Cook again named 11 1-16 for additional selections. There was no advance, and Mr. Cook named Maple Leaf, Bensfort, Fraserville refused to accept on Peterborough shipment. East Emily accepted, as did also Norwood, Killarney—Warminster also refused Peterborough shipment—Oakdale.

11 CENTS THIS TIME.

Mr. Morton offered 11 cents for further selections. He took Young's Point, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Selwyn, Warminster, North Dummer, Cavanville and Fraserville.

A two weeks' adjournment was made. The next meeting will be on Wednesday, August 17th.

200 WERE DROWNED

Special to the Review.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—Under the direction of military authorities rescue work was to-day taken up on the river Amer, near Nicolaievsk, where two hundred fishermen are known to have drowned when a typhoon wrecked their boats yesterday. It is feared that the dead list will exceed that number. Reports of the disaster reached here to-day says that the victims were trapped in their frail craft with so little warning that few had time to prepare their boats for a blow. The river at this point is very broad. The storm that struck the fleet extended ovar a distance of several miles with terrific force. A score of comparatively small boats and many more smaller ones were turned within a few minutes.

SPORTING NEWS

CHEMONG REGATTA WILL BE HELD ON AUGUST 11TH

Arrangements are being made to have the Chemong Park regatta this year one of the biggest and most attractive in the history of the Chemong Yacht Club, under the auspices of which the regatta will be held on the afternoon of August 11th, commencing at 2 p.m.

The band of the 57th Regiment will be in attendance and will also play for the dance in the pavilion in the evening.

An interesting programme of acquatic sports will be run off, one of the features being the dinghy race for the Kawartha Lakes challenge cup, which is now held by Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, of Toronto.

BARNEY OLDFIELD WOULD TAKE ON JACK JOHNSON

New York, Aug. 2.—Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, has found one white man who is willing to race against him in an automobile. From Allentown, Pa., Barney Oldfield says—"I notice in to-day's New York newspapers a challenge issued by Jack Johnson to race me for $5,000 over the Brighton Beach track. Ordinarily I should not reply until I knew that the challenge was authentic, but New York promoters wired me to-day asking if I would race Johnson.

"Automobile racing is my business, and if Johnson or any other man has $5,000 to bet he can beat me at my game, I am ready to race."

THE FINAL ROUNDS OF JOE GAN'S LAST FIGHT

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 2.—Great preparations are being made to greet Joe Gans when he returns to this city, for the game little negro fighter will receive no more ovations after this one. He is coming back home to die, a victim of the great white plague. He left Prescott, Ariz., last night, his physical condition unimproved by his life in the arid desert, to which he fled for relief.

"I know I am going to die," Gans is quoted as saying, "but I want to see my old mother and the two children before the end comes. My last two fights left me in too weak a condition to prevent the consumption."

The negroes who have stuck loyally to the former champion intend to greet him as a returning conqueror, with never a word as to his condition. In this way they hope to cheer him in his last days.

FANS MAY SEE ALL STARS AND T.A.S. BATTLE AGAIN

The city leaguers are asking for a chance to redeem themselves, as a result of the burlesque put on at the park last Saturday, and arrangements are about completed for another meeting between the T.A.S., City League champions, and the All Stars.

When these two aggregations met some time ago the game was well contested, and the big crowd saw something worth while.

The game will, in all probability, be put on this coming Saturday at Riverside, and the admission will be fifteen cents.

The All Star line-up will be the same, if possible, as on the occasion of the defeat administered to the T. A.S.

BRIEF AND BREEZY

Although James J. Jeffries was a thoroughly whipped man, his friends simply cannot bear to see the letters "K.O." (knocked out) scored up against his name in the sporting records, and they are trying to prove that what really belongs there is "L.F." (lost on foul.) Tex Rickard, the referee, declares Jeffries was knocked out; that it should appear so on the records, and that Johnson should get the credit for a decisive victory.

Columns and columns navee been written about Hans Wagner's ability, but William Locke, the secretary of the Pittsburg club, who travels with the team, has some intereesting things to say about the "Flying Dutchman."

"I have beeen watching Wagner's play for a good many years now," said Locke recently, "and I really believe that he handles the ball oftener than any other player on the team, barring, of course, the pitcher and catcher.

"Then Wagner, too, is often responsible for good playing that can't be recorded in the box score and even plays that a majority of the fans don't appreciate. Invariably when a long hit or fly is sent to any of our outfielders, Wagner chases out, whether the field be left, centre or right. He intercepts the throw."

Umpire Stafford left the Toronto police court yesterday morning with a suspended sentence. The whole thing was over Dunn.

The Tame Banties would like to play these "Unknown All Stars" who have suddenly come into the limelight to break a few air bubbles. Should the "Unknowns" feel disposed to take the chance, the Banties will play the game at any date. Address all communications to W. Hemlock, S., Auburn.

There is nothing slow about the way in which the Montreal Royals are travelling at present. Barrow's men bagged two more yesterday from Providence.

Rochester played fifteen men and beat Jersey City 7—6.

Ty Cobb is now ahead of Lajoie in the American batting race.

THIS WILL BE SOME GAME

The Chemong Park nine, accompanied by the fans of the resort, will journey to Chemong Indian village on Monday, and the ball grounds will be the scene of the game of the season, when the park aggregation will endeavor to put the bag over Dan Whetung's ball tossers. Mike O'Brien, who has retired to the backwoods for a rest, will play for the invaders.

Won Dingby Championship

The dinghy race for the championship of Sturgeon Lake was won by Mr. Lloyd Wood's craft yesterday morning over Mr. R. H. Hopkins.

The Hopkins boat led the way for one stretch, but lost considerably on the tack and failed to overtake the other before the finish.

Mr. Wallace Jones and Lloyd Wood jr. sailed the winner, and R. H. Hopkins and V. B. Wilson, the loser.—Lindsay Post.

Boys Buried In the Sand.

New York, Aug. 3.—Three little boys, who had been searched for high and low since they were missed from their homes on Madison street in Brooklyn Monday afternoon, were found dead yesterday in a nearby vacant lot, where a sand embankment had fallen upon them while they were at play. The presence of the bodies in the sand pile was discovered by a dog.

Fatal Head-on Collision.

Newcastle, Pa., Aug. 3.—Two brakemen were killed, an engineer and fireman were seriously injured and several other trainmen sustained minor hurts in a head-on collision on the Western New York and Pennsylvania division of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. one-half mile south of Volant yesterday.

Escaped by the Window.

Meaford, Aug. 3.—At about 2 o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the residence of Mrs. Maxwell, on Berry street, apparently caused by mice. Mrs. Maxwell, who is a widow, succeeded in getting the children out by the window.

Lightning Works Havoc.

Woodstock, N.B., Aug. 3.—Lightning yesterday fired and destroyed two barns and two houses in this vicinity, a horse dying in the flames of one barn.

Jail Conditions Disgraceful.

St. Catharines, Aug. 3.—County Judge Carman yesterday morning returned from Muskoka to dispose of four cases of robbery against Mark D. Lefay, Fletcher E. Marquis, Cyril Fisher and John Mullen. The cases were for trivial sums of money, and the judge took a lenient view of them. The four men were given a month in jail, Marquis getting an extra week for assault. The judge commented upon the light sentences because of the conditions at Port Dalhousie, which he termed disgraceful.

Will Ask Bids for Surplus Power.

Windsor, Aug. 3.—After the lapse of a month since the public vote was taken, discussion of the scheme for bringing Niagara power to the border was renewed at Monday night's meeting of the City Council, with the result that the council decided to ask for bids for the purchase of surplus power under a 1,500 horse-power contract, which may be marketed in Detroit.

Good Form

The person who can talk entertainingly and listen attentively is the best type of guest at social gatherings, for she who chatters incessantly is almost more undesirable than one who is too quiet, for the latter gives opportunity for other persons to express themselves, while with the former to say even one word is often a struggle.

The balance between these extremes is the art of stimulating a temporary companion to conversation, and at no place is it more important to adopt the correct attitude than at a dinner. More than one man has been obliged to talk so much when sitting beside a quiet woman that he has not eaten enough. Such conduct on the part of a woman is decidedly inconsiderate, for if she is not willing to add her quota to the evening's entertainment she should stay at home.

At dinners and also at formal luncheons it is a good idea to watch the plates of neighbors, and if one person has been talking so much as to have fallen behind in the course it is tactful to take conversation into one's own hands, giving the other a chance to listen and at the same time to eat.

It is not good form to monopolize the attention of one neighbor to such an extent as to prevent him or her from talking with the person on the other side. Often it is a temptation when on one side is an attractive person and on the other one who is dull, but politeness makes dividing the attention necessary.

If one person is kept constantly in conversation by one neighbor at dinner it means that he or she on the other side sits much of the time with no one to talk to, for the guest farther on is certainly giving some time to the person on his or her other side.

The Afternoon Call.

All afternoon receptions are considered in themselves a call and require no after call.

An evening call, however, necessitates a call, and so does an afternoon tea with "music" on the invitation.

A matron invited to a reception given by a married woman leaves one of her own cards and two of her husband's.

A woman who has been invited to help to receive at a tea must acknowledge the courtesy by a call.

No matter whether the husband is in China or Japan, the wife invariably presents his cards in calling.

When calling upon an unmarried woman or widow she leaves only one of his, but in other cases two are left.

Any invitation for luncheon or dinner, however informal the meal, necessitates a call.

Card parties also require a formal acknowledgment of the invitation, whether accepted or not.

What Some Girls Love to Eat.

Discover the girl who does not adore what she calls a "spread" and you discover a young lady who has missed half the fun of life. Here are some extraordinary combinations that were actually made and eaten—and survived—in a girls' dormitory:

Oriental Dream.—Use four slices of cake (angel cake preferred), the white of one egg, one-half cupful of chopped almonds, one-half cupful each of chopped dates and figs, four teaspoonfuls of sugar. Lay a slice of angel cake (or sponge cake) on a plate. Blanch almonds by putting them in a bowl, pouring boiling water on them and then rubbing off the brown coating with a clean napkin. Dry thoroughly before using. Chop the almonds, dates and figs and mix together. Beat the white of the egg stiff and add the fruit and nuts and heap on top of the slices of cake in pyramid form. Sprinkle with a teaspoonful of sugar. First a layer of nut meats and then a layer of fruit may be spread on the cake and the beaten white of egg piled on top.

Tropical Treat.—Use one cupful of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of nut meat, one cupful of mixed chopped figs, dates and seedless raisins. Have a buttered tin cracker box or plate ready. Melt the sugar carefully in pan or skillet over a slow fire. Do not stir. The instant it is melted take from the fire and quickly add nuts and fruit without stirring and pour into buttered dish.

Sweet Sixteen Sandwiches.—Buy square baker's rusks, cut them up and down in thin slices. Spread with butter or peanut butter. Then spread with sweet chocolate melted, or chocolate cream drops mashed or cut in slices can be used as filling.

Nightcaps.—Use marshmallow candies, salt wafers, nuts. On each wafer spread a layer of chopped nut meats or nut butter. Toast a marshmallow by holding it over a flame on a hatpin and put one or two marshmallows on each wafer, or the marshmallows, nuts and crackers may be arranged and all put into a slow oven for a few minutes and heated together.

Insane Man Ran Naked.

Woodstock, Aug. 3.—High Constable Hobson received a telephone message that an insane man was running round naked near Baner. He went for him, but two men had already taken him, and they handed him over.

Don't Want the School.

Forest, Aug. 3.—A bylaw to issue debentures for $18,000 to build a new public school here was submitted to the ratepayers yesterday and defeated by a vote of 167 to 31, less than half the vote being polled.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

Plasterers on Strike.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—A hundred and fifty plasterers and their laborers went out on strike yesterday morning in the capital, with a view to getting an increase of wages of five cents an hour. Laborers who have been receiving 25 cents are asking for 30, while the plasterers themselves, who have been getting 40 cents, want 45.

Biplane Turned Turtle.

London, Aug. 3.—While Mme. Franck was 125 feet in the air at Sunderland her byplane fouled of a flagstaff and turned turtle. It crashed to the earth and the motor struck a boy spectator, killing him at once. Mme. Franck sustained a compound fracture of the leg.

Died In the Cells.

Chatham, Aug. 3.—James Haggerty, the man found senseless on the Grand Trunk tracks about a weeks ago, died Monday night in the police cells.

Ours, But Has a String on It.

London, Aug. 3.—The Rainbow has been taken over by Admiral Kingsmill, but remains under the commander-in-chief at Portsmouth.

Six men of the Guelph fire brigade absented themselves from duty for a day as a result of a difference with their chief.

John Basset, a Barnardo youth, aged 21, employed in the C. P. R. shops at Moose Jaw, was drowned in the river there on Saturday.

Howard Craig and Charles Wood, having served their sentences at Kingston, were deported to the other side of the line on Saturday.

Special to the Review.

Bailieboro, Aug. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Teddy Maycock, of Keene, spent the week-end in the village renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. George and Miss Winnie Herriott, of Toronto, have been holidaying amid the scenes of their youth.

Miss Hilda Green, of Toronto, is the guest of Miss E. Johnston.

Mrs. Percy Rutherford, of Peterough, was the guest of Mrs. William Fell on Sunday.

Don't forget that an up-to-date ice cream parlor has been fitted up in the residence formerly occupied by Mr. R. G. Simpson. Call on Tuesday or Saturday evening of each week and have a cooling and refreshing dish with your friend.

Our merchants are much distressed over the present railway strike, and are being put to great inconvenience in securing supplies.

Mrs. Martin Parker, of Winnipeg, has been calling on old friends in this section.

OSKIGMONG

Special to the Review.

Oshkimmong, Aug. 3.—Misses King, of Peterborough, are visiting friends in Chemong, the guest of Mr. D. Whetung.

Rev. Mr. Crookshanks, of Bridgenorth, preached in the Chemong church last Sunday and administered the sacrament.

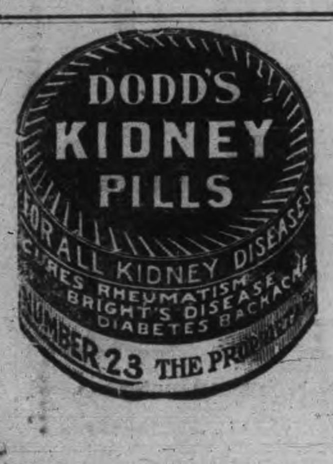
The Chemong church choir had the honor of being invited to an entertainment at Buckhorn last Tuesday evening, and rendered a few of its selections to a large audience.

The Chemong Athletic Club Association are arranging to have three days' excursion to Lake Simcoe. Particulars will be given later on.

Mr. John Prosser is visiting his brother at Campbellford.

A party consisting of four men started out to hunt for blue berries, but after a vain search for three days and undergoing much hardship were satisfied to return home with only about six quarts of berries. They report the products of the goslin is a failure.

A general railway strike is feared in France.



HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF AN ENGLISH CITY

How Birmingham Cares for Its Inhabitants.

In the civic world of Europe—the world which carries on the government of the towns from Aberdeen to Rome and Moscow to Plymouth—there are a few municipal authorities universally looked up to and admired as having evolved the highest type of municipal government, by their activities and enterprise. Several of the German towns stand high in this list; Vienna is the El Dorado of the open space and park enthusiasts; in Great Britain they talk of the wide-spread enterprise of Glasgow and the civic spirit of Birmingham, fostered and organized largely in the first instance, be it said, by Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, in the days when he was mayor of Birmingham, before a wider field of activity claimed him. Birmingham, whose population is 560,000, is regarded in many respects as a model municipality. While its standard of municipal government is a high one, the particulars which follow regarding the city's care for the health of the inhabitants—one of the most imporant tasks of any municipality—may be regarded as fairly typical of present-day activities in this direction in England and the larger centres of Western Europe.

It was in 1875 that Birmingham woke up to the necessity of improving its health and it started by laying down the following as necessities;—(1) Universal and efficient sewerage and drainage; (2) the paving of carriage-ways and footpaths; and (3) a thorough system of scavenging. The Health Committee started to work with a medical officer at a salary of $5,000 a year, and a staff of inspectors. The decrease in the death rate from 24.8 to 21.6 between the first and second quinquenniums following the doctor's appointment in 1873 was the direct result of the activity of the Health Department.

Since the passing of the Public Health Act, in Great Britain, sanitary science has progressed steadily, and the work of the Health Department increased greatly. Every year almost witnesses a widening of the scope of activity directed to making life in a great urban community more wholesome and healthy. To define the duties of the Medical Officer of Health is difficult. Put in a sentence, it is his business to take cognizance of everything which affects prejudicially the health of the people, and suggest remedial and preventive measures. The sanitary administration of the city of Birmingham is carried out by a medical officer of health, an assistant, a chief inspector of nuisances, 31 assistant sanitary inspectors, 17 lady health visitors, and a fully qualified lady medical practitioner specially engaged in work having for its object the reduction of infant morality and the training of qualified midwife visitors. The corporation have likewise a public analyst under the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, and the necessary laboratory staff. There is also a special department to deal with certain aspects of the problem of housing the working classes—a department of which the medical officer is the executive officer, although control is exercised by the Housing Committee. The work of the Health Committee is also concerned with the collection and destruction of refuse through its Interception Department, the isolation in hospitals of patients suffering from infectious diseases, the treatment of phthisis at the Salterley Grange Sanatorium (the first rate-supported institution of its kind in England,) the inspection of house property and insistence on its being maintained in good sanitary condition, the inspection of common lodging houses, canal boats, factories and workshops, milk shops and dairies, the carrying out of the provisions of the Shop Hours Act and the Shop Seats Act, and the abatement of smoke nuisances. To the work of the Health Committee, supplemented by that of voluntary agencies of various kinds, may be attributed in large measure the fact that the death-rate has been reduced in the last forty years from 25 per 1,000 per annum to 15.5. The diminished mortality during the last five years alone as compared with the previous five years represents a saving of about 1,650 lives per annum.

RACEY NOTES FROM THE LIVELY RAILWAY TOWN

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Aug. 3.—The C.P.R. line west of Havelock is to be greatly improved in the near future. A large survey gang of 13 in number arrived in Havelock on Tuesday and will commence a survey of the present line west of here to see what improvement can be made in the curves and grades. As soon as the plans for the improvement of the line are finished, the C. P.R. will likely start operations at making the Havelock-Toronto division one of the best on the line.

RAILWAY TOWN A BUSY PLACE.

Havelock is a busy place at the present time. The railroad is being taxed to its utmost, there being a very large freight and passenger traffic. Trains are continually moving, carrying large loads and the yards here are always well filled. Although many men have been added to all departments, the men are kept very busy. On Saturday and Monday owing to the large passenger traffic No. 4 and No. 3 passenger trains were run in two sections.

On account of the large amount of goods coming from and going to Campbellford the local freight shed is a busy spot. On Tuesday two cars of cheese was loaded at this point, many loads coming from factories south of Campbellford.

On account of the G.T.R. strike, all the provision cars that formerly went over that line are being sent by this route and thus there is a big increase in the amount of icing being done at this station. There is a large gang working and the ice is fast disappearing from its storing place.

DEATH CALLS TWO YOUTHS.

John Baker, the 18 year old son of Mr. James Baker, of Asphodel, passed away after a short illness on Friday last, July 29th. The funeral took place on Sunday at 2.30 o'clock, from the residence of his father, lot 20, con. 12, Asphodel, to the Norwood cemetery. Services being held at the house at two o'clock.

Early on Sunday morning there passed to the great beyond, Donald Carmichael, son of Mr. Angus Carmichael, of town, after a lingering illness. What makes the sorrow more deep is the fact of being cut off in the middle of boyhood, the deceased being only 14 years. The funeral took place from the residence of Mr. Wm. Vance, Mary street, on Tuesday afternoon, to Maple Grove cemetery, services being held at the house at two o'clock. The deep sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved father, brother and sister.

The services in St. John's church on Sunday last were conducted by Mr. Holdsworth, of Port Hope.

The barn owned by Mr. Wm. Mathison, which is situated south of the C.P. R. tracks at the east end, was burnt to the ground on Saturday afternoon last.

The Belmont and Methune township council met in the Havelock town hall on Saturday last.

The Havelock auxiliary was called to Peterborough on Saturday night to replace a car that had left the track but before they arrived there the car had been put back on the rails again.

SPICY GOSSIP FROM APSLEY

Special to the Review.

Apsley, Aug. 3.—A fishing party composed of the following persons.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Lean, Mr. and Mrs. W. Staples, Misses Zella and Mildred Hales and Messrs. Bert Lean and Russell Hales, spent a very pleasant day on Long Lake on Wednesday last. Early in the morning they were seen en route for the lake with all the necessary equipment for such a day's outing. On reaching the landing they were not long in embarking in their respective canoes and soon were seen wending their way on the rippling waters. Now and then one of the fair sex could be seen hauling in the trawling line at the end of which was a fine bass. They pulled in at Crowe's Landing for dinner. One of the young men who has won a great reputation as cook on such voyages, quickly prepared some of the fish, which, with all the delicacies brought by the ladies, made a dinner not to be scoffed at by a prince or king. After satisfying the inner man and resting under the shadows of the trees it was decided to hold a short programme. It was moved and seconded that Mr. W. Lean occupy the chair. The musical and literary talents of all present were put to the test. A debate was held, "Resolved, that a day's sport in the country is preferable to a day's sport in the city." All present were really at heart in favor of the affirmative, but to avoid monotony two took the negative side, but the judges decided it a victory for the affirmative. The meeting was brought to a close by "The Golden Boat Song." All set out again for another sail. Some of the ladies having their cameras with them a number of snap shots were taken, both of those present and also of the beautiful scenery. Tea was served at another favorite resort, then all started on the homeward trip, having had a most enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mills, Miss Blanche and Mr. Ross Hales, of Lindsay, are visiting relatives in this locality.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Staples were guests at "Hillside Cottage," South Burleigh, for a few days last week.

Congratulations to Emma Tucker and Hughie Caldwell on their success at the entrance examinations.

Mrs. Isaac Lean is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Miss Edith Tucker, of Warsaw, is visiting relatives in Anstruther.

The L.T.B. Lodge intend celebrating August 12th here this year.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Bullied on Thursday last.

Miss Zella Hales, of Chandos, was a guest at "Riverdene" last week.

Mr. Isaac Lean, with the assistance of Mr. Wm. Dever, is painting the inside of No. 2, Burleigh, and doing a "leetle" other necessary work.

THE TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

"First.—The company will put back as soon as possible the men other than those who have been or may be found guilty of acts of violency or disorderly conduct, the understanding being that there is to be no coercion or intimidation used towards the new men.

"Second.—The company will put into effect from May 1st, 1910, the rate named in schedule of rate dated July 18th, 110, those rates to be embodied in the present schedules now in effect on this line, it being understood that those rates shall in no instance effect a reduction in any existing rate.

"Third—The company will on Jan. 1, 1912, make effective in train and yard service on the Grand Trunk Railway the rates of pay and the rules contained in the schedule of agreement on that date in effect on the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway east of Fort William.

"The three above propositions shall apply also to the Central Vermont Company, the said railroad to be substituted for the Grand Trunk Railway, and the Rutland Railroad to be substituted for the Canadian Pacific Railway wherever the same are used or understood in the above. In the case of the Central Vermont by the schedule issued by the management of that company since July 1."

AT THE LOCAL DEPOT

Normal Activity Once More — Freight Accepted — Everybody Feels Relieved

The atmosphere of depression around the G. T. R. station and freight sheds that has been in evidence lately is felt no longer, for the strike has been settled.

SEEMED TWO YEARS.

The strikers, the nonstrikers and all others concerned, are much relieved that the silent battle is settled the strike's short life of a little over two weeks, has seemed more like two years.

ACCEPTING FREIGHT.

Freight of all kinds except perishable articles is being accepted at the G. T. R. freight sheds to-day. Nine cars are at the shed siding, being loaded ready for shipment. All brakesmen and conductors are excepted to report for duty to-morrow morning.

BIG RUSH OF BUSINESS EXPECTED.

Conductors Haskill and Jobbitt received word from the leaders of the strike in this district to be ready for duty at short notice.

The chief clerk at the freight office when interviewed said that they expect a great rush of business the next few days.

Word was received from Toronto that the freight department there was never in better shape to handle all the goods.

WERE RESCUED JUST IN TIME

Two Young Men Had Narrow Escape While Sailing in Canoe at Chemong Lake

An upset attended the exciting details at Chemong Park the other day when two young men from Toronto were overturned in the lake when out sailing in a canoe.

Their rescue was effected by Prof. Bull and J. Farish, and the young men were completely exhausted with their fight for life for half an hour.

LAUNCH WAS RESURRECTED

Last night the launch belonging to Mr. Rollie Wilson, and which was sent to the bottom of the river by Edward Carpenter, after the engine was taken from it last fall, was brought to the surface again. It took several hours for those engaged to complete the work. Carpenter, after pointing out the spot, assisted in bringing the boat to the top.

A quantity of stones had been placed in it before its descent.

THE GUESTS AT CHEMONG PARK

Mr. H.E. Jacobs and family and maid, Buffalo, are at Chemong Park hotel.

Mr. W. T. Howe and wife, Aurora, Ind. are also guests at the hotel.

Mr. Charlie Boney, the well-known Port Hope athlete, is staying at the hotel on a couple of weeks' vacation.

Guests from Rochester are: Miss Putz, Miss Butler, Mr. Galvin and Mr. Schraeder, Mr. Kelso, wife and two sons.

DEATH OF PIONEER RESIDENT OF ENNISMORE

In the passing of Wm. J. Geary, at his late residence, early this morning, Ennismore lost a resident known and respected by all in the community. He had passed the allotted three score years, having reached his seventh-seventh year, sixty-nine of which had een spent in Ennismore. The late Mr. Geary was born in Peterborough, then in its infancy. His father was a carpenter by trade and was the contractor on the woodwork of the old brewery, at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets. The deceased left this place to reside in Ennismore, at the age of eight years. One month ago he was taken ill and his death not entirely unexpected, occurred at 1.30 o'clock this morning. Surviving him are his widow and a family of ten children. The sons are Messrs. William, of this city and John, Michael and Alexander, of Ennismore, and the daughters are Misses Lizzie and Kitty, city; Mrs. Wm. Corbett and Mrs. Peter Castercon, city; Miss J. C. Geary, Ottawa, and Mrs. Con. Sullivan, Victoria Road.

The funeral will take place from the homestead, lot 2, concession 3, Ennismore, on Friday morning at 8.30 o'clock and proceed to St. Martin's church and thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

A STRIKE INCIDENT

Toronto Star.

Apparently not only the strikers have a kick to make about the way in which the new men are running the Grand Trunk passenger trains. This morning a merchant rang up the Star office with a complaint. It was from personal experience with a G.T.R. conductor.

"I was going to Peterborough on the Midland division on Saturday. There was a lady sitting in the next seat, who asked the conductor what station was the next. He answered that he was sure he didn't know, and that all he was there for was to take the tickets from the passengers.

"I turned around and asked him if he was not the conductor of the train. He said he was; but when I asked him why he was running the train without knowing the road, he said that as long as he had a time card and a watch he could run the train anywhere.

"The lady was asked by another passenger where she wanted to go, and when told, it was found that she had gone past her station.

"I think it is beastly that trains should be run by people like that. And another case, that I saw myself, was that of a conductor running a passenger train, who was so full he could hardly stand on the platform.

"All I can say is, that I hope the strike is over soon, that's all. For, as far as I can see, there has been very little change in the freight situation and the Grand Trunk is not moving any freight that is not absolutely necessary to move."

MEN FORFEIT PENSION; MORE TROUBLE FEARED

G.T.R. States Plainly That the Privileges Are Suspended.

Process of Taking Striking Trainmen Back Into Company's Employ Goes Very Slowly and All May Not Be at Work For Three Months—Trouble at Bridgeburg Is Not Yet Over and Soldiers Are Kept Handy.

Montreal, Aug. 4.—Two debated points in the Grand Trunk settlement were cleared up yesterday. The company has stated plainly that the strikers return to work minus the pension fund privileges heretofore existing, and it is understood that the return of the men "as soon as possible" means within the next three months.

Reports received last night from various parts of the system indicate that very few men were re-engaged yesterday, but this can be explained to a considerable extent by the necessity of arranging new train schedules to meet the changed conditions. Then, of course, the freight service will take some time to right itself. In Montreal it is said that only one conductor of the fifty who struck was taken on yesterday, and he was given an extra train. A few of the old employes were taken back on the passenger service by Supt. Whittenberg at the Bonaventure Station yesterday morning, but not a single man was taken on at the Point St. Charles freight yards.

Vice-President Fitzhugh of the Grand Trunk, said officially yesterday evening that no one has been dismissed to give place to the men who went out on strike, yet he repeats that all the men will be taken back as soon as possible. A great many gathered at Bonaventure Station Tuesday evening, thinking that they would be taken on at once, but they were disappointed, and the same thing was repeated yesterday. While it is believed the company will eventually re-engage the men, yet there is considerable nervousness displayed at the prospect that many of them may be kept out for weeks without wages and without strike pay. It is believed that many will wander off into the service of other railways or into other employment.

More Trouble Feared.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 4.—So far as can be learned, all Grand Trunk men who went out on strike will be at work by to-night. Last night eight crews were on duty and regular day crews are expected to be called today. Special railway police still guard the local railway station, as well as the yards.

More strike trouble is feared at Bridgeburg, according to word received from there yesterday. Supt. Cunningham of the Grand Trunk met the strikers when, with their overalls and jumpers, they reached the Bridgeburg morning.

"You fellows," announced the superintendent, according to versions of the later, "have been dictating to me long enough; now, I'll do some dictating myself." Cunningham is the official who announced here that if any more cars were stoned the Grand Trunk would abandon Niagara Falls for passenger purposes and take all through trains around by Port Colborne and Bridgeburg.

After his meeting with the men Cunningham immediately communicated with Lt.-Col. Hill, commanding the troops on duty at Bridgeburg, and requested him not to send the soldiers home.

Nothing Doing at London.

London, Aug. 4.—None of the G.T.R. strikers have been re-engaged here, pending instructions from Montreal.

Delay at Brockville.

Brockville, Aug. 4.—Though the striking trainmen and conductors at this point have reported for duty, their services have not yet been accepted. Agent Hatton has not as yet received any instruction from headquarters to take them back. Freight traffic has been as a standstill here for the past 48 hours.

CURTIS D. WILBUR.

Los Angeles, Aug. 2.—It is said, apparently with justification, that Curtis D. Wilbur, Judge of the Juvenile Court, is doing more for the betterment of children whom the average man calls incorrigible than any other person in the country. Judge Wilbur is firmly convinced that a criminal tendency in a child is rather physical than natural, and he is guided accordingly.

Many physicians attend Judge Wilbur's court daily to offer advice free in the treatment of "bad" boys and girls.

The Judge discusses the condition of the children with the mothers and treats all subjects with a frankness that at first might be disconcerting. He attends meetings of women's clubs and tries to educate mothers so that they will be better able to save the children. His office is crowded after court hours by women who wish to talk about their children. He seems to remember all the details pertaining to the history of each cild and calls them familiarly by name. If he suggests an operation it is because he knows from experience that surgery has proved beneficial. The mothers trust to his knowledge and several surprising changes of child metamorphosis have resulted.

HE HAS NOT CONFESSED; CRIPPIN SEEMS HAPPY

Crippen Has He Will Not Talk Till He Reaches England.

He Denies Rumor That He Had Admitted the Murder of Belle Elmore—Inspector Dew Has a Hard Time Avoiding the Reporters Who Are Staying In Quebec—Hundreds Ask For Passes to See the Jail.

Quebec, Aug. 4.—Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard will neither deny or confirm the report widely published yesterday that Dr. Crippen has confessed to the murder of Belle Elmore. To pressmen who called last evening at the St. George, where he has apartments, the inspector sent an attendant with a message that he would not be seen. A note was sent up to him asking for a statement, and the word came back, "I have no comment to make."

At the Quebec jail, where Crippen is confined, a correspondent was told by Governor Morin that he was not aware of any confession, and he entirely discredits the report. No persons, excepting officials, are being allowed in to see Crippen, but reporters was allowed to send a note to him, asking whether he had anything to say to the press. The reply was, "I will say nothing, till I get to England."

"He always seems cheerful enough," commented Governor Morin, referring to Crippen. The little doctor's contented demeanor is taken to indicate that he has a card still up his sleeve, which he will play at the proper time."

The Scotland Yard man went shopping yesterday, and purchased new wearing apparel for Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve. The clothing was purchased with the $10 found on the doctor, and a small amount found in the possession of the woman, when they were arrested. After performing this domestic chore the great detective went sailing on the St. Charles River, accompanied by Chief of Police McCarthy.

The appearance of a reporter on the horizon sets the detective twitching, so averse is he to publicity. It was gathered at the St. George yesterday that he is to desert that place to-day, and go in hiding, to escape the newspaper men.

The girl, who is charged jointly with Crippen with the murder of his former wife, is rapidly recovering, and now spends much time walking about her ward in the jail infirmary.

Appeals to the sheriff for passes to visit the jail are pouring in, and the attendance numbers about 300 a day, mostly woman. They all want to see Crippen, not the jail, says Governor Morin.

The jewelry, including four diamond rings, found on Crippen, which has been identified as the property of the missing woman, has been turned over to Deputy Sheriff Begin for safe keeping.

Says Dew Told Him.

London, Aug. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Chronicle's correspondent says that Dew told him Crippen confessed that he killed his wife in a quarrel. Relatives have received the following cable from Miss Leneve. "I had seen or heard nothing until the cruel blow fell. I am returning home." Ethel.

Scotland Yard entirely discredits the reported confession of Crippen.

A Remarkable Tribute.

Belfast, Aug. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Rev. William McCaughan's funeral was one of the most remarkable ever seen in Belfast. At the crowded memorial service in May street chapel, the lord mayor was present. The moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland and several ministers conducted the service, whereat eulogistic speeches were delivered. The procession was over a mile long, including 250 clergy of all denominations, members of corporation and public bodies. The route to the cemetery was lined with sympathizers, despite the incessant rain.

THEY WANT NEW TARIFF; FARMERS ARE ANGRY

The Western Farmers Present Memorial to the Premier.

Dr. Smith, In Behalf of Grain Growers at Weyburn, Sask., Declares That High Protection Is a System of Tribute Levied by Manufacturers on Their Fellows and Makes For Dishonesty.

Weyburn, Sask., Aug. 4.—The memorial on the tariff, presented to Sir Wilfrid yesterday by the grain growers of southern Saskatchewan, still maintains a strong tone of objection to the tariff in general, and a duty on agricultural implements in particular.

Dr. Smith, who spoke to the memorial, claimed that Sir John A. Macdonald introduced the word protection in lieu of the words "Thief and robber." Mr. Smith declared that manufacturers, under the protective system, not only enjoyed the profits of his own labor, but also secured a portion of the profits of the other man's labor. In the case of the farmer, he asked, was it not a crime to pass such a law? If it was wrong for the individual to rob, it was wrong to make robbery legal. "Protection is a great wrong. It makes nations dishonest with one another. It makes individuals selfish and dishonest. It teaches the mischievous principal that we are to expect to receive value without giving value in return."

If it was wrong for the Conservative Government to pass the law, is it not also wrong for the Liberal Government to perpetuate the same law?

Continuing, Mr. Smith commended the course adopted by Sir Wilfrid, in not seeking for reciprocity at Washington, but, now that President Taft had taken a step towards securing closer trade relations between the two countries, they hoped he would be able to bring about some equitable arrangement. They regarded the duty on agricultural implements as a special tax upon the farmer.

The grain growers were willing to pay their share towards the revenue of the country, and Mr. Smith asserted that a revenue tariff provides incidental protection, and should be sufficient to satisfy the most exacting. The manufacturer asked protection to infant industries, and afterwards as a matter of vested rights.

"If we are free men, treat us as such. If we are slaves, we ask freedom. If this be refused, we demand it. Our resources are not exhausted."

ONE MAN IN PRISON NOW

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 4—Notwithstanding that Travis Wilson, a negro, is in jail at Monroe charged with the murder of Sheriff Edmond Dull of Monroe, posses continue to search the country in and around Monroe. One negro who refused to give his name was arrested after a hard fight with a posse, just before noon yesterday. Just before the melee, the negro received a slight gun wound in the neck.

While Wilson has been identified by the man who was assaulted and thrown off the car when Dull was sent for, the majority of officials believe that he is an innocent party. He is being held, however.

The body of Sheriff Dull, who died at the hospital here yesterday, was taken back to Monroe at noon in a private car for burial.

Two Men Injured at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Aug. 4.—Late last night Chester Fickley, 315 West Hunter street, and Ramsay Wills, 25 Orchard hill, were struck by an automobile on the Dundas road and seriously injured. The two men were walking along just near the Globe Hotel, when the auto swooped down on them. Fickley was cut severely about the head, and his clothes torn from shoulders to hips, and it is feared he is injured internally. Wills also had his clothes torn, and was thrown heavily against a telegraph pole. The doctors claim that a few of his ribs are broken. The autoists did not stop, and, owing to the spot where the accident occurred being dark, the number could not be distinguished.

The injured men were hurried to the City Hospital.

IF IT WAS NOT THE WOMEN

Madrid, Aug. 4.—Field Marshal Lopez Dominguez, who is ex-president of the Senate, and ex-Premier, said yesterday that he would support Premier Canalejas in his struggle for religious reforms, but he doubted the success of the movement, on account of the immense power of the clergy and their influence over the women, who, he declared, are compelled under the domination of their confessors.

"The openness with which Premier Canalejas is conducting the campaign," said the field marshal, "is one of the best features of the situation. He wants Spain and the world to know what he is doing. If he succeeds he will have rendered an immense service to Spain."

SOVEREIGNTY V. TEEATY RIGHTS

London, Aug. 4.—At The Hague fisheries conference yesterday, Elihu Root, replying for the United States, said that the importance of the dispute, which without an arbitration tribunal could previously only have been decided by war, justified long speeches made with respect to the first question, concerning the right of Great Britain to regulate the fisheries carried on by Americans. Mr. Root declared that Britain looked upon this question from the standpoint of her sovereignty, while the United States regarded it from the viewpoint of the right accorded her by treaty. America, he said, recognized British sovereignty, but opposed any regulations that were incompatable with the treaty of 1818.

Ready For Trouble.

San Sebastian, Aug. 4.—Twenty thousand soldiers are being quietly mobilized in this city to prevent any disturbances at the big Catholic demonstration planned for next Sunday. It is expected that at least 150,000 Catholics will take part in the protest against the Government's action toward the Vatican.

Gen. Lake Returns to England.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—Gen. Sir Percy Lake terminates his engagement with the Canadian Government in October when he and his family will sail for England.

Wireless Indictments.

New York, Aug. 4.—The federal grand jury, which has been probing the Government's complaint against the United Wireless Co., charging the use of the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud investors in the company's stock, turned in a number of true bills yesterday. It is said that six persons are named in the indictments, including Christopher Columbus Wilson, president of the corporation; S. S. Bogart, vice-president, and W. W. Tompkins, president of the New York selling agency, a subsidiary of the United Company. These three men were taken before U. S. Commissioner Shields yesterday.

Will Pay Large Part of Interest.

Montreal, Aug. 4.—The Campbellton deputation returned from Ottawa last evening with the practical assurance from the Ministers who are in the capital, and who will interview Acting Premier Cartwright at Kingston to-day, that the Government will contribute $8,000 out of the $13,000 annually for 15 years, required to pay the interest on the $300,000 bond indebtedness of the town.

100 Years Peace Association.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 4.—Announcement was made yesterday by temporary Chairman George Emmerson of the Hundred Years' Peace Association, that at the next meeting, in Toronto, application from historical societies in Niagara, New York, Boston and Detroit for membership would be taken up. The date of the Toronto meeting has not yet been settled.

Sent the Lawyers to Jail.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—A sensation was furnished in the Calhoun bribery case yesterday, when Judge Lawler sentenced three attorneys to five days in jail for replying hotly to the court, when he insinuated that District Attorney Fickert was following the lead of the attorneys for the defence in the case.

Telephone Girls Struck.

Port Arthur, Aug. 4.—Port Arthur was without any telephone service between midnight and one o'clock, owing to a strike of the girl operators on account of wage trouble. On the promise they would get a fair hearing before the committee managing the civic telephone department, the girls returned to duty.

Lost His Life Diving.

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 4.—George William Failey, gunner's mate of the second-class on the U.S.S. Connecticut, died on the ship yesterday as the result of diving for a lost torpedo. While down he signalled danger, and when hauled in never regained consciousness.

BOYCOTT ON U. S. GOODS

Chinese Merchants Take Revenge For Treatment at 'Frisco.

Canton, China, Aug. 4.—A boycott on American lines to the one which several years ago caused millions of dollars' damage to American trade in China, has been proclaimed here, in response to complaints of the treatment of Chinese in America.

The specific cause of complaint on this occasion is the objection of the Chinese of San Francisco to the detention sheds on Angel Island in San Francisco Bay, which they have been endeavoring for some time to have removed to San Francisco itself, in order to secure better treatment for arriving Chinese.

The boycott is proclaimed by the Chinese Self-Government Society of Canton, an organization conducting a propaganda for "China for the Chinese" and for Government reform to which Chinese in San Francisco appeal by letter.

An appeal has been issued to Chinese abroad, asking them to co-operate in the boycott.

Rammed Wooden Vessel.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 4.—The steel steamer Chippewa rammed the old wooden steamer Albion off Westpoint, north of the entrance to Seattle Harbor early yesterday.

The Chippewa was returning to Seattle from Everett after carrying an excursion party to Vancouver, B.C., and back, and had no passengers.

Ten passengers bound for Everett were aboard the Albion, but as far as known, none of them were injured. The hull of the wooden vessel was pierced by the bow of the heavier steamer and the two were wedged tightly together. The passengers on the Albion, which will likely be a total loss, were transferred to the Chippewa.

Reports indicate that the damage to the Chippewa is not serious. The Chippewa is a steel steamer of 996 tons. She was built at Toledo, Ohio, in 1900, and is owned by the Puget Sound Navigation Co.

BABE BORN IN A COFFIN

Paris, Aug. 1.—A newspaper here reports a remarkeble story from Pauillac. Mme. Bobin, a passenger on the steamer La Plata, from Senegal, was landed at that port suffering with what was supposed to have yellow fever. She was placed in a Lazaretto, where her condition became worse, and finally the doctors certified she was dead, and she was buried. One of the nurses, however, doubted that the woman was dead, and communicated with Mme. Bobin's father, who caused the body of his daughter to be exhumed when it was found that the supposed dead woman had given birth to a child in the coffin. An autopsy showed that Mme. Bobin did not have yellow fever, and that she had died from suffocation after she had died from suffocation she was buried.

OPPOSITION TO POWER COMPANY

St. Catharines, Aug. 4.—The bylaw granting a franchise to the Ontario Power Co. to pole the streets and distribute and sell electric energy throughout the city will not come into effect for a while. John S. Campbell, barrister, on behalf of a client, has written to the council protesting on on account of grave irregularities in the vote, and threatening to ask for an injunction and investigation into the whole vote if the measure is finally passed. It is believed that the Cataract Co. is behind the opposition to the bylaw.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The British Parliament has adjourned till Nov. 15.

The accession declaration bill has received the royal assent.

The insurgent forces in Nicaragua are reported to be marching on Granada.

Thomas Turner, a Hamilton coachman, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid.

The convention of the Volunteer Firemen's Association of Ontario closed at Welland.

Chavez, the French aviator, flying at Blackpool, Eng., attained a record height for monoplanes.

Over 200 shots were exchanged in a battle between striking coal miners and deputy sheriffs at Irwin, Pa., yesterday.

Three men were killed by an electric shock while working in the Ontario Power Co.'s new tunnel at Niagara Falls.

The negro, Jackson, wanted for the murder of Jacob Enos at Chatham, has been arrested in Ohio on another charge of murder.

The Empress of Britain has made the passage from land to land in three days 18 hours, reducing her previous record 50 minutes.

A deputation from Campbellton was received by a number of Cabinet Ministers at Ottawa and made a plea for Federal aid for the town.

Dr. Walden, an amateur aviator, was seriously injured at Garden City, L. I., by the fall of a new style of aeroplane he was trying out.

Intimation has been given of the formation of a new labor organization comprising the Western Federation of Miners, the United Mine Workers of America and the steel workers of the United States.

MR. ROBERT E. SPEER, D.D.

New York, August 4.—When Dr. Robert E. Speer, one of the four secretaries of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, returns from abroad soon, he will receive congratulations of his friends, and particularly of his fellow laborers in the Presbyterian Building, No. 156 Fifth avenue. When Dr. Speer departed for Europe in May he was only plain Mr. Speer, now he has the distinction of being the only layman except one in the United States who is a doctor of divinity.

It was during the recent World Missionary Conference at Edinburgh, Scotland, that the University of Edinburgh conferred upon Mr. Speer the title. Professor Williston Walker, of Yale Divinity School, although he has never been ordained as a minister, is a teacher of theology and has a similar title.

When Dr. Speer received the title seven clergymen were honored in the same way. Two were Americans, the Rev. F. L. H. Pott, president of St. John's College, Shanghai, China, and the Rev. William Douglas MacKenie, head of Hartford Theological Seminary, [illegible]

A CHRISTIAN PIG

London, Aug. 1. — Miss Emily Hampton, of Nazeing, was summoned on Friday for keeping a pig in a manner dangerous to health. The Nuisance Inspector testified that he found the pig occupying the whole of one room in the house of the defendant. The animal was lying between clean sheets, on a feather bed, covered with a white face counterpane, with his head resting on a pillow. The room was furnished like the usual parlor, and there were illuminated texts on the walls. The inspector said further that he found the defendant kneeling at the bedside and kissing the pig and calling it a naughty boy because it had eaten a small portion of its pillow.

Miss Hampton pleaded that she had educated the pig as a Christian. She had reared it from infancy. When young it used to occupy the sofa. It had always asked to be let out when it wanted to take the fresh air. It never kicked the clothes off the bed, and was quiet and peaceable. Ladies and gentlemen came in carriages to see it. The magistrate gave Miss Hampton six weeks in which to find fresh lodgings.

THE REASON

At last a reason has been discovered why the Board of Health and Council are allowing the garbage question to be neglected.

THEY ARE TOO TENDER HEARTED TO KILL THE MAGGOTS. THEY DO NOT BELIEVE IN CRUELTY TO FLIES.

However, it is not true that they are going to offer a reward for the most neatly kept garbage pile and for the fattest maggots raised.

THE WAY TO POPULARITY

The women are commencing to slobber over Dr. Crippen. His cell looks like a flower garden and he is busy reading Shakespeare. The girl he led astray is also busy wiping eyes that are red with weeping, and there are a lot of bones somewhere, and a lot of decayed human flesh which he is supposed to be able to explain. But why the flowers from the ladies? Apparently, from the story of noted murderers in the past, the sure way to become popular with the women is to kill some one, burn some one, poison some one, be arrested, and charged with murder.

A WILL O' THE WISP

When a mad dog ran across the bridge from Niagara Falls he bit another dog. The bite took. As a result half the dogs in Ontario were muzzled. But they kept biting through their muzzles. The muzzles generally worn were discarded, and when the dog snapped thereafter he bit at air. Now that is only a harmless exercise.

What is the matter with the Lemieux Act? It was passed with the idea of keeping capital and labor from biting each other.

It was like the bad muzzle. It was worse. The public, the long suffering public got bit.

"The public be damned." That's what a great American railway magnate said years ago, and this four word classic is still remembered by living action. What is necessary is a new act, a new muzzle, something that will let the working man secure justice without stopping the wheels of commerce and making the innocent public suffer. The present Lemieux Act is a will o' the wisp apparently. Give us something more substantial.

SOCIALISM

The Socialists who were charged with being implicated in a disturbance took the witness box to give evidence in Montreal. The first witness was not allowed to testify. He could not take the oath because he didn't have any belief of a future existence. The second believed in God, but, he, too, thought that when we were dead it is all over, and was asked to step aside. The third believed in remorse. He was allowed to testify.

These men were street speakers. They were red-tie socialists whose ambition was to move the masses against the classes. Christ as a Socialist. However, He was a different kind. The word socialism is only now emerging from the slough of mud and despond, into which men just like these fellows in Montreal would throw it. There are also socialists and socialists. The bomb throwing devil, the king shooting, law hating disturber is no true type. The socialist who believes in evolution rather than revolution is the better one. Socialism will not be denied. Its day is coming. It must be reckoned with. From the sane and sober socialist will undoubtedly come much of the relief needed in the 20th century by the masses. There has yet risen no great man ready to lead. When he comes socialism will walk out into the open. The church must not hold aloof. The church must enliven and quicken socialism if it would fill its mission well, and socialism must not fight the church if it also would succeed.

THE HEROINE

Detroit, Aug. 4.—In an effort to save her husband from death by permitting an artery in her own body to be opened and sewed to one in her husband's body, Mrs. Clay Wildermuth, of Kalamazoo, lies in the Borgess Hospital seriously ill, and her husband is dead. Doctors decided that the operation was necessary to save the man's life, and it was performed yesterday. When an artery in Mrs. Wildermuth's arm was opened the blood poured into the weakened body of the husband, but the sacrifice was unsuccessful, and he died without regaining consciousness.

Yes, and many a woman whose name is never in the paper is a heroine no less noble than Mrs. Clay Wildermuth. It is the daily sacrifice; The dreary, humdrum existence; the selfish husband, the large family, the cross child, the lack of necessities, the hard work. She never sees her name in the paper, indeed, sometimes she cannot spare the necessary money to buy a paper. She has made a mistake. She thought she married a man. Its a brute she wedded instead. But she works on and never lets the outside world know her sufferings. Don't you think that woman is a heroine.

FASTING

Thirty years ago to-day Dr. Tanner was upon his celebrated fast doing doing his thirty-seventh day. Fasts to-day are common. A man from Cleveland last fall to cure an ailment, abstained from all food for 51 and a half days. He was under Bernar Macfadden's care in his sanitarium at Battle Creek. The old adage used to be; Feed a cold and starve a fever. Now both colds and fevers are starved. The civilized world is gradually learning the lesson that stuffing at the table, eating at all hours is responsible for headaches and billiousness, the blues and lack of energy. A few days' fast now and then, drinking only water, would lend many days' life and much new vision and hope to the average man and woman.

SIDE LIGHTS

A Question

Souls destined to o'er leap the vulgar lot,
And move the world unto the scheme of God
Have a fore consciousness of their high doom,
As men are known to shiver at the heart,
When the cold shadow of some coming ill,
Creeps slowly o'er their spirits unawares,
Hath good less power of prophecy than ill?

Daily Ontario, Belleville.

The railways are not to have a monopoly of the freight business of this country. That is evident, not only from the Government policy of improving the water routes, but also from the steady increase of canal traffic. Railway freights in Canada increased from 36,000,000 to 66,800,000 tons between 1900 and 1909, while canal freights increased from 5,000,000 to 33,700,000 tons. Of this increse 14,000,000 tons was contributed by the Sault Ste. Marie canal.

HIGH PRICED EXPERTS.

Specialists Who Charge Enormous Fees For Their Services.

A great many people cannot understand why professional experts charge such enormous prices for their services—why an eminent surgeon, for example, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine, should charge $5,000 or even $10,000 for a single operation or a great law specialist like Elihu Root $2,500 for a few hours' work in cross examining a witness.

They do not take into consideration that the surgeon has spent years in learning how to perform quickly and efficiently the difficult operation which saves a life that might have been lost in less skilled hands.

Much of the training of the specialist is to enable him to meet the unusual, the unexpected demand. The surgeon trains for the rare operation, the possible emergency. He knows that there are times when it is knowing what the ordinary surgeon did not think it worth while to learn that may save a life. There are surgeons now living who never had a dozen emergency cases in all their experience which called into play the utmost power and skill of which they are capable, but it was these few extremely dangerous operations which gave them their great reputation and enabled them to get enormous fees.

It is not the good surgeon, but the superb operator, the man who knows a little more about anatomy, who has a little steadier nerve, a more acute touch, a little better education, that is sought to perform the delicate operation in the emergency when life hangs by a thread.

John J. Brown, a youthful inventor, of Brooks, Ont., was refused admission to the United States at Port Huron on Monday.

CATTLE MARKETS.

American Cattle Markets Dull With Prices Unchanged—Hogs Steady.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—(Special.)—A more active trade is doing in this department of the live stock trade, and the indications are that it will continue thruout this month, as the bulk of the ocean freight space from this port is engaged. But up to the present there has been no demand for space for September shipment, for which agents are asking 30s to Liverpool and 25s to 27s to London. Cables of late from the leading foreign markets have been weaker on account of increased home supplies, and if prices continue to decline it might have a tendency to check the movement of northwest ranch cattle in that direction. The exports of cattle for the month of July were the largest of the season so far. The total number shipped was 12,531 head, showing an increase of 4655, as compared with the previous month, but a decrease of 1421 as compared with the same month last year. The total exports from the opening of navigation to July 31 were 27,764 head, as against 38,568 for the corresponding period a year ago, showing a decrease of 10,804 head, which is due to a large extent to the falling off in the exports of American cattle from this port, as there have been only 33 head shipped during the past three months, as against 5158 for the same period last year.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings of live stock were 1200 cattle, 950 sheep and lambs, 1510 hogs and 400 calves, an easier feeling developing in the market for cattle on account of the larger supply coming forward, and prices were fully ¼c per lb. lower than on Monday. The weather was warm again, and this tended to curtail the demand from butchers to some extent; consequently only a fair trade was done, and quite a number were left over. Choice steers sold at 6c to 6¼c; good at 5c to 5¾c; fairly good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 4c to 4¼c per lb. Cows were very plentiful and met only with a fair sale at 3½c to 4½c, and bulls brought from 3c to 5c per lb. Another feature of the trade was the decidedly weak feeling in the market for hogs, and prices, as compared with those of Monday, show a decline of 50c to 75c per hundred pounds. This was attributed to the increased supplies and the fact that the strike on the Grand Trunk Railway was settled, which tended to curtail the demand from packers some, and trade even at the reduced prices was not active. Sales of selected lots were made at $9.50 to $9.75 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, and a few lots were delivered on contracts made earlier in the week at $10.25. Supplies of small meats were not so plentiful as they were earlier in the week, but they were ample to fill all requirements, and prices ruled steady. Sheep sold at 3½c to 3¾c per lb.; lambs at $3.50 to $5.25 each, with calves at from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Aug. 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 400 head; dull; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 450 head; active; 25c higher, $6.59 to $9; heavy calves slow.

Hogs—Receipts, 2000 head; active; pigs steady; others 25c to 35c higher; heavy, $8.65 to $9; mixed, $8.90 to $9; yorkers, $9.10 to $9.25; roughs, $7.25 to $7.50; stags, $6 to $6.75; dairies, $8.65 to $9.10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 800 head; steady; lambs and handy weight sheep active; heavy sheep slow; prices unchanged.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Beeves—Receipts, 1705; market slow; steers, $5.15 to $7.40; oxen, $5.50 to $6.20; bulls, $3.50 to $4; cows, $2 to $4.70; dressed beef dull; exports, 18,000 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 1872; market irregular; veals, $7.50 to $10; culls, $5 to $7; grassers and buttermilks, $4 to $4.25; good to choice western calves, $6.37½ to $7; dressed calves slow; city dressed veals, 12c to 15c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 5005; sheep steady; lambs higher; sheep, $3 to $4.50; lambs, $6.25 to $7.62½; one car, $7.75; culls, $4.

Hogs—Receipts, 3327; lower; heavy to light state hogs and Pennsylvania hogs, $8.75 to $9.25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 10,000; strong; beeves, $4.80 to $8.20; Texas steers, $3.50 to $5.60; western steers, $4 to $6.65; stockers and feeders, $4 to $6.25; cows and heifers, $2.60 to $6.35; calves, $6.50 to $8.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,000; market strong early; slow later; light, $8.35 to $8.85; mixed, $7.85 to $8.75; heavy, $7.60 to $8.35; roughs, $7.60 to $7.80; good to choice, heavy, $7.85 to $8.40; pigs, $8.25 to $8.96; bulk of sales, $8 to $8.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 24,000; market steady to 10c higher; native, $2.60 to $4.60; western, $2.75 to $4.60; yearlings, $4.50 to $5.75; lambs, native, $4.50 to $7.10; western, $4.50 to $7.10.

Worked a Clever Scheme.

Sturgeon Falls, Aug. 4.—John Heroux was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Bradford here on charges of forgery, perjury and theft. Heroux was a jobber for J. R. Booth, and organized a cunning system of fraudulent time checks, forged by his clerk, Herman Lavoie, under his orders.

Mrs. Antoine Maisonneuve, Ottawa's oldest resident, is dead, at the age of 102 years.

The Lure of the Mask

By
HAROLD MAC GRATH

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

In a fashionable quarter of the city there stood a brownstone house, with grotesque turrets, winding steps and glaring polished red tiles. There was a touch of the gothic, of the renaissance, of the old English manor; just a touch, however, a kind of blind man's buff of a house. A very rich man lived here, but for ten months in the year he and his family fluttered about the social centers of the world. And, with a house like this on his hands, one could scarce blame him. Twice a week during this absence a caretaker came in, flourished a feather duster and went away again. Society reporters always referred to this house as "the palatial residence."

This morning a woman stood in the alcove window and looked down into the glistening street. The venetian red of her hair trapped the reflected sunlight from the opposite windows, and two little points of silver danced in her blue eyes. Ah, but her eyes were blue—blue as spring water in the morning, blue as the summer sky seen through a cleft in the mountains, blue as lapis lazuli, with the same fibers of gold. And every feature and contour of the face harmonized with the marvelous hair and the wonderful eyes; a beautiful face, warm, dreamy, engaging, mobile. It was not the face of a worldly woman; neither was it the face of a girl. It was too emotional for the second, and there was not enough control for the first.

But the prophecy of laughter did not come to pass. The little wrinkles faded, the mouth grew sad, and the silver points no longer danced in her eyes. The pain in her heart was always shadowing. She had seen her fairest dream beaten and crumpled upon the reef of disillusion.

Yet again the smile renewed itself. She was a creature of varying moods. She twisted and untwisted the newspaper. Should she? Ought she? Had she not always regretted these singular impulses? And yet what harm to read this letter and return it to the sender? She was so lonely here. It was like being among a strange people, so long ago was it that her foot had touched this soil. Was it possible that she was twenty-five? Was there not some miscount, and was it not fifteen instead? Would not this war of wisdom and folly be decided ere long?

She opened the paper and smoothed out the folds. "Mme. Angot—There is a letter for you in the mail department of this office." It was so droll. It was unlike anything she had ever heard of—a personal inquiry column, where Cupids and Psyches billed and cooed. The merest chance had thrown the original inquiry under her notice. Her answer was an impulse to which she had given no second thought till too late. She ought to have ignored it. But she was lonely; the people she knew were out of town, and the jest might amuse her.

This man was in all probability a gentleman, since he was a member of a gentlemen's club. But second thought convinced her that this proved nothing. Men are often called gentlemen out of compliment to their ancestors. Still, if this man only saw the affair from her angle of vision, the grotesque humor of it and not the common vulgar intrigue! She hesitated, as well she might. Supposing that eventually he found out who she was? That would never, never do. No one must know that she was in America, about to step into the wildest of wild adventures. No; she must not be found out. The king, who had been kind to her, and the court must never know. From their viewpoint they would have declared that she was about to tarnish a distinguished name, to outrage the oldest aristocracy in Europe, the court of Italy. But she had her own opinion; what she proposed to do was in itself harmless and innocent. But this gentleman who leaned out of the window? She had seen the match flare in the young man's face. Was it the face she had seen in that flash of light that interested her sufficiently to risk the note? Against the dark of the night it had appeared for an instant, clean, crisp, ruddy as a cameo. The face warranted confidence.

She had sung because she had been happy, happy with that transient happiness which at times was her portion. Could she ever judge another man by his looks? She believed not. How she had run! The man, bareheaded, giving chase and the burly policeman across the street!

She stepped down from the alcove, wound the gray veil round the riding crop and tossed them into a corner. Somehow in the daylight the magic was gone from his face, for she had recognized him that first day in the park. He rode well. She touched a bell. A maid appeared.

"Bettina, you will go to the office of this newspaper and inquire for a letter addressed to Mme. Angot. And be quick, for I may change my mind."

The maid was back in a half hour.

"There was a letter, then?" The points were dancing again in the blue eyes.

"You may go. Perhaps," and Bettina's mistress smiled—"perhaps I may let you read it and answer it after I am done with it. That would be rather neat."

The slight nod was a dismissal, and the maid went about her duties, which were not many in this house.

Meanwhile the lady with the venetian hair toyed with the letter. Club paper! Evidently he was not afraid to trust her. But would he amuse her? The contents gave her a genuine surprise. She ran to the window. Italian! It was written in Italian, with all the flourishes of an Italian born. She turned to the signature—Hillard. So he had signed his name in full? She ruminated. How came such a name to belong to a man who wrote Italian so beautifully? She looked at the signature again. John—Giovanni. She would call him Giovanni. She had been rather clever. To have had the wit to look in the library for the blue book and the club list—not every woman would have thought of that. Then a new inspiration came to her. She sent Bettina for the card basket. She scattered the contents upon the floor and sat down Turkish-wise. She sorted the cards carefully, and, lo, she was presently rewarded. She held up the card in triumph. He had called at this house on Thanksgiving day. He was known, then, to the master and mistress. Very good. She now gave her full attention to the letter, which she had not yet perused:

To the Lady in the Fog:

To begin with, let me say that I, too, have laughed. But there was some degree of chagrin in my laughter. On my word of honor, it was a distinct shock to my sense of dignity when I saw that idiotic personal of mine in the paper. It is my first offense of the kind, and I am really ashamed. But the situation was not ordinary. Ordinary women do not sing in the streets after midnight. As you could not possibly be ordinary, my offense has greater magnitude. To indite a personal to a gentlewoman! A thousand pardons! I doubted that it would come under your notice, and, even if it did, I was sure that you would ignore it. To find a woman with an appreciable sense of humor is rare. To find one who couples this with initiation is rarer still. How you found out my name confuses me.

"Indeed!" murmured the lady.

Doubtless you have the club list in your house. Do you know, when the letter was brought me I saw nothing unusual about the address. It was only when I began this letter that I comprehended how clever you were. There are half a dozen J. H.'s at the club. I tell you truthfully over my own name that your voice startled me.

I was startled because my thoughts were far away. I was dreaming of Italy, where I was born, though there is no more Italian blood in my veins than there is in yours.

"What made him think that, I wonder?"

I therefore write this in a language familiar to us both, certain you could not sing Lecocq's songs in Italian if you did not speak and understand it thoroughly. Signora or signorina, whichever it may be, have we no mutual friends? Are you not known to some one who knows me—some one who will speak for me, my character, my habits?

"It is rather a dull letter so far," said the lady.

You say you sang because at that moment you were happy. This implies that you are not always so. Surely with a voice like yours one cannot possibly be unhappy. If only I might meet you! Will you not do me that honor? Isn't there just a little pure, healthy romance waiting to be given life? Your voice haunts me. Out of every silence it comes to me—"She is so innocent, so youthful!"

She held up the card in triumph.

JOHN HILLARD.

The letter fluttered into her lap. She leaned on her elbows. It was not a bad letter, and she rather liked the boyish tone of it. Nothing vulgar peered out from between the lines. Did he really love music? He must, for it was not every young man who could pick out the melody of an old, forgotten opera. Rather than tempt fate she decided not to answer this letter. It would be neither wise nor useful.

Romance! The word came back to her. With an unmusical laugh she stood up, shaking the letter to the floor. Romance! She was no longer a girl. She was a woman of five and twenty, and what should a woman know of romance? Ah, there had been a time when all the world was romance—romance; when the night breeze had whispered it under her casement window, when the lattice climbing roses had breathed it, when the moon and the stars had spelled it. Romance! She hated the word not less than she hated the Italian language, the Italian people, the country itself. She spurned the letter with her foot and fed the newspaper to the fire.

She went downstairs to the piano and played with strong feeling. Presently she began to sing a haunting, melancholy song by Abt. She was mistress of every tone, every shade, every expression.

The door opened gradually. Crash! The music was over.

"Bettina? Bettina, are you listening?"

"I am always listening." Bettina squeezed into the room. "It is beautiful, beautiful! To sing like that! There will be kings and dukes at your feet!"

"Enough!"

"Pardon, signora, I forgot. But listen. I bring a message. A boy came to say that the rehearsal will be at 4 this afternoon. It is now after 12."

"So late? We must be off."

"And the letter upstairs on the floor?"

"Some day, Bettina, you will enter the forbidden chamber, and I shall have to play Bluebeard. This time, however, I do not mind. Leave it there or burn it," indifferently.

Bettina knew her mistress. She thought best to leave the letter where it lay, forgotten for the time being.

CHAPTER IV.

BLINDFOLDED.

FOR two days the club steward only nodded when Hillard came in. He had no letters to present.

"I am thirty-three years old," Hillard mused as he sought the reading room. "Downtown I am looked upon as a man of affairs, a business man, with the care of half a dozen fortunes on my hands. Now, what's the matter with me? I begin to tremble when I look that sober old steward in the face. If he had handed me a letter tonight I should have had to lean against the wall for support. This will never do at all. I have not seen her face; I do not know her name. For all I know she may be this Leddy Lightfinger. No; that would be impossible. Leddy Lightfinger would have made an appointment. What possesses me to dwell in this realm of fancy, which is less tangible than a cloud of smoke?" He smoked thoughtfully. "Or am I romantic? To create romance out of nothing—I used to do that when I was a boy. But I'm a boy no longer. Or am I a boy thirty-three years old? She does not answer my letter. Sensible woman. Well, well," reaching for the London Illustrated News, "let's see what the society folks have been doing."

He dropped the paper. There was really nothing new in the world. If Giovanni returned to Italy in the spring he was of a mind to go with him. He looked up and was glad to see Merrihew in the doorway.

"Been looking for you, Jack. Want your company tonight. Kitty Killigrew is giving a little bite to eat after the performance and has asked me to bring you along. Will you come?"

"With pleasure, Dan. Are you dining with any one tonight?" Hillard was lonesome.

"Yes. A little bridge till 11."

"You're hopeless. I can see you in limbo, matching coffin plates with Charon. I'll hunt you up at 11."

"Heard the talk?"

"About what?"

"Why, some one in the club has been using the agony column. The J. H.'s are being guyed unmercifully, and you'll come in for it presently. It's a case of wine on the man who did it."

To be continued.

IDEA FOR WOMEN

Tells How Radiant Hair Can Easily Adorn any Head

It's a mighty good thing for the women of Canada that Parisian Sage can now be obtained in every town of consequence.

No preparation for the hair has done so much to stop falling hair and eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe which is the cause of 90 per cent. of hair trouble.

These pernicious, persistent and destructive little devils thrive on the ordinary hair tonics.

Parisian Sage is such an extraordinary and quick acting rejuvenator that Wm. Madill, druggist, who is the agent in Peterborough, guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back

Parisian Sage is most daintily perfumed, it is an ideal preparation, not sticky or greasy.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuriant, lustrous hair that compels admiration.

And a large bottle of Parisian Sage costs only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and at leading druggists all over Canada. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Made in Canada by Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie., Ont., who fill mail orders, all charges prepaid.

STORM WAS A FIERCE ONE

The storm last night was probably the severest electrical storm of the season.

The lightning came bright and fast but from the sound of the thunder the bolts were some distance away although there were two or three explosions that seemed very close athand.

As far as can be learned there was no damage by lightning in the city limits.

CREW OF TORONTO FLYER NOT TAKEN BACK WITH OTHER LOCAL EMPLOYEES

For some reason or other that is not explicitly stated, it is said, the striking crew of the G.T.R. Toronto flyer, which leaves Peterborough at 7.10 in the morning, have not been taken on their train, although they expected to go back with the other men who resumed their duties on the settlement of the strike. The men of this train, Conductor Haskill, Baggageman McLean and Brakeman Monk, are the only Peterborough employees of the road who have not been taken back.

They were informed by Trainmaster McMillan that their services were not required at present, and he acted on instructions from Divisional Superintendent Lynch.

What the cause of this turn of affairs is, is not definitely known, it is claimed. It is stated that the strike breakers were taken on on a three months' contract, and this is given as the reason, but it seems strange that this should apply to certain trains and not to others.

This condition of affairs existed at several points on the Grand Trunk system.

GAVE WRONG NAME TO MAN BEHIND THE BAR

It was blacklist day at the police court this morning.

One member of the society was fined $10.00 after he had pleaded guilty to transgressing yesterday. Costs were added, and the full amount, $14.85, was ordered to be paid in fifteen days.

The accused offered the unsolicited explanation, that while in Port Hope he procured the liquor, but it seems that he visited a local hotel, and by giving an assumed name he was served with a "whiskey," and also a "beer." He left the bar and later returned, but during his absence the bartender ascertained that the man was on the prohibited list, and refused to supply him. He also 'phoned License Inspector Stewart and the case this morning came as a sequel.

Several witnesses, who were at the bar at the time, were present at court, but were not called.

ONE MAN MISSING

Another case which was enlarged until Friday, Aug. 12th, promises to be productive of some interesting evidence

Two men are charged with supplying another blacklister with liquor. One was on hand this morning and pleaded not guilty, but the other, it is understood, is fighting shy of the summons.

W. H. Moore prosecuted, and Mr. F. D. Kerr is acting for the accused, who appeared this morning.

HAVE PASSED ENTRANCE INTO FACULTIES EXAMS

The following is the list of the Peterborough candidates who have passed on one or more parts for entrance into the faculties of education:—

M. Anderson (part 2), H. E. Balfour (parts A. and B.), E. M. Connor (part 2), D. Fessenden (part 1), G. D. Mowat (part 1), C. H. Park (part 2), L. Park (part 1), K. E. Read (part 1), C. Young (part 1.)

The examination passed is indicated after each name. The certificates of those who passed and the statements of marks of those who failed will be mailed to the principals and inspectors in the course of a week. As in the other examinations no appeal can be allowed to candidates whose papers are stamped as having been re-read. In other cases of failure appeals will not refused if made before Sept. 1, and accompanied by the fee of $2. In view of all the precautions taken, however, it is unlikely that such appeals would be successful.

BABY BIRDS WILL HOLD THE BOARDS AT THIS MEETING

There will be a baby show at the meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association to-night in the Association's hall, Simcoe street.

Every member is expected to bring a pair of spring chickens, and it is anticipated that there will be a line-up of barnyard birds tempting enough to make Jack Johnson jump out of the ring at the most critical stage.

The relative development of the chickens will be taken up.

Mr. H C. Duff, the representative in this district for the department of agriculture, will give an address of vital interest to all poultrymen.

THANKS

Before leaving for the west a couple of young ladies left the following note at the Charlotte street parsonage';

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Henderson,—On the eve of your departure for a trip to the coast we, a few of your many friends, of the Charlotte-st. Methodist church take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of your many helpful services, and ask you to accept the accompanying gift with our best wishes for a safe journey and a pleasant vacation.

The gift referred to was a neat box containing five $20 gold pieces.

We wish in this way to express our sincere gratitude to our kind annonymous friends.

Mr, and Mrs, GEO W., HENDERSON.

UMBRELLA STOPPED RUNAWAY

A runaway occurred at 11.30 this morning.

A horse and buggy in charge of a small boy were left standing outside of Dr. Morgan's residence. The boy was standing at the head of the horse holding it by the reins near the bit, when it made a sudden break for liberty.

When a lady brandishing an umbrella, however, rushed out into the street the horse deemed descretion the better part of valor and quietly came to a halt.

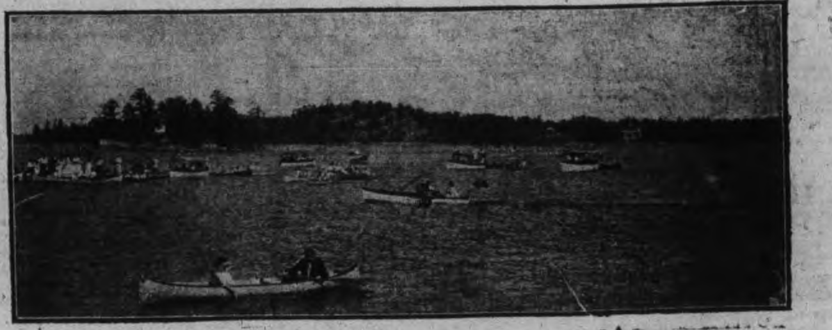
OPENING OF THE FUTURE WATERWAY OF CANADA

Reprinted From Rod and Gun.

Kawartha, that charming Indian term applied to the picturesque system of lakes and rivers, together with the surrounding country of the Trent Valley Waterway, is the red man's symbol for "Bright Waters and Happy Lands." The work of canalizing this waterway, which extends from Trenton, on the Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario, to the lower end of Georgian Bay, near the towns of Waubaushene and Midland, is progressing rapidly. While the object of constructing these canals is to provide a shorter transportation route by water between the vast granary of the north-west and the Atlantic sea-board, and to assist in developing the country through which it passes, it will also open up one of the finest pleasure boat waterways in the world.

A trip through this beautiful chain of lakes, the gems of the Highlands of Ontario, the country of little lakes rivers and waterfalls; through the mammoth hydraulic lift or elevator locks, those modern triumphs of engineering, the largest of their type in the world and the only examples on this side of the Atlantic; and reaching and altitude of 830 feet above tidewater level, is an unique experience.



REGATTA DAY, STONEY LAKE.

In the early days this route was used by the Indians, trappers and explorers in their journeyings between Eastern and Western Canada. It was travelled by Champlain during his western trip in 1615, and the great French pioneer has recorded the wonderful impression this beautiful district made on him. At Trenton, canal operations were started by the British Government in 1833. The object was to construct a military highway over this route, and a number of locks and dams were built at various points. Subsequent disturbed conditions throughout the country caused a cessation of activities, and very little was done for over forty years. The work was again taken up, this time by the Dominion Government. The old wooden locks were enlarged and replaced by substantial stone masonry, while concrete and steel are being used in those more recently built.

Although only about thirty-two miles of actual canal will be needed, the task of building it has been a herculean one. Most of the cuts have been made through solid rock, and a difference of 596 feet in water levels had to be overcome. When completed there will be a depth of not less than eight feet of water on the entire channel.

GORE'S LANDING, RICE LAKE,

Between Trenton and Heeley's Falls, sections have been completed but through navigation is not yet possible. Between Heeley's Falls and Washago at the northern end of Lake Couchiching, a distance of about 165 miles, the work is practically complete and navigation is being carried on each summer. From Washago to Georgian Bay the route follows the Severn River and is still under construction.

When completed the waterway will provide a trip over two hundred miles long, and an additional one hundred miles into lateral connecting waters, and will form a connecting link between the Thousand Islands district of the St. Lawrence and the famous Georgian Bay region. The waters of the lake are deep and translucent and are well stocked with black bass, three and four pounds; maskinonge, from ten to thirty pounds, and also salmon trout. The rivulets and small streams provide excellent speckled trout fishing. Motor boat, canoe and camping parties find their beau-ideal of summer outing on these lakes. Indian and white guides and cooks are to be had at all points on the route. Canoes, tents, camp beds, utensils, fishing tackle and other outfit for camping parties will be found at any of the towns. Gasoline, batteries, oil, repair parts, etc., for motor boats, are also kept in stock at these places. The hotel accommodations are first-class.

Between Trenton and Frankford the Trent River is between three hundred and four hundred feet wide, and the banks are quite high. This section has been canalized by locks and dams and there is a rise of one hundred and eighteen feet. A flooded reach extends five and one-half miles to Chisholm's Rapids. A masonry lock, and a canal, half a mile long, cut out of solid rock, are located there. The route then passes through another flooded reach of three and one-half miles to Hoard's Creek. A cut across country of eleven miles to Crow Bay is then made. There is one hundred and sixty-six feet of rise in this section. The route crosses Crow Bay to Heeley's Falls, a distance of two miles. Here a rise of seventy-seven feet will be made by means of a hydraulic lift lock. The navigable part is now reached, and eleven miles up the river, which is about six hundred feet wide on this section, is the village of Hastings. A masonry lock is located here and then the remaining six miles of the river are passed before entering Rice Lake.

This lake is surrounded by beautiful farming country, and after a twelve mile sail the mouth of the Otonabee River is reached. Twenty miles up this beautiful winding stream there is a lock and two swing bridges, then Little Lake, at the city of Peterborough is crossed. A concrete lock and two swing bridges are at the entrance to the stretch of canal which cuts across country to Nassau, a distance of four miles. Just above the bridges, the Peterborough hydraulic lift or elevator lock, the largest in the world, is reached. The lift of sixty-five feet is quickly made, and any boat up to one hundred and forty feet in length and eight feet draught can pass through.

HOME OF THE SPECKLED TROUT.

The introduction of this style of lock is a decided innovation in canal construction. Between Lake Ontario and Kirkfield, one hundred and ninety and one-half feet of the rise is overcome by three of these locks. The Peterborough lock is a magnificent example of engineering, and its towers rising to almost the height of Niagara, accentuate the Cyclopean appearance of the structure.

Peterborough, with a population of nearly 20,000, is the largest municipality on the waterway, and is a very interesting and beautiful place. Its celebrated canoes are used in all parts of the world. Between Nassau and Lakefield, a distance of about five miles, are five concrete locks and dams. Lakefield is a busy place and is also noted for its canoes. Lake Katchewanooka is next en route, then the lock at the village of Young's Point, and Clear Lake, a fine open expanse six miles long and over a mile wide.

A PETERBOROUGH HUNTING PARTY.

From Clear Lake the channel passes through a group of islands into beautiful Stony Lake, the brightest gem of Kawartha. This lake is about ten miles long and two wide, and its eight hundred rocky islands are covered with luxuriant verdure. Artistic summer cottages and villas adorn these islands, as well as the numerous tents of the campers.

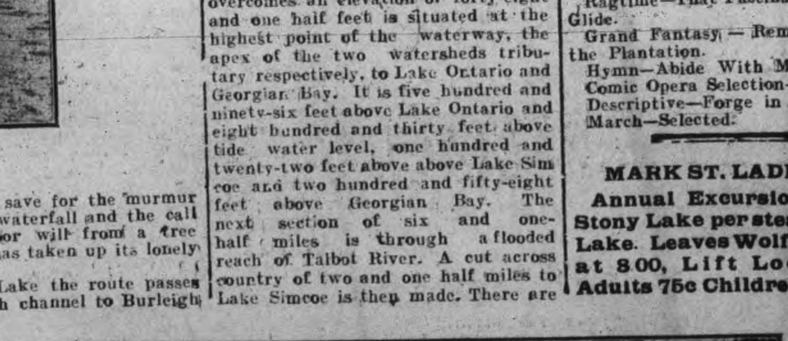
It would be difficult to find a more suitable place to spend a delightful summer vacation. The bright morning sunshine finds the camper armed with rod and line starting out to try his luck, and it is seldom he returns without a goodly catch of game black bass and one or two maskinonge. The motor boat and canoe trips to the many interesting points on the lake, an invigorating plunge in the clear waters, and the good old picnic "shore dinner," with its crisp bacon, nicely browned, fresh fish, and French toast, all liberally interspersed with wood ashes, are among the pleasant memories of such a vacation.

At the end of the day comes that glorious northern sunset with its radiant hues mirrored in the calm waters. Soon the islands stand in silhoutte against the long light of the moon, and the darting fire flies gambol along the wooded shores. Then the sweet strains of the waltz come floating over the lake as a merry party of dancers wile away the evening. The camp fires gleam out and the hum of the motor boats as they pick their way through the channel is heard. The evening passes and soon all is still save for the murmur of the distant waterfall and the call of the whip-poor will from a tree top where it has taken up its lonely night vigil.

From Stony Lake the route passes up the Burleigh channel to Burleigh Falls. This is a popular resort and there is a large waterfall, a fine summer hotel, and cottages. A double lock, a massive masonry structure with a twenty-six foot lift, is located here. It then crosses Lovesick Lake, about two miles long and quite narrow, through Lovesick lock, over Deer Bay, up the Buckhorn channel, through the Buckhorn lock, and over Buckhorn Lake, a beautiful island studded expense to the Indian village of the Mississauga tribe, where Indian basket and birch bark work is offered for sale.

A side trip may be taken into Chemong Lake through a channel at this point. This lake is about six miles long and two wide and has beautiful farms on its shores. Near the upper end, the village of Bridgenorth is reached, and near it is Chemong Park, a fine summer resort. An auto line connects with Peterborough, which is about six miles distant. From Indian village the route passes through Gannon's Narrows and over Pigeon Lake, a beautiful sheet, with large islands and a number of very fine residences. The charming village of Bobcaygeon, which is about seventeen miles from Buckhorn lock, is then reached. Another lock is located here, then Sturgeon Lake, about ten miles long and a mile wide is crossed. Sturgeon Point, a large resort located on a finely wooded promontory on the northern shore, is the most interesting place on this lake. A side run may be taken up the Scugog River to Lake Scugog, and the towns of Lindsay and Port Perry visited.

From Sturgeon Lake the route is up the picturesque Fenelon River, whose high rocky shores are very beautiful, to the thriving village of Fenelon Falls. Another double lock with a twenty-four foot lift is located here. Cameron Lake, about three mile long and two wide, with heavily wooded shores is then crossed, and the Rosedale River entered. The Burnt River, a stream navigable for large boats for many miles, affords a delightful side run at this point. It is quite narrow, but of good depth, and the high trees on its banks from an archway over it at several places. Between the Rosedale River and Balsam Lake there is a lock with a three-foot lift. Balsam Lake is about six miles long and eight wide. After crossing the lake an interesting side trip may be taken up the Gull River to the village of Coboconk. From Balsam Lake the route is through five and the half miles of canal, hewn out of limestone rock, to the hydraulic lift lock at Kirkfield. This lock which overcomes an elevation of forty-eight and one half feet is situated at the highest point of the waterway, the apex of the two watersheds tributary respectively, to Lake Ontario and Georgian Bay. It is five hundred and ninety-six feet above Lake Ontario and eight hundred and thirty feet above tide water level, one hundred and twenty-two feet above above Lake Simcoe and two hundred and fifty-eight feet above Georgian Bay. The next section of six and one-half miles is through a flooded reach of Talbot River. A cut across country of two and one half miles to Lake Simcoe is then made. There are five concrete locks in this section. Lake Simcoe, the largest on the system, is about thirty-five miles long and fifteen wide. It his a number of large summer resorts on its shore line of over two hundred miles. The fine town of Barrie, is situated at the head of Kempenfeldt Bay, an inlet ten miles long. North of this lake and connected with it by a strait a mile long is Lake Couchiching, known as the Geneva of Canada. This beautiful expanse is about twelve miles long and five miles wide, contains a number of islands and neat summer cottages and is noted for its scenery. One of Canada's most progressive towns, Orillia, is located on its southern shore. At the northern end is the town of Washago, the terminus of navigation at present.



SNAPPING AN 18 POUNDER, STONEY LAKE.

Two routes were surveyed from Lake Couchiching to Georgian Bay, one across country, and the other through Severn River. The latter route, which is about twenty-five miles long, will be used, and is now under construction. The Severn River is a stream over six hundred feet wide with high rocky sores, rushing rapids and plunging waterfalls. It will form a truly fitting finale to a trip over this magnificent new waterways.

When completed a large tourist traffic will certainly develop. The route presents all the attractions for an outing of a most enjoyable kind. The inland waterway will prove a favorite route for power boats, and the advantages they will enjoy throughout will lead to continual increases in their numbers.

DUSTY AND QUINLAN TO DO THE TWIRLING

A second meeting between the All Stars and T.A.S. has been arranged for Saturday afternoon at Riverside, and the two teams will endeavor to contribute some classy baseball.

The Abstainers had to be content with the small end of the score, at the former meeting between the two nines, and are welcoming this opportunity of another chance to reverse matters if possible.

Dusty and Quinlan will be the opposing twirlers and the men behind will be players who will fight all the way.

The admission will be fifteen cents.

BRIEF AND BREEZY

"Doc" Burton, pitching for New Liskeard at Hamilton Monday against a local nine, won a shut out 3—0.

Killien, a southpaw, and the property of the Detroit club, joins the Toronto Maple Leafs at Jersey City to-day. Another yellow fruitlet.

Johnson is due for more notoriety. They have him now as having thrown aside his white wife.

Those in charge of the arrangements for the All Star-T. A. S. game at Riverside Park, Saturday afternoon, have decided decided to place the admission fee at fifteen cents. This amount is sufficient for any local game, when only city teams are playing. The circumstances are altered when an outside club is brought here. The expenses are heavy, even more than the average fan has any idea of, and the home team is justified in charging twenty-five cents.

An endeavor is being made to bring one of the City League teams of Toronto here at an early date.

"Fish" Haney is right at home. He has hiked to the huants of sunfish and mosquitos for the purpose of getting some new guff, for the gathering at the All Star-T.A.S. game Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park. Last evening, so the rumor goes, he captured several undersized minnows.

While the City League magnates have been on the lookout for backstops all summer, a youngster by name Eano, who it is stated has it on all the present city catchers has been lying idle. Eano works behind the bat for the Lock Works ball team.

The T.A.S. baseball club has arranged for a game here on Civic Holiday with a team from Cobourg.

Pittsburg took two games from Philadelphia yesterday, Magee of the the Phillies, in eight times at bat, knocked out a home run, one three bagger, two two baggers and was hit by a pitched ball.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—The people of Peterborough ought to be grateful for any entertainment given them, especially at such a small cost as at the Grand Opera House. But in the present case they ought to thank Mr. Turner for providing such an educative, pleasant interesting programme as he is doing this week. In every way the programme is superior to anything ever given here before.

Yours truly,
WELLWISHER.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Upon your editorial suggestion I read the article upon the Birmingham Board of Health, and was well repaid for doing so. It defines in a single sentence the duties of a medical health officer by saying that "it is his business to take cognizance of everything which affects prejudicually the health of the people and suggest remedial and preventive measures." The Birmingham Board, unlike our board of do nothings, is composed of experts. Amongst other things, "it is concerned with the collection and destruction of refuse ......the inspection of house property and insistence on its being maintained in good sanitary condition......And the abatement of smoke, nuisances." Owing to the city sanitary precautions "the death rate has been reduced in the last 40 years from 25 per 1,000 per annum to 15 1-2. The diminished mortality during the last five years alone as compared with the previous five years represents a saving of about 1650 lives per annum." But I suppose this matter of saving so many lives is but of small moment to our sleeping authorities.

Yours truly
BYSTANDER.

Aug. 4th, 1910.

JERMYN

Special to the Review.

Aug. 3, 1910.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Armstrong, of Toronto, were the guests of Miss Edith Armstrong Saturday and Sunday.

Miss J. Clarry, of Hastings, and Miss Mary Fife, were the guests of Miss Lizzie Fife Sunday.

Miss R. Carter is spending her holidays at Edmonton.

It is said coming events cast their shadows ahead. They may been seen around Jermyn this week.

Nearly all the people of this vicinity visited the wreck on the C.P.R. and no doubt some will find difficulty in disposing of their stock of pickles and chocolates for some time.

Messrs Geo. and Fred Fife visited the wreck Sunday. Mr. Geo. Fife reports that there were some very fine peas scattered around. For further information ask "George."

Church services will be withdrawn at Bethel Sunday morning as the Quarterly meeting services will be held at Keene. S. S. services will be postponed to the evening.

Local fishermen have been having good luck during the past week. Mr. Fred Fife succeeded in landing three lunge, L. Armstrong also secured three, but they both envy Mr. G. Fife's luck, who secured eight bass on Saturday.

Mr. G. W. M. Fife attended Indian River church Sunday evening.

Local slueths are busily engaged trying to get a clue leading to the identification of the parties who were emitting the blood curdling yells that were heard near hear Saturday night.

Farmers report that the recent rains are sprouting the peas that were lying out. If it continues damp serious damage will result.

The Matrimonial Club, "alias Glee Club," intends to disband. The final meeting will be reported in next week's Review.

Owing to the G.T.R. strike several loads of produce have passed through village en route to C.P.R. station.

The Literary committee of Bethel Epworth League held a meeting at Mr. J. Borland's Thursday night to arrange a programme for a lawn social.

The Bethel Young Men's A. B. C., will hold their quarterly business meeting on Thursday night.

Mr. Stewart Armstrong is erecting a new dwelling on the Fife farm.

Mr. Bob McConkey will run Mr. Armstrong's threshing engine this fall.

Howard Craig and Charles Wood, having served their sentences at Kingston, were deported to the other side of the line on Saturday.

MONTE CARLO'S RULER.

His Subjects Vote Not, Neither Do They Pay Taxes.

In Monaco, as in Russia, the ruler is supreme. It is an absolute hereditary monarchy. Even Russia has its douma, but in the dominions of Prince Albert voting is unknown. Yet the Monegasques cannot raise that historic cry of taxation without representation, for if they are not permitted the one they are not burdened with the other.

Albert I., the reigning prince, has devoted his life to scientific research, so the money which the spendthrifts throw away answers some useful purpose after all. He is one of the foremost authorities on marine zoology, his solutions of the gulf stream problem have been recognized by the Institute of France, and the oceanographic museum which he has founded has no equal. He is sixty-one years old, has been twice married and twice divorced—first to the Lady Mary Douglas-Hamilton, whose story is a romantic and a pathetic one, and twenty years later to the dowager Duchess of Richelieu. He tired of them both. He has one child, the Crown Prince Louis.

Prince Albert divides his time between his yacht, with its remarkable scientific equipment, his Paris residence in the Avenue Trocadero and the pink and white palace perched on a rock above the gaming hall which supports him.—Metropolitan Magazine.

The Opium Couch.

In the library of a Chinese gentleman the opium couch is as inseparable a feature of a gentleman's home as the armchairs and cigars of an American den. Perhaps it must disappear now before the prohibition campaign which is being waged from Peking, or it will remain under the innocent guise of a reclining reading table, as some innocent globe trotters have described it. Opium as used in the ordinary citizen's private house is considered no more a vice than tobacco with Americans. It is the custon; that is all. The host waves you to the couch for a perfunctory whiff just as Americans begin by offering a guest a cigar.

The Size of Antarctica.

It is a somewhat curious fact, if it is a fact, that the last of the terrestrial continents to be explored is the largest mass of raised land in the world. The concentration of attention upon the south pole since Commander Peary landed the other end of our axis makes it highly probable that the antarctic antipode will soon be dangling from some explorer's belt. Incidentally the south polar continent will be opened, if not to the settler, at least to the mapmaker. We already know something of its fringes at a few points, and Lieutenant Shackleton pushed into it south of Mounts Erebus and Terror for several hundred miles, but the greater portion of its surface is still terra incognita.—Collier's.

Aged Equestrian Killed.

Lockhaven, Pa., Aug. 4.—S. R. Peale, former state Senator, and one of the most prominent men in this section of the state, died Tuesday night as a result of injuries received when his horse fell upon him Tuesday. Although eighty years old, it was Mr. Peale's custom to take a daily horseback ride.

Ore Carrier Aground.

Amherstburg, Aug. 4.—The steamer D. G. Kerr, downbound with ore, ran aground on the west bank of the limekiln crossing early yesterday morning. She is leaking badly, and will have to be lightered. The tug Goulder and the lighter Favorite have gone to her assistance.

Appointments to "Rainbow."

London, Aug. 4.—The following appointments have been made to the Rainbow: J. D. Stewart, in command on commission, Aug. 4; Lieuts. A. E. D. Moore, R.H.C., Halifax; R. V. Holt, R. T. Edwards; engineer commander, T. J. Morgan; engineer lieutenant, R. H. M. Bury; artificer engineer, R. W. Hood; staff paymaster, R. A. Jenkins; surgeon, T. A. Smyth, gunners, Mock and Pehan.

Want Reduced Rates.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—The filing of a petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, asking that body to investigate the tariffs and net revenue of express companies by commercial organizations throughout the country, was made known yesterday. The petition is signed by 134 associations of commerce and commercial clubs who want a considerable reduction in express rates.

The Reward of Bravery.

London, Aug. 4.—King George, at Marlborough House Tuesday, in the presence of the Home Secretary and other Government officials, decorated 62 miners for conspicuous gallantry in saving, or attempting to save, life in the recent colliery disasters, presenting them with King Edward medals. Nine seamen also received medals for conspicuous gallantry in saving life at sea.

Two Hundred Fishermen Drowned.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—Under the direction of the military authorities, rescue work was yesterday taken up on the River Amell Amoor, near Nicolaiesvk, where 200 fishermen are known to have been drowned when a typhoon wrecked their boats Tuesday. It is feared that the death list will exceed that number.

Explosion Result of Carelessness.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The Russian admiralty yesterday ordered a rigid investigation into the torpedo boat explosion at Kronstadt Tuesday, in which six sailors were killed and nearly a score injured. It is hinted that the explosion resulted from carelessness on the part of the crew.

A Reign of Terror.

Bonnay, Fla., Aug. 4.—A reign of terror exists in the northwestern section of Holmes County, owing to the determination of the whites, by a wholesale lynching of negroes, to avenge the murder of Bessie Morris

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

Two New Industries.

St. Catharines, Aug. 4.—The large stone building at Merritton recently purchased from the Canadian Colored Cotton Co. by the Canadian Haircloth Co. has been sold to a syndicate which will establish a rubber factory to employ 300 men. The factory will be outside of the present rubber merger. The haircloth factory will remain in the city, but will buy an adjoining factory and double its present capacity. The Merritton mill cost the rubber company $70,000.

Fell on Prongs of Fork.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Aug. 4.—Frank Devine, aged 20, while engaged in hay-making at North Wiltshire, fell from the top of a load, landing upon the outspreading prongs of his hayfork, which entered below the right armpit, penetrating the lungs to a depth of seven inches.

Becalmed All Night.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—Becalmed in a sailboat, Eugene Rockwood of Long Branch, and Miss Whitten, a nurse at Mimico Asylum, spent the night on the lake. A gasoline launch sent out in search located them off Port Credit about ten o'clock yesterday morning.

FOOLISH WOMAN'S LOVE LETTER

New York, August 3.—The suit of Russell Griswood, 21, for $50,000 damages for breach of promise against Miss Helen Woodruff Smith, of Stamford, Conn., heiress to several millions, was characterized as "blackmail" today by the young lady. Miss Smith freely discussed the suit as she was preparing to leave for a cruise on the yacht Viking.

"Griswold published my letters to him, and they speak for themselves," she said. "They are letters from a patroness to a protege kid—a mere boy.

"I was only joshing in my letters and if I mentioned love it was only puppy love. I had no thought of marrying him, and did not promise to marry him.

"I would not marry the finest man in the world, and this nasty little turncoat is hardly a man, is he?"

Then followed several references to young Griswold, in which the expressions "creature," "presumptuous little cad," "bounder" and "beggar" were features.

"I educated and practically raised Griswold," continued Miss Smith. "He is a foolish boy and has been ill-advised."

Griswold to-day published more letters attributed to the girl. One of the extracts reads—

"Be sure and destroy the evidence of my whereabouts and do not say I am here or anywhere. It were best to say, like Evelyn Thaw, that you 'don't know.'

"I think I'll take a 'golden gate' or some other high-priced drink. Maybe it will open the way to the 'sweet presence of a god diffused,' but thoughts affectionate so often occasion that presence that there will be nothing new about it except the drink. Meiner Siegfried."

Another portion of the letter reads;

"Ye gods, kid, just finished the job. It might have been the other way, but, thanks to your help, it did not finish me. 'Tis hard to kiss you, sweetheart, when the last kiss means good-bye?"

Later this occurs:

"With this goes two handkerchiefs. Not for tears, but to wave when we're in sight; not to flirt with, but to repose in Ruzzie's pocket, to be used after soda and the like."

Griswold, when told that Miss Smith had caustically criticised him, exclaimed;

"I expected that she would not like the thing to become public. Of course she is mad. But how about my feelings? She had no thought of them when she flatly refused to marry me after keeping me dangling after and adoring her ever since boyhood. She made me suffer, now let her suffer for it."

Before sailing Miss Smith conferred with her attorneys, who announced this afternoon that they would seek legally to enjoin Griswold from publishing the letters.

"I'll stop this little scamp's dirty work legally," said Miss Smith after the conference. "There must be some protection for me against him or his advisors who are publishing the letters."

Heidelberg, Germany, is going to erect a monument to Mark Twain, who began his story, "A Tramp Abroad," there.

COLLIE DOG SEVERELY BIT LITTLE FOUR YEAR OLD GIRL

Was Leading Dog on Leash and It Became Infuriated By Boys Who Teased It—Siezed Child on Arm and Inflicted Painful Wound—Medical Aid Was Required

The little four-year-old daughter of Mr. Duffy, who resides on McDonnel street, just behind the old Collegiate Institute, was very severely bitten by a collie dog this morning about ten o'clock.

As far as can be learned the injury to the little girl was caused by some small boys teasing the dog, which was being led by the child, who had hold of the animal by the collar.

The dog tried to get away from the little girl and failing to do so it turned and buried its teeth in her right arm, hanging on to it very tenaciously, and several blows from a stick were required before it released the arm.

A gash about one inch and a half long and half an inch deep was inflicted on the tender flesh of the child.

She was taken into the house of Mrs. Lockhart, at Water and McDonnel streets, and was attended to by Dr. Halliday. The doctor stated it was one of the worst looking bites he had ever witnessed.

It is understood that the dog will be shot immediately.

When seen to-day the little girl was able to be around the house and was bearing up well under the pain of the wound. She did not utter the slightest cry during the painful operation of having the wound cauterized.

THE CAMPERS ALARMED BY LIGHTNING

Mr. Wm. Merrell and family, who are encamped at Crawford's Grove, were much alarmed last evening during the storm.

A large tree just behind their tent was struck by lightning and was split into two sections. In falling to the ground it narrowly escaped striking the tent in which the party were.

In conversation with other campers to-day the Review learned that no damage or discomfort was experienced by them as a result of the storm.

Gave Amazing Answers

Humanity is sceptical by nature, But the doubting ones who attended the performances of Ita, if not actually convinced are at least mystified.

Last night Ita excelled herself in answering questions, naming lost articles and describing absent places and persons.

And still there are those who inquire, "how is it done?"

Ask Ita.

IF YOU WANT TO FIGHT IT OUT

From the age of 45 years the eyes have undergone a natural change (which no eye escapes), so that they are either out of focus for distance or near vision, especially at night. You cannot see distinctly with the paper a foot from the eyes and you need strong light. Your real need is suitable glasses If you want to fight this difficulty out with nature you may do so, millions have done it before you and have been worsted in the fight. We are relieving the eyes of such cases every day. Perhaps you will be wise by taking the matter in time.

DROWNING FATALITIES

Three Toronto Residents Perish—Visitor Dies at Picton.

Toronto, Aug. 5.—Three Torontonians perished yesterday in the water. Merton Kent, of the Argonaut, R. C., son of the late H. A. E. Kent, was drowned from a launch under unusual circumstances while on his way to the regatta at St. Catharines. Harry McBratney, aged 20, was upset with a companion while sailing off Orchard Beach, Lake Simcoe. Fred Swift, a ship's cook, fell into the bay while intoxicated.

The drowning of "Mert" Kent came as a great surprise to his many friends in athletic and social circles. He was thrown into the water when an accident to the tow line, by which his disabled launch was being towed by the steamer "Garden City," caused the small craft to lurch suddenly.

Young McBratney, who was twenty years of age, and employed as a furniture polisher by the John Kay Co., left on Saturday last for Orchard Beach, accompanied by Ernest Pretty of 174 Euclid avenue. Yesterday morning the two lads went out for a sail, were struck by a squall and their boat overturned. It is reported that young McBratney's heart was not very strong, and it is thought that he went down immediately. Pretty was rescued by the two Strachan brothers, who put out immediately in a rowboat.

Fatality at Picton.

Picton, Aug. 5.—E. J. Paradis, general manager of the Syracuse Gas Engine Co., of Syracuse, N.Y., was drowned.

Paradis, with his wife and Captain Wessels, and H. W. Sheriff, manager of the Royal Hotel, were out in Sheriff's motor boat. There was a heavy sea running. Paradis stood up in the boat, and, losing his balance, fell overboard.

VIOLATION OF THE ALIEN ACT

Thirteen Strike-Breakers In Jail at Sarnia.

Some Being Taken Back.

Brockville, Aug. 5.—The Grand Trunk trainmen and conductors who went on strike are being gradually taken back into the service. Yesterday union crews were called for the day freights east and west out of Brockville and six union crews were in charge of as many trains arriving from Montreal. The men are not, however, being taken back as quickly as they expected, and much uneasiness prevails in the ranks of the brotherhood. No passenger conductors nor brakemen have yet been called for duty. Several yardmen are back in their old places.

Troops Called Off.

Bridgeburg, Aug. 5.—The troops that have been here for several days, guarding Grand Trunk property during the strike, left by special train yesterday at seven a.m. for Niagara Falls, Toronto and London.

None Re-employed at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—Not one of the striking trainmen on the Ottawa division of the Grand Trunk has as yet been re-employed, nor has official word been received of the termination of the strike.

Strike-Breakers Dismissed.

London, Ont., Aug. 5.—A sensational episode was enacted Wednesday night when the Pacific Express from Suspension Bridge drew up to the platform and Conductor Hughson and Brakemen Willisley and Turleston, all American strike-breakers, were dismissed by Supt. Bowker, charged with being intoxicated.

Thirteen Strike-Breakers Arrested.

Sarnia, Aug. 5.—Traveling Immigration Inspector Herbert has caused the arrest of thirteen Grand Trunk strike-breakers at Sarnia, and is now endeavoring to secure the arrest of one other of the party of fourteen men who came in from the States. The party had about $20 each in cash, and on landing in Sarnia Wednesday, after passing the immigration inspection, this money was taken over by the G.T.R. agent at Sarnia. Herbert has signed declarations to this effect. On a charge that they were entering Canada under false pretences, thirteen of the men are now in jail in Sarnia.

FREIGHT THE CHIEF QUESTION

Cost of Carrying Goods Is the Paramount Issue, Says Graham.

Moose Jaw, Sask., Aug. 5.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier and party arrived here yesterday afternoon from Weyburn after making short stops at Yellow Grass and Lang. The Premier had his customary conference with the grain-growers.

At a luncheon given by the Canadian Club in the evening to the members of the Premier's party, Hon. Mr Graham spoke on the subject of transportation charges.

"We have heard a great deal in the press about reduced passenger rates—about the two-cent passenger rate. In the matter of rates that is not the paramount question. Few people in comparison to the number of the population travel. More are traveling now than in the earlier days of the country because there are more people now in the country."

Explosion Kills Two.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Two persons were killed and several injured by the explosion of a steam pipe on board the fishing excursion steamer Satellite as she was proceeding down the harbor yesterday. The dead are firemen. There was no panic among the passengers.

BANK MEN IN COURT; LOOKING INTO EVIDENCE

Magistrate's Decision in Lindsay Conspiracy Case Postponed.

A. B. MGill, J. J. Fleury and J. L. Coulter of Lindsay Branch of the Home Bank Face Charge of Attempting to Impair Reputation of Rival Concern — They Acted In Good Faith, Says Their Counsel.

Lindsay, Aug. 5.—"It is a serious matter. I want to look into the evidence carefully," said Magistrate Alex. Jackson yesterday afternoon in deferring until Wednesday morning next his decision in regard to the accusations brought by the Farmers' Bank of Canada against three former employes.

The formal charge reads:

"That A. B. McGill, J. J. Fleury and J. L. Coulter, of the Town of Lindsay, in the County of Victoria, and at other places in the Province of Ontario, in the year 1910, prior to the laying of this information, did unlawfully and wickedly conspire, confederate and agree with one another and each with the other by deceit and falsehood and other fraudulent means to defraud the Farmers' Bank of Canada, and to injuriously affect the credit and standing of the Farmers' Bank."

Magistrate Jackson declined to try the case, but held merely a preliminary investigation. Crown Attorney Devlin was assisted by H. H. Dewart, K.C., of Toronto, former county crown attorney there, and who is acting as counsel for the Farmers' Bank. Thos. Stewart, counsel for the accused, objected, but was told that, as it was only an enquiry, it was permissible. For the same reason the defence submitted no evidence. The court was crowded.

The allegations that McGill, former local manager of the Farmers' Bank; Fleury, his accountant, and Coulter, former manager at Nestleton, conspired to resign from the Farmers' Bank and spread certain information calculated to cause depositors to withdraw, and to send their custom to the Home Bank, into the service of which the defendents entered, the Home having but recently opened up a local office. It is claimed that the defendants approached depositors, some of them late at night, and intimated that the bank and its management was not especially "safe." As a result, some $50,000 was withdrawn, some of which has been returned, but most of which has gone to the Home Bank, of which McGill is now manager.

Mr. Dewart first examined J. G. Fitzgibbon, chief inspector of the Farmers' Bank, as to the soundness of the bank's stock. Witness said he had never heard of it selling below 25. Evidence was later submitted that defendants had told certain persons it had been down to 11 and 10. The inspector said that not 100 shares had changed hands in the past four months. The stock paid dividends at 4 per cent. per annum, the last payment being on July 4. An action for $150,000 had been brought against the Farmers' Bank at Syracuse, N.Y., but it had been set side, thrown out by the grand jury, no injunction or judgment being given against the bank.

During the day several men told of having been advised to withdraw their deposits. Gordon Dickson of Belleville, who succeeded McGill, said that on June 29, when he arrived at Lindsay, McGill had said there'd been a run, and that he hadn't said a word against the bank. Dickson told of McGill coming into the Janetville office with a check and passbook belonging to a depositor, James Baxter, and demanding the money. He also said that Fleury, then in the Home Bank, brought in eight or twelve checks, signed by customers of the Farmers' Bank. Roy Evans, now manager of the Farmers' Bank at Nestleton, said that Fleury, after going to the Home Bank, brought fifteen or twenty checks to the Lindsay office on accounts in the Farmers' Bank, amounting to seventeen thousand dollars. It was then Evans had informed the head office, although McGill had tried to prevent him.

The defence as outlined was that McGill had persuaded his friends to deposit their savings in the Farmers' Bank, and that, hearing certain rumors he had become alarmed and had simply given his friends a warning. Coulter had also persuaded some of his friends to deposit in the bank so he helped spread the alarm. They felt that having got the men to deposit with them that they would be blamed if anything happened. McGill had heard that the stock was away down around $11 per share. The par value is $100.

He also heard about an injunction that had been filed in Syracuse, N.Y., against the bank for $150,000. Added to information that alleged that other branches were not doing well, McGill thought the institution was in dangerous shape.

McGill had decided that the depositors would blame him rightly if, having heard those things, he did not put them in a position to protect themselves.
